Taylor, the huge battering ram Western Mustangs of the Intercollegiate Football League used last year, was released by Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four this year. But Blake didn't want to play for the Tigers.

He wanted to go to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union. Hamilton agreed that Taylor had to be placed on the waiver list. The Dutchmen received verbal assurances from Ottawa and Montreal, both of the Big Four, that they wouldn't claim Taylor.

But apparently Toronto Argonauts wouldn't pass up waivers on the player.

LISTOWEL IN FINAL

LISTOWEL (CP) — Listowel Legionaires Wednesday won their Ontario Baseball Association intermediate B semi-final series with Amherstburg Cardinals by defeating the Cardinals 5-4 and taking the round 3-1. Listowel now meets Brownsville in the finals with the opener scheduled for Listowel Saturday.

Hornets Sting Maple Leafs 3-1 Before Big Crowd

TORONTO (CP) — Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League Wednesday night defeated Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League 3-1 in an exhibition game before 14,000 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The game netted $6,182.50 for Red Feather charities in Toronto.

The fourth loss by the Leafs in seven exhibition games, it brought about the re-elevation of centre Bob Hassard to the NHL club. Danny Lewicki went to Pittsburgh as his replacement.

Bob Solinger, Andy Barbe and Phil Maloney scored the Hornet goals. Gordie Hamilgan tallied the Leaf counter.

Sydney Wants Hands-off Policy

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Sydney Millionaires of the Maritime Major Hockey League have committed to the National Hockey League's central registry that coach Murph Chamberlain of the Windsor Bulldogs team in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series is tampering with their players.

Club secretary Steve MacDonald said Wednesday that Freddie Hildebrand, a wingman from New Westminster, B.C., who has played all but a few weeks of his senior and major hockey with the Millionaires, is reported working out with the Windsor team. He has been ordered to report back to Sydney, Oct. 12.

Gets Injunction To Prevent Ban

DETROIT (AP)—Harness-racing driver-trainer Wayne (Curly) Smart Wednesday obtained a temporary court injunction preventing enforcement at a one-year suspension by the Michigan racing commission.

Smart, veteran Delaware, Ohio, horseman was suspended in connection with the alleged doping of the horse Alabaseg at Wyandotte Raceway here Aug. 12.

On Sept. 19 Smart obtained a temporary restraining order similar to Wednesday's injunction. The court actions are designed to hold up the suspension pending a decision on Smart's court application seeking to overrule the ban.

Gil Turner Wins Easily Over Scortichini

DETROIT (AP) — Gil Turner would like to fight Kid Gavilan again for the welterweight championship—and soon—but Turner's manager says "let's wait and see."

"We'll only fight Gavilan outdoors," George Katz, Turner's manager, said today. "It would be silly for us to go inside when Gil can do $200,000 in an open-air show in Philadelphia.

"And, besides, it all depends whether he can make the weight."

Turner weighed 136 pounds—the most in his career—when he trimmed Italo Scortichini of Italy Wednesday night in a one-sided 10-rounder in Olympia Stadium. That's a little over the welterweight limit.

The 24-year-old Philadelphian looked a little flabby around the middle but didn't seem to like the punching power of his opponent. He raked his back-peddling opponent with as many as 100 punches in each round.

There were no knockdowns, but Turner, firing away like a burp gun, tried hard to floor Scortichini in the 10th round. But the 34-year-old Italian, who tipped in at 135½, refused to go down, although he fled Turner's barrages throughout the fight.

It was the 42nd victory against three losses for Turner, who is ranked second among the welters. He won easily on the cards of all three officials.

A small crowd of 2,853, paying a gross of $6,021.50, saw the unusually listless scrap.

If Turner does pare his weight, he'll have to stalk Gavilan and Johnny Bratton, the No. 1 welter from Chicago, a little matter next month in a title fight. The last time Turner met Gavilan, in Cuba, the Cuban champion scored a TKO in the 11th round.

TO PILOT CUBS AGAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Phil Cavarretta who took over as a stop-gap pilot two years ago, Wednesday was handed the third one-year managerial contract by the seventh-place Chicago Cubs.

The 1954 season, however, will find Cavarretta, a hard-hitting Cub first baseman for 19 years, strictly a bench manager.

Since he was named manager to succeed Frankie Frisch July 21, 1951, Cavarretta had remained on the active player list. But he appeared only as a pinch-hitter this year.

Biltmores Whip Greenshirts 5-1

KITCHENER (CP)—Guelph Biltmores Wednesday night defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-1 in an exhibition OHA Junior A game.

Bob Atterbury scored two goals for Guelph. The others went to Birney Dimma, Bill McCreary and John Gillis.

Gregg Hicks counted for the Greenshirts.

Guy Rousseau Gets Transfer

MONTREAL (CP)—Transfer of Guy Rousseau, star left-winger of Montreal Canadiens Juniors, to Quebec Frontiers, new entry in the Junior Amateur Hockey Association, was announced Wednesday.

No announcement was made of money, if any, involved. With Rousseau will go defenceman Roger Landry, obtained by Canadiens from the junior Montreal Royals, and forward Del Topgall, who hails from Birch River, Man., and played with Brandon and Cincinnati.

Rousseau is considered by many one of the outstanding junior players in the country. He was leading scorer last season in the QJAHA with 44 points on 42 goals and 33 assists.

Suggest Changes In Intercounty

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Executives of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League already are making preparations for the coming year.

The full executive committee of 10 members Wednesday reviewed last year's operations and decided to suggest some changes at the annual meeting in Kitchener Nov. 21. The changes were kept confidential, however executive meeting is to be held in Galt Oct. 24.

No decision was reached on naming an assistant for secretary Jack Blakney.

At the session were: President Otto Manion of Waterloo; league administrator John Gillies and Alex Foster, both of London; Harry Currow of Preston; Ernie Reeves of Galt; treasurer William Parker of Port Colborne; Wiggs Walker of Stratford; and C. James, Goldie Whitehead and Blakney, of Kitchener.

Dodgers Still Dominate National, Newcombe Will Bolster Mound Staff

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—If the American League is in bad shape from an overdose of Yankees, the rival National League doesn't have much to look forward to, either.

The Dodgers, even in defeat, still dominate the other circuit as completely as the Yanks do theirs. The baseball expert who doesn't do a perfect job picking the pennant winners next spring will have to be either a rank sentimentalist or a resident of Milwaukee.

If anything, Chuck Dressen's sluggers figure to make a greater shambles of their league than they did this year, providing there are no crippling injuries to key personnel. They could even win a world series for a change if Allie Reynolds should decide to quit pitching for the Yanks, as he is strictly threatening to do.

There was a big fellow around the Brooklyn dressing room during the world series named Don Newcombe, and he will be back pitching for Dressen next spring. He completes his army tour in February and will hop south to camp right to the Dodgers' training quarters at Vero Beach, seven weeks before those series bad news, Reds's fit.

Newcombe had he had been pitching fairly often and was "rearin' to get back on the mound." He scared the old smooth fella so he fired a few across in lieu seem never to have recovered from that 4-0 hiding the Yanks gave them four world series back. The St. Louis Cards are engaging in some sort of a youth movement under new ownership, and New York Giants were stricken with some affliction not yet diagnosed. Chicago, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh merely are holding their franchises.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

A normal opening bid in bridge asks for normal responses. An unusual opening bid is a special signal that calls for an immediate signal in reply. An opening of one is normal of two is unusual.

An opening of two in a suit tells partner that they must not stop at less than a game in something. It asks partner to signal at once whether or not he has help that may produce a slam.

An immediate reply of two no-trump says: "No, partner, I do not have help for a slam." An immediate reply of anything but two-trump says: "Yes, partner, I have a trick that may help a slam."

There was the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠J 7 5 3
♥K 5 4 2
♦A 10
♣7 6 4

WEST
♥A 9 6
♦K 7 5 4 3
♣J 10 9 3

EAST
♥10 9 8 3
♦Q 9 7 6 5 2
♣K Q

SOUTH
♥A Q 7
♦None
♣A 8 5 4 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
2 S	3 S
4 NT	5 H
6 S	Pass

An opening of two in a suit should not be made with less than nine tricks. The south opening promised that much. Three spades in reply showed support and a suit trick somewhere in the hand.

This was enough information for south to investigate the size of their slam. So, he used the four no-trump convention that asks his partner to announce the number of aces and kings he has.

Five hearts in reply is the signal for showing one ace and one king. With two kings now known to be missing it should not be in a contract of seven. And even making slam is not assured.

So, a player of less than expert ability should take it to five spades and be satisfied. However, an expert would try six spades.

In this case they went to six spades but made a play that could not be avoided. Can you decide how it could be defeated?

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dumm da dum dummm. The opening theme of "Dragnet," Jack Webb's cops-and-boodlums TV show, has become the most famous four notes in the country today.

They have eclipsed "Da da dum dumm" — the start of Beethoven's Fifth symphony that was the victory symbol of World War Two.

Reports Variety: "No show biz phenomenon has captured public interest as much as the musical theme of 'Dragnet' since the pioneer radio catch-phrase days of 'Yoo your dollar, Shariis!' and 'Wanta buy a duck?'"

Everywhere you go, it's "Dumm da dum dummm." It blares from juke boxes and radio TV comics use it as a punch line. My five-year-old even brought it home from kindergarten the other day.

The craze was set off by Ray Anthony's hard-rocking disc of the "Dragnet" theme. Now it is reaching a frenzied climax with a runaway record seller called "St. George and the Dragonet." Heaven knows where it will all end.

Storied Year Are

Band leader Anthony said it started over a year ago.

"My manager, Fred Benson, thought it would be a good idea to get a 'Dragnet' type 'Honest' theme," he explained. "We asked one of my arrangers to whip up a treatment. Every month or so, I would ask him how he was coming. He'd say, 'Man, I can't get with it.'

"When we were in New York last summer, we heard that Buddy Morrow's band was coming out with 'Dragnet' side on Victor. So I ordered a couple of arrangements in a hurry, one playing it straight and the other in boogie.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mercury is beneficent aspect today. Study, teaching, legal matters, investigations, research among the mental interests top favored. Smart management will pay.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Could be a good day for planning, carrying out well-arranged programs in work, public affairs or your own private interests. Workers in industrial trades should use extra caution.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — One of the most interesting and stimulating days in this generally-favorable-for-Gemini month. Don't let the grass grow under your feet, but think as you act and attend to urgent tasks first.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You should be in serene, pleasant mood, eager to study, analyze or solve problems before you. Try new ideas that have promise; use new methods, machinery materials with profit.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — This can be a profitable day if you think before you talk and act. Fresh gain in your occupation, perhaps some new advancement (if earned). Do your best, keep amiable and you will speed ahead.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Stimulating Mercury influences. Look forward and, without straining health, try to make this a "red letter" day. Your special interests, work, family affairs under favorable rays.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—While day is splendid for honest interests and cleverly-managed and wisely-planned activities, there is an admonition to be conscientious and amendable in disposition. Watch dietary.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Fresh advantages, perhaps important contacts likely. Be your keen self but don't be arbitrary or too demanding because others may not be entirely agreeable. Graciousness and accuracy count.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Fresh interests for student, teacher, secretary, bookkeeper, research worker, analyst, investigator. Good day for all sound planning and management. Home, family bring happiness.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your Saturn mild in influence but a beneficent Mercury spells advancement, progress in useful endeavor, trade or profession if honesty is maintained. You can gather knowledge if you seek it.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—May be slow for some activities now but aspects become better as the day advances. Plan and allocate duties, matters carefully to get best results.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Similar to Aquarius day. Outlook improved for Saturday's plans and activities. Friendly influences now should encourage you to double efforts. Romance, family favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are serene, trusting, conscientious, generally capable and talented. If true to your inherent fine qualities you are a good friend, useful citizen, a loving and beloved parent and lifemate. You talks often attain your greatest success late in life so keep trying, keep faith in God and in the right and you will be a good citizen, respected and beloved. Chief Justice Leaves Behind Golden Record

By WAYNE HARBERT

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Earl Warren, the new Chief Justice of the United States, left behind a golden record as California's governor.

It is a record of grappling with the heavy problems of a state which has gained a million and a 5,000,000 since re was inaugurated in 1943—more people than there are in 40 of the 48 states.

"We're well on our way now toward our 13th million," he noted the other day.

He has always liked to call it the largest peaceful migration of people in modern times—and he has been proud it has taken place without social unrest.

His administration was without scandal. At his last meeting with department heads he said proudly:

"We've got honesty in our state government from top to bottom."

Warren was the first three-time elected governor of California since James Rolph, although a Republican in a heavily Democratic state. He had politicians who disputed some of his liberal views but few could find fault with Warren as an administrator. He served 10 years in city, county and state government.

Warren reorganized state departments. He won a reputation for finding able men and giving them a free hand. He extended civil service to all departments and tried to keep the pay of state employees up with what they would make on comparable jobs in business and industry.

Many Improvements

Warren made regular radio and television reports to the people and stuck to a policy of no press conferences a week. He had numerous state - wide conferences on such problems as employment, water, youth, crime, mental health and traffic safety.

A 10-year-highway building program was inaugurated in 1947. Driving courses were made compulsory in all public secondary schools.

No other governor in United States history, perhaps, has ever seen the building of so many highways, schools, hospitals and prisons. California has had to build and build to keep pace with its population.

Fifteen per cent of the new homes built in the United States since the war have gone up in California. In a decade Los Angeles became the third largest city in the United States.

Californians drive almost 8,000,000 automobiles and other motor vehicles. Since Warren became governor the state has spent $745,000,000 on roads, almost half of it on divided highways costing as much as $6,000,000 a mile.

In a decade the state government has appropriated $370,000,000 for the University of California and the state colleges. And $254,000,000 has been spent for public school housing.

PLOTTED FOR TWO

Leiderman said he and another business associate, Norbert O'Neill, stayed in Pittsburg two days, but finally gave up hope of a capture and returned to Kansas City, Mo.

Police recovered $263,982 of the $272,000 when they arrested Hall in St. Louis.

Yard Driver's Try

Mrs. Heady was picked up in a St. Louis apartment the couple was living. The arrests came after a tip from an alert taxi driver who told a police lieutenant about a man "loaded with money and carrying a pistol."

Hall, a husky, partly-bald man, broke down under questioning and in placated Mrs. Heady, a childless divorcee.

"My God, I didn't plan to harm the child!" Hall said. "I would never have done a thing like that."

He blamed Marsh, saying he turned the child over to him and later found the boy dead, a pistol shot in his head, in the basement of Mrs. Heady's St. Joseph, Mo., home.

Woman Was Dupe

Police dug up the body in the yard of the home.

Mrs. Heady said she didn't realize she was taking part in a kidnaping.

"He was such a sweet child," she said. "He came so nice."

Hall, son of a widely-respected Pleasanton, Kans., lawyer, told police he had planned the kidnaping for two years. When his father, John Hall, died, the son received a $200,000 inheritance. In four years it was gone.

Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Heady have police records.

Hall said he told Mrs. Heady Bobby was his son, in custody of a former wife.

Held as a material witness is Sandra June O'Day, 22, St. Louis. She was arrested here after police told officers he had been with her Monday night.

Two Are Charged

Hall and Mrs Heady have been charged in Kansas City, Mo., with kidnaping. Prosecutor Richard E. Phelps said they can be prosecuted for both crimes. Kidnaping under Missouri law, and warrants charging first-degree murder were filed against the pair and also against Marsh in St. Joseph.

Ten Children Escape From Flaming Home

BRANTFORD (CP) — Ten children escaped from their flaming home on the Six Nations Indian reserve on Wednesday night, but their grand-father, 63-year-old Sam Powless of Route 6, Hagersville, died in Lady Willingdon hospital a few minutes after suffering an attack while helping to carry furniture from the burning frame dwelling.

The Children's father, Lorne Jamieson, was said to have been at the Norfolk County Fair in Simcoe, and the mother is understood to have been visiting a neighbor's place nearby.

Fireman from Brantford found the home razed when they arrived.

COMRADE TEACHER

VIENNA (Reuters)—In "comrade teacher" who presides in Czech classrooms now, and teachers should be proud of the "comrade" title when the pupils thus address them, says Rovnost, a Communist bi-weekly.

Canadian Army's First Peacetime Division Formed

Will Wear Red Patch, Be Based At Petawawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton announced today formation of the Canadian Army's first peacetime division.

The new unit, to be known as the 1st Canadian Division, will wear the red patch of First and Second World War fame. It will be based initially at Petawawa, but later will undergo training at the army's new Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick.

Noting that the organization and training of the division's component units has been carried out during the past year, the defence minister said its incorporation "will not in any way add to Canada's commitments abroad."

Formation of the new division, first such unit in the army's peacetime history, was but one of several phases in a sweeping reorganization announced by Mr. Claxton.

He said the 27th Brigade in Germany will be relieved this autumn by the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade under the command of Brig. A. J. Anderson of Kingston and Ottawa.

For the first time in Canada's peacetime history, an active force regiment has been selected as the one to be known as the Regiment of Canadian Guards, composed of four battalions.

The 1st and 2nd battalions of the new Guards Regiment will be formed in large part by Korean veterans. The second battalion, as they will be drawn from the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, when the third battalions leave Korea for garrison duty in Germany.

The 3rd and 4th battalions of the regiment will be made up of personnel of the 1st and 2nd Canadian Infantry battalions. The new units will be known as the 1st, 2nd 3rd and 4th battalions, Canadian Guards.

Headquarters of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade replacement will be designated as headquarters, 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade.

The third brigade of the new division now is forming at Valcartier, the announcement said.

The announcement said the present, 1st and 2nd Canadian Infantry battalions and the 1st and 2nd Highland Battalions, the latter formed by four new battalions of two of Canada's oldest regiments.

They are the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th battalions of the Black Watch of Canada, Montreal, and the Queens Own Rifles of Canada, Toronto.

A commanding officer of the new division has not yet been named. With so many new appointments in the unit, it is possible that the commander also will come from Korea service.

Possible commanders include Brig. Jean Victor Allard of Saimon Arm, B. C., and Brig. J. R. Rockingham of Vancouver. Both have commanded the 25th Brigade in Korea.

The division said the 1st and 2nd battalions of the Royal Canadian Regiment, PPCLI, and the Royal 22nd Regiment will continue to serve as parachute battalions of the Mobile Striking Force. They will serve abroad in turn with other units of the active forces.

Chadwick Swims Dardanelles In Record Time

CANAKKALE Turkey (Reuters) Florence Chadwick, San Diego, Calif., distance swimmer, today swam the Dardanelles both ways, establishing a world record.

The 34-year-old former stenographer stroked across the historic neck of water separating Europe and Asia in a driving rainstorm.

She swam the four miles of powerful currents in 92 minutes, and struggled ashore on the beach with a shout of "Taman," the Turkish equivalent of "OK."

She started her swim near a point where Leander, in Greek mythology, began his nightly climb across the Hellespont to visit his lover.

It was Miss Chadwick's final long-distance record attempt. With a 27-year swimming career behind her, she has tackled the world's most famous swims.

On Wednesday she swam the Bosporus both ways in record time: last month she broke the record for the English Channel crossing of the Strait of Gibraltar. She also holds the England-to-France (Channel) record for both even and women.

TRIESTE PLAN 'DANGEROUS' SAY YUGOSLAVS

Bitter Note Denounces Anglo-American Plan

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia tonight handed Britain and the United States a formal note denouncing the Anglo-American decision to turn over a large part of Trieste to Italy. The note declared the decision "an unjust and dangerous act."

The bitter note reserved Yugoslavia's right to take "appropriate means—on the basis of the United Nations charter—to protect the interests of Yugoslavia in the Trieste area."

It did not specify what steps are under contemplation.

The note was handed to British ambassador Sir Ivo Mallet and Woodruff Wallner, United States charge d'affaires, at the Yugoslav foreign office, to which they had been summoned.

To reach the foreign office, they had to push through a heavy police cordon which had been set up five blocks around the British and U.S. embassies. It was the second legation to prevent recurrence of damage done to their properties in angry mass demonstrations Thursday night.

Demonstrations were continuing tonight despite a drizzling rain.

Speculation here centred chiefly around the question of whether Tito will send troops marching up to the Italian-Yugoslav frontier. The government already has declared its determination to place the area of Trieste once again before the United Nations.

Mass demonstrations have continued ever since the Anglo-American decision was made public.

Embassies Stoned

The considerable damage, but no casualties, resulted from Thursday night's demonstrations, when crowds stoned at the American and British embassies and the Italian legation after shouting and throwing demonstrators.

The Belgrade police Politika urged Yugoslavs to remain calm. It noted the demonstrations had ended in the centre of the city, which only can bring harm to our national interests. The socialistic alliance today upon all citizens to abstain from demonstrations and to express their protest only at their enterprises, organizations and closed premises.

But from Ljubljana came a report that 10,000 persons in the northern part of the country Thursday twice violated Yugoslav air space in Italy and found him shot to death in the basement of the Hungarian legation in Rome.

He claims he hasn't seen Marsh since.

Death Story

Some authorities have expressed doubt that Hall and Mrs. Heady hit accomplices.

There has been some speculation that Marsh may be dead.

The FBI has filed a fugitive warrant for the arrest of Marsh on specialty in Missouri.

Canadian Is One of Favored Three in World Plowing Event

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

COBOURG (CP)—A Canadian, a Britton and an American were being touted today as top contenders for the first world ploughing crown.

The crowd of 35,000 that watched Thursday's opening event held in conjunction with the 46th international plowing competition, favored the three among field of 39 entries representing 11 countries. Each entry, who won the right to enter the event by winning national awards in their home countries, plowed one half acre of stubble. Today they are to plow a half-acre of sod. The winner will be announced tonight.

The favorites are Bob Timbers of Stouffville, Leslie Dixon of Bedale, Yorkshire, and Greame Stewart of Plainfield, Ill.

Other competitors represent Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, West Germany and Holland.

A team of judges, one from every country represented in the match, will judge the champion. They take into consideration stubble tilting, straightness of furrow, uniformity of furrow slice and finish. The plots on which English measure is used, amount to 12 rounds after the strike-out.

Use Tractors, Plows

Competitors use tractors and two-furrow plows. The depth is set at five to seven inches and the width at the competitors' choice.

The rules, set by the world plowing organization, of which a branch formed last year at Falkirk, Scotland, are stricter than those in general use in Canada and the United States. In Canadian match a plowman will often dismount and shape a furrow with hand. This is banned in world competition.

Canada's second entry, Jim Dickie of Dunrobin, who finished runner-up to the 26-year-old Timbers in both the Ontario and Canadian championship in international event gave one of the neatest demonstrations in the stubble event.

On the last round the young dairy farmer made a valiant attempt by adjusting his plow so they would dig to the five depths he wanted. He completed the last lap facing backwards holding the plow adjustment levers and letting the tractor drive itself. The machine was guided only by one front wheel in the furrow.

Takes Home Prizes

Timbers has competed in seven international events and has taken home several prizes including three Ontario championships.

Stewart, a veteran competitor in international events, is the American best straight plowing titleholder.

The 41-year-old Dixon, British champion, has won many trophies and championships in United Kingdom competitions.

In the Ontario Plowmen's Association's international match, Timbers was first, Gordon Farrow from Mark ham, won the three-furrow contour match, Ronald Bell, Scarborough, St. of North Gower.

Ronald Marquis of Sunderland was third and Donald M. Carruthers of Cobourg fourth.

Doubt Story of Kidnappers Another Man Assisted Them

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The FBI today withheld a country-wide alert on Thomas Hall, fugitive Missouri police from coast to coast are on the lookout for the mysterious accomplice they hope will hold the key to certain unanswered questions in the Bobby Greenlease kidnap-killing.

The federal agency said it had delayed any country-wide search for him pending clarification of inconsistencies in statements made by the pair now held in the kidnapping.

Under arrest in St. Louis are Carl Austin Hall, described as the kidnap-killer, and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, the divorcee who wed him.

Hall admitted kidnapping the six-year-old boy, son of a multi-million-aire Robert C. Greenlease, 71, burying the child's body after fatally shooting her and collecting the $600,000 ransom.

But he denied killing Bobby. He told officers he turned the boy over to Marsh on the day of the kidnapping and found him shot to death in the basement of the Hungarian home in St. Louis.

He claims he hasn't seen Marsh since.

Death Story

Some authorities have expressed doubt that Hall and Mrs. Heady hit accomplices.

There has been some speculation that Marsh may be dead.

The FBI has filed a fugitive warrant for the arrest of Marsh on specialty in Missouri.

Labor Minister Answers Millard On Check-off

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley said Thursday the Ontario government does not intend to pass a law establishing compulsory check-off of union dues in company payrolls).

The minister was commenting on a statement by C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) that the union would step its drive for compulsory check-off in Ontario gold mines whose employees are on strike if the government promised a check-off law.

The check-off is a key issue in strikes which have left six mines idle in Ontario's Porcupine district and two more at Noranda, Que.

Mr. Daley said the check-off was "a matter for collective bargaining" but should not be made compulsory by statute.

Finn Convicted For Murder Of Young Son

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Eric Kalpiainen, 31-year-old Finnish immigrant, Thursday night was convicted of the 23-calibre rifle murder of his son Seppi last Nov. 23. He was sentenced to be hanged at the district jail Dec. 8.

Kalpiainen was smiling slightly when the verdict was announced by the Supreme Court jury. He once had to ask the judge to the court interpreter who was translating the sentence to him.

The boy's 17-year-old body was found in a steam bath building here with bullet wounds in the head and chest. Kalpiainen lay near his child with a wound between the eyes. A 23-calibre rifle was nearby.

Evidence indicated that family trouble was responsible for the slaying and attempted suicide. The family arrived here from Finland in May, 1951.

Missing Hunter Is Found Dead, Seek Another

Montrealer Evidently Died of Exposure

ST. EMILE DE MONTCALM, Que. (CP)—Veteran bushmen today, tramped back into the densely-wooded area around this Laurentian mountain village, continuing a four-day search for one of two hunters missing since Sunday.

With them went an RCMP police dog and its master, Constable Bryan Wright, who were flown here Thursday. Later in the day, a privately-owned helicopter was expected to join the search.

Police, acting on a report from a hunter, who had lighted fires in the scrub to attract attention, found the body of one of the other men.

Identified as Georges-Casimir Wolokowicz, his hunter's ax and rifle beside him, was found lying in the bush where he had fallen after vainly trying to find his way out.

Police said the Montreal man evidently died of exposure and exhaustion after plodding aimlessly through the bush in circles. He lay three miles from his parked car and last seen, some 25 miles north of the little village of St. Michel des Saints in the Lac Taureau district.

Hold Little Hope

Searchers here now hold little hope that 44-year-old Alphonse Bellefleur Lamothe, of Montreal, the hunter, is still alive.

The chances of survival, they say, are "slim" in the bitter cold. He is an older man than Wolokowicz, is not physically fit for roughing it and wears only light clothing.

But the man who left Berube to get help, and then couldn't find him again when he turned back—Dr. J. A. Gagnon of Montreal—is "optimistic he is still alive."

Governor Fires Colony's Ministers To Halt Red Plot

Proclaims Emergency State As British Troops on Alert

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—Alfred Savage, governor of British Guiana, today ousted the colony's leftist government and proclaimed a state of emergency.

Premier Cheddi Jagan and his five ministers ceased to exist. Savage's government under the colonial constitution won earlier this year—were fired under an order-in-council issued by the colonial office in London.

Hushed groups of citizens gathered in the capital's streets as the governor's voice, blaring through loudspeakers, announced that the democratic constitution of the colony will be suspended to prevent Communist subversion of the government and a dangerous crisis both in public order and economic affairs.

Savage said he intended to run the colony himself with the help of his advisers for a short time. After that, an interim government administration after plodding aimlessly through the bush in circles. He lay three miles from his parked car and last seen, some 25 miles north of the little village of St. Michel des Saints in the Lac Taureau district.

Hold Little Hope

Searchers here now hold little hope that 44-year-old Alphonse Bellefleur Lamothe, of Montreal, the hunter, is still alive.

Troops Patrol Streets

As he spoke, British troops patrolled the wide tree-lined streets of Georgetown, ready for any disturbances. One detachment of troops will proceed further up the muddy Demerara river today to guard the Canadian-owned bauxite mines at Mackenzie, 65 miles from here, supply source for the Aluminum Company of Canada.

Savage said in his address that he hoped "there will be as little interruption as possible in the normal life of the country."

"Over recent months there has been a planned and continuous program of infiltration into links with Communist countries, with a view to making British Guiana a servile state where the people are compelled, under intimidation, to forego their freedoms we, all cherish," he said.

Six Ministers Ousted

The six ousted ministers, headed by Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan, had threatened to appeal their dismissal to Queen Elizabeth in London. Washington and the United Nations.

A colonial office announcement in London today said the governor had been empowered to remove ministers. The aircraft carrier Implacable sailed Saturday from Britain with 600 men of the famed Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, battle-tested veterans of the Korean fighting.

Jagan had denounced the troop arrivals as a "show of force." He said he would go ahead for support for his party's demand for more self-rule.

Jagan said the council of the people's ministers—the six elective ministers—would send a delegation to London and, if possible, to the United States to plead the case of the majority People's party. He said the delegation would present PPP's views to "organizations and agencies such as the United Nations and also to those who may be interested in what is taking place in British Guiana."

Not Communists Claim

Jagan, an East Indian who once studied dentistry in Chicago, and his American-born wife, the former Janet Rosenberg, had demanded substantive changes to clip the authority of Savage. Both the Jagans say they are not Communists.

The PPP, using its majority in the House of Assembly, rushed through a bill Thursday requiring government to recognize unions which have been designated bargaining agents by a majority of the workers. Fourteen sugar factories were shut down for two weeks last month by strikers demanded union recognition.

The union bill now goes to the state council (cabinet), which can approve it, hold it up or ask the governor to disapprove it.

Polio Foundation Plans Wide Test of Experimental Vaccine

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Reporter

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Perfection of an experimental polio vaccine to a point justifying nationwide tests of millions of countrywide vaccination tests on hundreds of thousands of children in the United States, perhaps early next year, was announced today.

It's the vaccine whose development first was announced last spring by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh, working under a March of Dimes polio fund grant.

Today's announcement constitutes first word that it now is ready for use as soon as details can be worked out. Dr. Salk announced that he will determine whether it can ultimately be tested on millions of children.

It was disclosed that additional preliminary research on human guinea pigs has greatly strengthened hopes for the vaccine, and that it's also been found possible to improve it and to produce it in greater quantity than that which may have particular advantages in the fight against the great crippler.

Dr. Salk made the historic announcement that science has at last achieved a material safe, potent and promising enough to be put to the acid test of determining whether it protects against the disease under natural conditions of exposure. He said large-scale production is feasible.

He told the American Association of Pediatrics in a prepared paper that the vaccine—easy proven to be capable of preventing polio in experimental animals—has now been tested in 67 humans, including 183 described in his original report last spring.

He explained that the human tests conducted so far repeatedly demonstrate that the vaccine can produce in man antibodies theoretically protective against the three viruses of polio—and also demonstrated the safety of the vaccine itself.

But he emphasized that it now is the question to determine whether the vaccine can actually protect against the disease in people.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which is supporting the research, announced simultaneously announced inauguration of a country-wide test.

The March of Dimes organization has earmarked $7,500,000 for the program.

A foundation spokesman said detailed plans are worked out with public health departments, medical societies, schools and other organizations.

But this much was made known:

1. It is hoped that the study can begin early next year.

2. It would "entail the vaccination of hundreds of thousands of children during a non-epidemic period and then observing what protection resulted when subsequent polio next visited their communities."

17-Year-Old 'Hoss Thief' Caught After Dodging Mounties for Month

CALGARY (CP)—James Rosette came to the end of the Owlhoot Trail Thursday night.

The 17-year-old fugitive from a horse theft sentence was captured by waiting Mounties as he rode stealthily up to the Dick Gardner ranch west of Bottrell, Alta., under cover of darkness. Police said he intended to steal a horse, under cover for a fresh one, then slip back to the safety of the hills.

The foothills of western Alberta had given him protection for the two months since he escape from the Bowden Institute for youthful offenders, 60 miles north of Calgary. His crime was horse stealing.

When he escaped, police said, he took another horse and rode off into the hills.

First sign of him after his escape was at a ranch north of Cochrane, 20 miles northwest of Calgary. One of its horses disappeared and a strange horse was in its place the next morning. The stranger was quickly shunned.

West of High River, about 35 miles south of Calgary, another horse theft was pulled. This time a .22-calibre rifle disappeared along with the fresh horse.

The youth apparently lived off the land, well-populated with game, and slept under the stars.

For a month he ghosted his way through the foothills, hunted and apparently alone, except for his companion, the stolen horse.

But, as always, the mounties got their man.

Class in Home Construction For Veterans Planned

A class in home construction for veterans planning to build their own homes will be opened at the Belleville Collegiate Institute if sufficient interest is shown to warrant its establishment, according to William Slater, construction supervisor for the Veterans' Land Act.

A minimum of twelve veterans will have to become members of the class before it is opened, it was stated.

Registration for the course will be taken between seven and nine o'clock Tuesday evening at the Collegiate. Mr. Slater will be present to give veterans any information required. If the class can be started, instruction will be given Friday evenings between seven and nine.

Similar classes held at the collegiate in the past were most successful with considerable interest being shown by veterans.

Barbershop Quartet News

Under the able leadership of Reed Bradford and chorus director, Alf Evans, Belleville's Barbershop Quartet is now actively practices these evenings in preparation for this season's annual Harmony Night to be held on Saturday evening, November 7 inst. Due to the their regular accommodation at Mt. Margaret's Inn-Hill, due to a men's club meeting, last night's practice was held at the Rec. Centre basement on Wharf Street, for which S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. are indebted to the Navy League, and a goodly turnout of enthusiastic singers worked hard on some brand new numbers for the forthcoming show.

The effort of this year's membership chairman, Spence Woodcock, is apparent in the number of new faces in the chorus. It must be his winning personality or the right thing to do job, so here's a tip to all you fellows who like to sing (and who doesn't?) give Spence a call (he's in the phone book) and in no time at all you'll be having more fun than the proverbial "barrel of monkeys."

Hasty Pees Hold Annual Reunion In Cobourg

The 9th Annual Reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be held in Cobourg on Thanksgiving week-end, October 10-11 and 12.

The decision to hold the reunion in the Lakeshore town came as a result of a cordial invitation on the part of Mayor J. D. Burnett. Through the kind permission of Lieut. Col. Bob Locke, M.C., the facilities of the Cobourg armouries have been placed at the disposal of the Hasty Pees.

The Hasty Pees will register on Saturday and the reminiscing will start shortly afterwards. The Memorial Church parade and march-past will be held in the Cobourg Community Park on Sunday morning.

Following the parade and service the "troops" will sit down to a banquet and will hear an address by a well-known speaker.

Members of the Canadian Legion branch in Cobourg and the Medium Regiment R.C.A., of the town will march with the veterans in the parade to the cenotaph, and along with their bands a mammoth dedication service is planning with the regimental padre, Rev. Captain Reg Lane, in charge.

Provision has been made for the wives and sweethearts of the Hasty Pees. Meeting places have been set aside and snack bars will be available for their exclusive use.

Nothing has been left undone, regimental association officials state, to make the 25th anniversary of the landing in Sicily and the 14th since the unit left for overseas, the best in the history of the unit.

A communication from Mayor Burnett of Cobourg says: "The people of Cobourg extend a very warm welcome to the Hasty Pees and assure them that everything possible will be done to make their stay a pleasant and profitable one."

Farmers Show Keen Interest In Farm Ponds

Farmers owning land within the Moira River watershed, have shown keen interest in the establishment of farm ponds as a measure to ease water problems.

Since the farm planning committee of the Authority announced last spring availability of 50 per cent of the cost of a pond up to $500 there have been a total of 25 applications have been received. Of these 15 applications are still being checked, but ten ponds have been established this year.

Qualifications to receive the subsidy call for a farmer to have a minimum of 25 acres of land to be serviced by the pond. It is necessary to have the Authority field officer look at the proposed site of the pond. He will site proves satisfactory engineering plans and specifications are drawn up according to the type and size of the pond desired.

Application of soil conservation is another phase of Authority facilities in which farmers have shown interest. Farmers practising conservation farming estimate the practice has increased yields by more than 20 per cent. Information on farm planning may be secured from A. C. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, Stirling.

Murl Duesing's 'Safari to Africa' Fills Collegiate Auditorium

To go on a 'safari' or big game hunt through the heart of darkest Africa fails to the lot of a few only. But last evening, at the Collegiate auditorium, Murl Duesing, well-known photographer, traveller and lecturer, took the near-capacity audience to Kenya, the Belgian Congo, and French Equatorial Africa, by colored moving films and delightful narrative interspersed with flashes of humor.

Mr. Duesing briefly sketched the many details necessary for this expedition; the shots for health protection; the equipment and food, and the deposit of $300, which he learned was to defray the cost of transporting his body to the U.S., should he die in Africa.

Good Roads

As the roads are good in the Kenya district, he travelled two hundreds of miles in each direction, the ten days' time required by camel trains was covered in three days by truck. The assistants were 30 native men, but only the five white men composing the expedition, with each white man having his own personal servant. Tents were double, as a protection against the cold.

Among the many lovely pictures shown were those of the crowded herds, the "Safari" trailing wrong-eyed; herds of antelope were 30 native men, but only Topi antelopes, approaching the size of the horse, with long horns, which averaged five feet in height with the largest over eight feet. Giraffes with lengthy necks which enabled them to feed on the tall acacia tree foliage, and whose speed was estimated at about 100 yards no less than five seconds, were also shown.

In battle the male endeavors to break the neck of his opponent. These number about 80 to the small herds.

There were also wart hogs, tortoise, the Marlbu stork, the black kite, baboons, herds of zebras while back like dogs, the lordly lion with stately walk, the red army ants, one line of insects often extends 300 feet long, which devour anything and everything with which they come in contact, huge elephants with ivory tusks of seven feet and weighing many pounds, and great water rhinos with their cavernous mouths.

Mr. Duesing had showed the Mountains of the Moon, a great range extending upward from the banks of the Congo for 18,000 feet. Here there is curious vegetation, the well-known little lobelia which is used as a border plant grows to the height of 20 feet; heather is 35 feet high, add covered with curtains of hanging moss. There are at the foot lilies trees bearing bright red flowers, and bare of leaves; tall bamboo trees which frame a man, and further up, the bamboo forest, and higher still the cloud forest. Lovely waterfalls

Weaver birds that fashion their nests in unusual fashion, with the entrance at the bottom; African snails, with eyes on the end of antennae-like prongs; lovely butterflies in iridescent blues hovering about the flowers; and the gorgeous Easter lilies growing amid the grasses, were all shown as well as rushing, cascading waterfalls, traps in which the natives catch fish in running water.

An especially interesting film shown was that of the Wa-Kavirondo, brown-skinned people who live in cone-shaped houses made from bamboo and thatched with bundles of sud as a finish.

These people raise goats as the tsetse fly prevents the raising of cattle. Each man has a wife whom he make pottery, and some make baskets.

The termites were shown, are blind, living in perpetual darkness, inhabiting the wood which their alchemy turns to sugar.

At Albert Nyanza park there is a training school for elephants where great herds are kept. Among the most dreaded of the animals is the African buffala as shrewd and cunning beast, which fights to death for supremacy of the herd, many other the pictures, too numerous to mention were also shown.

Judging from the prompt attention, the traveling traveloguer will be red letter days to the people of the city.

Freight Rates Will be Made Fair as Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's new scale of equalized freight rates will be made as fair as possible to all regions and to the railways, Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney, chief commissioner of the board of transport commissioners, said Thursday.

The transport board head, who announced Monday that the new rates go into effect Jan. 1, 1955, was replying to criticisms of tentative rates of equalization made public by the board 10 months ago. He said the rates have the effect of nearly field officer look at the proclevelling off existing rates, but will not prove satisfactory engineering plans and specifications are drawn up according to the type and size of the pond desired.

The chief commissioner referred particularly to a proposal of the board to wipe out "blanket" rates which give single handed by Montreal, Windsor, Ont., and Sudbury, Ont. more than a half-century, all points in this territory have had the same freight charges to and from the Head of the lakes.

Under the tentative equalization plan worked out under a 1951 statute, the "class" (ceiling) rates between the West and centres in the triangle would be on a straight mileage basis.

Two Bonarlaw Children Cut As Cars Collide

Two Bonarlaw girls, Gail and Randell Redcliffe age 8 and 5 years, are in Belleville hospital with facial cuts after their father's car was struck by another vehicle as it was being backed out of a driveway on the Bonarlaw at Sidney Corner.

Police said that William R. Redcliffe, with his two small daughters as rear seat passengers, was backing out of the yard of his home when it was struck by a northbound auto driven by George McCrory of Belleville. The two vehicles crashed into the right rear of the Redcliffe auto almost demolishing the car. The accident occurred about 8.30 Thursday evening.

Provincial Police Constable A. Bolyea of Madoc investigated.

Howe Conferring With U.S. Leaders About Defence

WASHINGTON (CP) — C. D. Howe, Canada's minister of defence production, is in the United States capital for a series of talks on Canadian - American co-operation in defence and other problems.

In a meeting Thursday at the treasury department, Howe and a group of American defence-planning chiefs reaffirmed the statement of principles for economic co-operation, signed in 1950, and further stated:

1. Effective utilization of joint resources is fundamental to the joint defence and economic strength of both countries.

Discuss H-Bomb

Although none of the officials involved would confirm the report it was understood that much of the meeting was devoted to discussing the threat faced by both countries in the light of Russia's hydrogen-bomb potential.

The U. S. representatives at the meeting included Arthur Flemming, head of the office of defence mobilization; Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey; Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks; Roger Kyes, deputy defence secretary; and Charles S. Thomas, assistant secretary of defence for supply and logistics.

Howe said his talks did not touch directly on military matters, and there was no emergency which had resulted in his visit. He said he had discussed with Attorney-General Herbert Brownell methods of speeding up legal procedure in connection with the St. Lawrence seaway, but did not elaborate.

The 1950 U. S.-Canadian agreement called for "fairly exchanged" technical knowledge and productive skill, and removal of barriers "that impede the flow between Canada and the United States of goods essential for the common defence effort."

REAL CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING

Monday is Thanksgiving Day, a national holiday.

As a nation, Canada has much for which to be thankful. The same is true of all of us, as individuals.

Many of us, singled, either nationally or as individuals, to survey our problems, to dwell upon our trials, past, present and to come, we should reflect on the first Thanksgiving Day on this continent.

The Puritan colonists who first roasted wild turkeys and rejoiced, in their sober Puritan fashion, at their survival amidst the perils of a new land had endured trials beside which our own troubles are petty. Consider the group as a nation, if you can and the threats to its future welfare were much greater than those facing us, even with the Russians, the atom bomb, inflation and depression all hovering around us.

If those colonists, in their comparative poverty, could be thankful, surely we can match their spirit.

A TRULY INTERNATIONAL EVENT

The International Plowing Match at Cobourg is truly an event that is international in character. Unlike many 'international' events held in Canada, which usually consist of joint meetings of service clubs from Detroit and Windsor, or Kingston and Watertown, the Cobourg matches have representatives from eleven countries. Norwegians, Englishmen, Scots, Irishmen, Canadians, Americans and many others distinguished from abroad are competing to determine the world's champion plowman.

One representative from Norway is displaying a 1,760-pound plow that is tipped with armor plate taken from the German pocket battleship Tirpitz.

There is quite likely an editorial opportunity here to philosophize on the golden rule in international relations as symbolized by the golden plow which will be presented the eventual winner. "Beating your swords into plowshares" is another theme that could be harped upon but we shall not. Neither shall we point out the contrast between this international meeting of friendly rivalries, where deeds count much more than words, and certain other more sophisticated international conclaves, where deeds have been divorced from words.

We shall content ourselves by noting how richly Cobourg deserves the praise that has been showered upon it. And as one neighbor to another we wish to congratulate her on the singular honor she has brought to herself, and to Canada as a whole, by the success and hospitality of Cobourg, particularly during the summer months, can safely say that a better site for the plowing matches could hardly be found anywhere.

AN IMPORTANT PRINCIPLE

Editorial comment is now appearing in Canadian newspapers on the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada that Jehovah Witnesses have a right to distribute their tracts in Quebec City—or in any other Canadian community.

The Court split 5-4 in reaching its decision. It is therefore to be expected that there will be a wide divergence of opinion amongst Canadians generally regarding the Court's verdict.

"Upon the possible rightness or wrongness of this decision no layman can comment usefully," observes the Ottawa Journal.

That sounds like a reasonable conclusion. But there was one point raised by Mr. Justice Kerwin which, because of its bearing under application, is worthy of note and careful study.

The views expressed in the tracts distributed by the Jehovah Witnesses are, of course, largely antagonistic to Roman Catholicism. This comprises a great majority of the citizens of Quebec. One of the questions which the Court had to decide was whether the action of the Witnesses in distributing the tracts was "inconsistent with the peace and safety of the province." Mr. Justice Kerwin held that it was not.

Here are his memorable words:

"The peace and safety of the province will not be endangered if that majority do not use the attacks as a foundation for breaches of the peace."

In other words, if violence results from the distribution of the tracts it will be in the form of violent acts against, rather than by, the Witnesses. The actions of the Witnesses may provide the provocation for such attacks, but Mr. Justice Kerwin has ruled that that does not mean that these actions by the Witnesses are therefore "inconsistent with the peace and safety of the province."

It is almost impossible to over-estimate the importance of this decision. It is not one which applies only to the specific case before the court, but rather is a view which is pertinent to a variety of other situations. There has been a growing tendency in recent years, in many countries, to hold that because a legal act by one person may result in another person acting in an illegal manner, the legal act may be forbidden by law. It is this type of mentality on the part of governing bodies which results in such devices as "protective arrest."

Once admitted, the validity of this reasoning upon which such restrictions on otherwise legal acts are based and there remains absolutely no protection for minorities against oppression by majorities. All a majority would have to do to suppress any speech or action by a minority would be to threaten those in the minority with violence in retaliation for such speeches or acts. That way lies mob rule.

Mr. Justice Kerwin has earned the gratitude of all of us for his incisive summary of the key point at issue.

St. Bernards Now Obsolete

(Montreal Gazette)

What will the French cognac industry, New Yorker magazine asks, and Paul Frost Sloane is now! The good monks of Hospice du Grand St. Bernard, high in London the crash and rescue organization they have been operating for centuries in the heart of the Alps. At least they are discontinuing the use of the gentle and famous St. Bernard dogs in rescuing snow-stranded travelers this winter.

Snowmobiles, helicopters, bulldozers and like bloodless and soulless contraptions have cast these great dogs into obscurity, even as the horseless carriage has the horse. Thus, one by one does meankind lose faithful friends, and there cannot but be a real touch of sadness at their passing. No age will ever become so mechanized that it will be able to forget how well these animals have served their fellow-men—at what contribution they, in their own ways, have made to progress.

There is really no problem for McCudden's Frost Reader, for that splendid old stepping stone to erudition is long since out of date. The First Reader has already given way to modern progress. And really it is doubtful if that brandy keg ever contributed much to advertising the French cognac industry. As for the New Yorker, perhaps that smart monthly compendium may show a little more reverence, for it lives at least in its cartoons, the loyal of the famous dog and keg.

Steam Engine On Way Out

St. Paul Pioneer Press)

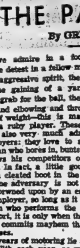
The end of the steam locomotive on American railroads is almost in sight, despite the fact that the Pacific is now being hauled by diesels.

The puffing, snorting, sizzling steam giants, which for generations were a symbol of power and efficiency, are becoming fewer and fewer.

It was about 1940 that the railroads embarked on a general program of Dieselization. It has been shown that Diesel locomotives could pull more weight at less cost than the steam engines. At that time there were about 40,000 steam locomotives in the country. War interfered with changeover plans, but progress has been rapid in the last five years.

There are now approximately 16,000 steam locomotives still in the country. The number will grow less each year. There are now some 22,000 Diesel units on the rails. Since one Diesel unit replaces two steam locomotives, roughly speaking, these 22,000 units are equivalent to 44,000 steamers.

Along with "Dieselization" have come great changes in railroad operating methods. The once familiar water towers and roundhouses are disappearing. Fewer maintenance shops are required. Many division points have been eliminated, as the length of locomotive runs has been extended.



Within a few more years the steam locomotive will be as rare a sight in most parts of the country as the horse-drawn wagon.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

What we admire in a football player we detest in a fellow motorist. The aggressive spirit, the boring in, the grabbing of the ball, the tackling and throwing around of weights—this is magnificent in a ruby player. These virtues are also very much admired by employers. They like to see a chalseman who bores in, busts, butts, shoves the competitors out of the play, is fast, a little gouging, maybe a cleated boot in the face of a prone adversary is not an altogether frowned upon by an enthusiastic employer, so long as the salesman who performs the deed. As in sport, it is only when the deed is to team commits mayhem that the gorge rises.

Long years of motoring lie ahead of us. With each year, as we can plainly see, the traffic will become denser, the room to move less adequate, the space to park or even to stop more and more restricted. Our standard of living grows better every year. The standard of life moving by motor vehicles grows worse. It is not a single important suggestion for the improvement of the problem has been offered by governments, motor manufacturers or the big oil corporations—those three big oil corporations—that are concerned.

And as for us little fellows, we are in the ark till, we buffalo in the buffalo sausages, we carry forth the problem the characteristics that are mostly admired in our business dealings. Drive—aggressiveness—acquisitiveness, gab, mastery. It is these that are the characteristics of men. Let us take a football game for example. There sit thousands, and tens of thousands, of men, perspiring in cheers and tense excitement their admiration for the rugged virtues which rugby brings out of men. When the game ends, the thousands and tens of thousands disperse and head for their cars in the parking lots and the streets adjacent to the stadium. Then follows a fantastic exhibition. Not only does everyone try to outwit, outmove and outmaneuvre his fellow him. Each driver of a monster he is filled with indignation at the mendacity of those who try to outwit, outmove and outmaneuvre him. He is incensed and he was cheerful, from a three dollar seat, these very characteristics which now filthy, loathsome, anti-social qualities in the motor traffic problem.

Cartier's Fool's Diamonds

(By A. B. Sykes in the Ottawa Journal)

Prospectors who over the years have mistaken "Fools' Gold" (iron pyrites) for the genuine article need not feel their faces get too red. This error is as old as Canadian tradition, and first to trip up on it was that great Jacques Cartier himself.

Cartier was a better sailor than he was a geologist, for on sighting the glittering rock in the hills around Stadacona he left it severely alone, he was sure he had found a diamond mine. The St. Malo navigator grew filled casks with the newly-discovered specimens and sent them back to France in addition and sale. The Paris jewellers immediately pronounced the find as worthless iron pyrites and gave that ore the derisive name of "Canadian diamonds."

The ironic name stuck and to day, the settlement at Quebec City is called Cape Diamond. Another cape, marked on the maps as Cape Barbeau, is the place where the discoverer of Canada brought the sandy mica flakes loaded with gold. Unfortunately for him there was no gold on the beaches.

These are examples taken from the 16th century paper presented at Brussels on the legend and history of place-names of the Lower St. Lawrence by Dr. Antoine Barbeau, distinguished ethnologist and folklore authority in the very names of geographical features, settlements, and rivers, there is much to show to the dawn of Canada's history.

While Cartier is the "official" discoverer of Canada, Dr. Barbeau finds evidence of older visits by Basque whalers who ranged westward in the Gulf and River St. Lawrence in the wake of the Norsemen. Anse-au-Basques, the name of "Fortillot" perpetuates the times when the early Basques put in on the coast to attract cod to their nets.

Even centuries before days before the white man sailed up the Gulf of St. Lawrence is remembered in the name "Ile-aux-Massacres." Here, near Rimouski, Micmacs and Montagnais fought on unsuspecting Micmacs and Montagnais and exterminated them. Even a recently as 50 years ago, fragments of bones were found in the area. At times, were found in a cave. Carbeau's own father, in the story told him by Indian historians of the massacre.

Just below Quebec lies the Isle-aux-Coudres. But one thing ago it was called "Bachus Island" partly on account of the prominence of wild grapes there, but partly because of the revels held there by Cartier and his sailors. The name "Quebec" is the Algonquin Indian word for "flat-out" for the narrowing of the St. Lawrence river between Cape Diamond and the cliffs at Levis.

Dr. Barbeau agrees with the widely - accepted meaning of "Canada." It comes from the Indian Kanadas, Westlands or Promised Land, the villages but the original term referred to parts of Quebec and Ontario only. The Maritimes were called by the Micmac word "Acadie". Hence the people were "Cayens" and later became the "Cajuns of Louisiana."

As a rule, Indian place-names really meant something and gave a description of the place designated. Gaspe is a Micmac word for "land's end," Quebec means "where the river narrows," Niagara "thunder of waters," Ontario "beautiful lake," Huron "bristly," Iroquois "real adders," Mississippi "great river," Ohio "beautiful river," Illinois "men," Michigan "great lake," Winnipeg "muddy water," Saskatchewan "rapid river," Manitoba "the strait of the spirit," Athabaska "where there are reeds," Mackenzie "bad river," Yukon "white river," Klondike "river of gold," Alaska "great land," Nevada "snow-capped," Colorado "red," Utah "mountain people," Dakota "allies," Kansas "smoky water," Nebraska "flat water," Oklahoma "land of the red man," Texas "allies," Mexico "navel of the moon," Guatemala "land of trees," Honduras "depths," Nicaragua "lake and volcanoes," Costa Rica "rich coast," Panama "abundance of fish," Peru "land of gold," Chile "cold," Argentina "silver," Uruguay "river of birds," Paraguay "river flowing into river."

Sport Facing TV Problem

(Ottawa Citizen)

It is inevitable that radio whets the appetite for baseball, boxing and other sporting spectacles, but television fully satisfies it. This seems to be a fairly obvious conclusion from the contrasting impacts of radio and television upon commercial sports promoters, who, however, continue to be almost impartially enthusiastic about both.

In the recent heavyweight argument between Rocky Marciano and Jersey Joe Walcott, Harry Stars, for example, those interested in attracting a big gate to the Yankee Stadium in New York were served on television. Radio stations were also on hand in the ringside brief accounts, in the past tense, at the end of each round. Those who preferred to amuse themselves of this privilege filled the Yankee Stadium to capacity to hear and see what they could, with small trouble (including flights of stairs-escapes) and commercials. All this hardly made for enthusiasm.

If this type of broadcasting serves to satisfy, it also serves to dull the appetite for baseball, boxing and other sporting spectacles. It does not satisfy

2-Price System To Obtain Export Markets Endorsed

TORONTO (CP)—The principle of a two-price system to obtain export markets for Canadian farm products was endorsed Tuesday by delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The delegates, in a brief under a five-point program, said: "Canada could sell surplus agricultural products at reduced prices to foreign countries provided these export prices were not below those of competitive exporting countries.

"To implement a two-price system, it will be necessary to have adequate marketing legislation at both provincial and federal levels," said J. C. Hendrick of St. Catharines, chairman of a federation committee drafting the requirements of a national farm policy.

"Farmers must decide whether they want a high degree of government control over their industry, as exists in the United States, or a strong farm organization working with federal and provincial authorities to spend agricultural subsidy as is the case in most European countries."

He said the committee feels that the most practicable application is any national farm program will be necessary, but it is felt the farmers through their organizations can do their own planning and then present proposals with a working plan to the government.

PoW Interviews May Commence First of Week

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies today offered a compromise plan that could get explanations to reluctant prisoners-of-war started by Monday.

The United Nations command said it is willing to work around the clock to end the time of building temporary explanation centres for the Communists from seven to five days.

The Reds will use the centres to interview 22,000 Chinese and North Koreans who have refused to return to communism.

The neutral nations repatriation commission, in a letter Thursday, indirectly accused the Allies of trying to stall the start of Red persuasion attempts in an effort to cut down the explanation period, which ends Christmas Eve.

First Efforts Rejected

Both sides built explanation facilities before the scheduled September 24 starting date, but each rejected the other's construction.

The Reds said the UN-built centres was located so that the Communist representatives would have to travel too close to truckside holding violently anti-Red PoWs. The commission asked the UN to build a new one.

After hearing UN estimates of the time it would take—and for the temporary facilities and four weeks for the permanent ones—the commission asked the Allies to finish it in four days or less, the Reds do it.

The Allies replied that with the proffered help of Indian troops the facilities could be built in five days. Some 5,500 Indians are guarding the baby prisoners.

Brig.-Gen. A. L. Hamblen, Allied commander for prisoner affairs, turned down an offer to let the Communists help in the construction.

Lumber, Mining Industries Face Heavy New Taxes

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's big lumber and mining industries today face new taxes announced by Premier Bennett's Social Credit government an additional $1,400,000—annually.

The new revenue will come from a 2% increase of basic logging and mining profits above $25,000. Five mines will be exempted for three years.

The logging tax is expected to bring in about $1,000,000 for the full share of this year, and about $2,500,000 in average years. Mining is expected to contribute about another $1,000,000 in a normal year.

The legislature has agreed in principle—approving second reading—to the two new tax acts.

Industry spokesman have condemned both, and the legislature there has been hot debate.

Premier Bennett pointed to the profit sheets of the mining and logging industries in recent years.

He cited examples where the taxes would increase loggers' payments by 2.5 per cent and others by 1.4 per cent. The money could be deducted, he said, as business expenses when federal income tax is computed.

Spokesmen Bothered

Spokesmen for both industries have told of declining business. The lumber trade lacks world markets and prices have declined. The mining industry has slowed up and many mines have been closed. Some fear small operators will be put out of business.

But Forest Minister Robert Sommers had an answer, telling the lumber industry, especially, there is no reason to cry "blue ruin."

"Every operator must appreciate that we have enjoyed a consistently fantastic market for the last 10 years, and the present slow-down is inevitable. We have had boom marketing our forests produces before and will have difficulties in the future. I suggest that efficient management is still earning a good profit."

Chief critic in the legislature was CCF leader Arthur Laing.

He termed the government's action "folly," and said the burden would be "left with land on labor." The workers, he said, will have to pay the bill. Capital will not at all.

He said the government was hitting "great bodies of investment capital to stay out of B.C."

Mr. Sommers said if risk capital was frightened it was because of high federal taxes, not provincial, and if world markets were depressed that was because the Canadian dollar was too high and that could be changed by Ottawa which controlled currency.

Queen Mary Sails Late Thursday For Southampton

HALIFAX (CP)—The $1,000-ton liner Queen Mary sailed late Thursday for Cherbourg and Southampton and things returned to normal in the port of Halifax.

Her sailing ended a minor waterfront boom, a windfall from the New York dockers' strike. The Queen and the Britannic, another Cunard liner, came here because of the tie-up.

The Queen carried almost 800 passengers Europe - bound, about 200 less than originally booked. Most decided to wait rather than make the train trip from New York. She landed 1,200 here Monday.

Three Canadian National boat trains brought the passengers from New York. Altogether the two ships required 13 special trains. Scores of extra immigration officers, customs men, baggage porters, redcaps and ticket sellers were quickly recruited.

All went smoothly.

Port officials said it was "just another sample of what this overlooked down-east port can do."

Sunday School Lesson:

Life Is Not for Clowns

By ROY L. SMITH

The circus clown with his antics and his humor performs a useful service, and the man who cannot enjoy a clown is somehow deficient. But this world will not be made the better if all be, and this life will never be lived at its fullest and best by those who try to clown their way through life.

We are engaged in a tremendous task of subduing the earth, harnessing the forces of nature, adapting the cosmic laws to the uses of man, and building character which has in it some of the quality of eternity. To do this we can not hope for success by way of superficiality.

It's a Personal Matter

Through hundreds of years morality, patriotism, and religious integrity were interpreted by the great religious leaders of the Hebrews as being a matter of personal concern. The individual had little responsibility. Men came Jerusalem, saying that the good name of the nation was the responsibility of individual citizens, that national wealth was a private matter in which the nation had a vested death concern.

This means that the private citizen who is a traitor to the nation's interests by betraying national ideals. We have established the principle so far as Communism is concerned. All right minded men look upon the Communist as one who would betray the public good. But we need to remember that such a betrayal can become a fact in many another area and by means of many another attitude.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 11th: "GOD'S DESIGN FOR NEW Men." Jeremiah 31: 31-34; Matthew 8: 1-10; Mark 7: 20-23; John 3: 5-8; Philippians 4: 13; I Peter 1 13-33.

The man who offers a bribe is as guilty as the officer of the law who accepts it. The man who plays the ponies with the bookies is supporting the system which is weakening the effect of the law everywhere. The landlord who rents to an outlaw outfit is a partner in treason.

Persons Redeemed

This world will never be made just and righteous by the mere fact that we enact a law. We do not make a man patriotic when we compel him to sign a loyalty oath. We do not make a man moral by compelling him to recite the pledge to the flag. We do not make men Christian when we teach them to recite our creeds.

The task of redeeming this world is a simple one. We must substitute holy motives for unholy ones. We must keep our minds open to the facts and closed to prejudice. We must judge public issues by their efforts on private lives. Then we must vote for the nation's good, forgetting our own personal advantages. In the end, when the nation prospers we will prosper.

Citizenship in Brutal World

The apostle Peter was living and writing in a world which held the individual in low esteem. The theory of the empire were the supreme law of life for every citizen and woe to the man who held to an opinion or an ideal in conflict with the official position of the state. Here and there a keen-eyed observer found the Christians could see that the clash with the Roman government was inevitable for the simple reason that good men, such as Christians were exhorted to be, could not forever escape the ruthlessness of immoral power.

This world of ours is face to face with so much brutality, so much ruthlessness, so much contempt for the rights of the individual that life has taken on an aspect of seriousness it has not known since the days of the French revolution. The interference therefore is perfectly plain. We can be a good citizen who is playing his way, rollicking his way, bolstering his way through life.

We need clowns, but we will never be redeemed by buffoonish-ness.

'Mile 145 Rabbit' Doing Fine, Born On Railway Track

HARLECH, Alta. (CP) — "Mile 145 Rabbit" is doing fine.

"Mile 145 Rabbit" is a boy, son of Mr. and Mrs Joe Rabbit of this railway stop in the Rocky mountain foothills 125 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Early Tuesday it became apparent that Mrs. Rabbit would have to go to hospital for her third child. There was no time to send eight miles to Nordegg for a doctor and nurse. Besides it was snowing heavily.

The only means of travel was a CNR speeder, Joe, a section hand put Mrs. Rabbit on the speeder and with help from the section foreman and Joe's brother, also a section hand, began a race to Nordegg.

They had gone only a mile before it was necessary to stop at Mile 145 where the baby was born.

Fortunately Joe had some experience in such cases when he lived on the Stoney Indian reserve 30 miles west of Harlech.

The pass wrapped coats and sweaters around the baby. With the storm getting worse, they rushed the mother and child back to Harlech.

Later Joe went to Nordegg for a doctor who checked the mother and infant and found them "doing well."

Business Women Will Hold Dinner to Observe Week

MRS. SIMONE McFADDEN

Provincial co-convenor, Business Women's Week, Mrs. McFadden served on the staff of several newspapers and radio stations in Northern Ontario prior to making her home in Belleville.

With the endorsement of Mayor McLean Haig and a congratulatory message from the Honorable Leslie M. Frost, Premier of Ontario, the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville join the Ontario clubs in observing Business Women's Week, October 11-17.

Mrs. Margery Pewtress of Cobourg, provincial president in referring to Business Women's Week writes:

"The Ramparts We Build" is the theme of the Business Women's Week both in Ontario and in the United States Federation. This means that many thousand business and professional women will be working together, shoulder to shoulder, to make the world a better place in which to live.

"Women have an obligation and a responsibility to take leadership in the political, economic, cultural and spiritual rehabilitation of the world. Our federation is one of the strongest and greatest groups of women ever formed and it is therefore the particular duty of our members to give specific leadership in every phase of life.

"As one of our United States friends expressed it, 'We should be watchers of the skies, with the widest vision, the deepest sympathy, the most sensitive outreach, the longest look ahead, and the most limitless courage.' Women, in this connection, should be building."

The local club will hold a special Business Women's Week dinner on Friday, October 16, with Mrs. Ethel Armstrong Collins, vice-president of Ontario clubs as guest speaker. Interesting events will be the president and executive of the newly-formed Trenton club.

Convenor for Business Women's Week for Belleville is Mrs. Eva Doolittle, past president.

Queen Alexandra H-S Association Holds Meeting

Although cold winds and a miserable rain threatened to keep folks close to their home fires, members of night interest of parents in their children's school program was much stronger, and succeeded in leading many enthusiastic parents to the opening meeting of the 1953-54 season of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association.

The president, Mrs. Forrester, chaired the opening of the meeting and then ably conducted the installation of the new executive, after which the meeting was turned over to the new president, Mrs. Trotter, who began her term in office by reading, "The Creed of the Home and School." Her sincere and warm welcome to both the old and new members of the association made each of the parents glad that he had "weathered the storm" to attend the meeting.

School Re-organized

After a brief business meeting, the principal, Mr. Hackett, gave a report on the organization of the school. He explained how the changing of the school boundaries and the crowded conditions in schools necessitated the formation of five intermediate classes in Queen Alexandra School.

The schedule each grade division follows was then made clear to the parents. Mr. Hackett concluded his address by introducing the members of the teaching staff.

It was decided that, with the approval of the Board of Education, the project of the year might be the equipping of one of the rooms as an audio visual aids room. Mr. Norman Shaw presented an account of the necessary equipment.

Presentation

Presentation of the past president's pin to Mrs. Forrester was made by Mrs. Wannamaker, who spoke highly of the Home and School.

Following the adjournment of the general meeting, the parents, in small groups, visited the entire school.

The coffee and cookies served by the social committee, under the direction of Mrs. Robb, brought to a close a highly successful and enjoyable evening.

'Y' Ladies 'Keep Fit' Class Holds Meeting

A number of last year's lady members were amazed at the change they saw to the newly remodelled physical department.

The ladies' class will continue to meet regularly every Wednesday at 7:00 p.m.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Try To Persuade Your Boy Friend To Act Against His Wishes About Her Fidelity

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been engaged for a year to a fellow with whom I have been going steady for two years. He is now 20 and he is a month older than self.

He is not of my faith and, when we became engaged, we talked this over with his parents and they were willing for him to get married in my church. Several months ago he was drafted into the army, and we planned to get married shortly after Christmas. Recently, however, he told me we had better wait until he is out of service to because his mother refuses to consent to his signing papers promising to have our children brought up in my faith. I feel that if he loved me, he would let his parents interfere in his life.

A.P.

I agree that in a situation of this kind, young people should make their own decision. I believe also, however, that if your young man wants to wait until he is out of service before you marry, you would be wise to do so.

As I look at it, it is never a good thing for a girl to try and persuade a man to change before he feels completely ready, especially when the two are as young as you and he are. Moreover, in the state in which you live, your fiance cannot legally be married at his age without his parents consent. So why, at this point, urge him to do something which will cause trouble between his parents and himself? It would certainly not be either kind or fair to put him in such a difficult position at a time when his army service is taking him away from home and he needs to feel that his parents are behind him.

I strongly advise you to tell him that you are quite willing to wait until he is out of service, and let him feel that you, who are loyally with him. Don't do anything to tear down his morale while he is away. When he gets out of the army, he will be of an age when he can legally carry out his own decision about marriage, and then he will be a better man between the two of you. If you show him now that you are understanding, ready to be patient, he is far more likely, on his side, to be ready, if need be, when the times comes, to take his own stand beside you, even if it means opposing his family.

Parents Won't Let The 16-Year-Old Date

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 24 years old and would like to go out on dates, such as to the movies or roller-skating—things like that. The trouble is, though, that my parents will not let me. I don't know whether it is because they don't trust me, or what.

The boy I want to go with is very nice. He does not drink or smoke, is a very careful driver, and would always bring me home at the time my parents said. We are going to try something and see if it works. That is, he is going to come to the house tonight and meet my parents and then ask if I can go with him. I hope they will let me, but would you please help me by giving me other suggestions on how to win their trust?

Betty N.

You and your boy friend are going at this problem just the right way, and I wouldn't be at all surprised if you found your experiment worked.

In practically all cases, where girls like yourself have written me about this kind of problem, I have suggested that the boy make a point of asking the girl's parents very courteously if he may take her out, promising to have her home again at any time they say. Most young people today don't take the trouble to consider parents' feelings, and generally leave it up to the girl to ask if she can go out. So when a boy does show a girl's mother and father that he is mature enough to realize that they want to know the boys who are their daughter's friends, and that he has manners enough to ask their permission to take their daughter out, it almost always has a magical effect upon their attitude. In other words, it makes them like the boy and have confidence in him.

I'm sure it's not that your parents don't trust you. It's just that they fell you are very young and they want to be very careful of you. So don't ask too often to go out at night, of to be allowed to stay out late. These things rightfully come later. If you show that you are content with small privileges now, and always do exactly what your parents say, they will undoubtedly give you more and more privileges as you grow older.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

I read the blast from Mary K.D. . . . I am unfortunate that the recipe was wrongly printed but she should have noticed it before she wrote. . . . I don't know about the cookies spread because I didn't try it but the reference to the brine process for curing cucumbers is right if you're not called for. . . . As it was I had asked for that method last year, and as you were kind enough to print it for me I felt I should tell you of my success with it. My pickles this year are absolutely perfect and have cured 7 gallons of them. Some I used for sweet 12-day pickles, the larger ones for dills, and they are so good and so popular that I am sure they won't last long enough to have any left for Christmas, unless I hide them. Mary K.D. must have slipped up somewhere and perhaps didn't clean the cucumbers thoroughly, they were too old or she didn't skim the 'foamy stuff off the top . . . I felt that perhaps a letter from me might take some of the sting out of Mary K.D.'s. . . . P.S. —After writing above I had a hunch that you might be able to help me with another of my problems . . . a Springerle cookie board, beautifully hand carved, which I had only been a very decorative item on my kitchen wall. I have never had success in using it because my own recipes I have tried just say "shape with a springerle board" and that's all. You may be able to enlighten me as to its use and would appreciate a recipe also. Is it possible to make any bird seed cookies with it?—Mary I.C.

Lorne S.

Answer:

It was most generous and thoughtful of you to write as you have and it does take the sting out of Mary K.D.'s letter. Yes, I can give you specific method for molding with your springerle board. No, springerle do not necessarily have to contain spices—but most of the recipes do call for aniseed. This one calls for grated lemon rind.

Springerle

(These should be made 3 weeks before they are to be used.)

Four and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 4 large eggs, 1 pound sugar (icing sugar), 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind. (Aniseed is usually sprinkled rather generously on buttered cookie sheet.) Sift together the baking powder and sifted flour. Beat the eggs until light and add sugar to them and beat well then add lemon rind and sifted flour-mixture and mix well. Chill until firm. On lightly floured board (covered with floured cloth preferably) roll dough to 1-3-inch thickness. Now flour your dry springerle board, take off excess flour and press firmly over dough. Remove mold. With knife cut cookies apart along the border markings. Roll out remaining dough, and mark it the same way, flouring board each time. Place cookies on greased (and aniseed-sprinkled if desired) cookie sheet 1-2-inch apart. Let stand uncovered overnight in cool place. Bake at 320 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes, or until light yellow. Store covered, with paper between each layer, for at least 3 weeks. These keep for months. There are many versions of this recipe, but this is my tested one and I hope you have complete success with it as you did with the pickles. Thanks so much for your letter.

Question:

I must tell you before I ask for help how much I enjoy your part of the paper—adding a laugh with the recipe seems to take the drudge out of the work. Long may you live and serve everyone will be happy. . . . I have a number of sweet peppers, green as well as red and was wondering if you could give us a way of canning them. I ask as many during the winter in my vegetable salad. . . . I am sure there will be others wanting it.—Mrs. Lorne S.

Answer:

Giving such a complimentary twist to my nonsense makes me feel good too. Thank you.

Canned Bell Peppers

Can with celery. Wash and remove seed pod. Boil 5 minutes. Press flat and pack rather tightly in hot sterile jars. Add 1 teaspoon salt to each quart. Fill with boiling hot cooking water and process 15 minutes in pressure cooker at 10 lbs. pressure (240 deg. Fahr.) or 45 minutes in hot water bath. Tighten seal at once—never loosen it.

SNOW AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa got its first taste of winter Wednesday. Snowflurries were reported at Uplands airport on the city's outskirts and at the central experimental farm. An RCAF pilot also reported snow flurries on a trip from Trenton, Ont.

When The Bride-To-Be Gives A "Spinster Dinner"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My groom-to-be is going to give his "bachelor dinner" on the Wednesday evening before our Saturday afternoon wedding. I'd like to give a "spinster dinner" on the same evening.

(1) Would this be correct?

(2) My mother suggests I invite only my attendants (I'm having both a maid of honor and a matron of honor, and six bridesmaids) and then give them their gifts at this dinner. Good idea?

(3) My brother, who is to be one of the ushers, suggests that I propose a toast "To the Groom," just as a groom proposes a toast "To the Bride" at a bachelor dinner. Good idea?

Beatrice

(1) Yes, correct. And when a "spinster dinner" (sometimes called a "maiden dinner") is given, it is customary to give on the evening of the bachelor dinner.

(2) Yes . . . an excellent idea.

(3) Yes . . . your brother has an excellent idea too, this toast-gesture to your prospective bride-groom.

When To Use "Mrs." Before Name Of Bride In Formal Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In the formal announcements of a second marriage, should the prefix "Mrs." be used before the bride's name?

Second Timer

That depends. If the announcement of the marriage is being made by the couple themselves, the prefix "Mrs." is used before the bride's name.

For a widow:

Mrs. George Blake
and
Mr. Peter Hall
announce their marriage
etc.

For a divorced bride:

Mrs. Foster Barnes
and
Mr. Daniel Hill

(Correctly, the divorcee uses her maiden surname added to her ex-husband's surname. In the case above, "Foster" was the bride's maiden surname.)

But when the bride's parents announce the marriage of a young widow, the "Mrs." is not used before the bride's name:

Mr. and Mrs. David Clark announce the marriage of their daughter Grace Clark Martin to
etc.

Parisian Designer Gives Ten Rules for Being Well Dressed

By DOROTH TROE

NEW YORK (AP)—Women everywhere make mistakes in dress, says Jacques Fath, Parisian designer.

Interviewed in the midst of his collection of resort and spring fashions, which will be unveiled to American buyers next week, Fath considered the universal tragedy of bad judgment and sighed:

"It's international. Women all over the world lose their sense of proportion when they are exposed to too many garments at one time."

He paused to adjust the drape of a filmy organza dance dress worn by a weary model, issued a few staccato orders to the harried workroom manager, looked out the small window at the canyons of New York's Seventh avenue and continued:

Biggest Mistake

"The biggest mistake made by all women everywhere—in America, in France, in Italy, in Siam—is to think they can look elegant by saving scruples all over everything. They sew them on their sweaters, on hats, on gloves—they even parts them on their eyelids.

If you merely want glitter, why not wear a lighted electric bulb in each ear?"

Getting down to the business of the day, Fath, their gentle persuasion, issued the following 10 commandments for being well dressed in any language:

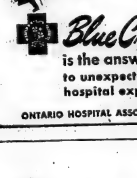
1. Keep it simple. Simplicity is the one fundamental rule for good taste.

2. Give proper care to the hairdo. It need not be the latest fad, but it must be suitable to the individual, well-groomed, shining, carefor—and neat.

3. Wear the simplest possible shoes—plain pumps in well-polished calf or kid or well-brushed suede. No regulation. No open toes or high heels. No ankle straps.

4. Don't load yourself with accessories, a scarf, a brooch, a necklace, a fob watch, chandelier earrings and a corsage are too much. Learn to eliminate unnecessary decoration.

5. Study coiffures. It's far better to be underdressed for any occasion than to be overdressed.



6. Save your glamor clothes for after-five. You needn't carry the simplicity then to the point of wearing an old sweater and tweed skirt for cocktails. Learn the art of timing.

7. Keep your fat smart, but simple. It should not draw attention from your face, your hairdo and your gown. Only the simplest costume can take an extreme hat.

8. For ordinary evening wear, short dresses are most becoming and practical—except for formal dinners and dances.

9. Gloved should be plain, immaculate and expensive.

10. Jewelry also should be simple —unless you happen to own a peck of real diamonds. Then the sky's the limit. But if your resources are limited, choose one piece of real jewelry rather than several pounds of rhinestones. The only fake jewelry that can be worn in quantity and in good taste are pearls.

A. B. Eisenhower Got $100,000 Ready for Ransom

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A few minutes after the kidnapping of Bobby Greenlease had been announced, a ransom package was held ready for a ransom demand.

Arthur B. Eisenhower, brother of President Eisenhower and executive vice-president of the Commerce Trust Company here, said he acted on his own initiative to make the money available.

He is a friend of the Greenlease family.

He learned of the kidnapping in a telephone call from his wife and immediately ordered that $100,000 be withdrawn from the bank vaults, counted and placed in four small, canvas bags.

Estimate Too Low

"We just wanted to have it instantly available," Eisenhower said. "But, as it turned out, our estimate of the amount which would be needed was far too low."

The day following kidnapping, Robert C. Greenlease, the father, and Robert Ledterman friend and business associate, told Eisenhower the demand was for $600,000.

Arrangements were made to obtain that sum in the proper denominations and the money was picked up at the bank late Saturday afternoon.

Eisenhower declined to comment as to whether the serial numbers of the bills were listed.

Mayor Believes Maritimes Headed For Great Future

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Harris Joyce of Moncton, N.B., believes Canada's Atlantic provinces are headed for a great future.

"There's always been talk in the central provinces about the Maritimes being stagnant," Mayor Harris said in an interview. "But it's not true today. We're on the upgrade now. In fact we're right at the threshold of a great future based on mineral development."

And the mayor has no doubt about Moncton's future.

"We're already going ahead by leaps and bounds. We've doubled the population of Greater Moncton in the last five years, and by 1961 we'll have outgrown Saint John and be the biggest city in New Brunswick."

Population of Greater Moncton is about 60,000 today, he said.

"The day Newfoundland joined confederation was a red letter one for us," he said. "Moncton is the logical distribution point for the Atlantic provinces, and its chief city."

Air traffic had increased more rapidly during the last 12 months at the city's airport than at any other airport in Canada. Apart from handling 27 per cent of New Brunswick's retail trade Moncton was a natural for the distribution point for remote areas reached only by air.

"The opening of iron mines in northern Quebec, the development of mineral resources in the province, and the expansion in air traffic, have touched off a boom in our city," mayor Joyce said.

"Halifax and Saint John base their prosperity on the sea; our future lies in the air."

The Women's Association and the Women's Institute are jointly serving meals in a tent at the "Great City" on the grounds at the plowing match at Cobourg. The expense of the set-up is tremendous but the turkey dinners will draw the people to the banquet every day. J. H. Hess.

Church to Make Drive for Funds

The Holloway Street United Church official board has decided to make an every-member canvass for funds in order to liquidate an outstanding debt on the new organ and to make long-term repairs to the church building. The Women's Association has arranged for the painting of the Sunday School auditorium and rooms, also the complete redecoration of the minister's vestry. This work was completed this week.

The official board has replaced the old doors on the front of the church with solid oak, glass-panelled doors and refinished the side entrance to match the front of the building. For the first time in many years, the church plans an anniversary banquet, when the preacher, Rev. Chas. Perkins, a former minister, will speak; Mr. Lyle Tweddy and his committee have planned an interesting program.

Paratroopers Get Knowledge Of Fabric and Fabric Repairs At Ordnance Depot at Shilo

REPAIR PARACHUTES — Running a seam on a parachute is almost second nature to the men of No. 28 Central Ordnance Depot at Camp Shilo, Man. Cpl. Arnold Marsden, 28, of Weston, Ont., husky veteran of the Second World War where he was wounded, is typical of men repairing and packing chutes at the centre. The depot is responsible for all parachutes used by Canadian soldiers. (CP from National Defence).

BY ART BEYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP SHILO, Man. (CP) Tough belt guards are the men of No. 28 Central Ordnance Depot.

Commanding officer Eddie Wills, 46, of Ottawa runs an outfit where some of Canada's toughest parachuters, mostly with long war records, claim a knowledge of fabric and fabric repairs that would put many a housewife to shame.

The men work in the master depot mingle for airborne and allied stores; a fancy name for the army's only parachute-packing centre. All parachutes blossoming behind army jumpers in Canada are prepared by these soldiers and officers.

All Can Jump

The riggers and packers who actually handle the parachutes are all jumpers and take regular jump training. The packer, who folds the chute after checking the lines and panels; is supervised in his work by the rigger, who has superior training and some stripes to back it up.

Each chute is numbered. A has a long book in which a rigger's slip is inserted after each packing. The life of a chute is 100 jumps or 7½ years, after which it is retired to cargo work.

The Shilo depot does all its own trades training, using qualified jumpers who come from other ordnance units or direct from recruiting centres. Each packer and rigger may be asked to use a chute he has worked on for his next jump.

If flaws occur, the chute is passed to the repair and maintenance section. Common troubles are rips, holes or line burns. The latter occur when the 72-foot lines whipping out of the pack come in contact with nylon panels and friction causes the nylon to melt.

Expert Operation

Under flashing lights on long tables, the chutes are inspected and flaws noted on a chart. The rigger follows the chart when he starts his repair job, which may involve patching a small hole or replacing a panel completely. The harness may have to be stitched or worn lines replaced.

After basting his seams, the rigger turns to the shop's battery of electrically - powered sewing machines. They vary from common household size to a rugged model capable of running a straight seam through an inch plank. After another inspection the chute is returned to be packed.

Major demo of the parachute devsain is Staff Sgt. Jack Hetherington, 32, of Dundurn, Sask. Sgt. Hetherington, a veteran of 11 years jumping and 15 years army service, started as a drummer boy. His experience is a key factor in the smooth operation at Shilo.

The sergeant made his first jumps with the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion attached to the British Army. He was one of a dozen men who arrived early for D Day. He jumped into Normandy the night before, was later wounded and was a prisoner of war for 11 months.

5 Persons Killed

OSLO, Norway (Reuters)—Five persons were killed and six were injured Wednesday as a massive landslide in Oslo's suburbs buried a bus and six cars over a cliff, smashed houses and disrupted rail services.

A far greater disaster was barely averted. A passenger train screeched to a stop just before reaching a gaping hole in the tracks. One passenger died of heart failure as the train halted.

Rescue parties dug in a towering heap of earth and rubble for any others who might have been caught by the avalanche. The 14 inhabitants of three houses wrecked by the slide were all listed as safe.

DRIVER DIES AT WHEEL

SWEET HOME, Ore. (AP)—A loaded logging truck, its driver dead at the wheel, careened down a mountain highway Wednesday and crashed head-on into a bus, injuring 13 persons. The bus was hurled from the highway 50 feet down a canyon. Hugo douglas fir logs sheared off the rig as the logging truck then plunged after the bus, battering its top.

Russia Increasingly Capable Of Atomic Attack on U.S., But War Threat Not Imminent

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower says Russia possesses an increasing capability of delivering an atomic attack on the United States, but he does not think the threat of war shadows North America's doorstep now.

And, in the fullest official United States statement since Moscow claimed mastery of the sweptwing hydrogen bomb, the president said he is "convinced that the Russians have a weapon, or the forerunner of a weapon, of power far in excess of the conventional (atomic) types."

The president's statement appeared indicative of action on the military-defence front. There was no evidence, however, that the administration has succeeded as yet in finding any formula for cutting down the danger by diplomatic action.

The president made clear he had not yet determined when to speak out publicly in detail on the problems of atomic diplomacy.

Study Stevenson's Idea

He confirmed he told Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee for president, that he was sure the state department would be interested in Stevenson's ideas of a non-aggression pact with Russia against revival of German militarism.

The president also said he hadn't heard any suggestion, as widely speculated in London dew dispatches, that Prime Minister Churchill had or might get agreement from Eisenhower to a proposition that Churchill go to Moscow to talk with Malenkov. Eisenhower said he had not studied this idea one way or another.

Many questions at the press conference concerned U.S. reaction to Russia's increasing atomic capability backed by present or potential possession of the H-bomb.

Adjust Defences

What one tries to do in dealing with this kind of a situation, the president said, is not necessarily to increase the over-all defence cost, but rather to adjust elements of the defence structure as far as possible.

His statement was in line with reliable reports that the national security council decided about two weeks ago to enlarge the continental defence system—a network of radar stations backed up by fighter fields and planes, both in U.S. and Canadian territory.

In the background of the council decision was an argument made by continental defence advocates that, in its efforts to build up defences in Europe, the U.S. had permitted its total military power to become somewhat unbalanced. They contended that the U.S. had given a priority to areas outside North America which now might be readjusted.

To Shuffle Budget

This indicated, in the light of the president's words, that Eisenhower is seeking means of substantially strengthening North American defences by shuffling funds within the defence budget rather than asking for a great increase in military spending.

Eisenhower also announced that he has asked all members of his administration "to refrain from comment on Soviet nuclear capabilities unless they first check their statements" with the atomic energy commission.

Says Pollution Poisoning River

OTTAWA (CP)—Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan said Thursday that pollution of the St. Clair and Detroit rivers is poisoning "the most valuable waters in the world."

He flew to Ottawa to testify before the International Joint Commission which is studying pollution of international waters along the Great Lakes.

Governor Williams said the pollution is already affecting water used by communities on both sides of the St. Clair and Detroit rivers.

"I am sure we will work together to protect ourselves against the poisoning of our waters," he said.

Two Found Dead

MONTREAL (CP)—A 22-month-old boy and his maternal grandmother were found dead from gas asphyxiation Thursday in their Hoyer street home.

Mrs. Marcel d'Amour, a neighbor, found the bodies of Michel Loffredo and the woman, who was identified as Mrs. Bruna Cimechella, 61.

The parents of the child, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Loffredo, were away at work at the time.

Skipper Says He Was in Right Channel When Hit

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP)—Capt. Thomas Nissen testified at a U.S. Coast Guard hearing here Thursday that his German motorship, the Wallachia, was in the current north-bound channel of the St. Clair river when it was rammed and sunk by the Great Lakes ore carrier Pioneer Oct. 2.

Two American witnesses, Clifford J. McInnis and John C. Diller, agreed with Nissen, but said his ship had been only 100 feet from the U.S. shore in the south-bound channel and had changed course after the Pioneer sounded danger signals.

Nissen and the two Americans said the collision happened 400 feet off the Ontario side in the 1,400-foot river that forms the international boundary here.

McInnis and Diller said both ships turned east and collided. They also said they heard no significant whistles from the Wallachia in answer to the Pioneer's.

Tito Might Not Be Elected In Free Voting

OTTAWA (CP) — I. Norman Smith, associate editor of the Ottawa Journal, said Thursday if free election were held in Yugoslavia tomorrow, Tito might not be re-elected.

Mr. Smith, who recently visited Yugoslavia and met Tito, said that no one else would be elected if Tito wasn't and Yugoslavia would be split.

"Let me say that I know Yugoslavia is a police state and there is not there political freedom as we know it and as we believe it and as we believe it should be," he said. "I know also that though the church is not persecuted there to the extent that I had been led to believe there is nevertheless definite and official interference with religion."

CATTLE PLAY

CONSORT, Alta. (CP)—Farmer Thomas Grocock lost all his threshed wheat when his four-year-old son played with matches in a stubble field. Destroyed by fire were 900 bushels of wheat, a granary, and a straw stack. The child escaped injury.

Eisenhower Will Make State Visit to Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—President Eisenhower who has visited Ottawa twice before as a general, will come to Canada's capital Nov. 13 for a three day state visit.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, announcing the visit Thursday said the government hopes that Mr. Eisenhower will be able to address both Houses of Parliament on Saturday, Nov. 14—two days after Parliament opens.

The Republican president will be following a pattern of state visits to Canada set by his two Democratic predecessors—the late President Roosevelt in August, 1943, and former president Truman in June, 1947.

Mr. Eisenhower will be accompanied by his wife.

Prime Minister St. Laurent paid an official visit to Washington last May and recently invited the president to repay the visit at his convenience.

Mr. Eisenhower made a lasting impression in Ottawa during a visit in January, 1946, as the general who had led allied forces to victory over the German armies.

Named Mountain After Him

During a luncheon meeting at that time Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, then prime minister, announced the government was changing the name of a mountain in the Canadian Rockies from Mount Castle to Mount Eisenhower.

Mr. Eisenhower was in Ottawa again in January, 1951, on a 24-hour visit as supreme commander of the North Atlantic treaty armies.

Mr. St. Laurent said further details of the forthcoming visit will be issued in due course. The president will be a guest at Government House, the official residence of Governor-General Vincent Massey, and be guest-of-honor at a dinner there the evening of his arrival. The following evening he will be host at a dinner at the residence of the U. S. ambassador, R. Douglas Stuart.

There was no announcement that the president will confer with government leaders here, but such conferences are likely. Leading topics would probably be international trade and the defence of both North America and the rest of the free world against communism.

Given Thirty Days

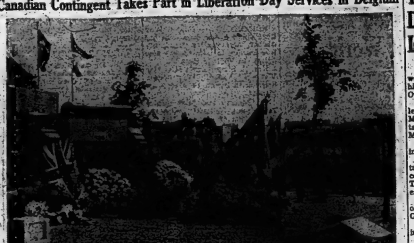
OTTAWA (CP)—Daniel Nurenberg, 31, and Ernest Gervais, 38, unsuccessful candidates for the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party in the recent federal elections were sentenced Thursday to 30 days in jail on charges of forcible entry.

County Judge A. G. McDougall sentenced the men after a jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Nurenberg and Gervais were charged by police after they forced open a vacant apartment at the suburban Rockcliffe emergency shelter last July to accommodate a homeless family.

Mayor Whitton Makes Offer To Keep Film Board

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton Thursday offered the federal government a half-million dollar package offer as inducement to retain the National Film Board in Ottawa and prevent its transfer to Montreal.



Heading a delegation which met Prime Minister St. Laurent, mayor Whitton proposed as an outright gift 27 acres of land at Carlington Heights, on the southwestern outskirts of the city, for an NFB site and a 300-unit low-rental housing development with special priority for NFB employees.

Mr. St. Laurent told the delegation that the offer will be studied carefully. As yet no decision has been made, nor tenders called for the erection of the new building in Montreal.

STEADY WORKERS

MONTREAL (CP) — A realistic employment attitude rather than the purely sympathetic approach is needed in connection with employing handicapped persons, said Roy Campbell, chairman of the Council for Guidance of the Handicapped. Surveys showed they produced as much or more with less absenteeism than among normal workers, he said.

Canadian armed forces, based in Antwerp, Belgium, recently took part in an impressive "Liberation Day" service as the people of Antwerp gave thanks for their deliverance from the domination of the Germans by British and Canadian forces, nine years ago. Pictured above, British, American, Canadian and Belgium soldiers dip their flags in salute during the ceremony.

Airlines Slashing Red Tape Along Frontiers of World

MONTREAL (CP) — Airlines are making "substantial advances" in cutting red tape along world frontiers, a traffic committee official told the International Air Transport Association reported Wednesday.

The committee, headed by Dr. F. von Baltzoord of Amsterdam, vice-president of KLM, Royal Dutch Airlines, said the annual general meeting of IATA many countries have cut the number of documents required by world travellers and have simplified procedures.

There had been "considerable activity" along these lines during the last year in Britain, the United States and Latin American countries, but airlines still faced difficulties in parts of Asia and the Middle East.

The committee said "the worldwide air traffic system" being built up by IATA has been "consolidated" by adherence of new airlines to "international agreements.

During the last year, 36 additional companies had signed the inter-line traffic agreement, 35 the inter-line baggage agreement and 16 the inter-line agreement on air cargo.

The committee also advised airlines to crack down on unclaimed reservations and urged setting up of an "inspection team" to check back to persons who did not show up after booking flight space.

Carriers had over-booked flights to deal with the problem which cost airlines in the U. S. and Canada alone "many millions of dollars" each year. But "short-cut expedients of this nature by themselves are not a solution," the report said.

Later, Denis H. Handover of Scandinavian Airlines, and chairman of last year's IATA traffic conferences, said at a press conference that tourist travel, especially in Europe, is becoming "more austere." In the future, differences in the two types of service would increase.

People who appreciate fine cars are turning to Monarch

"My Monarch has all the fine-car features I value most..."

Bob Walker, the manager of the bank that handles our account, is the type of man who takes a long, hard look before he makes an investment. Talking of cars the other day, he told me he'd bought a Monarch because it was a car that gave him everything he wanted, including the satisfaction of knowing he'd invested wisely and well in a fine product. I thought I couldn't do better than follow his example—and now I know just how he feels.

My Monarch has all the fine-car features I value most—beauty and style in every line, a powerful V-8 engine and all the the extra power features that make driving more relaxed and pleasant than I'd ever thought it could be. Yes, I can certainly see now why any man with a banker's sense of values would make Monarch his choice.

The win gave the Brooklyn Dodger organization a little consolation over the Brooks' world series defeat by New York Yankees. Montreal is the Dodgers' top farm club of the Dodgers. Kansas City is a Yankee farm team. Both advanced after post season playoffs.

Montreal went right to work Thursday night as Dick Whitman whacked a homer in the first inning. The Royals then proceeded to shell Irv Kanaz, City hurler, scoring single tallies in the fourth and sixth innings and a pair in each of the last two frames.

Hamp Coleman, Royal right-hander, scored his second series win. He held Kansas City to seven hits and scoreless until the ninth inning.

Rocky Nelson, Montreal first man, set an all-time fifth world series batting high by collecting one hit in four tries for an average of .947. He had 11 hits in 17 tries.

The series loss was the second straight for Kansas City, which was edged by Rochester Redwings in the seven-game 1953 series.

Norfolk Seeks Berth in Minors

NORFOLK, Va., (AP) — Norfolk Chamber of Commerce Thursday started a move to obtain Norfolk a berth in the International League.

In a letter to Frank J. Shaughnessy, president of the league, the chamber urged that the Virginia cities of Norfolk and Richmond be incorporated into the circuit.

An opening in the League was created last month when the St. Louis Browns franchise, in the American League, was transferred to Baltimore, which retained the International League. Richmond already has begun efforts to take over the Baltimore vacancy.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP) — Governor Thomas E. Dewey Thursday moved to clean up scandals in New York's $250,000,000-a-year harness racing operations by appointing an investigation commission to "turn harness racing upside down."

The three-man commission is charged primarily with studying stock ownership and other financial interests of every trotting association in the state.

Dewey said the commissioners will try to learn whether any public officials obtained stock free or at "inadequate" prices and whether gangsters hold any financial interest in the associations.

They will study hiring practices and the possibility of kickbacks, extortion and coercion being involved.

Meanwhile in Mineola, on Long Island, a grand jury indicted 13 men on charges of extortion, conspiracy and labor kickbacks as the upshot of an inquiry into Roosevelt Raceway operations. William C. Dekoning, an AFL labor czar on Long Island, headed the list of defendants.

The governor told newspaper men that betting by harness racing fans in New York was expected to total $250,000,000 this year. He said that last year the tracks received $21,000,000 as their share of the wagering.

The harness-racing scandals, involving payoffs and kickbacks, did not the conduct of the races, stemmed from the Aug. 28 slaying of Thomas Lewis, leader of an AFL union local that has a closed shop contract with Roosevelt Raceway.

The former convicts questioned in the slaying have been released or been employed at the Yonkers oval.

This left the impression that the Yonkers operators had paid almost $300,000 in less than four years to "friendly shooters" to avoid strikes or other labor strife, and that 25 of the employers chose from union lists had criminal records.

Then came allegations that employes of Yonkers raceway had been forced to kick back $345,000 to union officials to hold their jobs.

TORONTO (CP)—Gord Hannigan will be lost to Toronto Maple Leafs for three weeks, club officials announced following examination of rib injuries suffered by the left winger in practice Thursday.

George Slater, president of the QHL, said the Cataracts asked to suspend operations because of an inability to get enough players to provide serious competition for the seven other teams in the league.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Third baseman Al Rosen, who led the American League in home runs and runs-batted-in this year, signed his sixth contract Thursday with Cleveland Indians. General manager Hank Greenberg indicated Rosen got a substantial pay raise. It is believed Rosen's new salary will be around $40,000.

BUFFALO (AP)—General manager Fred Hunt of Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League announced Thursday night the acquisition of left winger Gaye Stewart from Montreal Canadiens.

Stewart will make his debut with the Bisons when they open their season Saturday night in Syracuse. Stewart finished last season with Quebec Aces in the Quebec Hockey League.

Canadiens, Detroit Red Wings Win National Hockey League Openers

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"BE GROG BELLY"

Some "Le Gros Bill" Bolivreau, the most lab-thumped rookie to enter the charmed circle of National Hockey League players, has signed with the Montreal Canadiens, so we read around the loop circuit.

The twenty-two-year-old French Canadien should add even more lustre to the colorful Habitants and the acquisition is expected to react around the loop circuit in increased box office.

Jolly Jawn Adams of the Detroit Red Wings, said he was glad to see Bolivreau in the National Hockey League, but added: "I wish he were with some other club than Canadiens; Montreal always draws well in Detroit. In fact, they're our big attraction. But if that boy had signed with some other club, we could take in another $50,000 per season at our home games."

Frank Selke, boss-man of the Canadiens, did not disclose the amount for which Bolivreau was inked. He did say it was the highest ever given any player. Speculation around the loop over the amount runs as high as six figures for the five-year contract.

The young player is said to be the best rookie to enter the junior hockey ranks in many years. But the modest young gentleman is not letting that fool, or his blazing career by the "amateur" ranks to give him exaggerated ideas. In fact he says he hopes to score thirty goals in his first National Hockey League season. But Montreal observers say the lad's brush will top the rookie record of 24-set by Nels Stewart of the Montreal Maroons, in the 1925-26 season. Bolivreau should heed this mark if he lives up to expectations, since he has seventy games in which to do it while "Ole Poison" had only 36.

But the brilliancy that was his in junior and senior ranks and the fact that reams of copy have been forced from the pens of the sports-writing fraternity, might saddle the youngster with a heavy import. The dyed-in-the-wool hockey fans, besides the ordinary Joes in all sports of the circuit, as well as the 'sticks' will probably look to the new "wonder boy" for herculean feats of puck-chasing.

It should be remembered there is as much difference in National Hockey League play and the senior circuits as there is between the latter crews and rookies. Tram Bolivreau cut a wide swath last season when he scored five goals in three games for Canadiens in a land-lease deal with the Quebec Aces. But those games do not constitute a season, and the idol of the Trois Rivieres townspeople and the habitants of old Quebec, will find the "going" to let tougher down the National Hockey League trail than he did in those three workouts.

And don't forget; the veterans of the N.H.L; the Howes, Lindsays, Schmidts, Kennedys, and others are a vastly different aggregation to the opposition Bolivreau met in the Quebec League. He will find the Sawchucks, the Lumleys and other topflight goalies tough cookies when it comes to poking the puck in the net. The rest of the major league crews will be gunning for Bolivreau and the Montreal youngster will be placed on the spot in his first trip around the circuit.

A firm believer in the adage: "One swallow does not make a spring" nor a binge, we are of the opinion this much-heralded youngster will have to do a real test in the crucible of his first season in the NHL. If he emerges with a goodly percentage of ice-lane gold from his seventy-game test, then we will believe all the great things that have been written about and predicted for him.

WILL BE MISSED!

Those spunky, high-spirited pigskin chasers of St. Michael's Academy are kicking the ball around with all the old fire and vim these cool October afternoons, but if you look around you will find a familiar face missing.

The guy whose name has been synonymous with St. Mike's football squads and other sports for the past sixteen or seven-odd years, has through circumstances, been forced to relinquish his job as coach.

He is modest, genial Jack Doran, that "Canadian fellow" whose amazing ability and efforts have marked St. Michael's teams to many a victory. One of Jack's best efforts was that of 1951 and 1953 when he took untried gridiron material, whipped it into a fighting whole, and installed first and five into the voting until it gave the best senior teams in the district the battles of their lives.

Doran, who is in charge of Industrial Arts and Crafts at the Academy, found this year that the increase in the student body would not let him spend "full time" at the job. He reluctantly gave up the position with the athletics department.

Jack will be missed not only in athletic circles of St. Michael's, but the secondary schools sports of the city and district. He was popular with his own boys, and also with the coaches of teams of other schools.

His place with the football squad is being ably taken by Doug. Foley, a senior student, who is also playing with the squad. The team this year is strictly of junior calibre but is filling in a schedule with city and district senior teams. Jack Ryan is busy developing a squad of 135-pounders.

'Rocket' Richard Leads Habs To 3-0 Victory Over Chicago; Rookie Stars in Ranger Loss

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The smoke had hardly cleared from the major league baseball scene when the National Hockey League sent four teams into action Thursday night to open the 1953-54 season. It was a successful first night for Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings.

In Montreal, Maurice (Rocket) Richard served notice he has lost none of the power that has kept him at or near the top of the league's individual scorers for a number of years, as the Canadiens blanked Chicago Black Hawks 3-0.

The Rocket punched home two Montreal goals and defencemen Doug Harvey got the other before a roaring audience of 14,550 fans that nearly equalled the record-breaking crowd that thronged two match penalties.

Wings Stretch Streak

At Detroit, the Wings, who haven't had an opening game since 1938, stretched their streak by whipping the New York Rangers 4-1. Rookie Dutch Reibel picked up four assists.

Ted Lindsay, Gordie Howe, Red Kelly and Marcel Pronovost were the youngsters in the Wings' while rookie Pie Hildebrand got New York's only goal, scoring unassisted in the second period.

Montreal held the Hawks' vaunted check and defence to Murdell has few difficult stops to make in earning the league's first shutout of the season.

Dickie Moore of Montreal and Lee Fogolin of Detroit were among their sticks at each other late in the first period when gloves flew and match penalties. These carry automatic fines of $100 to each player.

Richard showed lineman Bob Babcock in a first-period flurry and drew a misconduct penalty. There were 13 penalties in all, seven against the Rangers.

Bert Olmstead, working with Richard and rookie centre Jean Beliveau, figured in Montreal's goals.

The Hawks came up with a scrappy game, but their play was ragged and they faded badly toward the end.

At Detroit, Lindsay picked up two assists, and his 468 lifetime points to tie him with Sid Abel, former Red Wing great, for the all-time Detroit scoring record.

The Wings had too much power for the Rangers, who finished in the cellar last year with only 19 victories in 70 games.

Snider Barely Shades Mathews For Bat Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—Duke Snider, 26-year-old Brooklyn Dodgers outfielder, won the National League's slugging title for 1953 by a fraction of a percentage point over Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews.

Snider slugged for a mark of .627 to .6269 for the sophomore Brewer's third baseman—a difference of .0002. Duke hit for 370 total bases in 308 times at bat and Mathews had 383-for-379. Associated Press statistics show.

Al Rosen of Cleveland Indians took American League honors with a .613 average. The hard-hitting player made 192 hits in 313 times at bats. He led the junior circuit in home runs with 43. He also had 37 doubles and five triples.

A home run he hit off Bob Miller of Philadelphia Phillies on Sept. 27 two days before the season's end, gave Snider the championship. That was Duke's 42nd of the year to go along with 38 doubles and four triples. Mathews' 47 also tallied.

Mathews, who paced the league in home runs with 47, had 378 hits, which also included 31 doubles and eight triples, in 379 trips.

Slugging averages are computed by dividing the total bases on all hits by the number of times at bat.

Gus Zernial, who finished second to Snider in 1952 and 1951 also was runner-up in the American League slugging race. The Philadelphia Athletics outfielder cracked out 219 total bases in 553 at bats for a .396 mark.

World Series Rainbow's Pot o' Gold Becoming Menace to Baseball—Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Next time the big league clubowners get together for the purpose of wondering how to revive flagging attendance, they might forget television for a few minutes and have the secretary read them the figures on how much each of the Yankees and Dodgers received for playing in this year's world series.

They will learn that each full grown member of the winning club was making a cheque for $8,280.88, which is more than a lot of other first place players are paid for a full season's effort. Those who were away on hunting trips at the time also will be amazed to find that each Brooklyn player was rewarded to the tune of $6,178.42 for losing.

The figures are not new to the average fan, but they will bear repetition here because, in this corner's opinion, they have grown out of all proportion to the salary framework of baseball and are in danger of becoming a real menace to the game unless someone rises to put a stop to it.

If the magnates themselves are not smart enough to see that such a claphappy payoff to the two pennant winners is a threat to their very existence all over other clubs, and that they might never again have a season like the race unless some reason prevails, then they should not be surprised if they hear something explicit soon from the player representatives of the "have not" clubs.

The situation boils down roughly to this: The Yankees and the Dodgers are swimming in gravy with no land in sight, while the other ten 16 other teams are staring anxiously and saying 'taint right. They feel that the 40 per cent of the players' swag paid to the two world series teams is by far too great and that the remaining dribblets tossed to the other first division clubs are scarcely worth picking up.

This isn't just hearsay. A well-known scout for a second division outfit was moaning one night during the series that he has had no chance to compete for the signature of a really good prospect if either the Yankees or Dodgers was interested in the boy. He said he knew from sad experience as a manager it was mighty hard to instill ithusiasm in a player who knows he's getting only the equivalent of a world series purse.

It is a fact that, because of the extra autumn bonus they can offer (we heard a Yank official warning an out-of-towner to get his series ticket order in earlier next year) the world champs do not have to pay especially large salaries. The report of a congressional committee last year disclosed that the payrolls of several other clubs were higher. Thus success begets not only the cream of the rookies but as well affects a nice saving in wages.

Argos, Tiger-Cats Double Bill Features Full Week-End Fare, Riders, Larks Clash Twice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Canada football teams, accustomed to the leisurely pace of a game a week, will have a full week-end in the next three days just when Western Conference clubs go through for most of their two-month stretch run.

Edmonton Eskimos and Calgary Stampeders are on tap for the Thanksgiving week-end.

Thirteen senior games are scheduled between tonight and Monday night. The Big Four and Western Conference bear the big load with home-and-away doubleheaders. The senior Ontario Rugby Football Union has games tonight and Saturday and the Intercollegiate Union has its usual two Saturday afternoon games.

Only one thing is certain before the clubs embark on their busy week-end schedule—Edmonton Eskimos are certain of a place in playoff position. The league-leading Eskimos do the Western Conference, will at least finish second to the bottom-placed Calgary Stampeders, meet the Shamrock Calgary on Saturday and Monday in their home-and-home total-point series.

The other western games bring together the second-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders at Winnipeg on Saturday and the same two clubs at Saskatoon on Monday. The Bombers trail Edmonton by six points and hold a four-point lead over the Riders.

The situation is far different in the Big Four, where only two points separate the four clubs. Ottawa Rough-Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats lead with eight points and Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes follow with six points each.

Rough Riders and the Ala play at Ottawa Saturday and go back at each other in Montreal Sunday. Argonauts have a home game against Tiger-Cats Saturday and the two clubs meet again at Hamilton Thanksgiving Day.

In the OHA tonight the leagues-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen play at Brantford. The Dutchmen play host with a Monday afternoon game at Sarnia with Imperials. They're 2½ points ahead of Toronto Balmy Beach.

Beaches meet the Imperials at Toronto tonight.

Intercollegiate games are scheduled for London and Kingston. University of Toronto Blues play their first victory when they meet University of Western Ontario Mustangs at London Saturday and Montreal Indians play with the Golden Gaels at Kingston.

Other Clubs Get Share Of Series Melon

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick Thursday announced players' shares of world series money by the second, third and fourth clubs to finish in the National League and American League pennant races.

Milwaukee Braves, who finished second in the National League, would get 34 full shares of $1,461.45 each, Frick announced after counting the second-place Cleveland Indians of the American League voted 28 full shares, or $1,452.17, six two-third shares, two one-half, four one-third, and three one-quarter shares.

Thirty-four full shares or $966.10 were voted by the third-place Chicago White Sox of the American League. There were three one-third shares.

In the National League, St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies tied for third place. The Cardinals received 34 full shares or $979.30, plus three two-quarter shares, five one-third and two one-quarter shares. The Phillies split 30 full shares of $910.18, and voted six one-third shares.

'Bums' Could Go To Montreal Says Columnist

NEW YORK (CP)—Bill Corum, sports columnist for the New York Journal-American, said Thursday that perennial baseball Dodgers will be shifted to Montreal in 1954 "unless the club changes pattern indicated by the fish not so tagged.

Ed Cressman has produced a new, improved method of tagging fish. Recently, up to the moment, indicate that his new system is far superior to that used previously. Data so far obtained seems to indicate no ill effects on the fish from the tagging and therefore a much more positive record of the fish's travels is available. If nothing else has been accomplished by this undertaking (Ontario Department of Lands, Anglers and Hunters), this detail is well worth the investment. But a great deal more is being done on the project.

"The idea of the publicity stunts recently, we were really amazed at the fun which has been already recorded. For example, of several thousand small and largemouth bass whose histories are on file, one in particular stands out. This particular bass has been caught no less than ten times, and each time has gained weight, and general health has been recorded. The most gratifying is to notice that these is a consistent gain each year, in

CONSERVATION

Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

There is a chap we know who is working away most assiduously on many fronts. He's been pulling data on three or our most game fish, the smallmouth bass, largemouth bass and the muskilonge. The records of big fish—big, the lagging and fascinating to public waters of the fish in his charge—all these things are making a most important contribution to the scientific management of our supply of game fish.

This man is Ed Cressman, all six feet of him! He's a graduate of Queen's University, and a protege of Professor R. W. Curran, head of the Ontario Anglers' best and fastest friends. Ed has set up shop under the sponsorship of The Toronto Anglers and Hunters at the Nogies Creek sanctuary.

In the past, the tagging of fish often left something to be desired. Three three-quarter shaves, five one-third shaves and two quarter shares. The Phillies split 30 full shares of $910.18, and voted six one-third shares.

looking over the records, we were struck by the uniformity of growth during the past. We need we say that undertaking such as this have never been undertaken them?

Another interesting development unfolding at Nogies Creek is one which will have considerable value in assessing the value of transplanting hatchery-raised muskinonge. Small, tagged 'lunge' have been introduced there, in order that they may meet in competition for the local food supply with locally-bred fish. When life records are completed, much knowledge will be available on what might transpire in unprotected waters.

This project has been under way for several three years, with a great quantity of really valuable information having been compiled. Very soon now, the findings can be implemented, with a reasonable degree of assurance that what transpired at Nogies Creek will likely also be duplicated in other Ontario waters.

Each year, the Toronto Anglers and Hunters sponsor the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show. This has proved a great source of gleaning to the most outstanding player in the American League. One of its attributes is in its dignity—the high calibre of its exhibits. The show has put performances have terrific appeal too. Needless to say, it's a profitable venture. One outstanding appeal to outdoorsmen who throng the Show on the opening day to the final curtain) is that the profits are given to the conservation.

Worthy projects like Nogies Creek (Algonquin Park Section No. 9) still continue to provide real value for the investment made by the Toronto Anglers. It will also prove to the anglers of Ontario that it's wise to subscribe more fully to the Sportsmen's Show. Admission fees are used to provide more sport! Too many research projects in the past have been discontinued before completion or the project. We hope this won't happen at Nogies Creek, for the knowledge gained already is so nearly completed, would be of little value unless finished. Every angler who has at the game who visits the Sportsmen's Show does so in the hope that his contribution will assure the continuation of this wonderful work.

Dodgers Sell Three Players To Montreal

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Brooklyn baseball club Thursday sold the Dodgers outright to Montreal Royals of the International League, and purchased three players from the farm club.

Sold to Montreal were John Ruthergord, righthanded pitcher; lefthanded pitcher Chris Van Cuyk, and catcher Dick Teed.

Montreal players purchased by the Dodgers were righthanded pitcher Hampton Coleman who had an 8-4 record; lefthander Tom Lasorda, who completed a 17-8 record, and outfielder Vic Marasco who batted .306 for Fort Worth in the Texas League.

Baseball Leafs Swap Johnson

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League Thursday night acquired 3-year-old third baseman Hector Rodriguez, all-star International League pitcher Don Johnson in a trade with Chicago White Sox of the American League.

Rodriguez, all-star International League third baseman with Montreal Royals in 1951 and again this year with Syracuse Chiefs, had a .295 average with Syracuse last season. He total of 158 hits included 19 doubles, seven triples and four home runs.

Johnson, 4-lefthander, compiled a 15-13 won-and-lost record with Toronto.

Giants Shuffle Pitching Staff

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants began reorganization of their pitching staff Thursday with the purchase of Vahn Eckhall, a big lefthander, from San Francisco Seals in a "better than $60,000 deal."

The Giants gave up cash and three farm players for the fast-baller, who won 12 games and lost five in the Pacific Coast League club before breaking a finger in mid-season.

Going to the Seals in the deal were pitchers Frank Hiller and Adrian Zabala and outfielder Chuck Doering, all of whom played with Minneapolis of the American Association last season.

Early Odds Favor 2 Toronto Teams As Junior 'A' League Opens Schedule

By FRED CHAPP

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—It may turn out to be a wide-open race in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit this season, Harry Lumley, on the two Toronto squads with Galt Black Hawks possible dark horses.

The 56-game schedule starts tonight in the nine-team circuit. Oshawa Generals are out for a year because of financial troubles.

Any change will be an improvement for the Greenshirts, who finished last season in the cellar. Built around are experienced starters like Greig Hicks, Graham Joyce, John Ford, Gerry Collins and Glen Cressman.

Eight over-age graduations left Rudy Pilous with a gaping hole to fill in the Teepees' lineup, but he added weight and speed in culling from the Leafs' farm at aspirants. He has two good lines in Cec Hoekstra, last year with St. Boniface, Hank Ciesla and Dean Prentice, and the Brian Cullen-Hugh Barlow-Wayne Roberts combination.

For his newly-arrived Citadelles, Phil Watson has a mixture of second-year men, rookies and transfers. His star centres is Ray Cyr of Campbellton, N.B., two-year rookie of the year in the 1952-53 season. Goaltender took two of the three pre-season tilts.

Jimmy Ridley, now in his seventh year of OHA coaching, expects a slow start with his Tigers, but says his squad is better balanced than last year's and he rates 17-year-old Dennis Riggin as the best netminder in the league.

Art Pike's Biltmores are loaded with scoring potential but the coach is worried about his defence, already beset by injuries. High-scoring Bob Gardiner is now down the aws to join holdovers Bill McGregor, Dick Chalmers, George White, Berley Dimma, Irv Scott, Ed Rost and Gerry Gratton.

Two other Toronto clubs have front lines and expects Doug Lassaline, Orval Tessier and Cal Gardner to be the scorers. At this stage, Jack Spencer looks like a winner for the goal tending job although Roger Day of St. Catharines is showing well in pre-season.

Mercurys Earn Tie With Barons

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound Mercurys came from behind to twice Thursday night to earn a 3-3 tie with Cleveland Barons of the International Hockey League in the first game of the season for the OHA Senior A entry.

Cleveland scored two goals for the Mercurys and assisted in the other by Jack Fraleigh.

Glen Sonmor, Jackie Gordon and Tom Williams scored the Cleveland goals.

CALL LEAGUE MEETING

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, Thursday called the league to call a league meeting in Montreal about Oct. 18 to discuss the Baltimore deal. Asked whether the loss of the Baltimore franchise will be taken up, he said "the Baltimore people will be invited to meet with us to discuss the situation."

Earl Walls To Fight Kahut

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, and Joe Kahut of Portland, Ore., meet in a 10-round rematch here Nov. 2, promoter Jack Berry said Thursday night.

Berry said Walls, now in Toronto, had agreed to the re-match for a guarantee of $5,000 or 25 per cent of the gate. Walls' heavyweight title would not be at stake.

Durelle Meets Gordon Wallace

MONCTON (CP)—Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., will meet Gordon Wallace of Brantford for the Canadian heavyweight boxing title here Oct. 15.

Durelle won the title by a decision from Wallace in Glace Bay last July. The rematch was made by Jack Hurley of Round Lake, Ont., Toronto, the Canadian Boxing Federation's logical contender, was unfit to fight.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON.
The Kibitzer

Real mastery at bridge includes proficiency in a number of its departments. One of the distinctions is being quick on the trigger in planning future plays, even in non-obvious acts. This defense ability adds up to more than his own operations. It takes in a knowledge of the leanings of various acts that are used by his partner. It works together in their attack on the contract.

To a watchful player the opening lead from partner gives much information. Discards by partner add to these advices. Combine the two and a player has a good working basis for defense.

South was the declarer at a small slam contract of six spades. Opening lead from west was the club jack. Now then this means the leader has both the ten and nine or the ten and eight-spot.

It was the most informative lead west could give his partner. With it east could assume that west could take care of the clubs when his own king and queen of clubs were gone.

South played the first trick with his club ace and pulled two trump rounds to make sure opponents would get ruff anything. Then he cashed his diamond ace and ruffed his last dummy diamond.

Now he ran three rounds of hearts, landing in dummy. With a top heart still out, south ruffed the fourth dummy heart and led a club. East won this trick and was endplayed.

A return diamond from east was ruffed by south and the dummy's last club was sluffed. Which left east to put any last east could have helped to defeat the contract. Here is how.

On the seventh trick, east could sluff his club king. When declarer lined a second club, west wins and takes another club.

A master defender thinks of such things.

SUSPEND LEGISLATORS

SEOUL (AP)—South Korea's National Assembly today formally reprimanded two assembly members and barred them from attending legislative sessions for one month. Kim Jong-Sik and Kwon Tai Wook had accused some fellow assemblymen of accepting bribes. An assembly committee which investigated said there appeared to be no truth in the Gallery charges and recommended that the two be punished.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 10, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Excellent planetary influences all day. A good review first will prevent wasted time and bring rightful returns for keen effort. . . .

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — General outlook fine for business and personal matters. On the whole you should forge ahead and make gains; maybe new profits. Romance favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Stay in the driver's seat where your own affairs are concerned. Manage money, family property sagaciously; confine your interests to necessary things. Time is valuable and knowledge is essential to success.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some honest effort needed. Financial atmosphere may seem dense in a few hours but will clear up later. Keep balance by pitching in wholeheartedly.

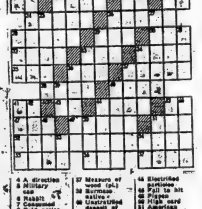
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Have no fear of digging into your problems today. Start with all you have and keep going. Accept challenges pleasantly; you can pull out ahead—and with credit.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Influences on high level for you who are conservative, but self-confident. Aim for quality. Conform with laws of God and wise men.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Steady progress for those using innate powers of comparison, good sense of perception. Be prepared to act quickly, calmly, wisely. You can attain fine results now.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Look for unexpected. Chances for making gains are favorable and day can bring much joy and pleasure. Have and home affairs stimulating.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Constructive and creative work can be unusually satisfying. Use extra brains to impulsive action. With thought and action coordinating well you can hardly miss now.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Profitable day if you maintain your usual efficiency and use care in making decisions. Be sparing in advice, but take sound advice yourself.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Don't let foolish nonessentials sidetrack you. Affairs get muddled without system, accuracy. Weigh well each new venture.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Intuitive matters, detective work, police and military affairs favored this day. Patient effort needed in all matters. Overconfidence can thwart chances to achieve.

YOU BORN TODAY are the just and well-balanced type. You have keen perception and seldom rush into anything unless you know what you are doing; you weigh matters carefully. You are innately peace-makers; make able public officials, lawyers, doctors; are courteous and logical. You dislike unpleasantness, arguments. Held to honest convictions. Birthdate of: Giuseppe Verdi, Italian composer; William Livingston Alden, author, journalist.

Four Canadians Named as Owning Whisky Shares

NEW YORK (AP) — James (Niggy) Rutkin Thursday named four Canadian distillers and charged they complied with his former bootlegging partner to cheat him of several million dollars.

Rutkin, serving a four-year prison term for income tax evasion, is suing Joseph H. Reinfeld, the alleged former partner, and others for $23,500,000.

He contends he was defrauded of this amount in disposing of whisky interests in the 1930s and '40s.

Promised in Rutkin's testimony was the sale of Brown-Vintners Co., in which Rutkin says he and Reinfeld owned interests in the 1930s.

Maurice Edelbaum, counsel for Rutkin, introduced testimony that the company was sold in 1940 to Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. for about $7,500,000.

Four Canadians—Samuel, Abraham, Harry and Allen Bronfman—were named, as having owned a controlling interest in Distillers Seagrams and charged with having conspired with Reinfeld to defraud Rutkin.

Several documents were introduced in the plaintiff's move to show the relationship between the Bronfmans, Rutkin and Reinfeld.

One, Joseph A. Frayne, a former U.S. immigration agent, testified that he saw the Bronfmans, Reinfeld and Rudkin together in Montreal and in New York. He said he had known the men since around 1925.

Frayne said he had heard Reinfeld say around 1939 that "we have to depend on our partners." He said Rutkin and Reinfeld were together at that time.

Frayne told of meeting Reinfeld in 1941 and remarking on reports that Browne-Vintners was about to be liquidated.

"He says 'My partners are coming in for a big slice of dough'," Frayne testified.

The trial is continuing.

Veteran Being Sued For Overpayment

HAMILTON (CP) — A Second World War veteran is being sued by the attorney-general of Canada for $41.30 which the government claims was an overpayment of gratuities.

John W. Bishop, 31, served with the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps in Canada and overseas from 1943 to 1946. He was served with a summons Thursday claiming the money. If he does not dispute the claim, judgment will become automatic in 18 days.

Bishop said he didn't keep track of the amount of gratuities paid him.

"If I was overpaid, it wasn't my fault," he said.

Two Charged With 3 Robberies, One Pleads Guilty

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two men were charged Thursday in connection with three robberies Wednesday night. One man pleaded guilty. Police picked up the men within minutes after the offences took place.

Gordon McEllistrem, 24, of Chatham pleaded innocent to two charges of armed robbery and was remanded to Oct. 16 for preliminary hearing.

Edward Reynolds, 26, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with violence which was laid after a taxi driver was robbed of everything but his undershirts. Reynolds was remanded to Oct. 15 for sentence.

McEllistrem was charged after an armed robber forced employees of a drug store to hand over $300 and then drove four blocks along the city's main street to rob a tavern of $225.

Suspensions May Be Increased

TORONTO (CP)—Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Ontario Liquor License Board, announced Friday that the usual two-week suspension for persistent breaking of regulations may be increased if infractions continue at their present rate.

After a session during which the board imposed two-week suspensions on four establishments for over-serving, the chairman said it might be necessary to increase the period to three weeks.

Among the hotels suspended for two weeks were the Royal Hotel, Gait and the Strand Public House, Brantford.

Acquitted of Charge

TORONTO (CP)—Kustan Jumalla St., of Toronto, sentenced last January to eight years in penitentiary was convicted of manslaughter. Thursday was acquitted of the charge following a new trial.

The Finnish carpenter, last originally been charged with the murder of 69-year-old Lauri Kari who was stabbed to death Aug. 25, 1952. The charge was reduced to manslaughter and he was convicted and sentenced by Chief Justice T. C. McRuer.

Four months later the Ontario Appeal Court ordered a new trial on the manslaughter charge, finding that the chief justice had erred in allowing the crown to introduce improper evidence.

Three Persons Die As Truck Hits Car In Whitby Area

Two of Dead from Maritimes; Cannot Identify Dead Child

WHITBY (CP)—Three persons, including a child, were killed today when a transport truck rammed into the rear of a car, leaving wreckage scattered and strewn across a nearby highway for hundreds of feet. Four other persons were hurt.

Some of the six passengers in the car were thrown from the vehicle in the collision.

Two of the dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hill, 60, of Sydney, N.S. Identity of the child was not immediately established, because she had an identical twin riding in the car. The twins are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons of Toronto.

Father Can't Tell

The father, who rushed here from his home in Toronto, couldn't tell from dead and the injured girl apart.

In hospital in nearby Oshawa are Mrs. Barbara Parsons of Toronto, in fair condition with possible back injuries and face cuts; a daughter, Jacqueline, a twin of the dead girl, in poor condition with undetermined injuries; and a son Gordon, 4, in fairly good condition with bruises.

Police identified the dead girl as Debby Lyn Parsons. Hospital officials said she was in shock but positive identification could not be made until relatives arrive and father. The injured twin was unconscious in hospital.

"It could be either Jacqueline or Wendy Lee," the father said. "I just don't know."

Details Skimpy

Details of the accident were skimpy. The transport truck was driven by Cameron McLeod, 39, of North Bay, apparently struck the car at about 7 a.m.

Some reports said the car tried to pass the truck and sideswiped it. However, police quoted Mrs. Parsons as saying she was driving slowly along the road after pulling out from a coffee shop along the highway.

McLeod suffered minor face cuts. The victims were taken to hospital in Oshawa, four miles east of here.

Police, who arrived shortly after the crash, said the car was smashed into a ditch, hit a fence post and bounced back on the highway.

Some of the victims were lying on the highway when doctors and police arrived. Others were pinned trapped in the car and officers had to use crowbars to extricate them.

Constable Sel Holroyd of the Ontario Provincial Police said he found the dead girl and Mrs. Parsons trapped in the car.

Tito Sends His Soldiers To Italian Border

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito sent his toughly-trained troops marching up to the Italian frontier today and served blunt notice that Yugoslavia would consider entry of Italian forces into zone A as the free territory of Trieste "an act of aggression."

In a fiery speech at the southern Serbian textile city of Leskovac, Tito told the throng "we have decided to protect our rights in the spirit of the United Nations, which also includes the right to use armed force."

"The people of Yugoslavia in their demonstrations asked that our army be sent to zone B and I may declare that units of the Yugoslav Army have already entered into zone B."

Demonstrations Continue

Tito spoke just two days after Britain and the United States announced they decided to withdraw their occupation troops from zone A and turn its administration over to Italy. That decision touched off a wave of angry protest demonstrations in Yugoslavia. They continued today.

Tito warned bluntly that Yugoslavia could not accept the "unilateral act by the governments of the United States and Britain" as an accomplished fact.

Reds Ask Allies Send Delegates To Discuss Parley

TOKYO (AP)—The Communists proposed tonight over Peiping radio that the Allies send delegations to Panmunjom to discuss when and where to hold the Korean political conference and what nations shall take part in it.

The Chinese-language broadcast heard here quoted Red China's premier and foreign minister, Chou En-lai, as saying he wants to reply to this proposal from the United States and the United Nations.

Fighting said this is Chou's reply to Allied notes sent recently to the Reds outlining plans for the conference.

Reply To Fourth Note

The latest U.N. note, its fourth, was sent to Communist China and North Korea Thursday. Three others had been ignored.

The truce agreement signed July 27 called for a political conference to begin by Oct. 28 to discuss a peaceful settlement of the Korean question, withdrawal of foreign forces, etc.—which could mean an almost unlimited number of subjects.

The only previous Red answer on the peace conference came in a long statement by UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold Sept. 12 which he referred to then the Aug. 28 resolution.

Churchill Thinks Present U.S. Role In World Affairs Will Prevent War

MARGATE, Eng. (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill promised today he would continue to work for an informal meeting of the heads of the great powers in an effort to resolve East-West tensions.

The 79-year-old statesman told a Conservative party conference he thought the United States' present role in world affairs would prevent a third world war.

Churchill first issued a call for top-level big power talks on May 11 but set no definite date for the ministerial discussions.

The prime minister said: "Her majesty's government still believes we should persevere in such a meeting between the heads of governments."

Churchill said he had no glittering or exciting hopes about Russia, Communist policy.

"I thought that friendly, informal, personal talks between the leading figures in the countries involved might do good and could not easily do much harm, and that one good thing might lead to another."

This humble, modest plan announced as the policy of Her Majesty's Government has not yet been stirringly attractive still all over the place. Leading figures in the countries involved might do good and could not easily do much harm, and that one good thing might lead to another.

Harder to Live Clean Life Today Than It Was Fifty Years Ago Dr. Templeton Tells Mission

"I do not believe that there has ever been a finer group of young people than there is today," said Dr. Templeton in his address Friday evening to an audience of over 2,000, a great number of whom were teen-agers and those in their early 20's, in the Memorial Arena, on the theme "Young People and the Call to Great Mission."

As an object lesson, soft music of organ and piano preceded the service as the thousands quietly took their seats, and then the singing of the old hymns so greatly loved by the church filled the vast space with unforgettable melody.

Dr. Templeton continued his talk by saying, "It is a hundred times harder today to live a clean, pure life than it was a fifty years ago or even 30." There are so many things to lead the young person astray. In the old days there was always the chaperon around; today she is a forgotten person. In those days the young men came to the home asking permission to see their lady friends, and were shown out at the door by the mother, then ushered into the living room or parlor to await Mary's coming, or she to Mary. Mary was seldom ready, he smilingly added.

Generally Parents Present

Finally, when he and Mary sat upon the stiff, horsehair sofa, a cushion between them, either one or both of the parents, in the mother quietly knitting, and the father reading the paper, pleasingly glancing over the top of it to see how Mary was coming along. If her young man forgot, or neglected to get her parents' permission to take Mary for a walk, or to see her parked somewhere, even if they were not known personally, some one always was present, like a horse! In a village or a country place, you were pretty well known and all your personal affairs, but in the city, or in the suburbs of the country there may be miles between your home and that of the next neighbor; and in the city there is often but a thin brick wall, yet in the city, you do not know your next door neighbor, and sometimes, not even his name. So in the olden days, there was always the hand of restraint present.

"There are many thousands of young people in the world today. Who are trying to do what is right, but there are so many things which hinder, there is the example of drinking; a man knows when why can't I drink, my dad does and so does my mother. Every magazine, nearly, is filled with alluring pictures advertising drink. You see a lovely yellow car and beside it a young girl, beautifully dressed, and a handsome man. Then put them down at the corner, a case of liquor, and you realize that good times are found that way."

Don't Be Fooled

"Don't be misled by the multi-millionaire publicity. Radio programs, some of them, are sponsored by liquor interests." U. S. said Dr. Templeton, "were to paint these all pictures, I would paint them vastly different. Instead of the glass of wine at the dinner, I would paint what that liquor-drinking man would become, as I have seen him on the streets of Toronto, New York, and Chicago, a stumbling, drunken, wreck, crucified by alcohol. Instead of the fine car, I would paint the sad picture of a car accordian-pleated around a telephone pole, the young woman disheveled and bleeding and her friend unconscious.

"I live on the road; I see it on all sides; I deal with people; there is no other thing that does that contributes so much to misery and degradation, to broken homes, divorce lives, wrecks more homes, robs more people of brilliance and beauty, than drink.

"The other thing today that young people have to contend with is the example of others whose lives seem to be glamorous; it's the person who treats marriage as a personal convenience; whose motto is 'Eat, drink, for valley eat' morality, without sanctity and grandeur love. It is most difficult for young people to be true.

Christ to be Made

"What are the helps? They are the choices that have to be made in life, most of which are made in youth. If you don't make your choice early, other things begin to hamper, which prevents making a wise choice and you become a 'misfit'. According to an old German proverb, or saying, the trouble in life is, 'we get too old too soon, and too smart too late.' As an example, Dr. Templeton cited the case of the bad roads where he had been: the ruts were so deep, that getting into them you stayed for miles and miles, you simply could not get out, and there was a sign warning the traveller of just that fact, which read: 'Choose your rut well for you'll be in it for the next 50 miles'."

If you must choose when young and choose aright. A tree was once, when a small seedling, tied in a knot by the simple twist of the fingers, but when it grew up into a tree, the knot was there still there, and no one could untie it. Don't drift but choose life work; choose what you want to do now. I once saw a young man bending over the minute mechanism of a watch; and later I saw a huge steam derrick — they were alike."

"Every Christian is called to full time work. Being a Christian with any thing less than full time work; every job is sacred, so do it unto God. His last words to the doctors, Christian nurses, Christian businessmen — choose aright and make your life's work a dedication.

Character Important

"Do not rely on physical attraction; character is more important than anything else. Be sure that you see what the girl you want to marry is like. Go, go home to her mother, that is a sure way of finding out. Do not marry for money, or position, but for love. Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers; be to the mother or father of your children; some one with the Christ life and the Christ love.

The last help is that of faith and freedom. We are not free to do as we like, but free as far as our service to God will allow. A fish is not free on the land, only in the water; men are free only as they obey the will of God, and the law of your being also must will go astray and destroy your life. Don't be fooled into believing that you can do as you please and get away with it. God gives you life, everyone of you will require it at your hands. What have you done with it? A habit is first a formation, and once formed it becomes your master.

"A coach like the one who tamed a baby boa constrictor, and used to let it wind itself around him, knowing that it could not harm him because of its sinuous coils. But one day the baby boa became a full grown snake, and he found that he was unable to remove it from his constricted body; his bones broke, and he died. So it is with habits, you can't take it or leave it, someday that habit will be your master.

Showed How to Live

"God came down to show us how to live; He died for us. When we give our lives to Him He keeping, our lives are real, and become a success."

As is usual at meeting of the Mission there was the after service, at which many remained for instruction. "If you are not a Christian, stay; if a Christian and you have grown cold, or are backslidden, stay; and if a Christian and wish to know how to make your life count for God, stay," was Dr. Templeton's pleading as the meeting closed.

Dr. Templeton cited the lives of Bob Richards, great athlete and a great Christian and also Gil Dodds, renowned for the indoor track mile, still unbroken, of young men who had made their lives count for God. "When a man has done his best and looks to God, he will do better than that."

Mrs. Templeton rendered three lovely gospel solos in song "Great is Thy Faithfulness," "I'd Rather Live Jesus" and "Perfect Love of God." The combined choirs of St. John's United Church, Trenton; Bethesda United, George Street United, Peterborough; Trinity United, Bridge Street United, also most pleasingly rendered, "Sun of My Soul."

Many on Platform

Among those on the platform were the Reverend W. A. Pace, of Tweed United Church, who was the host minister and the Rev. E. J. Kerney, of Plainfield, who gave the offertory prayer.

Delegations present were those from Holloway United choir, Belleville; Queensboro United Church; Marsh Hill Harmony Club; Bath Y.P.U.; King Street United, Trenton; Portsmouth United choir; Alden United Church; Mt. Eight Injured Near Trenton Following Head-on Collision

TRENTON (Special) — Eight persons were admitted to Trenton hospital early this morning, two with serious injuries, following a head-on collision between two autos near the Dutch Mill Inn on No. 2 Highway just east of Trenton.

Most seriously injured is Jack Winstanley, 53, of Hamilton, who suffered a fractured leg and arm, also facial cuts and shock. Others suffered facial cuts, lacerations and shock.

Police said that Clifford Skarrett, 33, of Hamilton, was eastbound behind a Trenton-Belleville bus, when he turned out to pass the bus and crashed head-on into the other car travelling in the opposite direction. A driver of the second car was Paul Green, of Memorial.

A hospital besides Winstanley are Clifford Skarrett, cuts and possible fractured leg; Bill Skarrett, 27, Hamilton, cuts and bruises, Thomas Upton, 54, also of Hamilton, facial cuts, and shock.

In the Green auto, Paul Green suffered shock and cuts; Mrs. Green, 35, lacerations and fractured elbow, and Mrs. Green's two sisters, Janet Giovanni and Ella Girard, aged 21 and 23, suffered a wrist injury and head and facial injuries respectively. All in the Green car were from Memorial.

Police said that the Belleville-bound bus had stopped to either take on or let passengers off and the Skarrett vehicle turned out to pass and met the oncoming car from Montreal head-on. Following the impact the Green car was swerved into the side of the bus causing minor damage. Provincial Police are investigating.

Some injured were taken to the Trenton hospital by Weaver's ambulance. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Toll.

Two Belleville Pupils Compete In Plowing Match

The special classes for secondary school pupils at the International Plowing Match at Cobourg this week saw keen competition among the students from Belleville Collegiate. Bruce Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walker, of Corbyville, and John Weese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Weese, of Corbyville, were successful in the special class for high school students. The two local students failed to finish among the top prize winners.

For Bruce Walker it was the second year for competition in the big plowing match, while it was John's first attempt among the 'all comers'. Plowing coach for the two local boys was Gerald Eggleton, Corbyville.

Thomas England, Odessa, Killed East of City

On his way home for the Thanksgiving holiday week-end, Thomas England, 57, of Odessa, was instantly killed shortly after midnight Friday when his speeding auto turned over into the rear of a Smith Transport on No. 2 Highway just east of the city.

England's body was thrown partially out of the badly wrecked car and was crushed about the head and shoulders on the pavement by the driver of the transport. England was said to be a salesman for office equipment.

The accident occurred almost directly opposite Smith Transport yesterday. Thomas is Cormack, of Montreal, driver of the transport involved in the fatality, said he had pulled his unit into the warehouse to load up with gas. He had been proceeded on to the eastbound lane when he felt a slight bump. He stopped his transport on the side of the highway and walked back to see the wrecked car on the roadway.

Police said the eastbound car had ripped into the rear of the heavy transport, the impact almost completely ripping out the body of the late model auto. Damage to the transport was scattered for 40 feet down the highway.

Provincial Constable Harry Mackenzie investigated the accident.

A Lift for Living
Getting Our Money's Worth

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Perhaps no subject has been so much discussed as the high cost of living. But what about the higher value of living, which is a more important than the cost?

What we get for our money is of more importance than what we pay for it. Sooner or later we pay out all we have. If I have spent $10,000 this year and saved $5,000, I may say to myself that I am ahead of this game. But when the game of life is called by the Divine Umpire, all my money will be gone whether I have spent it or saved it. Hence the financial cost of living is secondary to the values received.

Let us think then about what we are getting for what we are spending in itself is neither righteous nor unrighteous. But when the love of money becomes covetous greed, it becomes "the root of all unrighteousness," for it drives men to further and further excesses.

Marked True Values

The added curse of covetousness is that it makes men so concerned with material things that they neglect the true values of life. Just as World War II was closing, the Rev. Charles Kean wrote a book in which he said, "The welfare of wealth, in one form or another, has become the dominant considerations of our contemporary order."

Consider that statement. It applies to men on all economic levels. If men really put human values above money values, there would be no danger of World War III. What do we think motivates the Soviet Union in her attitudes toward China and Korea? The welfare of the Chinese and Koreans or the desire for markets and power? We are pretty sure it is the latter, are we not?

The only way to win the contest against the Communists is to convince the world that we are not merely seeking the welfare of possessions. Yes, and the only way to win over the worries and fears which threaten our own peace of mind is to put the welfare of personality above the welfare of our possessions.

I know we cannot completely separate the two. I realize that property values are part of our human values. Nevertheless we have to give one or the other top priority. That is why Jesus said, "You cannot serve God and Mammon."

His proper place

The Master recognized that money has its place in life. He would have His followers keep it in its place. And its proper place is as a servant of life, not a master. The higher test of a person is not how much money he makes, but how much he makes of his money. By being faithful in the use of money, we train ourselves for the true riches. So the Gospel says.

And now what are the true riches? They are those which do not deceive. When we go into the market to buy, we must have a sense of values or we shall be taken in. Likewise in life, we must have a sense of true values or we shall not be prepared for that which is best and our labor for that which satisfieth not.

True riches stand the test of time. They give us as much satisfaction after they have been gotten as they promised to give us when we were pursuing them. They do not entail by use nor worry their possessors by fear of loss.

True riches make a man worth more than the estate which he leaves. "What was he worth?" we ask when a man's will is probated. The answer is usually given in terms of money.

Judged By Service

The true answer is in terms of service. What was he worth to the world? Whom did he help? What lives did he enrich? In the Hall of Fame of Famous Americans there have now been placed some eighty busts of the nation's greatest. Not one of them was chosen merely for his monetary wealth. They were selected for the significance of their contribution to society.

"You Can't Take It With You" was the title of a long-run Broadway play. It pointed the futility of feverishly living for the things which must be left behind at death. But true riches are those which so enter into the enrichment of character that when the spirit leaves its temple of clay they can be taken along.

Yes, the cost of living is high. But there can be a value of living which is worth more than it costs.

Symbol of Sentiment

(From The New York Times)

It is paradoxical that a universal symbol of sentiment—sentiment being part and parcel of emotion, and hence subject to swift and unpredictable changes—should be the diamond, one of the earth's most durable and stable substances. Perhaps a factor behind the year-in, year-out popularity of the diamond is the subconscious hope of the prospective that the object of his affection will be as true, her love as impervious as the gem. Diamonds are, of course, treasured for their unequaled beauty as well as for durability. How consistently they thus are valued was indicated by the National Retail Jewelers Association reporting that among larger stores diamond last year continued to lead—with 19.9 per cent of sales—all other departments with sterling flatware in second place, The Lorelei of Broadway clearly was right.

Once Male Monopoly

It was, so the story goes, a fifteenth century Lorelei in the court of Charles VII of France who managed to break the monopoly on diamonds then held by the male. Five hundred years ago the wearing of diamonds was considered the prerogative of men only: Agnes Sorel—fortunately for women, and for the jewelry trade, too—considered this to be a dull state of affairs, and borrowing a collection of diamonds had them made into a necklace. Mlle. Sorel swept into court wearing her diamonds, and before the eyes of astounded and apprehensive...courtiers the jewels had their intended effect. Mme. Charles smiled at the unexpected appearance of the diamonds, and also at Mlle. Sorel. It should be added that the beauty and charm of the lady, who became a royal favorite, doubtless contributed in no small measure to her successful defiance of tradition.

There persist two misconceptions about diamonds. One is that the diamond, being the hardest material known to man—about ninety times as hard as corundum, which forms rubies and sapphires—will not break if hit with a hammer, whereas an imitation, or paste, gem will (and does) The other is that the size of a diamond is the determining factor in its cost. The fact is—taking one of these at a time—that diamonds, while they cannot be scratched, are brittle. A large diamond sometimes is split, rather than sawed, into smaller stones along the line of the gem's "grain"; the grain cannot be seen, and determining the line of cleavage calls for a vast knowledge of gems and not a little genius. Because of their grain, diamonds are easily chipped by a sharp blow, spoiling the cut.

Factors In Cost

It is true that a gem's weight is one factor in its cost, but so are color, clarity and cut. A colorless diamond is more highly valued for example, than one exhibiting a tinge of yellow; if the yellow is diffused, forming what is called a true canary diamond, however, the gem becomes exceptionally valuable. Every colored diamond (and they have been found in many shades of green, brown, pink and blue—being the color of the Hope diamond — and in black) are rare, and even diamonds are not perfect; clarity, in measuring value, refers to a gem's freedom from imperfections. Obviously, the fewer imperfections, the more costly the gem. And finally, the skill exercised in the cutting process that hits a rough stone into a glittering gem—helps to fix value. The most common cut today is known as the brilliant, in which facets are thirty-three facets, including the gem's flat top, above the girdle—the edge dividing the stone's top and bottom — and twenty-five below. Odd as it seems, the best-proportioned stones are no deeper below the girdle than above it.

Perhaps the most dramatic cleaving of a diamond occurred when J. Asscher, an Amsterdam diamond cutter, was chosen to cut the diamond found in 1905 near Cullinan in the Transvaal.

Weighed 12 Ounces

The Cullinan diamond weighed one pound, six ounces (there are 142 carats in an ounce.) On his first try Asscher placed his steel rule along the groove he had drawn upon what, after months of study, he had determined was the line of cleavage. Perspiring generously, he tapped the rule with his mallet—and the rule broke. After spending some time in a hospital) to recuperate, Asscher essayed the operation again. This time the gem split cleanly, but breathless witnesses had to tell Asscher about it later. At the moment his mallet squarely hit the steel rule he had fainted into the arms of the physician he had, with admirable foresight, brought with him.

THIS IS NO EASY SOLUTION

C. H. Millard, director of the United Steelworkers of America, would like the Ontario government to pass legislation which would compel employers to deduct union dues from wages of those employees requesting this service if more than 50 per cent of the workers favored the move on a secret ballot.

Mr. Millard made the suggestion as a method of solving the deadlock over the check-off system in the present gold mines strike.

Mr. Millard probably views the proposal as an example of extreme moderation on the part of the union. It will be noted that it does not envision the deduction of dues from all employees after more than half of them have requested such a system, but only from the wages of those employees requesting such a service. But that does little to remove the chief objection of employers to the check-off—which is that they are thereby required to work for the union. To have this requirement rest, not on the will of the provincial government, but on the result of collective bargaining agreements, is certainly not going to lessen employers' dislike of the scheme.

Whatever may be the merits involved, we have a case where a solution demands the satisfaction of two valid and contradictory arguments. Unions argue that, when they sell wage and hour benefits for the employees in a plant, all of the workers benefit, regardless of whether or not they are members of the union. Why, goes the union argument, should some of the employees pay all the cost of operating a union while other workers, without paying a nickel, reap equal benefits? The employer's attitude, as stated, is that there is no principle of justice which compels him to hire additional help to aid in financing a union which is going to make more effective his employees' demands on the company's treasury.

It is a problem that both union leaders and company presidents privately appreciate the fact that the other side has a point in its argument, but that does not make reaching a mutual agreement any easier.

Mr. Millard's latest suggestion is no help in this difficult, if not impossible, task.

ARE THESE TWO EXTREMES?

Over the caption "Hands Across the Sea", the Montreal Gazette has published a cartoon showing Uncle Sam and John Bull intertwining their fingers preparatory to forts to prevent being made by puny figures, labelled "McCarthy's Pull to the Right" and "Bevan's Pull to the Left." Unfortunately the geographical location of Britain's Labor Party United Front results in Bevan being shown as pulling John Bull toward the right corner of the cartoon, while McCarthy is dragging Uncle Sam toward the left. That unavoidable mix-up in location is the point. The question is whether the cartoon, as labelled, tells a true story.

There is very much doubt that Bevan and his views represent a pull towards the Left. The most point is whether McCarthy is really a Rightist. There is no question but that his antipathy towards Britain tends to divide the U.S. from the friendly and staunchist ally and that Uncle Sam is making a sound observation when he says, as he does in the Gazette's cartoon, "We'll have a hold on him." But there is also McCarthy's dislike of Britain, admittedly to the left of centre in many aspects of its world outlook even under a Conservative regime, based on McCarthy's own adherence to the extreme Right? In other words, is there a political philosophy behind McCarthy's methods?

If there is, perhaps we ought to be taking him more seriously. . . A demagogue is one thing. Democracies have survived a lot of them. But a Fascist-minded demagogue is another thing entirely, much more deadly.

WHAT DOES HE MEAN BY 'PANICKY'

Charles E. Wilson, U.S. Defence Secretary, says "there is no reason why Americans should be panicky over the fact that the Russians have the A-bomb."

Any consideration of that statement demands that we know exactly what Wilson means by the word "panicky."

Webster defines "panic" as "a sudden fright or sudden fear." . . "Panic," in its turn, is defined as "a sudden fright, particularly without real cause" or "terror inspired by a multitude." . . Let's get over-hyper agitated at that possession by Russia of the hydrogen bomb can be considered either a trifling cause for terror or no real cause for a sudden fright. It follows that anyone who is panicky because the A-bomb or other countries may feel over-Russian possession of the H-bomb cannot accurately be described as "panicky" unless we give to that word the meaning of living in an unreasoning terror or fright so often associated with the use of the word "panic." But if we give the word this meaning, then there hardly seems any need for Wilson's assurance that the American people have never displayed any such reaction to Russian threats.

As for fear of Russia, we think there is every reason for the western world to feel it, nor is there much comfort in the fact that Wilson thinks it may be "stretching it a bit" to say that the Russians have a hydrogen bomb at present ready to drop on us. We find scant solace in the declaration that the Russians will not be ready to wage a sustained atomic war within the next three years. . . Like most people we have our sights set on a life-span a little longer than three years.

"Panicky?" No. Alarmed? Yes. And with reason. It is a reaction that all the world should share. . . Including the Russians.

GIFTS UNBESTOWABLE

My grandsire knew the way of things,
Loved guns and wheels and rods
And often gathered
As his descendant I should be
As fond of all machines as he,
But an inheritance I crave
When he passed on, of what he knew.

Those useful hands which he possessed
Were stilled when he was called to rest.
The tools he used with so much skill
Were merely mentioned in his will.
But of the knowledge he had gained
To aid his loved ones none remained. . . .

Not one of those who wealth prefer;
Wisdom and skill his riches were.
And even now at times I grieve
That those to me he couldn't leave.
There's much with tools that I might do
Had I but learned what grandpa knew.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

Ernest Thompson Seton, around 1900, really launched the interest in outdoor nature that today is familiar to the millions who travel back to nature, to camp out in summer cottages, the millions who fish and hunt and take a healing interest in one or other of the activities of the amateur field naturalists. There were nature writers before him, notably John Burroughs. But it was Seton who, as an artist as much as a writer, knew the trick of seizing the attention of the last multiplying wife all ready to be interested in wild nature.

In response to the suddenly awakened public interest in woods and streams, there came a rapid and stream of books from the pens of biologists, naturalists, entomologists, botanists. Experts in the field of camping like Horace Kephart and Dillon Wallace brought out manuals of camping. But these were all specialists. The bird books were systematic. The books on wildflowers were strictly confined to classification and order of the science of botany. With very few exceptions, the flood of books about wild nature missed the point that Seton knew, which is that the vast majority of us who like the woods and stream are nature hieglecy piggedy. We have no desire to be botanists or ornithologists, even in the amateur fashion. All we want to know is something about each thing we see if, whether tree, animal, insect, bird or plant. We are a little intimidated by the books that want to tell all. We do not want to know all. We prefer to know a little about a great deal rather than a great deal about a very little. The first book in recent times which takes into account this hitherto neglected quality of the interest a great many of us have in nature, history is Robert Cushman's "Nature Notebook." It is written ostensibly for young people. But I know two old codgers who found it fascinating in every page, and I am one of them. In a few pages, it describes, a one day trip of a few miles to visit a beaver colony. Then one of the 115 pages is illustrated, in many is dealt with the various botanicals in respect to making a bird house or peddling a case of cleanser a fish. It is just a record of what a boy saw on one day's outing. But he saw it pretty nearly everything. And none of it was systematic.

Agriculture in Infancy
(Lethbridge Herald)

The fact is that Alberta's agriculture has barely been scratched. As it is, even under extensive farming which is wasteful of land, we can produce much more than we can find a domestic market for. But some day Alberta may be the home of millions instead of the one million we now have. Heights as a national historic site.

Athletics Not All of Life
(Windsor Star)

These are the days in Canada in which an intense importance is attached to athletics. Almost from the history of our country have athletic pursuits been so popular or so generally followed. Almost every boys at school the royal road to success in after life at Eton.

Unfortunately, athletics are coming to be regarded not so much as a means to an end, but as an end in itself, and as a chief aim and object of existence. The failure to do justice to the legitimate enjoyment of athletics and sports. Athletics are beneficial to young men and boys, mentally and physically, but it is possible to attach too great an importance to them.

Moreover, athletic prowess does not necessarily go hand in hand with greatness.

Gladstone was not an athlete in the accepted sense of the word. Thackeray had no skill in games. Charles Dickens possessed little or no skill in anything in his life. No athletics either, for Darwin, Tennyson, Admiral Jellicoe.

It follows, therefore, that athletic pursuits are not necessarily the best preparation for careers and that it is not always fair to the boy to "stay" or daft just because he does not excel in athletics. Careers are not the result of effort, nor, indeed, a very important part of it.

Highbrows Are Numerous
(Montreal Daily Star)

Highbrows who pride themselves on their exclusive and cultured reading tastes should take note of the fact that the Book Publishers' Association of Britain has found that the Penguin edition of The Odyssey has sold 40,000 copies at last report and is still going strong. The figure suggests that there are many more highbrows in the world than is generally supposed. It is not often that any good book—will find a big public even if it does not sell well. The illad, in the same edition, has sold 150,000 and is now moving off the counters steadily.

A survey of reprint libraries published in the Bookman also proves how wide good reading habits have spread. The famous series of popular classics have, in 50 years, sold 130 million copies. Dickens, Scott, Jane Austen and the Brontes sell steadily. Jane Eyre was published as No. 1 in World's Classics in 1901, and sold fourth best in Collins and 1933. David Copperfield stood first in Collins' sales from 1908 to 1922. In 1922 it stood second to Pride and Prejudice. But Carlyle and Ruskin, who had a big sale a century ago, now command only a very small public.

Recalls Bell's Flying Machine
(Brantford Expositor)

Some interest or curiosity seems to have been aroused by our recital in print on Tuesday to the effect that Alexander Graham Bell constructed a veritable Flying Saucer. Well, he did.

In his decidedly practical experiments in aeronautics, the inventor of the telephone explored many avenues of approach. Some were enough to fit men were among the gadgets he used.

The Flying Saucer to which we had reference was an experimental multi-celled kite in the exact shape of a wheel about a dozen feet in diameter.

One of these queer kites was flown successfully in Bell's presence in July, 1908. The inventor, of course, had no conception of Flying Saucers, though he may have dreamed it. He was merely full of ideas about the invasion by the men from Mars, which, in the War of the Worlds, for it had been published in 1898.

Bell's idea was simply to construct aeroplanes that would take off at stopped slow enough to be safe. So he argued that if he could make a kite that would develope a wind velocity of 20 miles an hour, it would be possible to build a plane that would take off at the same speed, or 10 miles an hour. Hence his Flying Saucer. Incidentally, these experiments were conducted at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, and let it be added here and now that it was over Baddeck Bay, on February 23, 1909, that the famous Bell Silver Dart (later to be Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia and an honorary citizen of the Telephone City) flew Bell's aeroplane, the Silver Dart, for about half a mile. That was the very first flight of a flying machine in the British Empire. The Silver Dart, in case any one is interested, had a 50-horse-power engine turning a pusher propeller and had a wing-spread of 49 feet.

It is not inappropriate—indeed it is the occasion for—that the Bell Research Laboratories now have a national historic site.

Dangerous Daydreaming
(New York Times)

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never has found himself spiritually merging with the landscape, rehashing the talk at last week's cocktail party, projecting endless Walter Mitty daydreams, all the while driving his newly tuned-up auto along one of the country's magnificent super-fast super-highways? A gathering of traffic engineers in Buffalo has decided that just such mental wanderings are the primary cause of accidents on these futuristic arteries of travel.

It is a tragically serious business, of course, and a knotty problem to solve as well. Unfortunately, the problem is of such a nature that it seems any effective solution must restrict itself into making these highways less pleasant than they are. Suggestions include not more and longer highways but non-rhythmically, so that the driver will remember he's in his car and not home in an easy chair, to spotting wordby-word signs on the wall—safety slogans along the way, that sort of thing—to more scenic scenery.

But what was particularly interesting was the suggestion that, over special radio bands, carefully prepared but apparently broadcast fashioned purposely to keep the driver's mind from daydreaming. We wonder what they'd be like. The logical approach would be to find out what are so efficient in breaking into reveries. Not the usual crying babies, rattling windows, high heels overheard and ringing alarm clocks, but something that would probably do the trick.

Bicycle Story Romantic One
(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

The life history of the bicycle is the story of a romance, a romance as well as songwriters in the Gay Nineties. Bicycle racing reached its heyday around the turn of the century and champion cyclers were popular heroes.

But the bicycle had a slow and boneshaking start. A Frenchman built the first bicycle in the latter part of the 18th Century. It had no pedals and had to be driven by a rider by pushing his feet on the ground. The Draisienne advanced the comfort of the new vehicle, by adding an adjustable seat and steering bar. Pedals were added to the front wheels which, because of their awkwardness, quickly won for this model the name "boneshaker."

During the 1860s the Americans had built a steam operated velocipede which had the disadvantage of a steam boiler under the seat, and a smoke stack at the rider's back.

The first practical bicycle was the high frame-hard model introduced in the 1870s. The danger of being thrown over the handlebars at every bump appealed to the daredevils of the period, and became a nation-wide sport.

Bicycles improved with their popularity. Chain drive, coaster brakes, and pneumatic tires made the bicycle of the late 1890s. Bicycle production leaped to 1,000,000 from 200,000 in the five years ended 1895 to 1899. There are about 18,000,000 bicycles in use today.

Life Simpler In Old Days
(Galt Reporter)

In spite of labor-saving devices, housewives have more work to do in the old days than it is now, according to a prominent citizen celebrating his 102nd birthday.

Why?

Well, for instance, Uncle Bill and Aunt Marge and their brawny sons would dress up and go to Sunday dinner, without warning and uninvited, following a 100-mile motor trip.

When after dark the light gave out there was no call to replace a burned out fuse or a scratch, usually by a fire in the light bulb. . . If filling the lamp and wiping the chimneys didn't suffice, coal oil boots went to bed.

The painted softwood floor got by with scrubbing maybe once a week where hardwood floor lovers calls for constant waxing and polishing.

"Spring cleaning" consisted chiefly of picking up and moving stuff from room to room, where now a wild litter of combs, books, magazines, catalogues, clothing and — sometimes — dirt is propaganda has to be picked up.

The housewife stayed home with the kids and her knitting instead of scurrying about the neighborhood for a baby sitter.

And when the housewife's work occasionally too heavy, a hired girl would come in at $1 a week and board and room herself.

thetical, for I have never called an actual person an improper name. If you can produce evidence to the contrary I'll pay you a suitable reward and make public apology. Otherwise I wish you poor-poor parents would realize I'm grown up now and quit referring to me by pet names that have been relevant.

Some readers simply name a real or imaginary ailment and request that I tell them what I know about it. I am not their literature" about it. I answer such letters, if at all, only briefly and say which is equally impersonal, vague and evasive.

Some others waste a good deal of their own time and too much of mine writing unsigned letters, which go directly into the chuckeruneed—for I look first for the signature. If it is not, then I waste no time reading further.

Some readers are kind enough to report the results they have experienced from following my advice, and occasionally I receive such a report from a reader who doesn't ask for advice. I appreciate to say thanks. This is what makes coaching in the newspapers, such a pleasant racket.

Now, as regular readers know, I recommend an optional daily intake of Ca, P and D to prevent or retard the development of rheumatis.

A good many readers have mentioned casually something like this:

"I received your rheumatism booklet — have taken calcium and vitamin D and for the pains in my joints have disappeared."

That is interesting and I'm glad to have the report, but how much more significant and instructive it would be if the reader had answered all the form wefa the calcium and vitamin D?

(1) How much rheumatic pain existed?

(2) How much calcium and how much vitamin D did the reader eat daily and for how long a period?

In view of the fact that the Ca, P and D is considered a food, indispensable food or nutritional material for everybody, and not a medicine, the value of results of the experiment should include answers to these questions.

Accordingly I beg you, dear reader, to answer these four questions for me if you please to tell me whether eating an optimal daily ration of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D did your rheumatism any good.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CHEERFUL FRONT

There is a great deal of polly-anna-lishness about many expressions, such as "Keep smiling" and "Be optimistic" and so on, but there is something deep in us all that tells us we have more power than we know and that there is more in a cheerful front than mere words. A cheerful front will lure and its problems—the cheerful person on in our minds from day to day.

There are people whom we meet again and again who laugh little without the utterance of a single word. Something about their whole consciousness radiates. There are lights of integrity, courage, patience and kindness that shine in the very look and attitude of such people.

We have all known people with this cheerful front—people well acquainted with difficulties, sorrow, and struggle, but who give no evidence of any defeatist spirit in their makeup and character. They are the ones who are always welcomed as visitors, companions and genuine friends. During these days when there is so much fear and foreboding in the minds of many, it is like experiencing the sunny day or the cool breeze to meet one who has a calm and open, cheerful outlooks.

We have many complainers, gorsipers, and predictors of evil and unhappy days ahead. How do we know what is ahead? It is not enough to hold to a cheerful front, but how is that belief? Things are rarely ever so black as they seem, or as some people paint them to be. There are in many fear ghosts, and too many people who are constantly fearful. Never have opportunities been so promising and great as at present in many things to make us happy and comfortable.

It behooves us all to keep a cheerful front, to share our blessings, and to see what we can do as individuals to make this a better world. We never know how far the little example of cheerfulness and hope shines its way to the hearts of those who are in a hopeless mood which we can constantly build more faith.

Evil people cause a lot of trouble, but it is doubtful whether they cause much trouble as good people misguided in their thoughts and actions.

ness and light—everybody wants to do the right thing according to his lights, and it is unfortunate that people could ever think evilly of others.

Communism appears to get its ruinous hold on much of our nation by the fact that many people will not be realistic. They accuse those who are trying to stop the spreading of violating the civil liberties of a lot of unstable people. Liberty is the concern of everybody, they say, even criminals and traitors.

And so we plunge ahead.

Laughing About What?

An old saying runs, "laugh and the world laughs with you." Nowadays however, it may stop anytime and ask itself what it is laughing about.

Laniel Facing Farmers' Protest Over Low Prices

By CHARLES LANE

PARIS (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel's right-centre government, fresh from victory over left-wing opponents of its economic program, worked feverishly today to quiet angry farm protests against falling prices.

More than 200,000 farmers in the southwest third of the country have announced they will barricade highways Monday to call attention to their demands for legislation to prop livestock prices. They also want some marketing reforms to reduce the number of middlemen.

Peasant party deputies, who form a part of Laniel's coalition in the assembly, have indicated they may try to force a debate on the cabinet's agricultural policies when the National Assembly meets Tuesday.

Wins Handily

The 14 - week - old government handily survived the first parliamentary attacks on it Friday when the assembly threw out both a Communist and a Socialist motion criticizing Laniel's economic policies.

The lawmakers had convened a week ahead of schedule especially to consider the cabinet's economic and labor program, target of last August's mass strikes which disrupted the nation's economy.

Laniel held two long conferences with farm leaders Friday in hopes of staving off the schedule demonstrations. He also plans to send a representative today to a meeting of farm delegates from 10 departments at Gueret, in the heart of the protest area.

Cattle Price Down

The premier has found himself in hot water with the farmers principally because of a 30- to 40-per cent drop in the price of cattle during the last year.

The government has confiscated one edition of a newspaper published in the farming town of Niort on charges it was inciting the public to violence in the Monday demonstrations.

Rhee Dismisses 24 Officials Of Liberal Party

SEOUL (Reuters) — President Syngman Rhee Fri., fired 24 ranking officials of his Liberal party in a move designed to ensure his leadership of party and country.

The mass dismissals, following earlier "house-cleaning" measures, sought to eliminate all vestiges of the influence wielded on the party by ousted home minister Lee Bum Suk, a potential rival for the nation's leadership.

Rhee announced that 24 department chiefs and vice-chiefs of the party have been dismissed. He appointed a three-man party committee to prepare for an election of new officials.

Under South Korea's constitution, Rhee cannot run for the presidency again when his second term expires in 1956. Observers believe, however, his National Assembly supporters will attempt to amend the constitution and make him president for life. He is 78.

Emergency Department at Belleville Hospital Handles Accident Cases, Smoothly and Quietly

The weirdest sensation of all, perhaps, is to lie in bed in the small hours of the morning and hear the high pitched scream of a speeding ambulance. When the siren sounds it is a warning to traffic that someone is being rushed to hospital as fast as the vehicle can safely travel.

Few people know what happens to such a person after the last echoes of the siren have faded away and yet, one of the most efficient groups of people have gone into action, often before the ambulance has arrived at the disaster scene.

In the basement of the Belleville General Hospital is the department known as "emergency" sometimes called "out patients' ward." Frequently in the case of an accident where someone is injured, the doctor on the scene will call the hospital and advise the staff to be prepared for an accident case.

Accident Preparation

This is the signal for the staff of the emergency ward to go into action. There is no hustle nor confusion. Each nurse goes about her job with preparation coolly and confidently. Even before the patient has arrived, the work is done and emergency is prepared to do its work.

When the ambulance has pulled up before the doors of emergency, the patient is carried inside and placed on the surgical bed in emergency operating room. By this time, the nurse on duty has called for the intern and is busy herself attending to the injured person.

If the patient's injuries are of a relatively minor nature, he is treated in the emergency department and later allowed to go home. If they are more serious, his doctor is called and he is admitted to hospital.

The purpose of the emergency department is actually to treat patients that are not to be admitted to hospital. A list of all city and district doctors, their addresses and phone numbers, is kept by the phone at all times.

Two Shifts Maintained

Unlike many of the hospital's departments, two shifts instead of three are maintained in emergency. From 7.00 a.m. to 2.30 p.m., the head nurse in emergency is Mrs. Lawrence (Betty) Dent. After Mrs. Dent goes off duty another graduate takes over the duties of the department from 3.00 to 11. p.m. During the night hours the night supervisor is in charge. Mrs. Dent is also assisted during the day by a student nurse. The head nurse is a graduate of the Belleville General Hospital, class of "52". She is the former Betty Martin and was married this year.

The work of this department has increased over the past years and this year, if accidents continue as before, "emergency" will have treated a record number of patients. During 1953, 5,280 persons were attended to in emergency. To date this year, 4,200 patients have visited the ward. Mrs. Dent said there had even been an increase during the past three months. Unfortunately with this expanded growth in the number of patients, the emergency operating room has not grown and interns and doctors, although giving excellent service on the latest equipment, are badly cramped for space.

Lack Waiting Room

Another problem of this department is the lack of a waiting room. Mrs. Dentvsaid her department was at a great disadvantage in not being able to provide space for out patients as well as she would care to.

However, despite the lack of space, the emergency department still continues to operate efficiently for the benefit of the public and the injured or persons who pass through its doors each day, either walking or carried on a stretcher.

Parents and Teachers Of West Hill Schools Hold Lively Meeting

A large number of parents and teachers were present at the meeting of the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association on Thursday evening. President, Willis Wilson, in welcoming the gathering said said he hoped the Association would keep the fine record of lively interesting meetings. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and the president introduced his executive, noting that the posts of program, health and radio conveners were still open. Members were urged to make use of the question and suggestion box which is for their benefit. A letter was read pertaining to the Regional Conference which is to be held this year at Queen Mary School, Peterborough, on October 31. Anyone wishing further information about this important Home and School event will please call Mrs. K. W. Smith, 97187.

Mr. C. J. Frederick, principal of Queen Mary School, introduced the members of his teaching staff and counsel the banner attendance for his school. Miss Clara Wilson's class took the honors for the seniors and Miss Margaret Millar was the junior attendance banner was won by Mr. Frink's class; junior volunteers being Miss Lesley's class.

Mrs. J. E. Pudney, membership convener, reported 368 members were already enrolled and thanked her committee for the work done in the membership campaign.

Miss Margaret Hillis, kindergarten teacher at Queen Mary School was introduced by Mr. Frink and proceeded to give a most interesting and often humorous talk on "Kindergarten and Your Child". She said that Kindergarten had begun in Europe, first as a private venture, then as a convenience for working mothers during the First World War, and now formed a most important factor of our public school system. In Ontario we have a kindergarten-primary program which is designed to prepare little people who have been the centre of attraction at home for the changes and adjustments which must be met before they enter grade one. Children learn to share, co-operate with each other, lead and follow. They develop initiative and learn to obey rules as they must later in life. Rest periods, play-times, discussion circles, music-appreciation and handiwork are all part of the kindergarten day and help to teach poise, self-assurance and control of motion. The aim of a good kindergarten teacher is to teach leadership and fellowship; respect for each other's point of view and to guide her little charges in a happy and satisfactory life in a new environment.

Mr. Jackson thanked Miss Hillis on behalf of the parents. Refreshments were served by the fathers under the guidance of Mrs. Bruce Smith and her committees and a pleasant social period brought the evening to a close.

Anne Dexter Celebrating 25th Anniversary as Radio Commentator in Maritimes

By STEWART MACLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—Anne Dexter, a household name in Nova Scotia, celebrates her 25th anniversary as CJCH radio commentator Sunday and says she has no intention of retiring.

She's a veteran even among ones in Maritime broadcasting and is believed to have the longest service of any woman commentator in Canada.

Broadcasting from her home, her half-hour daily program is a familiar and informative as Halifax's old town clock. Housewives listen to it for recipes, menus and helpful hints and, of course, its advertising.

If Mrs. Dexter doesn't like a product, she won't advertise it. If Mrs. Dexter has marital affairs, younger people listen for the mushiness. Fans also like fashions. But they all agree on one thing—the most unique program on the air.

Seldom Contested

Mrs. Dexter doesn't do a lot of preparing. She's ready for her 9:30 a.m. program. When the time comes she walks into her living room, pulls back a screen, sits down in front of a radio table. Her first subject may be the kitchen. It may be the United Nations. Or a recent Eaton department store. Her opinions are often controversial, but seldom contested.

When a family is read the tiny concentration will often place the case before her listeners, but she never mentions names. However, it gets results and the next day her office at Dexter House is crammed with clothing.

Talks Easily

Her broadcast sounds much like an informal over-the-fence, back-door talk. Her duties are somewhat naturally but sometimes with emotion when she's offering an opinion that she knows is controversial. Occasionally, she interrupts the broadcast to apologize for talking and excuse me while I let him out."

She is happy with her work. "Probably it's because I'm interested in everything and I'm never lonely."

She started broadcasting in 1928 when CJCH was still an infant and only once did she miss her program due to hospitalization. That was a hospital for a minor operation 15 years ago and only "those two or four days." After that, she says, "never again."

Took Him to Her

Ten years later she again was forced to enter hospital, but this time she took her work with her.

Maj. William J. Borrett, vice-president of CJCH and another veteran of Canadian broadcasting, says "you don't come like her anywhere. She's not going to say something just because she gets paid for it, and it says more something she really means it."

"I'm nobody," she says, "but my work is a great deal. It's the truth."

Thanksgiving

With gratitude the spirit sings
For all life's common little things—
For sun that warms the frosty air,
For folk who with us daily fare;
For busy day and peaceful night
With friends around the homefire bright;
For corn in shock and grain in bin
For autumn's fruits all garnered in;
For neighbor's light across the way
And children's laughter bright and gay
And oh! for all the countless things
The dawn of every new day brings;
We bring, O God, our thanks to Thee
Oh grateful may we ever be.

ICE SCULPTURE — Natural ice punch bowls made at home-at small cost are something new at parties. Whether it's fruit punch for the teenagers or rum punch for grownups, there is nothing quite as attractive as putting the punch into the ice, instead of the ice into the punch . . . . At a cocktail party recently, we noticed first the host was to enjoy his guests because the cocktails had been mixed up in advance and everybody served himself round the intriguing ice bowl.

You buy a 50-pound block of ice. You carefully chip out a shallow hollow the size of the pyrex bowl you intend to hold the punch or cocktails. Pre-heat the pyrex bowl and then set it into the hollow, pouring boiling water into the bowl. This makes the bowl sink into the ice block.

You should scrape up the water formed underneath the bowl frequently to prevent it from overflowing and spoiling the natural appearance of the ice block. With two sheets of heavy duty aluminum foil, you can make a tray under the ice block by folding the sides of the foil. Then spong-off the tray from time to time during the party. It can be scooped up from the tray from time to time during the party. It can be scooped up from the tray from time to time during the party. It can be scooped up from

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Why Is Her 13-Year-Old A Problem Child?

Have you a problem child in your home?

One distracted mother from whom I have just heard has a 13-year-old girl with whom, apparently, she can do nothing. Out of the five children she has had in her 18 years of marriage, this one alone, it seems, is a serious trouble-maker.

"This child is very impudent and disobedient," she writes. "She won't do a thing she doesn't want to, talks back to me and slips out every chance she gets to go with boys. She is really boy-crazy. I am a good mother and work hard to keep my home clean, but if she feels like throwing things on the floor, she does, and I can't make her pick them up. If she doesn't want to. When she wants clothes and they are not clean, she says 'If you don't like the way I do them, just do them yourself.'

"My husband washes his hands of the problem and will do nothing to help me. When my daughter and I are having trouble, he simply takes off and goes to a tavern. I really believe if he would put his foot down she might straighten out. As it is, I just don't know what to do."

Most authorities on the training of children believe that, in cases like this, the child either never had too much misguided love and attention, or too little of the right kind. Either way, whether the child has been spoiled or neglected, the result is the same. Taken over possible occasion to make himself the object of the mother's attention. Could it be possible that this mother has either spoiled her 13-year-old or failed to make her sufficiently sure of her love?

If her child's behavior is the result of having been spoiled, then I suggest she be honest enough to tell her daughter frankly that she made a mistake in the way she brought her up, which must now be corrected. Then she should tell her that, from now on, at every step she speaks or acts impatiently, there will be a definite penalty. I would suggest that if she is the child just what she must do, and what will happen if she behaves otherwise, and then sticks to this, quietly and consistently, it is quite possible that in time she will become properly manageable.

Too Busy

If, on the other hand, she has been too busy to give all the love and attention a child should have, then she should start a new year's grant of spending time with her and doing things with her that engage her interest. In other words, she should make friends with her so that they have good times together. In this way, the two of them will grow closer together, and, as the daughter becomes more sure of her mother's love for her, and interested in her, she will come to feel for her a respect and affection that will make her want to do only the things that please her.

As for the father who seems to take no interest in helping the mother solve the problem, I don't believe that to have him "put his foot down," as the mother would like him to do, would help matters. For I doubt if it is half so much stern discipline the child needs as a certain sort of love and companionship about which I have just been talking.

So, instead of urging the father to take stern measures with his daughter, let the mother try to get him to take the same sort of interest in the child as I hope she herself intends to do. Let her stop nagging at him to "put his foot down," and instead, in a quiet talk some time, ask him affectionately if the three of them can't make some place to go somewhere together, now and then to play games together, or share other activities. The reason he takes off for the tavern when there is trouble is, of course, because he wants to get away from the sound of angry quarreling. Once he can see that the mother's new attitude, plus his being there, will prevent her flying away with the quarrelling energy and making the home a peaceful place, it may be a different story.

I would like to suggest that this mother go to her public library and take out two books.

The name of the first one is "How to Live with Your Teenager," by Dorothy W. Baruch. The other is "Understanding Your Child," by James L. Hymes, Jr. Further, I suggest that she get a copy of a little pamphlet called "How to Live with Children" by Edith G. Neisser, which she can obtain for 40 cents from the Science Research Associates, 57 W. Grand Avenue, Chicago 10, Illinois. These three publications will explain to her some of the reasons that make children act the way they do, and I am sure she will find them most helpful.

BEAUTY

Rose-polished Finger Tips

Brilliant Nail Polish Caused A Furore—At First!

In the olden days, women put pink powder on their fingernails and polished them with a chamois skin buffer. It was a part of the daily ritual like curling their tresses and smoking irons. When brilliant nail polish first appeared it caused a real furore. There did a lot of growling about it as they did about the first bob. Listen to the older girls tell about these innovations that practically set the world on its ear and you'll get a good laugh. You will also realize that we have marched a long way toward the beauty goal.

Today everyone—from the lady of fashion to the humblest toiler—is proud of her lacquered nails. For, without the veneer nails do not look well-groomed. Nice that we can dress up on hands with a bit of coloring. But there is a catch in the ointment for, too often, the shiny glow covers evidence of neglect. Nails require a certain amount of attention if they are to retain their pearl-like coloring and the smooth shining surface.

The ideal fingernail is slightly arched in the center. The shape should be a pleasing oval, and the crescent should be well defined.

The coloring is determined by the circulation in the flesh beneath, since the nail itself is white and transparent. If circulation is sluggish the nails are pale. When the body is chilled they are blue. Under healthy, normal conditions they are a delicate pink.

Nails, like the skin surface on the hands, are injured by contact with grime or harsh soaps. The housewife should select mild cleansing agents for laundry work and dish washing. If she doesn't do that the nails may thicken, the skin on the hands look leathery.

Thin nails that break easily may denote malnutrition. Those that break may do so because of some diet deficiency. The proper treatment is to drink milk for its calcium content and apply a nail cream every night with brisk massage. Work the cream into the surrounding flesh so that hangnails will not form. If they do, use the curved, pointed nail polish stick to remove them. Remember to keep the ends pointing toward the nail base and be careful not to cause a wound as tissues surround the nails are easily infected.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Only One Subject In Note Of Sympathy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one writes a letter of condolence don't you agree with me that it is better to write about some other subject also, for example some piece of news that might be of special interest to the one being written to, might take his or her mind off the death? This question is causing quite a controversy in our family, and I must confess I'm on each of it. What's the answer to this question?

Bob S.

The answer is, Bob S., that when you write a note of sympathy for the passing of a loved one, you must never write, even briefly, about any other subject. Your expression of sympathy is the object of your note . . . the only object.

It is most unctuous, indeed presumptuous, to assume, at this most difficult time after the passing of a dear one, that the right to divert the thoughts of the bereaved person. However, in a later letter or note, other topics, news or whatever, will be appropriate, welcome.

"The Mothers" And Their Dresses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I. At a church wedding in December the mother of the bride has chosen a street-length dress of velvet. Would it be correct for the mother of the groom to wear a dress of crepe or taffeta, in a color to harmonize with the dress to be worn by the bride's mother?

2. Also is it correct for the bride's mother and the groom's mother to wear gloves in the receiving line?

M.G.

1. Yes, It is correct for the groom's mother to wear a dress of crepe or taffeta . . . It is not necessary for her to wear a velvet dress because the bride's mother is to wear a velvet dress. It is important (as you mention) that: (1) the dresses should be of harmonizing colors (since "the mothers" stand next to each other, or very near each other, in the receiving-line); and (3) the dresses be of approximately the same length.

2. Yes, "the mothers" should wear gloves in the receiving-line. This is an important rule.

What "Table D'Hote" Means

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Exactly what does "table d'hote" mean on a menu?

Ellen

"Table d'hote" means a fixed price for the meal . . . regardless of how much or how little you order.

A Wedding Cake At Second Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to have a cake for a second wedding? I want to have one so very, very much!

Phyllis

Indeed it is correct ot have a wedding cake at a second wedding reception. And I want . . . so very, very much . . . to have you have this festive feature for your reception. The Bride-and-Groom-Cut-the-Cake can be a truly wonderful memory!

Readers Saturday Column

By Mary Moors

Question:

Would you please print in your column how to prevent small silver skin onions from turning dark after they are pickled? The prepared ones we buy are so lovely and white.—Mrs. G. S. R.

Answer:

I have printed the method for pickling onions in the column recently, but will give another method which is roughly similar to that used by commercial picklers.

Pickled White Onions

Remove thin slices from root end of 1 quart silverskin onions. (Onions should be fresh.) Put in kettle with 2 quarts boiling water. Drain and peel off outer skin and drop in bowl of cold water to which you have added 1 teaspoon citric acid (this is a powder which may be bought at the drug store.) Heat together 1 cup white spirit vinegar, 2 cups water, 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon mixed pickling spices tied in cloth bag. Cover this and simmer 45 minutes. Add onions and simmer 30 minutes. Bottle and seal. (Drain onions well before adding to hot vinegar.)

Question;

I tried Aunt Cynthie's sugar cookies and the Walnut Clusters and they went over great at our shower . . . could you tell me how consonmne is calorie-free? (2) Is Postum also calorie-free. (3) When baking with all-purpose flour pastry flour, and recipe calls for cake flour, should I increase or reduce the amount? (4)—Six quarts of my rhubarb and pineapple show a large amount of bubbles. . . yet cannot be opened by hand. . . are these air bubbles or spoilage? (5) Would love to make some doughnuts yet all recipes call for candy thermometer. . . is there any other way to test the fat for heat? (6) In making pickles like green tomato, cucumber, etc., should iodized or non-iodized salt be used? (7) When making your chunk pickles could I add cauliflower and onions, and would I brine these for the whole seven days too? Also when making the brine do I use boiling water or cold water? (8) In making candy cookies for Hallowe'en the recipe calls for rice flakes. Would this mean rice krispies? (9) In Marjane's cookies the recipe calls for 1 cup cornflakes. Are these crushed? (10) Have not a recipe for sweet cucumber pickle?. . . you put your cucumbers in a crock and add syrup, then each day you add sugar on top of the crock covering the pickles. You don't drain or heat syrup each day. . . your Pete must have been the splitting image of my daughter who is 3 1-2 and everything I ask her to do is "no". . . she has good points too—talks well and can be a contented happy child at times.

Band Saws Buzzing Merrily As Hobby Shop is Open Again

Band saws are buzzing in the RCAF Station Trenton Hobby Shop, following the opening of the shop for the 1953-54 season.

Hobby craft workers contributed to the success of the shop last year when they turned out four boat, combination radio and record player, coffee tables, model aeroplanes, and several pieces of leatherwork.

Interest in boat building is being shown again by members from in and around Middleton Park. Under the supervision of WO1 W. Hetenes and WO2 G. Craig, hobby craft enthusiasts recently reconditon equipment at their disposal. In addition to a circular saw, two band saws, a drill press, and an assortment of hand tools, a supply of lumber is available. WO G. C. Cronyn Sec. O/C Hobby Shop, reports that as the demand for lumber grows additional stock will be added.

The Hobby Shop, located in the basement of No. 1 Barrack Block, is open from 6 to 10 p.m. Monday to Thursday inclusive, October 1st.

A beautiful autumn service on October 3 in No. 6 Repair Depot Protestant Chapel joined the marriage of Joy Marilyn Broad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Broad, of Montreal, and Lawrence Harold Judson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Judson, of Casselman, Ont.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a strapless full length gown of white Duchesse lace over nylon net with bell skirt. The lace bodice, topped by a matching bolero with Elizabethan collar and long pointed sleeves, accented the bride's beautiful figure. Insets of lace on pleats. An imported lace bonnet, trimmed with orange blossoms, held the bride's veil over tip length veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet of roses, from an orchid adorning a white prayer book carried the bride.

Soft autumnal shades were featured in the costumes and flowers of the bride's four attendants. Mrs. Roger Verrett, sweetheart-of-honour, wore a bouquet of yellow pom-poms in contrast to her pale green strapless ballerina length frock, topped with matching brocaded bolero.

LAC Patricia Hedge, Montreal, and LAW Paule Grondin, of Montreal, bridesmaids, wore matching ballerina length gowns of nylon net over taffeta. Their contrasting mauve and pale blue ensembles were completed with dainty bolero, flower headdresses and yellow pom-poms. Attending her cousin as junior bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Ann Adams wore powder blue net over a taffeta frock adorned with tiny rose buds. The young attendant carried a nosegay of lovely pink carnations.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Broad chose a light navy lace and crepe gown and geranium pink velour hat with matching accessories. A shoulder spray of white carnations completed her costume.

Navy blue nylon sheer with white net and navy accessories was worn by the groom's mother, Mrs. Judson, whose corsage was of pink carnations.

Mr. Ralph Robinson, of Lindsay, Ont., served as best man. Ushers in the chapel, decorated with colorful gladioli, were LAC William Gemmell, of Toronto, and Mr. Gordon Adams, of Montreal.

During the signing of the register, LAC Alan Boyce assisted the bride's cousin, Miss Marilyn Broad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Broad, of Montreal, and Lawrence Harold Judson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Judson, of Casselman, Ont.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking the first half of his 2nd cigar, say's I've been trying to make cigarets, William, when the older ladies smoke, because after all, why should I be the only one out of the picture?

That's a fair question, pop said. How are you getting along? he said, well, fair, I guess, I'm trying to fan winning any expert prizes. I can draw the smoke into my mouth all right, but the trouble is, it seems to want to stay there, she said.

That's usually rather temperment, pop said, and we said, it is, but perhaps it's only beginner's luck, and may get over it. I've noticed that the other ladies always seem to be more at their ease when they smoke, and I suppose I'll be too, when I stop being self conscious but it's rather difficult to blow the smoke out gracefully while you're sweating at the same time, she said.

I never tried, pop said, and ma said, There's no reason why I should sit there like a smokeless bird while the other ladies bathe their faces in careless clouds of smoke. But it makes my eyes smart and my tongue burn, and I cant say I enjoy the sensation of the little bits of tobacco that keep getting into my mouth, not to speak of the peculiar taste that lingers for hours afterwards, she said.

In your case, the practice seems to have its disadvantages as well as its advantages, pop said, and ma said, Yes, that's what I mean. So what do you think, William? she said.

Well, it's a very close thing, but I think I'd advise you not to smoke, pop said, and ma said, Then I think I wont.

Being the end of the subject.

AUTUMN SPLENDOR

The trees their flaming torches raise
Adorn the sun-kissed land,
The Elmach in these autumn days
In crimson velvet stands.

And soft in autumn's mellow light
All nature seems to rest,
While in the lake's calm mirror bright
Trees view their radiant dress.

Oh! glad the brightness of the spring!
And gay the summer time!
But autumn days, no season brings
A beauty such as thine.

So, in the face of ripened age
Doth light and love appear,
As when the brilliant autumn days
Crown bright the closing year.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — The beauty and the brightness of the summer are past, but autumn brings is radiance all its own as seen in the flaming maples and in the brilliance of the late Golden Summer Holiday.

Holidays are over and many are enjoying memories of a happy time. Mrs. Lillian Hagerty of Hagerty of a book by Grace Campbell, a story of the Highland revolt of 1745, in their attempt to bring to the throne of Scotland the Stewart line in the person of Bonnie Prince Charlie. Reading this I learned much of the appearance of the Highlands and I recalled the stories of my paternal ancestors who I have been told came from the Highlands, were tall, kilts, played the bag pipes and spoke Gaelic. From reading I have felt a desire to visit the British Isles. I wonder if the visit would be disappointing.

Mr. and Mrs. Worden Saunders and Gleedon, Toronto, will spend Thanksgiving with friends in Wellington.

Miss Mary Lumb spent a few days with friends in Bowmanville and with her niece, Miss Gladys Annis, at the Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wylie, Springfield, Ont.

Mr. J. Smith has purchased the home of the late Mrs. C. Pettingell. West Wellington. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and her mother, Mrs. Nelson, have dwelt for several years on Oak St.

Mrs. A. A. Mordes, who suffered a broken hip, is improving.

Mrs. Frances Jones, who also suffered a broken hip, is improving.

Garden Notes

Increase Plants by Layering

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

If you want more shrubs, climbing roses, veronica, currants, or Vioias you can get them by layering. That is, lay a branch on the ground, notch it beneside of the stem with a sharp knife, making a slanting cut, and peg it down with a hairpin-shape piece of wire. Cover the stem with moist soil and leave it there until next spring. You can do the same with several soft stemmed plants such as snapdragon, veronica, Dianthus, sedum and thyme. For these allow the stem to remain six weeks, then cut from the parent plant and set out in the border.

Far more plants can be rooted by making cutting. Larger plants can be produced in a shorter time than if you grow from seed. Then too, many plants grown from seed will not grow true to color, size, and growth characteristics.

It is late in the season to make softwood cuttings of rock cress, forget-me-nots and other outdoor plants but you can make cuttings to take indoors for house plants, and hardwood cuttings for outdoor plants for next year.

Petunias, geraniums, begonias, (the small flower type), coleus, impatiens, snapdragon and many of the compact edging plants make satisfactory house plants.

These lovely frilled and double petunias root readily in water. So will patience and begonias. Some gardeners are able to root geranium cuttings in water but we have found vermiculite better. This is expanded mica and may be bought from a seed store for 15 cents a pound. It is very light and two pounds will be enough for dozens of cuttings and leave some over for bulbs.

If you have geraniums and begonias or petunias which you wish to keep for house plants dig them up before frost has damaged them. Cut them back severely if they have grown quite large and pot them up in good soil which contains some humus and a generous teaspoon of complete plant food mixed into soil. You may feed the plants with liquid nutrients after three or four weeks, or use these nutrients instead of the powdered food.

Roses may be slipped at this time also. While they do root better in the summer, if the weather conditions are right, it is still time to make cuttings in October. Care must be taken to find a stem which has borne a bloom. There is some wood in roses, and cuttings taken from such will not produce flowers.

To make the cut on a slant, and it no uible take a small "heel", inst is an oval slice, from the main stem which is pulled off. Dip-ping the cut surface into a hormone powder helps to form roots or a small amount of rootone may be mixed with the soil into which you set the cutting. The cuttings may be put in among the established plants or planted with a glass jar pushed down into the soil one or two inches. This will protect the plant from drying winds and the glass will reflect the heat of the sun to encourage growth.

Gl's Face South To Guard Indians From ROK Attack

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP) — United States "alert troops with tanks and flame-throwers took up positions pointing south today in an ominous warning against South Korean threats to attack Indian soldiers guarding war prisoners in the neutral zone.

The show of strength followed an Indian appeal for American aid in curbing any South Korean drive toward the compounds housing 22,000 anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese POWs.

The U.S. state department only Friday assured India it would take precautions to head off possible South Korean interference.

South Korea Warned

The state department also disclosed that it had—prior to the Indian appeal—sent a note to South Korea that the United Nations command will forcibly resist any attempt to free the POWs or attack Indian troops.

South Korea, which considers India pro-Communist, has repeatedly threatened to drive the Indians from Korea—by force, if necessary.

The situation tightened after the Indians killed three PoWs and wounded 10 recently in putting down two attempted prisoner escapes.

Speed Construction Work

Meanwhile, Allied engineers worked speedily constructing facilities near Panmunjom where the Communists will interview the North Korean and Chinese PoWs who refuse to go home.

The camp is scheduled for completion Monday morning and it is possible that the explanations designed to persuade PoWs to accept repatriation will get under way at that time.

The explanations have been delayed since Sept. 26, mainly because of a snarl over facilities.

Chinese Celebrate

The 14,700 Chinese PoWs staged celebrations this morning in observance of the Nationalist Chinese independence day.

The captives paraded around their compounds, singing Nationalist songs and waving flags.

At the same time, four North Korean prisoners who changed their minds and asked to be repatriated were turned over to the Communists.

It raised to 121 the number of North Koreans and Chinese handed back to the Reds from the neutral zone camps.

Toronto Maple Leafs Open National League Season Tonight With Hawks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WHAT AGAIN?

The estimable Eddie Shore, iron-man of the Springfield Indians, is back at his old dog-in-the-manger tricks. Last season he refused to release two professional players who wanted to play with the Peterborough Petes. Eventually he did release them—but too late for them to sign with the senior B squad.

This time it is Bobby Taylor, husky 190-pound defenceman, who played the last two years with the Indians in the Eastern Hockey League. Taylor notified Shore he would not be back in the pro ranks, as he had married, was building a home and settling down to a business life in his native city.

Shore, according to Taylor, notified the North Bay senior team's management about the player's decision and apparently gave them permission to use him. In any event the North Bay mentors got in touch with Taylor, who promptly told them he would not play for them under any circumstances.

"If I do not play hockey in Belleville this season, then I won't play at all," Taylor said in a flatfooted statement this morning.

"I cannot see where Shore has any strings on me," the burly defenceman said. "There next me papers to sign but they came a day after the deadline. So that should make them null and void."

Taylor said he has not learned of suspension action taken on the part of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for refusing to rejoin the pro ranks.

Drury Denyes, secretary-treasurer of the Arena Commission, and Arena manager Sandy Redmen, said today that the OHA has been notified of Shore's action and they have promised to take immediate steps on the matter.

If Taylor is not allowed to play this season, it will be a distinct blow to the Redmen hopes of repeating their Intermediate B win of last year. Taylor was rated one of the best defencemen in the Eastern League with a Springfield sports writer dubbing him "Number One."

Meanwhile, the "Commish" mentors are rounding up players to fill the spots of four imports. Secretary Denyes would not release the names for obvious reasons, but there is every reason to believe some of the boys are topflight players. Eight have signified their intention of coming here and trying out with the club.

Ice-making will begin in Memorial Arena next week and practice will start as soon as the sheet is available. A special practice has been called for October 19th, when the imports will go through the weeding-out process.

The League opens on October 24 with Oshawa Truckmen clashing with the Peterborough Petes in Bowmanville. The Redmen will probably not see league action until the following Friday. Incidentally all Friday night games played here will start at nine o'clock.

Oshawa, Kingston and the Petes have already started practice with the Truckers having a couple of exhibition games under their belt. They defeated the Barrie Flyers 7-3 in their first appearance and, on paper appear to be a powerful aggregation. The Goodyears will be back, it is stated, in all their championship glory, while the Petes have added considerable strength to the squad of 1952 under a new playing coach. Orillia is making efforts to strengthen the 1953 Terriers and are in the market for a goalie, a defenceman and two forwards.

Michael J. Rodden, Kingston's "Major Hoople," who is batting 1000 in the Football Prediction League, has been named official scorer of the senior "B" group. And if we dare make a suggestion to the illustrious demon statistician, how about a standing item each week: "It could be placed in the mail on Saturday for release by all newspapers of the circuit on Monday. No "scoopies", Mike m'lad.

The schedule, a forty-game affair, has not been released despite the statement of that Picton scribe. Vice-president Frankland of the OHA, who chaired the first meeting of the group a short time ago, has not released any schedule, as yet. It will likely be laid down and completed at a meeting scheduled for Peterborough next Wednesday evening. And to set Prince Edward County fans right, the group will not start actual play until October 24 as before stated, and not October 17, as the man insists.

NOT OVER YET!

"That's baseball over in them thar Picton hills" this afternoon, starting at 2, in case you're interested. The Bloomfield-Wellington Combines clash with the Campbellville nine (from somewhere near Guelph) in the second game of their best-of-three OBA intermediate "B" championship series. The B-W's got in a good football practice the first time out, kicking the ball around no less than 14 times, and losing the decision by a 13-6 score. The county nine hopes to reverse the decision this afternoon and force the third game, which, if necessary, will be played in Campbellville Monday.

And speaking of baseball, why all this hedging on the part of the Picton Combines? They have a pair of games to play with the Regent juniors for the District League championship. Bryson Reid has tried without success to get the series played. Let's get it over and done with or the first thing we know there will be baseball box scores where hockey summaries should be.

Canadiens Take on Bruins, Chicago, Boston Open Sunday, With Rangers Starting Thurs.

MONTREAL — Featuring several three-game series and an increase in the number of doubleheaders, the 1953-54 National Hockey League season got underway on Thursday, October 8. October 8 was the earliest opening in N.H.L. history.

Canadiens, Boston and Detroit are all engaged in a three-game series on two occasions. During the early stages of the schedule Canadiens visit Chicago on three successive playing dates. Later in the season they play three games in a row against Detroit. Boston plays a three-game series against Rangers and Detroit, while Detroit opposes Canadiens and Boston twice in three-game series.

In the second week of the schedule Detroit and Chicago each plays three games in as many nights. They oppose each other on Friday and Saturday on a home and home basis and meet different clubs at home on the Sunday.

The opening game of the season for Toronto fans will be played tonight, when the Maple Leafs take on Chicago. The curtain goes up on the new season in Chicago and Boston on Sunday, October 11. Canadiens play the Bruins and Rangers meet the Black Hawks. New York, traditionally the last team to open at home, lights up Madison Square Gardens for hockey on Thursday, October 22, when Rangers meet opponents that evening.

More games are scheduled for the weekend than any season since' less for week nights. One hundred and twenty-six games will be played on Saturday and Sunday during the 1953-54 campaign. Chicago will try out something new by playing seven games on Friday nights. The Hawks previously played all their games other than weekend nights on Thursdays.

Besides the seven games on Friday, the Hawks play seven on Thursday, three on Saturday and 18 on Sunday. Sundays are the most popular nights in the United States cities. Boston plays 18 on their 35 home games on a Sunday while New York are at home on 17 Sundays. Detroit plays 15 on Sunday.

The Rangers play all but two of their 35 home games on either Sunday or Wednesday. They play 16 games on a Wednesday, once on a Tuesday, once on a Saturday. The Rangers are the only club to play at home on a Thursday this year.

Boston Bruins at home schedule reads one game on Wednesday, 11 on Thursday, one on Friday (Christmas Day and New Year's Day), three on Saturday and 18 on Sunday. Detroit plays two Mondays, 13 Thursdays, and six Saturdays along with the 15 Sunday home dates.

Toronto and Montreal are both Saturday night towns and play most of their home games on that eve. The Leafs play 16 of their 35 games on Saturday. The remaining 11 are played Wednesdays. The Canadiens play 21 games on Saturday and 14 on Thursday.

Toronto plays 23 doubleheaders (games on successive nights) this season. Canadiens play 24, Boston 22, Detroit and Chicago 22, and New York 20. Chicago plays four games in five nights on four different occasions. Canadiens, Rangers and Boston each play four games in five nights on three occasions. Toronto and Detroit do it twice.

Each team will again play 70 games and the schedule will end Sunday, March 21.

Albert College Trims St. Mike's In Rugby Tilt

In a game on the Albert College field yesterday St. Michael's H. S. Senior football team went down to defeat to the tune of 23 to 1.

St. Michael's scored first on a kick into touch which Captain John McCullough of Albert failed to run out — this was the only scoring in the first quarter — which say play ranging from one end of the field to the other. Albert looked as if they were marching for a T.D. when halfback Lake fumbled and St. Michael's recovered the ball, then punted out of danger.

In the second quarter play ranged even until Albert got a break when a kick by Vaughan was fumbled by a St. Michael's backfielder, Ralph Pettman, Albert's leader grabbed the ball and went over standing up for the first touchdown of the game which was not converted. Play at halftime finished with Albert leading 7 to 1.

As the second quarter started a St. Michael's fumble set Albert up, and Lake went across for a T.D. which was converted to make the score 11 to 1. From this point on Albert outplayed, but generally did not outfight St. Michael's, who tried putting on pressure until the last play. Lemon got one T.D. for Albert, McCullough added another and Lake got his second before the game ended, two of these last three were converted to make the final score 23 to 1.

Foley was a tower of strength to St. Mike's, while the Albert team all played well, especially on defence — Bon Fleck-at rdsp, played sixty minutes, and tackled well. Death at middle and Gormley and Ing at the ends were strong coming and going. Gormley catching two nice passes for considerable gains.

The teams:

Albert College: McCullough, Vaughan, Lemon, Death, Fleck, Pettman, Watson, Warren, Gormley, Ing, Gillanders, Budgell, Feldman, Ashton, Berry, Gray, Haspanen, Lake, Scott, Walsman, Webster.

St. Michael's H.S.: Hawkins, Masaro, Fox, O'Neill, Kelly, Foley, Ryan, Williams, Brown, Johnson, Johnson, Trudeu, Belanger, Masterson, Schrieder, Hawkins, Black, St. Dennis.

Officials: Mober and Faulkner.

Florence Chadwick Hits Jackpot With Swim Victory Over Hellespont

CANAKKALE, Turkey (AP) — Indefatigable Florence Chadwick completed her grand slam of the Old World's channels yesterday when she swam both ways across the Dardanelles, the Hellespont of Turkish Dardanelles.

It was the fourth channel crossing in four weeks for the 33-year-old mermaid from San Diego, Cal., who immediately announced this was her swansong as a long-distance swimmer.

"This is a sport for younger people," she said. "I think I'll take up golf."

It took her one hour, 58 minutes and eight seconds to complete the round trip of six or seven miles over the choppy waters where, Greek mythology has it, Leander used to swim nightly to visit Hero a virgin priestess of Aphrodite.

"I don't see how Leander could swim it every day," the American said after finishing the test.

Miss Chadwick began her present streak of channel conquests Sept. 4 when she swam the English Channel from England to France in the record time of 14 hours and 42 minutes. She tried to swim both ways but had to quit because of the cold after two and a quarter miles on the return trip.

On Sept. 20 Miss Chadwick shattered all records swimming the Straits of Gibraltar from Europe to Africa in five hours and six minutes. Just two days ago she negotiated the tricky Bosphorus from Europe to Asia and back to Europe in one hour, 14 minutes, seven seconds.

Junior Hockey, Highly Competitive, Sees Quebec in Sport-Mad Throes

QUEBEC (CP) — Junior hockey, a successful business for a well-competed few, has come in the last-ditch years, become a highly-competitive affair. Sunday with pro hockey in different leagues pulling all stops to win the support of this hockey-mad town.

On one hand are the Citadels of the Quebec Hockey Association Junior A series, and their coach, Bunbeenah Frank Byrne, who has shown an uncanny knack for getting involved in hockey rumpuses.

On the other stand the Frontenacs, a new club in the Quebec Junior Hockey League, and legislative councillor Gerald Martineau, a power in provincial politics.

"It's hard to say who will win out," one official said. "Hockey fans are as fickle as mad Bidoyal."

Some fans wonder whether Quebec can support two junior teams in addition to the professional Quebec Aces.

Chatter announced today that Prime Minister St. Laurent will face off the puck Sunday night when they open against St. Catharines Teepees.

Frontenacs open against Montreal Canadiens junior Sunday afternoon with Rocket Richard Leary, Eastern Quebec area commander, lacing off the puck.

Part of Citadels' campaign for supporters in their claim that they are playing in the "best junior league in Canada."

Officials of both clubs feel that the team with the best showing in the won-and-lost columns will get the biggest attendance. To make money, Citadels say they figure on an average of 7,000 fans per game, while Frontenacs are counting on 8,000. Both clubs are keeping their season ticket sale secret.

Frontenac early turnover was reported slow, but sports circles whisper that astute businessmen who are prominent in political circles back Frontenacs.

The Citadels-Frontenacs situation developed this way:

Last spring the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association suspended the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association for its failure over the transfer of forward Ron Attwell of Montreal Junior Canadiens. Citadels later bolted from the QAHA by defaulting a playoff game with Canadiens and sided with the CAHA.

After their elimination from the Memorial Cup playoffs by Barrie Flyers, who went on to win the Canadian Junior title, Bryne announced his intention to quit junior hockey as an active participant.

Quebec Junior League then awarded the Quebec City franchise to Emile Couture, who as an army sergeant during the Second World War, found misplaced invasion plans during a Roosevelt-Churchill conference here and was later awarded an MBE.

At the same time, the Quebec League gave Frontenacs first call on Citadel players. Coach Bryne refused negotiations for Scott Bryne, but, one Citadel spokesman said, "no concrete offer was made."

Bryne then reconsidered, signed a contract and joined the Ontario League and was accepted after putting up a $25,000 guarantee and agreeing to pay each of the eight visiting clubs $5000 expenses and a share of the gate. At the same time Bryne recovered the right to his players.

Couture went ahead with his own organization, giving Mr. Martineau a share in the club. He also signed up two Citadel executives, Manager Paul Dumont and Jean-Paul Poulin, both of whom are prominent employees.

One possible cause for an open dispute between the clubs is the case of goalie Jacques Mercier, who was given his release from Citadels by the QAHA and signed with Frontenacs. Byrnes is appealing the decision to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Union, is perhaps Citadels' only weak point.

Coached by Phil Watson, the fiery ex-New York Ranger who was rookie of the year last season, and Gaston Pelletier, a fine penalty killer.

Rookies up from Junior "B" Cits include defenseman Richard Bienvenue of Lachine, Man., and centre Carl Wandowich, Winnipeg.

Imports include Pat Presley, Ottawa; Stan Maxwell, speedy Negro winger from Glace Bay, N.S., and Mike Ratchford, purchased from Toronto St. Michael's of the OHA. Junior "A" League.

Citadels also picked up Stan Parker from Oshawa Generals, who scored the winning goal when their OHA rink burned down.

Frontenac coach, Phil Renauld, picked up high scoring power when Canadiens gave him permission to deal with Guy Rousseau of Montreal and Del Topall, Birch River, Man., forward, who played with Cincinnati.

Frontenacs are also giving a tryout to defenseman Ed. Matska and Peter Kamula, shifted by the NHL Canadiens from the Chatham Maroons farm club.

They were given defencemen Roger Landry of Canadiens.

The acquisition from Sam Pollock's Junior Habs did not wreck his club, but certainly it did die the Habs a favor. Montreal Forum attendance figures showed 45 goals for Sad Sam and was accepted by the ministry of the team this year.

ORFU
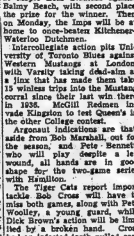
Kitchener-Waterloo at Sarnia

This could be the most explosive weekend of the year in Canadian football. The professionals (Big Four and Western Provincial) play home and home series; the semi-pros (ORFU) have three games scheduled, including that night's Kitchener at Brantford match; and the amateurs (Intercollegiate) have two games on tap.

Despite they're just heading into the second half of the Big Four schedule, Ottawa Roughriders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats could pretty well wrap up the playoff situation in the East with winning weekend jaunts. The Riders and Cats share the lead two points ahead of Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts.

Hamilton visitors at Varsity this afternoon and at Civic Stadium Monday against Argos would put them six points in front of the Scullers with five games to go. Ottawa would ride high with the Ticats, by dumping the Als in Ottawa today and Ti Montreal tomorrow.



Out West, Edmonton Eskimos have a playoff spot assured going into today's match at Calgary, and won't even have to worry about the return match in Edmonton Thanksgiving afternoon. Winnipeg Blue Bombers could tie up another playoff job in home-and-home games against Regina Roughriders.

Sarnia Imperials have the toughest task in the ORFU. Tomorrow afternoon they step out at Maple Leaf Stadium against Balmy Beach, with second place the prize for the winner. Then on Monday, the Imps will be at home to once-beater Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Intercollegiate action pits University of Toronto Blues against Western Mustangs at London, with Varsity taking dead-aim at a line that has made them take 15 winless trips into the Mustang corral since their last win there in 1936. McGill Redmen invade Kingston to test Queen's in the other College contest.

Argonaut indications are that, aside from Mo Marshall, out for the season, and Pete Bennett, who will play despite a leg wound, all hands are in good shape for the two-game series with Hamilton.

The Tiger Cats report import tackle Bob Cross will have to miss both games along with Pete Woolley, a young guard, while Dick Suzuki's action will be limited by a broken hand. Cross had an infected tooth pulled early in the week, and Thursday was

Many Problems in Stocking Fish

LOSS IN STOCKED TROUT IN COURSE OF ONE YEAR

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Noted Sportsman Author and Creator of Solmar Tubes

Ever since the day when the ichthyologists inJ'ored how to propagate and rear fish in hatchery tanks, the matter of wise and efficient stocking has been a serious problem in many ways. During the early stages a good deal of time and money were wasted and not a little energy was done.

With the tremendous increase in rod pressure on our public waters during the past ten years, it became evident that natural propagation in our lakes and streams was fighting a losing battle. With the increased number of fishermen, there simply were not enough fish to go around.

License fees, of course, supplied the money to pay for the restocking of our waters. Now, the best way to go about it?

In the early days of fish hatcheries, fish was hatched when viewed in the light of present-day methods of rearing fish in small numbers was considered a matter of economy. Thus, the great majority of fingerlings were put while the fish were in the fingerling stage.

Returns Not Satisfactory

The returns from such stocking rarely proved satisfactory. Generally about 5 per cent of these little fellows ever grew to catchable size, but if fingerlings are stocked, then the expectancy is around the 5 per cent mark.

The next step was to stock legalsize fish. In the early stages, this expedient was not satisfactory. Not enough was known then of rearing strong, vigorous, well-conditioned fish, physically equipped to establish themselves in natural surroundings.

Spring and summer stockings suffered heavy mortality from an infinite number of causes. The fish were pitifully easy to catch. Moreover, a freshly stocked fish was not fit for the table.

So the conservation men tried stocking in the fall. After the active fishing season. While this plan did allow the newly planted fish to adapt themselves to natural surroundings without disturbances on the part of fishermen, the fish themselves were not equal to the task of surviving throughout the winter.

In other words, these fish had attained maturity by living on hatchery food. Then, in the fall at the end of the season of active feeding in natural surroundings, they found themselves faced with the problem of find their own food at a time when food is not particularly abundant. Many of them died and those that survived were poorly conditioned, with large heads and long, thin bodies.

Revised Feeding Methods

Then the feeding methods in hatcheries underwent considerable revision. Instead of slaughter-house offals, frozen sea food was, and still is, used in many of the hatcheries. This change of diet worked wonders. Now the fish we get from such hatcheries are husky, active fish, and many services are now provided, with large heads and long, thin bodies.

Revised Stocking Methods

Then the feeding methods in hatcheries underwent considerable revision. Instead of slaughter-house offals, frozen sea food was, and still is, used in many of the hatcheries. This change of diet worked wonders. Now the fish we get from such hatcheries are husky, active fish, and many services are now provided, with large heads and long, thin bodies.

Stocking is done now, for the most part, in the spring and early summer. Thus, the fish which manage to escape the angler are well equipped to survive, every bit as well as the fish which are natives in these same waters.

But we still have contrary reports. Evidently the rules which apply to one section do not apply to another. A recent study by Dr. Richard H. Miller of Alberta Univ. has shown that from 30 per cent to 50 per cent of a stocking of adult trout died even after they were released. These fish were placed in a pooled stream, screened at the lower end and undisturbed by fishermen. Moreover, only 15 per cent survived until the following summer. Stocking can be, and usually is, expensive business.

Last year I was invited to look over a bear take which is privately owned. The owner felt that he was not getting the quality of fishing that should be expected from such a body of water.

I spent two days looking things over. Out in the deeper water lived a goodly supply of husky smallmouth bass. However, in shallow, low, weed beds, etc., were inhabited only by sunfish, a few schools of shiners, and thousands of shoreline minnows.

Lorenzetta The Answer

Rarely having seen more ideal water for large mouth bass, I advised the stocking of some largemouth. He was horrified! Then it developed that he was considering stocking rainbow trout in a bass lake.

At long last and after much argument, he finally followed my advice. The largemouth have waxed fat and prospered. Already he is getting excellent fishing for them and having the time of his life with fly rod and bass bug.

Of course, the biologists do not yet know all of the answers. There is still much to learn. However, we are gaining ground each year.

One thing is sure in regard to stocking. If you are interested in building up the fish supply in a certain lake or river, engage the services of a competent biologist before you do anything else. Biologists come high, but eventually you will save money and have better fishing than if you go ahead with your own ideas and trust to luck.

Canadian-Born Lawyer Campaigns To Clean Britain's Fishing Waters

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A quiet, 53-year-old Canadian-born lawyer is in the thick of a campaign to cleanse Britain's fishing waters, either by persuasion or courtroom action.

"Open sewers" is the way Charles D. Mulvey, native of Ottawa, describes this country's rivers and streams. Officially, he's concerned as secretary of the country-wide Anglers Co-Operative Association, an anti-pollution organization formed in 1948 with the aim of ending industrial and urban poisoning of fishing grounds.

He's also concerned generally as an outdoors type who has trouble for salmon off Vancouver Island, and fished northern Ontario and Quebec waters.

Mulvey blames the industrial revolution for starting the whole thing. Speakwork preceding the ACA's founding turned up the fact as long ago as 1936 that 1,000,000 miles of Britain's waters were polluted, he says.

Big Task Ahead

The former Canadian Army warrant officer says "several hundred miles" have been restored to life since ACA started functioning; but much more work is required by the organization, whose 5,000 members number land owners, angling clubs and a wide selection of individuals whose names are in Burke's Peerage.

Mulvey claims that the name Anglers Co-Operative Association is a misnomer in that, broadly speaking, the organization is actually concerned with the preservation and cleaning up of rivers and streams.

He came into the ACA picture when the organization sought a lawyer as secretary.

Mulvey had trained for and practised law in Toronto and knew the late John Eastwood, KC, ACA's primary founder. He was aproblem and quit his post with the Ontario immigration service, where he had worked since his discharge from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in 1947. He had joined up in Winnipeg in September, 1939.

ACA handles only complaints from members, explains Mulvey. Annual fees are 10 shillings for coarse fishermen, £1 for others and 2s 6d for associates. Complaints are investigated and subsequent action is based on the findings.

Scores lead to court cases like the one last year when the City of Derby Corporation and two other defendants were given two years to implement their sewage and industrial wastes disposal equipment.

A case scheduled to appear in high court this year involves crankshaft discharges by a steel firm at its mouth of the River Dee, where salmon runs are said to be threatened.

Deadly To Fish

"One touch of cyanide will kill a fish," says Mulvey. Untreated sewage literally has been choking the river water oxygen. He adds that power stations kill fish life by discharging near-boiling water.

Perhaps the Thames is as bad a cure of pollution as any. Mulvey describes another kind of marine life, can live in its lower reaches, although salmon used to abound there years ago.

Mulvey has written several short articles for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation in his spare time and has done several nature talks, all on Canada. Father of three children, he hasn't been back to Canada since he arrived in Britain with the PPCLI but he wants to go back "shortly."

HIDE MONEY IN DIAPER

CAGLIARI, Italy (Reuters) — Seven armed, masked bandits held up a crowded bus on a lonely Sardinian road Wednesday night and took nearly $4,000 in money and valuables. One young couple kept their money by hiding it in their baby's diaper.

Winnipeg Flood Protection Cost Figures Given

OTTAWA (CP)—The resources department has reported that it would cost $12,000,000 to protect Winnipeg against a recurrence of the disastrous 1950 Red river flood that caused more than $38,000,000 in damage.

Works Minister Winters followed up the report with a statement that the federal government is willing to share the cost of flood control measures with the Manitoba government and the city of Winnipeg.

In a 66-page report the resources department outlined a number of suggestions for flood protection of the Manitoba capital. Cost of the suggested projects would range up to $82,000,000 for a series of works which would give protection against a flood as severe as Winnipeg's worst in 1826.

36-Mile Floodway

A 36-mile floodway dug around the city's eastern edge to carry off the spring surges of the Red river "would offer the most positive means of flood protection in that area," the report said.

"Such a floodway would be feasible and it could be constructed with sufficient capacity to protect the Winnipeg area against any flood that can reasonably be expected to occur on the Red river."

Officials said they felt that a flood of the record 1826 size, which swept through the tiny Fort Gary settlement, might not occur again for another 400 years. It reached a peak six feet higher than the 1950 flood which drove more than 100,000 persons from their homes.

Cricket as Usual In British Guiana

LONDON (AP)—Governor Sir Alfred Savage, in a radio address Friday declaring a state of emergency in British Guiana, made this announcement:

"The intercolonial cricket match with Trinidad will begin the morning and will continue Saturday, provided crowds disperse quickly to their homes after the match."

Communists Arrest Another Church Head

BERLIN (Reuters) — Communist Poland has arrested another high-ranking Roman Catholic church leader in its new campaign against the Vatican, Catholic officials here said Friday.

They said police agents swooped on Msgr. Antoni Baraniak, Suffragan Bishop-of Chierno (Gnesen), last Tuesday at his home and subjected him to an exhausting interrogation.

"Since then, he has been cut off from the world," a church official in West Berlin said.

RAF Pilot Wins Long Air Race In Canberra Jet

CHRISTCHURCH, N. Z. (CP)—FILLA Roland Burton of the RAF today won the London-to-New Zealand air race in a Canberra jet. First prize is worth $22,000.

Burton, flying the No. 3 Canberra in the high-speed section of the 13,786-mile dash, reached here at 5:36 p. m. GMT (12:36 p. m. EST) after 23 hours and 51 minutes for an average speed of 494.5 miles an hour.

Second place to finish was an RAF Canberra piloted by FILLA. R. M. Furze which landed at 6:15 p. m. GMT (1:15 p. m. EST), 39 minutes after Burton.

Australian Sqdn.Ldr. Peter Raw had been leading in the late stages of the race but lost more than an hour with nosewheel trouble at Woomera, Australia. A British Canberra piloted by Wing Cmdr. L. M. Hodges held the lead briefly but lost it due to generator trouble at Woomera.

Five pilots had started the race but one—Australian Wing Cmdr. Derk Cuming—retired in the Cocos Islands after a tire blew out on landing.

Three other planes were en route here in the transport section of the race but were not xpcd for some hours. The winner of that section also stands to win $22,000.

Adenauer Again Named German Chancellor

BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was elected Friday to a second four-year term by an overwhelming vote in the Bundestag, the West German Parliament's lower house.

The 77-year-old Christian Democrat received 304 of the 466 ballots cast. Opposing votes came from 148 deputies and 14 put in blank ballots.

There was no debate.

The election cleared the way for the iron-willed old chancellor to press ahead with his plans for a German alliance with the Western world, the unification of Europe and the reunification of German unity.

Won't Certify Union Due To Intimidation

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario labor relations board has refused certification of the Sudbury local of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) as bargaining agent at Milnet Mines Limited, Capreol, because of "a conspiracy by intimidation and coercion" to keep workers at the mine from joining a rival union.

In a decision handed down this week, the board supported evidence given by the intervener, the (CIO-CCL), that threats had been used by the Independent union when the USW attempted to organize the workers.

Holiday Week-End Traffic Accidents Claim 33 Lives

Three Toronto Citizens Die On Tuesday Near Port Hope

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Forty-four persons died violently across Canada during the Thanksgiving week-end in one of the worst rashes of holiday deaths in history. Thirty-three were killed in traffic accidents.

Most of the deaths were listed in a Canadian Press survey from Ontario, where 21 persons were killed, 11 but two in traffic accidents.

Ontario's highway death toll was higher than any Thanksgiving week-end last year. The Ontario department of highways said 32 persons were killed then.

British Columbia reported four fatalities. Quebec three, New Brunswick two and Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta one each.

The toll surpassed the total of 31 killed on the Easter holiday week-end, but was 10 fewer than the 54 who died on the Good Victoria Day holiday.

Of the seven deaths in western Canada, three were traffic mishaps. British Columbia lists two and Saskatchewan one. Alberta reported a drowning. A gassing and a hunting accident were the other two deaths in British Columbia. An accidental "drowning" caused the seventh fatality.

A highway accident three miles west of Port Hope killed three Toronto residents early today.

The dead are James Dunbar, 39, Dorothy Margaret Chambers, 29, R. E. Barnes, 36.

Traffic Toll Heavy

The other traffic fatalities were: Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hill, both about 60, of Nova Scotia and Wendy Lee Parsons, about 2½, of Toronto, who died in a car-truck crash near Whitby; Frederick J. Anderson, 58, of Toronto and Mrs. Donald Rogers, 25, of Emsay, killed in a collision near Lindsay; Nelson Frewin, 50, and Terrence Boyden, 20, both of Toronto, who died after a collision near Orillia; Mrs. Nova Scotia Lewis, 27, of Odessa, Ont., killed when his car smashed into a transport truck on stage-camp Sunday Oct. 4 and decided to join him on the journey before lunch.

They set out together for a nearby lake, but it lost them much longer than they expected, and twilight came before they realized they were lost.

Berube said he became separated from Dr. Gagnon, when the doctor climbed a hill to get his bearings, leaving him behind because a borrowed pair of shoes were "rubbing my ankles."

He was found Saturday by two hunters, 10 miles from the starting point, sitting on a log in a clearing, holding his head in his hands and crying. He was then driven by rocks and bushes, his feet swollen. He was exhausted, having had no proper food since he was lost.

PORT HOPE (CP)—Three Toronto residents were killed early today in a two-car crash near here.

Police said James Cheadle, 36, Dorothy Margaret Chambers, 29, and R. E. Barnes, 36, were killed three miles west of here when their eastbound car was struck by a westbound vehicle as they attempted to pass a transport truck.

Occupants of the other car were taken to hospital with minor injuries. They were Raymond Kelly and his brother Jos. of Oshawa, and Frank Alexander of Queensboro, Ont., near Madoc.

Police said the two Toronto men were taxi-drivers.

Lived on Leaves, Muddy Water For Six Days

MONTREAL (CP) — A hunter, found in the bush 20 miles north of Montreal on Sunday how he lived on leaves and muddy water for six days.

Ignace Berube, 54, of nearby Verdun, now recovering in hospital here, said he lived mainly on what he got lost in the woods near Ste. Emilie de Montcalm. He was found Saturday by two hunters, Leo Gougeon and Antonio Ouellette of Bois des Filiontaux.

Another hunter—also lost in the area nine days ago—27-year-old Carlton Wolchesky of Montreal was found Thursday dead in the snow.

"I was at death's door," Berube said. "The only thing that saved me was that I refused to give in. I never lost confidence, and I kept trying for help."

Didn't Plan To Hunt

Berube said he didn't plan to go hunting, until he met Dr. Gagnon, dentist of Montreal at a stage-camp Sunday Oct. 4 and decided to join him for lunch before lunch.

They set out together for a nearby lake, but it lost them much longer than they expected, and twilight came before they realized they were lost.

Berube said he became separated from Dr. Gagnon, when the doctor climbed a hill to get his bearings, leaving him behind because a borrowed pair of shoes were "rubbing my ankles."

COMMISSION ASKS REDS, ALLIES TO START TALKS

Centre to Interview Anti-Red PoW

By MILO FARNETI

PANJUNJOM (AP)—The Korean repatriation commission today asked the United Nations command and the Communists to start Thursday in their attempts to persuade war prisoners to return home.

The commission request came shortly after the UN command announced it would complete by midnight today the repatriation screening the Reds to use in interviewing the 22,000 North Korean and Chinese PoWs.

There was no immediate answer either from the Reds or the Allied command.

Late Starting

The Allied announcement opened the way for the long delayed—and potentially explosive—explanations to start rolling.

The Reds had steadfastly refused to meet with the PoWs until the UN commission completed new facilities. The explanations originally were to have started Sept. 25 but both sides rejected existing sites as inadequate.

An Indian spokesman for the repatriation commission said he can only now see an end to the deadlock to starting the explanations.

Spokesmen for the commission that the explanations may start at any time upon one day's notice.

The Indians, who want to interview the 7,900 Koreans and 14,300 Chinese PoWs individually presumably will begin the explanations by Thursday, .

Interrupted It

The UN command, however, has said it is in no hurry to get moving with the 23 Americans, one Briton and 35 South Koreans who have refused repatriation.

The UN announcement that the Red "explanation" centre would be completed so quickly came as a surprise. Only 24 hours earlier the Communists had set a target date of Oct. 21 for completing the new facilities—which the UN communists demanded.

The UN command also announced that the four-power armistice supervisory commission will meet Thursday to hear charges the Reds brought combat aircraft into North Korea in violation of the truce agreement.

An inspection team with representatives of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland probably will leave Wednesday for Uiju in far northwestern Korea to look into the charges.

The UN command, meanwhile, today returned two North Korean PoWs to Communist control. The pair had asked for repatriation.

Dulles, Bidault and Eden To Hold Surprise Meeting

LONDON (Reuters) — The foreign office announced today that Britain has invited U. S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles and Georges Bidault, the French foreign minister, to meet foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in London this week-end, to discuss "problems of common interest."

The statement said Dulles and Bidault had accepted the invitation and will confer with Eden here for a two-day conference Friday and Saturday.

Dulles will fly to London from Washington for the session.

The announcement came as a surprise in diplomatic circles. Diplomatic circles said the main topic of the discussions will be the recent exchanges between Moscow and the West on Germany and Austria, and, in particular, Britain's failure to agree to a four-power conference.

Trieste Population Worried At Tito's Threat to March

TRIESTE (AP) — "Does Tito mean it?"

On streets and docks and in the flag-draped buildings of this city, Trieste's anxious asking the question: whether Yugoslavia's President Tito really will carry out his threat to march into the Adriatic port city if Britain and the United States turn it over to the Italians.

There is no outward calm in this city, perched at the tip of the zone A from which the Britons and Americans have decided to pull out.

Behind a angry threats to treat Italian entry into the free territory as an act of war, Tito has sent troops to the west, and his movement of troop reinforcements to the east gave B to back up the threat, are topmost in everyone's mind here.

Keenly Partisan

Many remember—some with grim recollection—when Tito's partisans overran Trieste in the closing days of the war at the behest of the Communist leaders. A reign of anti-Italian terror until the Britons and Americans arrived and drove the Reds out, or face attack by the full Allied might.

What Tito has said and done about the recent developments is keenly understood by Italian city here done much to color and even mood. By the pro-Communist Italians, the Anglo-American decision.

"Of course they should return to Italy," said a young business man. "This is an Italian city. Tito's people have no right should not go right away. Does Tito mean it?"

Pro-Yugoslavs said and stitiously: "The people here are coy cerned. Yes, that is the way it is felt. We are concerned but we are not panicky. Do you think that Tito would dare to march in?"

Trieste Fiu-Italy

There is no doubt that the great majority of Trieste's people are pro-Italian. In the last communal election in 1952, nearly 75 per cent of the 178,984 voters favored the pro-Italian party.

The Communists got 17 per cent in the vote; a party favoring Trieste independence drew 17 per cent and the pro-Tito party only 3 per cent.

Tito opposed Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella's recent call for a plebiscite.

Despite this pro-Italian majority, the Anglo-American announcement surprised Trieste. For a full day after it was made there was little show of joy. A few Italian flags appeared on balconies, but the town hall where ardently pro-Italian Mayor Gianni Bartoli presides.

Then, the next morning, flags fluttered from hand to hand as nearly every window Some said it just took that long for the people to see what was happening. Others said cynically that the people had to be reminded by local political parties.

Miss Allies' Trade

One more factor, perhaps most important, colored Trieste's attitude on the allied withdrawal. The Britons here of 7,000 Allied troops and thousands of dependents have helped support Trieste's trade.

Now the thousands of Trieste longshoremen who load the ships for new jobs. So are the 4,400 members of the Venezia Giulia Police, trained by Britain into a remarkably efficient force. Many Trieste merchants admit administrators will not keep a force of that kind intact.

Meantime some Trietini openly oppose the return to Italy.

Six Italian and Slovinian parties favoring creation of an independent free port cabled the United Nations security council "protesting the violation of the mandate by the British and American governments."

The parties warned of "impending danger" and asked that the 1947 Italian peace treaty "setting up the free territory "be adhered to."

In the 1953 elections, the six groups drew about 20 per cent of the popular vote.

POLICE RAID PEOPLE'S PARTY LEADERS' HOMES

Guiana Strike Called By Ousted Premier

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters)—Police and troops today raided the homes of the leaders of the People's Progressive party, ousted from office last week by Britain suspended the British Guiana constitution.

No arrests were announced, but the houses were searched.

The raids came two days after a general strike call by the PPP, accused by Britain of trying to turn the colony into a Communist state.

The creeping "general" strike appeared likely to halt at least 50 per cent of British Guiana's industry today as a protest against Britain's crackdown on her South American colony's leftist leaders.

The strike called by ousted Premier Minister Cheddi Jagan, got off to a slow start Monday because of the Pan-American Day holiday.

Factories Close

By nightfall three of the colony's 14 sugar factories had closed, however, and some of the rest of the industry's sugar cutters were reported to have left the plantation fields.

Little violence was reported in the strike's initial stages. At one plantation strikers stoned 12 passing buses and took after their overseer with their long cane-cutting knives, but he escaped on horseback. Another group of strikers stoned a bus carrying workers who refused to join them.

The PPP called for a non-violent campaign against Britain, but Governor Sir Alfred Savage was backed by 600 troops of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers rushed here from Jamaica last week.

Travaiors' Frieisted

After their arrival Britain suspended the colony's five-month-old constitution, fired Jagan and the five other PPP ministers, and charged Jagan with having a plot to set up a Communist state here. The PPP called for a general strike and called the strike against what it called an "invasion by foreign troops."

As if to dramatize their strength, the PPP decided on a "large peaceful" Monday, firing powerful motorboats whose wash reverberated through this tropical capital.

Remove Bodies Of Two Killed In Plane Crash

NORTH BAY (CP)—An RCAF helicopter crew Sunday night removed the bodies of FO. John Holden of Sydney and LAC. Jack Margaret Moody of Morris, Man., from a reed-choked bog 25 miles southeast here into which an airforce Expediter plane, en route to Winnipeg from Moncton, N.B., crashed Friday.

Earlier ground rescuers who reached the crash scene by parachute and on foot ripped the fuselage from the roof of the lake to reach the body of the 32-year-old Holden, who was in the two-engined cabin of the silver aluminum plane.

Leaves Friday found the body of the 23-year-old woman in the lake.

St. Laurent Sees Freer World Trade Best Antidote to Communist Threat

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday night that free trade is the best way of restoring "stability to this still rather unhappy world," but a nation of 15,000,000 people could not build a prosperous industrial economy alone.

"It must be shared by the people of other countries and other conditions who are as well off as ourselves," he said.

Speaking in French and English at the opening dinner of the Canadian Shoe and Leather Fair, Mr. St. Laurent said freer world trade and higher living standards are the most effective antidote to the spread of communism.

The prime minister also said Canadian industrialists have "every reason" to be hopeful of the country's economic future.

"Not being a prophet nor an economist, I will venture to say that I feel optimistic because I have every reason to believe that you too can feel hopeful," he said.

Referring to international trade, Mr. St. Laurent said Canadians, with a total population of only a nation of 15,000,000 people could not build a prosperous industrial economy alone.

"It must be shared by the people of other countries and other conditions who are as well off as ourselves," he said.

Believe France May Be Mediator In Trieste Dispute

May Seek to Avoid Bloodshed As Yugoslavs' Mood Is Ugly

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP)—French ambassador Philippe Boudet was called into conference today with Yugoslavia's deputy foreign secretary, Alex Bebler, as speculation arose that France might be asked to serve as an intermediary to prevent the feud between Yugoslavia and Italy over Trieste from developing into bloodshed.

They met for more than an hour. There was no immediate clarification of the significance of their talks, but the official Belgrade radio reported that it "understood" that they dealt with the Trieste question.

France did not participate in the Anglo-American decision announced five days ago, to pull protective troops from zone A of the free territory of Trieste and allow it to join the area.

However, along with the United States, British and Canadian, France was a participant in the Big Four foreign ministers' talks in New York in 1946 when the basic terms for the Italian peace treaty were drawn up. That treaty was declared a free territory.

The Russian ambassador and Austrian minister visited the foreign office here today, in addition to the French envoy.

Violence Mounts

The new moves came as anti-Western violence increased again today while the angry Yugoslav mood over Trieste mounted.

President Tito's threats and notes designed to halt the Trieste transfer.

With Washington and London shoring up signs of backing down, the mood of the tense Yugoslavs again grew ugly.

Yesterday's beat up an American student and a Yugoslav who accompanied the Belgrade office of the United States Information Service. Huge slogans spelling "Resistance of Traitors" were scrawled on sidewalks outside the USIS office and the British reading room in the main part of the city.

Police broke up a Sunday loyalist militia men surrounded both buildings. New protests also were made tonight.

A British spokesman said 1,000 to 1,500 Yugoslavs invaded the reading room and seized copies of the British weekly bulletin, using them to make bonfires in the streets.

Troops Molested

The renewal of violence followed a night of comparative calm although the Anglo-American envoys reported that a Yugoslav woman entered the British compound and molested two of the women soldiers.

Yesterday then withdrew the large staff of natives employed by the British to duties involving direct contact with the public.

Demonstrators also dragged Queen Elizabeth in Belgrade and broke his nose.

The violence put their car in the troubled Trieste waters Monday night, on the eve of the scheduled for direct talks with the Western powers and his warning to the Anglo-American pact.

Speaking to the Anglo-American plans are a threat to peace.

In identical notes to Britain and the U.S., the Kremlin declared the plan to give Italy control of Trieste zone, including the Adriatic port city of Trieste, was a "grave violation" of the Italian peace treaty.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Russia demanded today that the UN Security Council try again to set up an international administration for the free territory of Trieste.

Chief Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky called on the council to jump into the explosive Trieste question "forthwith."

He submitted a resolution for such action by the 11-nation council which would:

1. Appoint Col. Hermann Flueckiger of Switzerland as governor of the disputed region at the head of the Adriatic sea.

2. Set up a provisional council to help him govern the area.

3. Establish the complete independence of a free territory of Trieste, which both Yugoslav-occupied zone B and zone A which has been controlled by Britain and troops—within three months after the appointment of a governor.

Policy Keeps Prisons Free Of Riots Says Allen

TORONTO (CP)—A conference of American prison officials said Saturday that Canada has been free of riots in any of its eight federal penitentiaries since 1932 because of the policy of paying prisoners for prison work and of having them eat in their cells instead of in large dining halls.

R. M. Allen, warden of Portsmouth penitentiary, Kingston, and in addition to the American Prison Society has conducted similar studies, said some rigid controls were relaxed several years ago and the privileges were left to trusty.

He said prisoners in Canadian penitentiaries eat their meals on benches in the kitchen to their cells.

Mr. S, wardens questioned Mr. Allan about the policy of "every prisoner on the payroll and the extent of political interference in jail administration.

Mr. Allen said political interference at all in the administration of penitentiaries was denied for one warden and one superintendent all our wardens and superintendents have been in the service for more than 30 years," he said.

Four Experience Wild Car Ride Auto Hits House

TRENTON (Special) — Four people experienced a wild ride in a car before the vehicle came to rest against a sign board on the south side of Dundas Street, on Sunday. In the car were driver Donald A. Ryckman, of 89 Bay Street, Trenton, and three women, Mrs. Rena Hall, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. B. Young, also of Trenton.

The car, proceeding east on Dundas Street, mounted the south curb, careened 150 feet into a car lot, striking a parked 1950 model, bunting it into the sign. A post supporting the sign gave way and rammed into the side of Ed. Jackson's house. The impact dislodged an eight-foot square of plaster on the west wall of the residence.

The driver stated he had to take to the curb in order to avoid an accident. Town police investigated.

Delegates to the district meeting, G. B. Hyde and Gordon Edwards, were appointed, while Gerald Hyde was named a delegate to the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association annual at Toronto. A trophy which was presented to the club by a member, Jack Fitzgerald, and the executive will decide in what manner the trophy will be competed for. The meeting was the most successful one although the attendance could have been bigger. It was unanimous that the season just passed was one of the best in the history of the club.

National 'Y' Leader Meets Hi-Y Clubs

During his recent visit to the city Mr. S. Symington, Boys' Work Secretary of the National Council of Y.M.C.A.'s in Canada, met with members of the Belleville Girls Hi-Y club and the Beta Kappa (Boys) Hi-Y club.

Mr. Symington is responsible for co-ordinating the plans of over 150 Hi-Y clubs in Canada, reported to the group upon his recent visit with boys' groups in Ontario and Quebec. Hunter Finds United States Weather Balloon

Maurice Callaghan Jr., found a United States weather balloon in the marsh off the property of George Wallbridge on Long Point, while duck hunting last Saturday.

The balloon, made in England of white rubber, had burst and was attached to a circular wicker frame. A red paper parachute attached to the frame had allowed the special broadcasting equipment to fall without too great damage.

The weather recording apparatus, which was slung on the wicker frame bore the serial number 4043 CFF. There was no indication on the equipment of the point of launching.

The radio device bore the following message on its outer jacket: "This instrument was released by a United States Government weather station. It was sent aloft to obtain data relative to atmospheric conditions. There were instructions advising post masters to accept the parcel for mailing.

The red paper parachute bore the serial number Mr. 123 U. S. Army.

5 Night School Classes Lack Enough Students

Belleville mailes should be a happy and well fed lot.

It must be so for local girls and women are well up in their cooking. At least not very many seem interested in increasing their cooking knowledge by attending night school classes at Belleville Collegiate.

In fact there has been so little interest in the night school class offered in cooking that there is a distinct possibility the class may not get underway due to lack of enrolment.

Thus far only four would-be cooks have indicated they would like to increase their culinary abilities at Collegiate night school classes. The minimum enrolment is 12, according to Collegiate Principal J. E. Currie.

Five other night school courses offered still lack sufficient enrolment to get classes operating. Electric meter reading has only three enrolments, stationary engineering, 7; sheet metal working, 7; music appreciation, 4; and advanced education but eight. In the last instance a minimum enrolment of 20 is required.

However, enrolments in all the above classes will still be accepted by Mr. Currie. He advised that registrations would be kept open until October 20th for these classes. If at the end of the extended enrolment period there are still not sufficient students to get the classes operating, the funds of tuition fees will be granted those already registered.

Kinsmen's Show Final Rehearsals Are Being Staged

With final rehearsals scheduled to take place this evening and on Wednesday night, the Kinsmen show "On Stage Canada" will be all ready for the opening curtain at the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday evening.

The fast moving musical variety show will also be staged on Friday night.

Today Mrs. Mabel Twiford director of the show, assured that enthusiastic crowds would be present. Belleville and district has a wealth of talent and the chorus line of 32 lovely Collegiate girls was going all out at its nightly thrills and that the black faced minstrels and Southern Belles were in fine voice and waiting for the opening night.

A cast of well over 100, including the 32 lovely maidens, 26 Southern Belles and 15 minstrels, as well as the dancing part in the many specialty numbers will appear in the show "On Stage Canada."

Tiny Tot Contest

Thirty tiny tots under six years of age have already registered in the Tiny Tot participation contest which is being staged in connection with the show. This is a popularity contest for the kiddies and on Friday evening the final night of the show the Tiny Tots will be presented on the stage and a King and Queen as well as four other prize winners will be chosen.

The King and Queen prize winners will be chosen by popularity votes registered by placing pennies in various places of business about the city. Pictures of all entrants in the contest are displayed in the window of the Belleville Public Utilities office on Front street.

Each child has an individual voting box and votes are registered by dropping pennies into the boxes. Entries for the Tiny Tot Participation Contest will be accepted by the show director and members of the Rotarette club until Saturday noon.

Each entrant in the contest along with the child's mother will be given complimentary tickets to the show on Friday night and the Tiny Tots will be introduced on the stage. The six winners will be presented with handsome silver loving cups and all entrants with 1,000 or more votes will receive a Coronation silver dollar. The mothers of six top winners will receive corsages by Wellers.

Peter Lloyd Leads

Votes for the individual contestants are counted each morning and voting to date has shown Master Peter Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orliff Lloyd, is in the lead.

Entrants in the Tiny Tot contest up to this morning were David Neal, Donna Semark, Linda Gill, Philip Dennis Schwager, Janice Carr-Brant, James Kiser, Patricia Ann Spence, Sharon McPherson, Garry Robertson, Tony Mason, Doug Mason, Joan McKevin, Tommy McKevin, Rosemary Burtt, Richard Burtt, Nina Jarah, Peter Lloyd, Judy Little, Johnny Mulvihill, Kathy Ann Smith, Kenneth Campbell, Beverley Dymock Gregory Longhurst, Lynn Pringle, Steven Patterson, Verna Jamesson, Douglas Dickey, Laura Jean Carter and Susie Coe.

Reporter Had 'On The-Spot' View of RCAF Search-Rescue Unit in Action Saturday

TRENTON (Special) — The Ontario Intelligencer had an on-the-spot view of the R.C.A.F. Search-Rescue in action on Saturday. The reporter was the only newsman on the aircraft which brought back the first news of the fate of the two service people missing since Friday. The pilot radioed at Killaloe that he was returning to North Bay. The plane was located on course within 20 minutes flying time of a safe landing strip at North Bay.

A dramatic para-rescue drop climaxed a successful air search for a missing Beechcraft Expeditor lost in Algonquin Park on Friday with F/O. John Hollen of Vancouver and LAW. Joan Moodie of Summerside, P.E.I. on board.

The wreckage was sighted from Dakota 414 out of Trenton at 10.20 a.m. on Saturday morning shortly submerged in an unnamed lake 30 miles southeast of North Bay.

The parachute team including Nursing Sister F/O. E. R. Kelly of Summerside, P.E.I., went down to the scene of the crash 45 minutes later. The jump was made from 1,000 feet into heavily-wooded country a quarter-of-a-mile from where the broken aircraft rested near the shore of the lake.

A great cheer went up from the people flying in the search-rescue aircraft as a bright orange smoke signal rolled skyward indicating all on the ground had landed without mishap and were proceeding to the crash scene.

Cpl. Ray Crawford led the para-rescue team followed by LAC. J. L. Hagedoran and the Nursing Sister.

Had To Hitch Way

The terrain looked good enough from the air but on the ground the climbers had to fight their way over fallen trees and jagged rocks. They arrived at the wreck 45 minutes later.

Early afternoon a ground party headed by Squadron Leader K. W. Brown reached the para-rescue camp site in view of the shattered aircraft. It took them three hours to travel across four miles of rugged wild lands.

The airwoman had been thrown through the plane's windscreen some 300 yards from where the aircraft came to final rest. Her body was found floating in the water.

The pilot's body, trapped inside the aircraft was not recovered until a hole was ripped in a beaver dam and the water in the lake lowered five feet.

A swath in the trees and the manner in which the aircraft plunged into the lake led investigators to believe that the pilot carrying out visual flying regulations was endeavoring to fly under the weather when he ran into difficulty among the tree-covered hills.

A helicopter brought in from Ottawa lifted the bodies to an ambulance waiting at the highway.

The para-rescue team broke camp the next afternoon and were flown to Trout Lake, 12 miles from North Bay, following a trek of three-quarters of a mile to a RCAF Chipmunk waiting on another lake.

Last night two rescue men and a para-nurse were back at the Trenton airbase ready to jump to the scene of another crash with in a few minutes of being called upon for duty.

Went Down Friday

The Expediter went down sometime after 7.45 a.m. on Friday after taking off from Rockcliffe with six hours' fuel supply, ample to make the trip to North Bay.

The search began early in the afternoon on Friday but had to be cancelled due to bad weather over the probable area.

In one of the shortest sweeps on record the Trenton Search-Rescue unit had sighted the wreckage and was sending aid to the scene.

Nursing Sister Kelly describing her first operation, said she enjoyed the experience. She saw signs of bears "near the campsite but felt safe with two fellow-troopers. She recalled that snow fell the third morning she was in the bush. "It was cold both nights but I just snuggled down in my sleeping bag and thought about my brother in the army and one in the navy," she revealed.

Landed in Trees

The auburn haired para-nurse stands five feet two inches tall and weighs a little more than 100 pounds. Her lightness has an advantage when she's jumping for its takes her longer to get to the ground and the impact is not so heavy. Her landing Saturday was in the trees and without incident.

Aboard Search-Rescue Dakota 414 were. Searchmaster S/L K. W. Brown, O.C.; Search-Rescue; S/L Williams, F/L Gilbert, F/O. Dennis LeBlanc (captain); FO Ross Moyer, 2nd. pilot; FO Bill Eddles, navigator; N/S FO. E. R. Kelly, Cpls. E. Savage, R. D. Crawford, A. J. Laiahes, LAC's Bud Saunders, C. L. Hegadoran, R. Young, LaPointe, Munn; Elmer Bonter.

Shotgun Wound Rips Shoulder Of Hunter Near Shannonville

Ernie Barberstock, 31, of Shannonville is fighting for his life in Belleville General Hospital today following an accidental shotgun wound suffered while duck hunting on Salmon Island in the Bay of Quinte south of Shannonville.

Both barrels of the 12 gauge shotgun ripped into Barberstock's shoulder when the gun tipped as it was resting in a duck blind. The accident occurred Monday evening.

Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto who attended the injured man said Barberstock had walked a mile and a half to get aid following the accident. His condition was said today to be critical. During the night Belleville hospital called for blood donors.

Barberstock pitched ball for the Shannonville team in the South Hastings Baseball League. He is a married man with six children.

A STRANGE CAMPAIGN

We have all heard of men whose hearts were said to be "as large as all outdoors." The editor of the Port Arthur News-Chronicle has one in that class, for his love of children has led him to launch himself and his paper into a weird—and wonderful campaign. The News-Chronicle wants its made illegal to park a car, because children run out from behind parked cars and get killed.

The tragic epidemic of cases in which children have been smothered to death in ice-boxes, and the resultant efforts by many municipalities to guard against future accidents of this type, has given the News-Chronicle a handy weapon for its crusade against parking.

Noting that some cities have passed by-laws making it an offence to leave an old ice-box where it is accessible to children, the News-Chronicle commends such action. Then it says:

"In the meantime it may be asked how much thought is being given to another and much more demanding form of death trap for children? Not merely is it probably a thoughtless homicide, of little children are being killed each year on this continent by 'running out from behind a parked car' to be struck down by other cars in motion."

The News-Chronicle concludes that the difference between the two hazards is merely "that one form of death has become common while the other is uncommon and, on that account, it does not receive the same attention."

We suggest that the News-Chronicle is in error. The difference is that absolutely no useful purpose is served by abandoning an ice-box where it can become a death-trap for children at play. But parking a motor vehicle serves many useful purposes. Children benefit, as well as adults. It enables the milkman to deliver nature's best food for the growing child. It makes it possible for the doctor to hurry promptly to the nursery when sickness strikes. In a hundred different ways, any law "against leaving parked cars on the street where children may run from behind them to be killed" would disrupt our method of living.

No, the Port Arthur editor's large heart has, in this instance, run away with his head. He is allowing his love of children to blind him to the plain fact that any law which would have the effect of making it illegal to park a car would be a bad law.

AN OMEN FOR "NO-MEN"

Charles H. Bland, president of Canada's Civil Service Commission told 700 members of the Canadian Municipality of Canada in the United States that the civil service has "too many no-men." He urged civil servants to be less negative.

That is in complete contrast to the common complaint of certain big businessmen. They usually complain that there are too many "yes men."

Nowadays government is big business, and we have no doubt that civil service is a major item in the policies of most big business. It is therefore unusual to hear the civil service personnel being urged to be less negative—stop being "no men"—while the second echelon business men being advised not to remain "yes men."

The obvious solution to this whole problem would be a switching of jobs with businessmen getting the chance to get over to civil service while the civil servants could cart their "no men" over to business. This is certainly easier than upsetting the traditional operating procedure of the two groups by asking for a personality shakeup among the "no men" and the "yes men." Everyone knows that "noes" grows and shows in a person's work. And few would bless a guess that the "yes" should be "no."

Who knows, it may be a good omen if "no men" digress and say yes, but it will be a blow when "yes" means "no."

WORLD'S SLOWEST PLANE

The aircraft industries of the United States and Great Britain are currently waging a spirited duel to see who can build the fastest aircraft. The Vickers Supermarine Swift seemed to have the inside track when Squadron Leader Mike Lithgow pushed the world's officially recognized speed record for aircraft in level flight to 737.3 miles per hour. Britain was ahead again.

Then Douglas Davey, of all things, came up with a winner in the Douglas Skyray which flew 753.4 mph. on October 3 under the careful scrutiny of international observers. They will have to authenticate their findings to the international aviation federation for confirmation of a new record, but it seems certain, that, for the time being, the United States may take the honors from the British.

This is all very well if speed and more speed is the object.

But speed has two ends, (if we may take off like Gertrude Stein) and the British have a complete hold on the other end at least. The Royal Air Force tested the world's slowest plane, the Prestwick Pioneer, at Singapore the other day. It flew at less than 30 miles per hour.

According to reports the Pioneer "handled beautifully." The craft is designed for use on small landing strips and has a wing span of 50 feet. Its top speed, if anyone is interested, is 130.

Now it may seem to some that designing a plane to be the slowest is not the same thing as the whole purpose of aviation. Such is not the case. A slow airplane has several distinct advantages. For one thing it doesn't travel as fast as a fast plane and the nervous this is a considerable asset. A slow plane can also be used for scouting purposes where high speeds are a hindrance. Slow planes can be used for working over large cattle ranches and grain farms.

A slow plane has the advantage over a helicopter of being slow without being stationary, a condition that is bound to irk those who are not experienced telephone linemen, timber toppers, steeplejacks or helicopter pilots.

The potentialities of a slow plane are not limitless but the slow plane does complete the aviation picture.

In the frenzied rush for speed we may sometimes forget that an airplane, to be practical, should be a working machine that can do a useful job. A slow plane is sure to attract enough attention to bring about a moderate revolution at least of the role of aircraft.

If the slow plane is in no danger of causing sonic booms, it is also true that no other plane will be able to reproduce its genteel cough—and who can say that that isn't an advantage too?

OCTOBER 13, 1933

Two armed hold-up men surprised Mr. R. M. Watson, teller in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Wellington shortly after the doors of the bank were opened at 9.30 o'clock Wednesday morning. October 11. They bound him and gagged and went to work on the vault. They then went through the pockets of Mr. Watson and collected $40. When the manager, Mr. Norman W. Kyle, entered he was taken by surprise and ordered at the point of a gun to "stick 'em up." He did not obey the orders and managed close with the hold-up man and was getting the better of him when the other bandit came to the assistance of his mate and slugged Mr. Kyle over the head with his gun. He was able, however, to wrest the gun from one bandit and at this point the other fled and it was time to make a break and escape. The latter picked the gun he had taken from the bandit, but it proved to be a car which was stolen from Toronto the night before." The police set out a dragnet, as it was believed the men to be bottled-up in the peninsula quickly. This proved to be correct as the men were captured seven hours later near Hillier by a posse of Wellington and district men who were aided by the police in the man hunt. The men were tried at Picton, on October 16th. and sentenced to seven years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary at Kingston.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NO SHORT CUTS

There is a great deal of complaint in these days that people do not preach the gospel. Practically anyone familiar with the situation in the modern church realizes that this is true only of a decided minority of ministers. Most of them preach the straight gospel and do it with force and eloquence.

But there are some men in modern pulpits who are substituting sociology and philosophy, political theories, and sometimes the teaching of communism for the gospel. This variety of minister is always quick to pick the flaws of any system which promises to remedy human ills. Such men try somewhat lamely to point out that after all there are only a few communists in the country and that these are probably not so bad as people think.

Now why do some people, both in pulpit and pew, take this position? There are, I believe, many reasons. But one is their impatience over the fact that the Kingdom of God of Jesus Christ does not produce a transformation of society speedily enough to satisfy these persons. Christianity attempts to remedy the world's ills by remedying the ills which afflict the souls of men and women. The popular "isms" claim that they can take a short cut to Utopia. Some people get impatient with the gospel because it will have nothing to do with short cuts.

Letter to the Editor

Re Rest and Washrooms

Dear Sir:

Several months ago I appeared before city council with regard to public washrooms. I was told the matter was not overlooked, and would be considered as soon as a location could be arranged for.

May I suggest that without much expense the basements of the washrooms on the southwest corner of the city could be used. These were original wash rooms. There was very little trouble with the sewage or water in the spring.

This could be overcome, I suggest, by installing a pumping system. The trouble we had with the "Monument" was the rear of the city hall was that thousands of dollars were spent recklessly. This could have been overcome by placing a man in connection with the proposed washrooms, a man could be placed in charge and also operate a shoeshine, and supervise shower baths. He could be given a living with little expense to the taxpayer.

A lot of people think the city should provide such a service. I have had many letters to this and we of the modern times should have a place for people rested. With all the money now being spent we should not overlook this important project.

Tourists flock to this city every year. They have no facilities at the city hall and the Chamber of Commerce but a few months in which they can "wash their hands." Meetings are held in the city hall from time to time. The market people are there twice weekly. They have their shot to the city. But they have no place to go for comfort.

The restaurants, hotels and service stations have been the comfort centres for the city hall for years and under straight management of a board, we as business men do not consider this a joke. The industries raised when the city is receiving a revenue for the purpose.

I do not say that this is a matter which will take much consideration, but merely one of very minor expense involved. It should not be a matter of years to give it the proper attention.

Other cities, such as Peterborough, Oshawa, have rest centres, so why not Belleville?

I am a many elderly people who come downtown to shop and who cannot find a place to spend a few minutes' rest. Of the department stores do not have such a service but I am sure they will do it is placed in such an unconspicuous place that it cannot be found.

Therefore they must go to restaurants, hotels or service stations. The writer does not object this fair.

I Cannot something be done by city council about this matter?

Do Not Burn Those Leaves

(Windsor Daily Star)

With the approach of the autumnal and leaf-burning season, it is timely to reflect on the value of leaves.

Every amateur horticulturist and resident would reflect for a moment on the nature of fallen leaves, which contain not only the vegetable matter but the nutrient salts, potash, potash, protein, needed for the next season's growth (and these too, exactly in the proportion required by the very tree or shrub from which they have fallen) if it was remembered that it is precisely in this way by the decomposition of wood fallen leaves, that nature enriches the soil year after year, it would hardly be necessary for any thinking person to burn them. Leaves are allow them to be swept away by every wind that blows.

The gardeners will collect diligently these leaves and by digging them under. They will mix the roots of plant or tree, where they will decay and enrich that soil, will provide at the cheaper manner the best possible food for tree or shrub.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE HOME CLIMATE?

From the 38th parallel in the midwest a correspondent writes:

you shouldn't bother, but it does, although I had it only about a year.

The guy must be off his rocker — or else he's in rheumatic (eal) it arthritis — you think that is more exclusive) are who go Egypt, Nice or Southern California for the winter.

When I said something about the harmlessness of exposure to cold and dampness, however, uncomfortable, one reader cracked back that it was easy for me, basking in the sunshine and bowling on the green the year around to make such caustic statements, but he thought I'd take a different tune if the shoe were on the other foot. I'd like to try it through just one winter in Michigan.

That would be pretty rugged, wouldn't it? But hold on a minute. I've been in this city for 12 years as a country doctor in New York State before I took to practice it in the metropolis, and the climate there is not unlike the Michigan climate.

Where I live and why has nothing to do with the influence of climate on rheumatic—chronic disease or degeneration of joints. I tell you, knuckle-heads, and if you think I know more than I do about it you may disregard what I say, wherever you may live most comfortably that is the best climate for your rheumatic.

Aside from the factor of comfortable outdoor living, mentioned above, it is my firm belief that the frequency of prevalence and the course of pulmonary tuberculosis, pneumonia, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, bronchiectasis, rheumatic (or chronic arthritis if he 310 term is the one used by your trick specialist), chronic nephritis (kidney trouble, Bright's disease) and other maladies which old fogy practitioners associate with bad climate and foul weather are the same in Winnipeg, Miami, Los Angeles, Victorine or Bangor as in Horseheads or Wallie Walla.

Now I realize that what I am trying to teach you knuckleheads is the truth of the influence of weather and climate on health, vite and longevity I'm butting my head against a stone wall. If I persist in it I may knock myself out, or my readers will find scribbles with influence may have me thrown out on my ear, but even then I may have accepted some of my teachings as plain good sense. TODAY'S TALK

FAITH IS ALL

Is there anything so important and potent, as a guide through life, as Faith? Faith is all we have discovered it. Faith, to me, seems all. If we have it we have the key that unlocks, and indeed to life itself.

This faith, however, is not something that is purchased. It is not a gift. It is something that we plant and then nurture and grow. It is the greatest inheritance, but if we do nothing about it, it gradually seems to wither and we think that is all that we are so bereft of hope and so isolated in a world, filled with fear and wonder.

Abundant faith is the expression of health of soul. With it the spirit of a human being is unconquerable! In the words of Charles Lindbergh's recent book nothing is so outstanding as his faith in himself, faith in his plane, and that highest of all faiths—faith in the guidance of the spirit.

Without this faith we would constantly be accomplished with fragments of that which would smother all hope and energy. Walking or riding—even at rest at home—we would be conscious of a loss of power. On the other hand, with faith in the eternal truths that we not achieve within the ability that is our inheritance!

Faith is the awareness real—all nature showing. In endless examples, proof of this omniscience of order and creative functions. Faith becomes an awareness that is available if we so safely through many a storm and unexpected emergency that we have had to face. It is a never-failing source of our lives.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto hit the headlines across Canada lately with his speech to the incoming students. What this country needs, he said, is more characters. Too many forces, he said, our colleges, schools, radio, movies, pictures, press and hundreds of service clubs, are turning out "all to the same pattern," stereotyping us, making us all do the same things, like the same ideas, adhere to the same creeds, accept the same ideals. There must, said the university president, be more dissent. We need more individualists among us, more characters.

Gillis Purcell, chief of Canadian Press, has a wife who is a writer. His wife read him the headlines in the papers as she ate at his ease at the end of the day. If the headings are good, Purcell asks for the first paragraph. When Mrs. Purcell read President Smith's outburst, Gil asked for the whole piece. When it was finished, he said to his wife:

"Do you know any characters?"

"I don't know anybody who isn't a character," said Mrs. Purcell, rather wistfully.

This, probably, is a reflection upon newspapermen, who for generations past, when I have been a little less inhibited than the average in other of the more conservative professions. Both men and medicine turn up each generation a few memorable characters, but never without the grain of their own time and place.

But it seems to me the publicity President Smith's remarks got, together with Purcell's query, warranted over lunch tables and in homes all day, a little more thought and less agreement, but dissent.

Every man nurses the secret notion that he is a character. In the secrecy of his own heart, even the most economic man fancies himself a character, amuses himself from time to time by acting out whatever he feels he is, practises being a character on his wife, or on his friends, or on the people he meets. It was not the extroverts who warned to President Smith a declaration. It was also the introverts, who said of the president: "Little does he know!"

Hot Africa's Snowy Peaks

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Exact geographers were puzzled by two "mysteries" of the area where the sources of the Nile were located and the mountains in a tropical zone of Africa of a snow-clad mountain range. Even on his map showed mountains in Equatorial Africa rising to heights of 16,000 feet. "Lunae Montes". However it was not until 1848 that the African explorer Dr. Ludwig Krapf discovered the great range of rugged mountains in Equatorial Eastern Africa Equator. Some of the snow-clad peaks rise to nearly 19,000 feet. Stanley named the range Ruwenzori.

Further exploration work was done during the intervening years but the most ambitious expedition was that of Duke of Abruzzi in 1851 and 1852. Professor R. F. Feel was a member of the expedition and in discussing the range in The Listener he emerged upon the remarkable vegetation. At about ten thousand feet, he explained, the "... forest ends abruptly and the alpine zone begins to notice the remarkable appearance of the arborescent lobelias and senecios on the ground; and then bamboo begins to give place to a thick forest of tree heaths, looming through the prevailing mists, puts on a most fantastic appearance. The wells' Lost World. For the trees are near giant size, some of them over thirty and forty feet high which look exactly like overgrown heaths. The trunks are covered with heather and are in fact, botanically heaths. Above the heaths come the green globules of moss smother their lower stems, and from every branch hang long festoons of pale green lichens. Seen through the mist, the effect is one of extreme stillness of air that characterizes Ruwenzori. There is no sound here and one half expects to see long-extinct prehistoric monsters appear.

"Finally, above the soaking and tangled forest, there appears the most distinctive vegetation of all —incredible vegetable monsters—the lobelia giants rising above a ground-mass of flowering shrubs. These monstrosities are like trees as these are mostly giant varieties of those hundreds of lobelias that grow around, grounded and lobellas; but the lobelias are in great spikes where their flowers are. The Gun can climb up and roost in groundsel. Groundsel grows wild in the valley floors and climbing up the final slopes, these weird species give way to the mosses of the snow-line, which on Ruwenzori is now at about 15,000 feet. Above this is mossy rock, bare crags, snow, and ice."

LABOR

Men who labor fashioned these:
Every building, every spire,
Every ship that sails the seas,
Every pound of steel and wire.

Every mile of pavement laid,
Every bite of bread we take,
Every instrument that's played
Men who labor had to make.

This forever will be true,
As it was in days gone by,
For what men have learned to do
Labor must the strength supply.

Without craftsmen to create,
Without labor's strength and skill,
There would be no cities great.
Earth would be a jungle still.

Memorial Arena, Church Filled To Capacity for Final Mission Of Dr., Mrs. C. B. Templeton

The Templeton Mission (Belleville's biggest event, as it has been so aptly described) reached its final stage on Sunday afternoon in a great throng of people that filled every available space in the Memorial Arena, and overflowed into Bridge St. United Church, where loud speakers had been installed for the occasion. Long before the hour of commencement every available seat was occupied and people were standing in the upper aisles of the arena.

The service, attended by approximately five thousand persons, came as a fitting climax to a fifteen-day mission that began on Sunday, September 27th, and to which an estimated 30,000 people came to hear Dr. Templeton preach and Mrs. Templeton sing.

The meeting began with Dr. Templeton leading the congregation in the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" and "I Need Thee Every Hour." This was followed by the theme song, "I'll Sing in the Morning the Song of Salvation," sung to the tune of "The Bells of St. Mary's." To hear this immense crowd singing this chorus to have had an experience that can never be obtained for a long time to come. Mrs. Templeton, in her usual charming manner, sang two solos, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Thanks be to God." Prayer was offered by Rev. Duncan McTavish, minister of Bridge St. United Church. The combined choirs of Bridge St., Hollowgrove and Tabernacle churches, rendered the anthem, "Holy Art Thou" during the taking of the collection. The choir was directed by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, with Mr. C. Templer at the organ.

Explains Financial Arrangements

The offering was announced by Dr. Templeton, who explained the financial arrangements of the mission, pointing out that there was no "love-offering" that went to him. He made it clear to all present that his salary and that of Mrs. Templeton combined amounted to $150 a week. After all the current expenses of the mission were met, the balance will be divided equally between Belleville Presbytery, under whose auspices the mission was held, and the Department of Evangelism of the United Church of Canada, to be used for the work of evangelism in smaller areas where missions would be difficult to finance. He appealed to his audience to give generously to further this work, and the congregation responded to his appeal with an offering amounting to $2,130.27.

Seated on the platform during the early part of the service was Mr. W. J. Morrison, general chairman of the mission, whose fine gifts of organization did much to make for the success of the mission. Mr. Morrison read a telegram from Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of Evangelism and Social Service for the United Church, thanking him and his committees for their splendid efforts, and commending Dr. and Mrs. Templeton to the prayers of the people as they go forth to their next mission in Fredericton, N.B. Mr. Morrison also expressed his appreciation, thanks to the chairmen of the various committees, most of whom were seated on the platform, making special reference to the faithful services of Mr. Templer and Mr. Gordon, who had acted as accompanists to Mrs. Templeton throughout the entire mission.

Fitting Climax

During the two weeks of the mission, Dr. Templeton, in his quiet, simple and appealing fashion has sought to proclaim the truth of God, and his closing address on "Getting the Most Out of Life" was, indeed, a fitting climax to a great season of great preaching. Taking his text from St. Luke 9: 25, "What is a man profited if he should gain the whole world and forfeit himself," he began by asking several questions. "How many people do you know whom if you could trade places with them you would do so gladly? How many folks are there that you know whose life has that which trade, and whereupon his interviewer suggested to him that "might call it the help." Life lived with God is a thrilling adventure," continued the preacher. "To know God as your Father and to put your trust in Him is the only way to live. The most important fact of life is to know that there is a God and that He loves you. Life is never the same after that. This love He revealed upon a Cross. How dare you waste a life for whom Christ died?"

Briefly, Dr. Templeton outlined what it means to be a Christian and how one's life must be committed to Christ. He referred to the words of Phillippian jailer who wanted to know the way of salvation and was told he must believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. He told the story of Blondin the tight rope walker who after he had walked across the Niagara Gorge asked the crowd if they believed in him, and they cheered loudly, but when he invited anyone who really believed in him to climb up on his shoulders and let him carry him across, only one young man responded. This illustrated that the word believe implies not simply intellectual assent, but real commitment." Christianity is not saying a prayer, or shedding a tear, but trusting your life to Christ," he said, and he asked the great assembly of people to bow their heads and talk with him in prayer of confession and commitment. Then followed the benediction, and the great consecration began to fill out of the arena.

Long To Be Remembered

Thus ended a service that will live long in the memory of those privileged to attend a service that brought persons many miles to worship. Thus ended a mission, the influence of which will live on in days to come, and the results of which can never be measured in mathematical terms. A mission that raised a total offering of $7,923.03 and for two weeks turned a wrestling slate into a preaching rostrum. A mission that saw hundreds of cards of dedication and re-dedication signed, and thousands of others have felt lifted to higher altitudes of spiritual living, and will go on thanking God for the contact with Dr. and Mrs. Templeton, and pray for His guidance to follow them in their work of the future.

Hastings Prince Edward Regt. Holds Successful Reunion In Cobourg Despite Weather

It rained in Cobourg and they were civilians dressed with beets and medals aglitter on their breasts.

It rained in Sicily, Italy and Northern France, too, when they were battle dress and tin hats and toted Tommy guns and rifles.

But the spirit was the same.

The downpour, which caused a definite change in original plans did not dampen the spirits of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the Tenth Annual Reunion held in the lakeshore town were the holiday week-end.

Upwards of three hundred members of the crack "plowboy" regiment of the First Canadian Division of World War II celebrated their annual get-together with a bang-up banquet, an impressive memorial service, and the usual renewing of friendships after a year's absence.

Nor did the rain spoil the plans as a whole. The only difference it made was that the memorial service, originally scheduled for the well-appointed Cobourg Memorial Park was held in St. Peter's Anglican Church, on Sunday.

Capt. Beatty Parade Marshal

The "troops" were formed up in "A", "B", "C" and "D" Companies with Rifle Brigade Beatty as the reserve battalion in charge. Captain Angus Duffy, OC Headquarters Company, acted as parade marshal with Lt.-Col. A. A. Kennedy, DSO and Bar, Croix de Guerre, parading.

The three hundred Hasty Pees were augmented for the parade and march-past by members of the Cobourg branch of the Canadian Legion, under President D. Smith, and the gunners of the Medium Regiment, RCA, under the command of Lt.-Col. Bob Lucas. Heading the parade was the fifty-five piece band of the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, and Sandmaster Sergeant Major M. Watson. Also adding their martial music to the parade was the drum and trumpet band of the Medium Regiment.

Thanks to good, co-operation of St. Peter's Church, the parade moved from the park to the church in 20,000 steps. The service was conducted by Captain, the Rev. Reg Lane, of St. Thomas, wartime padre of the regiment, assisted by Captain the Rev. H. E. McConnell, wartime battalion padre, of Trenton. Lt.-Col. Kennedy read the Scriptural lesson. Also present was another former padre, visiting officer of the Hasty Pees, Col. D. C. Cameron, of Ottawa.

March Past Held

Following the service the troops "marched past" with the salute being taken in the park by Col. Cameron. With Col. Cameron on the reviewing stand were Dr. Frederick Hamilton, M.P., Northumberland; Mayor Jack Ireland, of Cobourg, and Major William J. Graydon, Belleville, president of the regimental association.

Prominent in the parade was the famous bullet-torn battle flag of the regiment. It was carried by Sergeant Tony Bacdano, with a guard of honor composed of Lt.-Col. R. H. Widdifield, commanding officer of the reserve battalion and Col. Carr, Port Hope, commanding the 6th Infantry Brigade.

Then came one of the more important features of the reunion. The "troops" and their guests sat down to a sumptuous turkey dinner "with all the trimmin's" in the pavilion of the park.

Here they re-lived the "old days" of mobilization in Picton, the "Little Chief," famous Indian mascot, whose whereabouts is still an unsolved mystery, the heavy training days in England and the action in Sicily, Italy and other war fronts. They paid tribute to their glorious dead, the members of the "While Battalion." The draw for the "battle honors" was made by Douglas Suttan, of Port Hope, son of Corporal Suttan, who was killed in action.

Warm Welcome Extended

In the post-dinner ceremonies, Mayor Burnet, Cobourg's chief magistrate, extended the warm welcome of the people of Cobourg to the visiting veterans. He said the town was theirs and if anything was lacking "Just let us know." We are proud to have you here and sincerely hope you will come back at some not too distant date."

Major Graydon, who chairmaned the banquet, expressed the sincere appreciation of his association, troops and the guests for the splendid reception afforded them by Mayor Burnet and the people of Cobourg.

In his report of the regimental association's activities, Major Graydon pointed out that some $4,500 had been raised to ensure the writing of the history of the regiment being done by Farley Mowatt. He paid special tribute to the efforts of Lt.-Col. Widdifield, Capt. Angus Duffy, Major Cliff Broad, Lt.-Col. R. C. Donnan, Lt.-Col. W. A. Davern and Captain Bob Scott in this regard.

Weddings

HEFFERNAN - VANDERVOORT

Before a lovely background of tall standards of autumn-tinted flowers, interspersed with ferns, the wedding ceremony of Alice Jane Vandervoort, of London, Ont., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vandervoort, of Belleville, and Edward Joseph Heffernan, of London, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Heffernan, also of London, was solemnized in Holy Rosary Church, London, on Saturday, October 10, at 11:00 a.m., by the Reverend S. A. Nouvion.

Mrs. J. Cleary, organist, provided the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of lace and taffeta, fashioned in waltz-length with lace redingote featuring princess lines, and having long sleeves pointed at the wrists. A half hat of matching lace held her shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and yellow Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. George Fisher, of Owen Sound, in pale green taffeta, was matron of honor, while Mrs. Wayne Kraft, of London, Ontario, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, gowned in rust taffeta, similar in line to that of the matron of honor in waltz length. Both wore white feather headdresses and carried heart-shaped bouquets of bronze and yellow mums.

Mr. George Fisher, of Owen Sound, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. James Hosking, of Owen Sound, and Mr. Al Robertson, of Wyevale, were ushers.

At the reception held at the Palm Grove Restaurant, the bride's mother, wearing brown in street-length with beige colored accessories and corsage of tawny-gold roses, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in black in street-length, with grey accessories and corsage of pink Happy Day roses.

For the wedding trip through the United States, the bride chose a red knitted suit with black accessories and corsage of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan will reside in London, Ontario.

Guests were present from Belleville, Owen Sound, Toronto, and Petrolia.

WAITE—CARR-BRAINT

A quiet, but pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, October 10, at 9 a.m., in the rectory of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Elizabeth Ann, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Carr-Brabant became the bride of Howard Cross Waite, youngest son of Mrs. L. Z. Waite, R.R. 2, Belleville, and the late Mr. L. E. Waite. Rev. Father J. J. Buckley performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her suit of coral rose with navy accessories and corsage of white feathered carnations.

Miss Kay Carr-Brabant, as her sister's only attendant, chose a grey suit with pale blue hat, navy accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Mr. Jack Garvin, Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a navy dress with short tailored jacket, white feather hat, navy accessories and corsage of white baby 'mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who chose a lovely dress of Alice Blue crepe featuring lace inserts and small rhinestone trim, black accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

For her wedding trip to the United States and Niagara Falls, the bride donned a navy, all-weather topcoat. On their return they will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was an honored guest at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. T. C. Young at her home, Bettes Street, with Mrs. John Winkle, as co-hostess, and at a presentation by her fellow-workers of the Corbin Lock Company, where she is employed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Never Let An Unhappy Memory Spoil The Present

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I read the letter in your column from the young girl who wrote you to start she had gone with the wrong kind of girls and made a big mistake that she deeply regretted, and wanted to know if she should go ahead and marry a certain young man even though her mistake made her feel unworthy.

I liked your answer to her, and I am going to remember it, because I, too, made a sad mistake before my marriage many years ago. Although I never told my husband about it, because I felt it would only hurt him and could not do any good to tell him, now I wish I never had been so foolish! It is not easy to forget one's past mistakes, Miss Fairfax, and they keep cropping up in my mind and disturbing me with guilty feelings. Maybe I should have told my husband before I married him.

A.R.

Dear A.R.: As you remember, one of the things I said in my answer to this girl was that writen any one of us makes a mistake, we should profit by the experience by never repeating that mistake, and that we should forget it. Something I might add to that is, that it's wise, too, try and figure out just why we made the mistakes, because, by doing that, we often find a valuable clue to the fault, or lack, in our way of living or in our character, that was responsible, and then we can correct that fault. In this way, we build up an understanding of ourselves that gives us the ability to avoid trouble in the future.

None of us, of course, ever succeeds in putting completely out of our memory experiences that have made big impressions on us, whether good ones or bad ones. But memory should never be allowed to poison the present. Whenever an unhappy past experience crops up in your mind, like the one you speak of, the thing to do is simply to remind yourself that it all happened before you had learned to behave in a mature way, and has been rightful bearing now on your adult life. To keep brooding over it is just as much a mistake, in its way, as any other kind.

If you have made your husband happy all these years, so that the two of you have lived a fine, loyal useful life together, that is all that counts. Believe me, this is true. So put any lingering worry and regrets aside, and just go on living usefully and happily.

When He Promises To Divorce His Wife And Marry You, Watch Out!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A month ago I became friends with a man who told me that he was divorced. Later I found out that he is still married but separated from his wife and has a son.

He says he loves me more than any other human being in the world and that when he obtains a divorce he will marry me. I love him, but I am afraid that if I keep going with friends with him something might happen to upset our plans. What do you think is the right thing for me to do?

C.H.

Dear C.H.: The only right thing for any girl to do in a situation like this—which, unfortunately, is all too common—is to step out of it and leave the man alone unless or until he proves his sincerity by coming to you free to marry you. There can be nothing but trouble ahead for any girl who makes a close friend of a married man who is promising her that he will get a divorce and marry her.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred this type of character has no intention whatever of getting a divorce. "Or the contrary, his intentions are quite otherwise, and a wise girl will keep out of the way of any man who gives her this line of talk.

The Full-of-Life 'Staff of Life' Loaf

By Mary Moore

I had to laugh. The back of my mind was churning around, stirred by my conscience, spurring me to start making our bread again. Then your letters started coming with last paragraphs asking for repeats of whole wheat bread recipe "because now that the children are back at school I have more time" "since we have eight children" I think I, can save some money baking my own" or "homemade bread tastes so much better."

Wiping the grin off my face I summed them all up and the result is this column, date Tuesday, October 18th, the day after 1955 Thanksgiving Day, with detailed recipe for whole wheat bread, which I wish every Canadian family could taste. I will make plenty of copies of this and gladly mail them to everyone who cares to write and enclose a stamped envelope.

Here we go—up to our elbows in bread dough—and resolved to feed our families the best "staff of life" loaf we can provide.

Eighteen measuring cups 100% whole wheat flour, not sifted but stirred with your hand. Measure this into an outsize bowl or clean dishpan. Scald 4¼ cups pasteurized skim milk, then cool it to lukewarm. To this add 3 tablespoons peanut oil or 4½ tablespoons melted margarine, ¼ cup powdered skim milk, 2 tablespoons salt, ¾ cup Barbados light molasses, 3 eggs. Beat these ingredients well together. Dissolve 3 packages quick-acting granular yeast in 1½ cups lukewarm water with 1 tablespoon molasses for 10 minutes. When it has foamed up double in volume add to the milk mixture and mix well, then add this mixture to the flour. This is sticky to knead so the first time it is advised to mix it in the bowl. Cover carefully and stand aside in a warm but not hot place until a dent is left in the dough when pressed lightly with finger tip, and the dough is risen double in volume. Dough may be bigger than this, but time required is about two hours.

Punch the dough down to loosen it from sides of bowl, then turn out on whole-wheat flour on board and knead until it is quite satiny and squashy about 26 to 30 turns and kneading.

Divide dough into 8 equal parts and roll each into edges underneath to shape the loaves, to give a smooth round top. Put in greased loaf pans, cover carefully and allow to rise until another cent, you send it, most appropriately, as a Thanksgiving present. And enclose the cheque or money-order or whatever-form you find convenient, in a note perhaps reading somewhat like this:

My Dear Doctor Worthy,

This is Thanksgiving-time, and we would like to express our Thanks-giving to you by sending you the money enclosed. You were so very skilful in your treatments to our son, so very kind to us, and so considerate in your charges. We wish the enclosed could be a larger amount to apply on your reduced charge to us, but we thought it would be more suitable than an article for your office, which you might not find useful. Please accept it with our most sincere thanks.

Every good wish to you, Doctor Worthy.

Sincerely,

Groom's Mother To Be Escorted By Two Sons

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a prospective bridegroom, and I have a question of special importance to me. I have three brothers; my oldest brother is to be my best man, the next oldest is to be head usher, and the third is also to be an usher (there are to be ten ushers). Our father is dead, and our mother and we four sons have always been exceptionally close in love and devotion. I have an idea which I don't want to suggest until I know if it would be proper. I would like very much to have my mother escorted up the aisle to her seat in the first pew by one of my brothers, and then have the other brother escort her down the aisle after the recessional. Would this be proper?

H.W.

Yes, sir, proper . . . and very appealingly significant. And of course it would be the brother who is to be the head usher who should escort your mother up the aisle, since this is the more important "escorting."

BEAUTY

Hand And Arm Massage

If fairy godmothers were wandering around this sphere of ours bestowing blessings, practically every dolly would ask for a nice fat beauty budget. Especially appreciative would be the business girls often have so little for treatments. They can't cut their own hair, so they must go to hairdressing salons for trims and they usually do have professional waves and sets. But, usually, that's all they can afford.

However one evening a week at home given over to a set beauty routine is not only time well spent but will prove relaxing. There can be a twenty-minute facial that will act as an insurance against complexion problems by keeping the tissues firm and the contour youthful in appearance.

After that ritual, attention should be given to hands and arms. Hands are usually given some care by the average girl but arms don't get a look in at the cosmetic feast and that is pity since lovely arms are a grand beauty asset.

If a girl has been an ardent sun worshiper and has gone lawny with tan, her arms reclaim will bleaching treatments, otherwise the golden surface may disappear in spots, leaving a patchy appearance.

In all large beauty shops hand and arm treatments are given. They are not complicated and can be self-administered.

Start with a brisk scrubbing with fairly hot water, soap and a bath brush. Rinse, dry thoroughly with a coarse towel or bring a glove, mitten, without hands and arms with a heavy cream, one that offers refreshing on the massage movements.

Make a bracelet of the fingers and thumb of one hand, place them around the other wrist and work a firm pressing deeply into the flesh. Use plenty of cream—the more the better—as the skin will lap it up.

Straighten one arm and, with the other hand, stroke up and down pressing with the thumb. Then do the other. Cup an elbow in a creamed palm and move it in circles. Elbows seldom look as they should as the skin is coarse there.

Sprinkle almond meal on the cream and remove with a pack. Then apply steaming hot moist towels, repeating several times.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

The Mere Sensible Plan

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am already planning on giving a doctor, a specialist, a Christmas present, and I would very much appreciate your telling me the right thing to send him. He has been extremely kind to my son, who has been very ill, and he gave me the treatments at a very low charge because I could not otherwise afford them. I am very grateful and I do want to show my appreciation by giving him a gift, but don't know what is the proper thing to send to a doctor. (I would like to spend ten dollars, perhaps twelve.)

The very best and most sensible way you can "show your appreciation" to this doctor who has been so kind to you and your son and so very considerate in his charges, is to send him the money you are thinking of spending on a gift for him. A doctor lives on his professional fees . . . not on "grateful patient" presents, which too, often are articles quite useless to him. Naturally he will admire your spirit if trying to meet, even in small measure, what you consider your obligation.

My suggestion is that, instead of sending this as a Christmas present, you send it right away, as a "thank you" for services rendered.

Fred forgot one thing...

IF YONGOR that a bit of wood preservative*, applied at little cost when the fence was put in, would have saved him the cost of new posts now.

In the telephone business, as around your own home, we find it's better to do the job right in the first place and then look after it. It's the best way we know to avoid heavy repair and replacement costs, to save expense and give you most service for your money.

That's why we treat telephone poles against rot; why we keep our trucks clean and in good repair; why we put up exchanges and offices to last.

It's common sense if we are to keep our costs down—and the price of your telephone service low.

CAMPBELLFORD—Club vice-president, Bill McComb, superintendent of the Campbellford Cloth Co., spoke to the Rotary Club on Monday on Employer-Employee Relations. Bill also gave a resume of his trip to Sudbury to the district conference.

Commencing his talk on the relations between modern employer and employee, the speaker said that the employer needs faithful employees and this requires satisfactory relationships as well as remuneration, or his efficiency is impaired.

In nearly all large industries the trade union plays an important part. We are continually reading of strikes in industry until the work "union" has become to many of us synonymous with strikes. Though many strikes are called, this is hardly true.

In 1952, 1,025 million man hours were lost through strikes in the United States and $1,036 million lost in wages to striking workers. Though money may seem to be the chief cause of strikes, it is not always so. If either the employer or employee dominates over the other, strikes are inevitable. Capital used to beat down labor and dominate the situation. Today in many industries the shoe is on the other foot. As long as this continues we will have strikes. Settlement is after a period of appeasement and is effective only for the life of the contract.

However, in some cases, labor and capital are beginning to realize that if the size of the cake were increased it would be better business for the both sides than, as at present quarrelling over the way it is to be divided.

Mr. McComb explained certain portions of the famous Taft-Hartley law in the United States and various methods of checking off employees for union purposes.

In conclusion, the speaker said that labor and management must see that so many interests are common to both that peaceful, fair solutions to all problems should not be difficult. He recommended the Four-Way Test as a guide to all negotiations. It is as follows:

1. Is it the truth?
2. Is it fair to all concerned?
3. Will it build good will and better friendship?
4. Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

If this were the code for negotiations there would be fewer strikes and happier industrial relations.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Ross Richardson and thanked by President Bud Davidson.

CAMPBELLFORD

Third Policeman Will Not Be Hired by Council

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of the town council was held this week at the council chamber with all members present.

Mr. Garnet Shields, County Assessor, addressed council regarding the re-assessment of all municipalities in the county to effect an equitable assessment of the various parts of the county.

Mr. Shields said that all cipalities except three would be completed next year. He suggested that Mr. Townsend would require assistance in this work as it is impossible for him to do the work alone. He recommended a Mr. Jennings of Peterborough as having had some experience along this line. He pointed out that the aim of the whole plan is to equalize the entire county under a single method of assessment taking into account cost, rental value, and the probable market figure. After the assessor had left the meeting, further discussion ensued under new business and it was decided on motion to have Mr. Townsend attempt to secure local help and report at the next meeting.

The police committee did not report on the question of hiring a third policeman and the matter was discussed at great length. Finally, in a polled vote, a motion to take no action on the request was upheld, yeas being Mayor Locke, Reeve Nicholas, Deputy-Reeve Mayhew, Councillors Rutherford and Free. Contrary, or favoring a three-man force were Councillors MacMillan, Tatham, Burgess and Ness.

On motion tenders were called for the filling of the park property on the east side of Grand Road from (1) the Black bridge to Victoria street and (2) from the Black bridge to the service station.

Proclaim Holiday

The Mayor was authorized to proclaim a holiday on this date for the high school pupils and grades 6, 7 and 8 of the public school to attend the World Flowing Match in Cobourg.

Mr. Fred Bennett addressed council stating that on the deed of his property north of town is a notation that the grave of Colonel Robert Campbell be respected. Mr. Bennett said that since Col. Campbell was founder of the town of Campbellford, council might wish to recognize his resting place. A committee comprising Councillors Rutherford and Tatham was named to investigate.

A petition to improve the sidewalk of Ranney Street from Bridge to Market was presented. The petition had 18 names. Councillor MacMillan was authorized to ask McFarland Construction Co. re doing this work before winter.

Mr. Ed Hoppis addressed council regarding the placing of acetone at the corners of Dundas Ave., for the purpose of seeing the school children across the road. Also at the corners of Ranney and Bridge streets when school is being dismissed. This was left to the police committee with the power to act.

Council agreed to waive the licence fee for the high school auditorium for a recital of Miss Sharp's pupils, the event being sponsored by the I.O.D.E.

Mr. George Pallizer addressed council wishing to sub-divide his garden lots on Market. Margaret and Stanley streets and to sell them for building lots. At the time the sewer was put up Margaret street on the advice of his lawyer, Mr. Pallizer refused to pay sewer tax. Now he stated he wished to come to an agreement as lots are sold, to allow purchaser to pay the tax and connect the sewer. The matter was left in abeyance, the legal committee to investigate to find out what arrantements could be made. Court of Revision date was set for October 28th at 11 a.m.

The chairman of the Industrial Committee, Councillor Mayhew, reported stating that council should ask Mr. Wales whom they had retained as their agent in England if he had achieved any results in that way of industry, and to ask him if further advertising in the London Times would be advisable at this time.

The pay sheet was passed and the council adjourned.

Story of Shy Guy Who Draws Things We Sometimes Think

Editor's Note: There's a little of the Rebellious in all of us, but few get expressed. Here's the story of a shy guy who draws the things we sometimes think.

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—After a record round of visitors, Charles Addams, the cartoonist, and his friend John O'Hara, the novelist, got more relaxed in the clubhouse over a bottle of soda pop. A small boy, about five, came up and took O'Hara's bottle out of his hand.

"Let's spike it," Addams said quietly.

It was the kind of thought that comes to Addams quite naturally. To his many fans, who know him from a distance and expect the worst, it may be a surprise that he did not stipulate arsenic as the spiking agent.

For Addams is regarded as America's funniest spokesman for all the repressed violence which lurks in most of us.

Live In Old Rodes

The family which Addams draws lives in an old Victorian ruin, amid bats, cobwebs, sagging plaster and creaking boards. Almost every cliche, emotion and aspiration of normal mankind is regarded as fair game by the family to turn about to their own devilish purposes.

On Christmas Eve they gather on the roof, ready to spill a cauldron of boiling water on carollers below. Or the whole menage—the witch-wife, her ghoul-faced husband, Frankenstein butler and devilish children—collects in the living room to admire new picture window with a grand view of a cemetery.

Or the children go off by themselves, to crouch behind a sign saying, "Warning. Children at play"—ready to push a huge boulder in the path of an oncoming car.

A Shy Fellow

Charles Samuel Addams, in whose unorthodox mind these visions come to life, is a tall, cadaverassembled man of 41, with dark, greying hair, a wide grin and a shy, almost apologetic manner which seems to beg your pardon for the trouble he's taking to wound you.

Even away from his drawing board, Addams has a constant, spontaneous interest in the macabre, in the ghoulish possibilities of the common-place, in the terrifying contrast between what good taste says and supposed to be made up of and what they may actually be thinking in their dark little minds.

His friends Burgess Meredith, the actor, and his family frequently visit Addams at his beachhouse at Westhampton, Long Island.

"Charley is this kind of a guy," the actor says. "No sooner are you settled down, the kids are put to bed, and the first drink is coming around, when he says, with that quiet grin of his, 'Let of ticks out here this time of year. If they bite you, you know, there's no cure.'"

In this great age of character analysts, many people are fascinated to speculate on what makes Addams tick. He is the least fascinated.

"I don't think much about why I do what I do," he says. "Probably better not to. If I found out why, I might lose it. Oh, I suppose it represents a kind of separate life, a dream thing."

Analytic-minded friends like Burgess Meredith are inclined to regard Charley's interest in the macabre as compensation for an inner insecurity.

Dressed As Ghost

Whatever the reason, Addams' distinguishing motif dates back to his childhood in Westfield, N. J. As a boy artist, he doodled skulls and bones. For him, Hallowe'en was a big production. He never dressed as an Indian or pirate, only as a ghost.

He was fond, too, of roaming through cemeteries at night and visiting an old, deserted Victorian ruin next door, which later became the model for his weird family home.

"I suppose I was trying to scare myself," he says. "But all in all, I had a normal healthy childhood. I did other things, too. Like building a house on stilts 20 feet high. I used to sleep there. It could be well defended with BB guns."

His father was wholesale manager for a piano company, and his mother worried occasionally about the portent of Charley's doodling, but both encouraged him to draw.

Addams has a serious interest in relics and antiquities. His apartment on upper Fifth avenue and summer place at Westhampton abound in medieval crossbows, lances and headsman axes. He also has a full suit of armor ("a bargain at $700"), a miniature skull here and there, a toy guillotine, a black metal spider on the wall, and a hugh-backed chair whose top curls over the head of the sitter and creates a mild echo in conversation. Charley likes to call it "the whispering chair."

His most valuable education, he says, was two years (1932-1933) spent in the art department of Macfadden Publications, where he worked as a reluctant retoucher. His job was to make photos of murder victims less grisly. But

BANCROFT

Heavy Penalty Given Accused

BANCROFT — Sentences totalling five months imprisonment and two months and $150 fines and costs were imposed on Mrs. Kinley Spence, 23, of Bancroft, by Magistrate R. C. Jackson, at Madoc yesterday.

Spence who had been in custody since September 27, was found guilty of removing a vehicle without the owner's consent, driving while his licence was under suspension and driving with impaired ability. A further charge of stealing an automobile was withdrawn by the police.

The convicted man was arrested on Highway 62 about seven miles north of Bancroft on Sunday morning, September 27th, when he was observed driving a panel truck owned by Russell Pitcher, of Marmora, which had been reported missing.

Addams has always felt they were "kind of interesting the way they were."

Sells To New Yorker

In 1933, he began selling to the New Yorker, which today is his chief market and steadiest source of income. He also does some ads and has had three anthologies published which sold 130,000 copies.

Charley had been drawing the witch-wife and other members of the "family" for five years before he met Barbara Day of Westfield, N.J. They were married in 1943 and divorced last year. They had no children.

Friends were always intrigued to note that the former Mrs. Addams, an extremely attractive woman, nevertheless bore a resemblance to Charley's witch-wife. She, too, has long, black hair, intense eyes and pale complexion.

"This is not so unusual," says James Geraghty, Charley's art editor at the magazine. "We have three other artists who had been drawing their wives for years before they met them."

Confessed Kidnap-Killers Of Bobby Greenlease Taken Under Guard to Kansas City

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The confessed kidnap-killers of Bobby Greenlease were returned early today under heavy guard to Kansas City, where the abduction of the six-year-old boy took place just 15 days ago.

Drug addict Carl Austin Hall and his woman friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, were brought here from St. Louis, where they had been held since their arrest a week ago when the boy's body was found.

The pair's departure from St. Louis was kept secret. They were brought here by automobile, both handcuffed.

Officers placed them in 11th-floor detention cells in the county courthouse jail.

Last Still Missing

Officers who made the trip here with them said Hall still insisted he doesn't know what happened to the missing $300,000 of the $600,000 ransom paid.

They quoted him as saying he hoped the Greenlease family "gets back all the money."

Hall admitted to the FBI Monday that he killed the boy when he and Mrs. Heady were confronted with a mounting pile of evidence.

Hall confessed that he killed Bobby by firing a pistol bullet into his head after driving him across the Missouri-Kansas state line into Kansas City shortly after the kidnapping.

The federal government filed charges at St. Louis under the Lindbergh kidnapping law immediately after their signed confessions that Bobby was taken across a state line.

Ex-Con Cleared

The admissions cleared the missing Thomas John Marsh, 37, ex-convict named earlier by Hall as Bobby's killer, of any part in the crime.

Jackson county prosecutor Richard Phelps agreed to let the federal government prosecute the two kidnappers. Murder charges also are to be filed in Kansas' Jackson county, scene of the slaying.

If convictions and death sentences result, authorities will use Missouri's gas chamber at its state prison in Jefferson City to carry out the executions.

The FBI said Hall and his woman friend admitted they dug Bobby's shallow grave behind Mrs. Heady's St. Josepha, Mo., home before they executed the kidnapping plot.

Agents still are searching for $370,000 in ransom money. More than $295,000 of the money, in $10 and $20 bills, was in the hotel room where Hall was seized.

Changed Story

Mrs. Heady's earlier claim that she was an innocent party in the case was also wiped out with the admissions. It was Mrs. Heady who took Bobby from an exclusive school Sept. 28 on the pretext she was his aunt.

She earlier had insisted she thought the boy was Hall's son, in the custody of an ex-wife.

Bobby apparently was killed in Mrs. Heady's station wagon after the couple had driven him to a point in Kansas 12 miles from Kansas City.

A bullet found lodged in the blood-stained car was shown by ballistic tests made by the FBI in Washington to have been fired from a 38-calibre revolver taken from Hall upon his arrest here.

10 Demand Ransom

Meanwhile, at Tulsa, Okla., a friend of the Greenlease family said at least 10 different persons represented themselves as the kidnappers and demanded ransom ranging from $5,000 to $500,000.

Robert L. Ledferman, Tulsa auto dealer and business associate of the murdered child's father, Robert C. Greenlease, still grieving over the tragedy and exhausted from 10 days of fruitless vigil, told the story after returning home for the first time since Sept. 28. That was the day his multi-millionaire partner and friend issued a plea for help when Bobby was kidnapped.

Ledferman said the family received a special delivery letter the night of the kidnapping from Hall, demanding $600,000 ransom. It stipulated that $400,000 was to be in $20 bills and $200,000 in $10 bills.

Russian Ship Rescues 39-Man Crew of Freighter

LONDON (AP)—A timber-laden British freighter broke in two off Russia's rugged northern coast and a Soviet ship rescued the 39-man crew, the freighter's owners reported Monday night.

The ship, the 4,900-ton Beckenham out of London, was homeward bound from Igarka, a Siberian river port inside the Arctic circle.

Watts, Watts and Company, the owners, said the Beckenham ran aground in the Kara sea and broke up.

Patrick O'Brien Given Asylum In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Michael Patrick O'Brien, the modern-day man without a country, got permission Monday to live in the Dominican Republic.

O'Brien, 58, has been trying for more than two years to find haven ashore. He was a waterfront bartender before he escaped from Communist China. His name broke into the news when he rode a ferry for 10 months between Hong Kong and Portuguese Macau because neither place would accept him.

O'Brien's White Russian wife and child were last reported in Brazil. He arrived there in August but Brazilian authorities refused to permit him entry. Authoritative sources said the refusal was based on allegations he had been involved in drug smuggling — a charge O'Brien denied.

He started back to Europe from Brazil in the liner Bretagne but France refused to admit him. Italy turned him down also.

He returned on the Bretagne to Brazil last week but authorities at Rio de Janeiro and at Santos again slammed the door to him.

O'Brien's claim to United States citizenship has never been recognized. His long stay aboard the Hong Kong ferry ended last July.

St. Lawrence Seaway Effect On Level of Lake Ontario Will Be Aired at Hearing

OTTAWA (CP)—The public will have an opportunity next month to state its views on the possible effect of the St. Lawrence hydro project on Lake Ontario water levels, the international joint commission announced Monday.

The Canada-United States body which controls boundary waters said the public hearing will be held in Rochester, N. Y., early in November. Exact dates will be announced later.

The decision was made at a meeting here last week, presided over by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Ottawa and Senator A. O. Stanley of Washington, the commission's chairmen.

The commission also announced:

1. It has asked a special committee of Canadian and U. S. engineers for advice on a proposal for settling the long-standing controversy between Montana and Alberta over the division of water in the Waterton and Belly rivers, which flow across the border. The proposal will affect southern Alberta irrigation schemes.

2. It is satisfied with progress Solving Pollution towards a solution of the problems of air and water pollution in the Windsor-Detroit area. It now is in a position to direct the attention of area municipalities and industries to the importance of complying with objectives of pollution control. The commission said that "fortunately only a few municipalities and industries have failed to give satisfactory assurance of compliance."

3. A meeting will be held at Boston shortly to study technical data in connection with plans for development of the St John river basin, affecting New Brunswick, Quebec and Maine. Another meeting will be held at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, to consider claims by Idaho farmers that their lands have been damaged by the rise in the water level of Kootenay Lake in southeastern British Columbia.

Beautify Falls

4. Plans for enhancing the beauty of Niagara Falls and increasing the generation of power on both sides of the boundary are progressing "satisfactorily." A four-year project to spread the water more uniformly over the Horseshoe Falls is to be started before the end of 1953.

The Rochester hearing on the St. Lawrence power project is aimed particularly at Lake Ontario shoreline property owners.

The commission emphasized that once the project is completed it will provide greater water control than is possible at present.

"The proposed regulating works, when built in the St. Lawrence, will for the first time permit the exercise of control in such a way as to benefit shore owners on both sides of the lake and also the important interests of navigation and hydro-electric power," the commission said.

Does Inco produce anything but Nickel?

"The research people also found that the ore contained other rare metals. Step by step the scientists worked out ways of getting these metals out of the ore. So today Inco recovers quite a lot of gold, silver, platinum, palladium and other metals from the ore. In fact, Canada has become the world's largest producer of the platinum metals. The palladium obtained from the nickel ore is today very popular for fine jewelry."

"Oh yes, the Sudbury nickel ore contains as much copper as it does nickel! So Inco is not only the world's largest producer of nickel, but also Canada's largest producer of copper."

Tried to Make Pet of Bear

When Clark and George Simmons, ages seven and 11, came face to face with two half-grown bears on their farm eight miles from Ottawa, their first thought was to make pets of the animals. One bear ran away, the second went up a tree and the boys stayed underneath trying to coax it down. A neighbor started to look for the boys, but the bear in the tree and two others in the bush a few yards away, now Clark and George have a couple of bearskin rugs—together with a lecture from their father on the dangers of becoming friendly with bears before they are made into rugs.—Central Press Canadian.

Thousand Islands Put on Map By American Millionaires

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—The Thousands Islands, lying jewels in the upper waters of the blue St. Lawrence, were discovered by the Indians, christened by the French and put on the map by American millionaires.

Today this river paradise thrives on its true destiny of pomp and pleasure. It was prophetic that the Iroquois called the Islands Manitouna—the garden of the great spirit—and inevitable that "les Mille Isles" of the ill-fated French should evolve into a playground for the peoples of two great nations.

The Thousand Islands are too perfectly suited to the joys of summer to have become anything else.

Here is a lovely archipelago of wooded islands strung from this "Island City" through 30 miles of the St. Lawrence river to the portal of Lake Ontario near Kingston.

Tourist Mecca

The region is alive with summer resorts and the purr of pleasure boats. Bright little towns hug the shore and harmonize with the cool sunny mood of the islands. It all exudes a romance of fabulous estates built by forgotten millionaires, their picturesque flavor worn thin by the noisy tour boats.

Great freighters, moving nations' commerce on the lifelines of the continent, plow unperturbed through the monkey chatter of the buzzing pleasure craft.

Bold and highly-wooded, the islands range in size from the westernmost Wolfe and Wellesley—measured in square miles—down through an infinity of shapes and sizes to the Three Sisters, a scotty-like trio opposite this old United Empire Loyalist settlement at the eastern entrance to the Venice of North America.

There are land groups, islands that are just numbers and a scattered host of mere rocks only big enough to hold a tree, some tufts of moss and a crust of gulls.

Equally Divided

The islands are divided about half and half between Ontario and New York state by an international boundary, probably the most zigzag ever devised. Drawn up in 1822 it follows a course through the main channels without touching a spot of land.

Modern man has spanned the islands, but in doing so has added rather than retracted from their beauty.

The Thousand Islands bridge, a five-span structure opened in 1938, picks its way from isle to isle to form an eight-mile highway over the heart of the area. The two main spans at either end tower 150 feet above the U.S. and Canadian channels.

The bridge with its pair of suspension spans, two smaller cantilever sections and 90-foot concrete span over the International boundary, connects Ivy Lea on the Canadian mainland and Collin's Landing on the U.S. shore. Four islands are linked in the crossing.

But the centre of the region is about two miles downriver from the American end of the bridge. Here lies the little town of Alexandria Bay, N.Y., resort capital of the Thousand Islands.

Once Fishing Village

Alexandria Bay—or "the Bay" as folks around here know it—could hardly look less like a capital with its L-shaped main street, two large summer hotels and many side shops. It was a fishing village, before the millionaires "discovered" the river 80 years ago and set up lavish estates and fancy island homes.

Later, when auto travel ushered in a new area of vacationing, the town adjusted itself to renovated values and today its streets echo to chartered buses, tour boat tickets hawkers and the week-end crowds that years ago would have spread a snobbery and sneers among the rich.

Almost directly across the river from "the Bay" lies Rockport, a small Ontario village catering to the summer trade. However, most visitors own summer homes in the vicinity. It is Brockville and Gananoque to the east and west which attract tourists to the Canadian shore.

Both spread a lavish carpet for their visitors who flock here from May to October, complete with gaily-colored lights strung the length of the business sections, beautiful shore-side parks and island boat tours leaving the numerous wharfs almost hourly.

The gilt-edged tourist of the turn of the century has given way to the motel and cabin hamlets. However, quantity has more than made up for any loss in quality.

BUCKNALL, Eng. (CP)—Crockery was smashed by an exploding marrow in a house in this Nottinghamshire town. It is believed the vegetable was ripe when picked, and high temperature indoors caused vegetable gases to expand.

GLEN URQUHART, Scotland (CP)—A cairn was unveiled in this Inverness village as a tribute to John Cobb, who lost his life on Loch Ness a year ago while attempting to break the world's speedboat record.

Pop was just starting to look comfortable with his first cigar, and ma said, Dont forget you were suppose to put a new washer in that bathroom faucet the first thing after dinner, and there's no time like the present./

I was just about to get started, pop said. Still, as long as I'm going to put my talents to work, I might as well spend the time at something really important. Now that dining room clock that keeps living a lie by chiming the wrong hours. That's the thing for me to fix. That's a job that's really worth while, he said, and ma said, Never mind biding a cassia in Spane. You're no more able to fix that clock than flying without wings, she said.

How do you know, if I dont even try? pop said, and ma said, Because 2 and two make 4. You cant fix a common strap on a simple vacuum cleaner for land sakes, she said.

I could if I had the ambition, and I've always had an ambition to fix a clock, pop said. We've pampered that prevaricating clock long enough, and I'd like to teetch it a lesson. I've got some little pinchers and things that ought to fix the trick easily. Maybe I can make an honest clock of it in about 20 minutes. You never know your luck, he said.

I know your skill, an orderry washer is the extent of yours, if you keep your mind on it, ma said, and pop said, All rite, but dont blame me if that clock keeps on deceiving us the rest of its life and ours.

I'll blame you if that washer isn't changed in 15 minutes, ma said. Which it was.

St. Kitts Teepees, Toronto Marlies Top Junior Loop With Two Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's probably no significance to it since the season has just got under way but apparently playing on the road doesn't make any difference to the two clubs tied for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A lead.

Of the nine games played since the league started Friday, the home team has won all but two of them. The only teams able to win on the road have been Toronto Marlboros and St. Catharines Teepees, the pacesetters with two straight wins.

The Teepees were the only visiting team in the six games during the week-end to come home with a victory. They blasted Quebec Citadelles 8-3 Sunday while Marlboros were beating Hamilton Tigers 5-1 in Toronto and St. Michael's College Majors whipped Galt Black Hawks 4-2 in Toronto.

Home Teams Wins

Saturday all the home teams won. Galt edged Guelph Biltmores 5-3 at home, Kitchener Greenshirts beat St. Michael's 7-3 and Hamilton scored a 3-2 overtime win over Barrie Flyers, last season's Memorial Cup champions.

Four teams—Barrie, Kitchener, Galt and Hamilton—are tied with one victory and one loss each behind the front-running Teepees and Marlboros.

Dave Reid scored Marlboros' two final goals to lead them to their win over Hamilton. Jack Bionda, Howie Glover and Gerry MacNeil fired the other Toronto counters. Hamilton's only goal was tallied by Brian Kilrea.

St. Michael's overcame a 2-1 Galt lead with three goals in the third period to beat the Black Hawks. Ken Gribbons scored two of the Collegians' four goals with the others going to Bill Covin and Ted Toppazzini. John Cullen and Hillary Menard tallied for Galt.

Three Goals Rikli

Brian Cullen and Danny Polishana fired three goals each to provide St. Catharines with most of their scoring punch at Quebec. Hugh Barlow got the visitors' other two goals. The Quebec marksmen were Charles Desnomme, Mike Hatchkard and George Pandelier.

Tommy Burton scored Hamilton's overtime goal which beat Barrie in a game highlighted by 168 minutes in penalties, including three majors and two match misconducts. Barrie received 19 penalties, four more than Hamilton. The Tigers' other goals were counted by Teddy Reid and Kilrea. The two Barrie goals came off the sticks of Nipper Nash and Ed McQueen.

Neil McDonald fired three of Galt's four goals in its win over Guelph, with Murray Costello accounting for the other one. Paul Mighall, Bob Attersley and Ron Howell divided the Biltmore markers.

Two goals by Glen Cressman and one each by Buddy Horne, Jack Whelan and Bruce Jones accounted for Kitchener-Waterloo's decision over St. Michael's. Brian Anderson, Ken Lissman and Jack Caffery were the Collegians' scorers.

Six of Nine Softball Titles Are Decided

Six of nine Ontario Softball championships were decided throughout the province over the Thanksgiving Day week-end. Eight others had been awarded previously for earlier schedules.

The highest title won in week-end play was the Senior B crown which went to Sudbury after they took two home-town decisions from Whitby Shockers, southern Ontario champs, by 5-0 and 4-3 scores.

The provincial midget championship was taken by Wingham who bounced Kirkland Lake Huskies in two successive games at Wingham. They whitewashed the Huskies 19-0 in the opener and won away with the second game with a 15-3 score.

Toronto Flyers won the peewee championship in two straight over Gore. They won the second game 11-11 at Gore.

Kirkland Lake Seymours got the jump in the unconquered Junior final when they defeated Toronto 3-0 in the first game in Toronto.

Titles awarded earlier for completed series were: the senior A championship to Hamilton, Intermediate AA to Niagara Falls, Junior B to Beamsville, Junior C to Dixie, Junior D to Empire, Juvenile B to Hamilton, Juvenile C to Virgil, and the Bantam to Stoney Creek.

Finals to be completed are the Junior A in Toronto, the Intermediate B with Trowbridge at Brougham and the Juvenile A with Kirkland Lake at Ostrea.

Organized Baseball in Supreme Court, Ruling Could End Present-Day Sport

WASHINGTON (AP)—Organized baseball goes before the United States Supreme Court today in what is perhaps the most significant legal contest in the history of the national sport.

The court has been asked to decide whether baseball is an illegal monopoly in restraint of trade. If it decides that it is, the ruling could mean the end of big-league baseball as it now is played.

But even if the court were to rule against baseball, there are possible outs. Congress, for instance, could pass a special law, or there might evolve a sort of gentleman's agreement among the players.

Argument on three appeals the high court agreed to hear was set down to begin late today, but it was possible that start of the three-hour argument would be deferred until Wednesday.

In Court Before

The question whether baseball violates U.S. anti-trust laws has been before the Supreme Court previously. In 1922 the court decided baseball wasn't a business;—and that as a sport it was not subject to federal anti-trust laws.

The three appeals now before the high court were filed by minor-leaguers George Toolson and Walter Kowalski and a minor-league club owner, Jack Corbett.

All three maintain that the 1922 decision no longer applies, they contend the game has been greatly changed since then by such developments as intricate farm systems and radio and television coverages.

In addition, the appeals maintain, baseball amounts to something resembling slavery—since the players are tied to their club owners under the controversial reserve clause, which gives the owners absolute control over baseball activities of the players.

His Reserve Clause

The appeal filed by Toolson contends that the reserve clause is "obnoxious to the principles of the 13th amendment."

This is the amendment to the U.S. constitution which outlawed slavery back in 1865. It says: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States. . . ."

Replying to the suits, organized baseball said in its briefs that the anti-trust laws are without bearing on the specific questions raised in the actions have nothing to do with interstate commerce.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

SURPRISES!

The Thanksgiving holiday came and went, but left mixed feelings along sports rimline in its wake. * Pre-season football prognosticators feverishly sought their crystal balls after the weekend gridiron upset but the sphere showed them nothing.

Rough Rider fans' heads were beat in humiliation in the shadow of the Frood Tower in Ottawa as their pets went down to a 36-0 drubbing defeat at the hands of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Hamilton Tiger Cats' fans "woke-up-to-us" for late Sunday morning as the pigskin fellows from the mountain tore an Argo defence to shreds and "thrashed" 'em under a 26-6 deluge on Saturday.

But it was a different story yesterday. The Argos rose in their righteous wrath and in a display that was as different from the Saturday affair as day from night, tied a double 30-13 game in the Rosgill southern appendage. Sasky Roughriders won a twin bill and it looks like they will tangle with the Blue Bombers in the WIPU semi-final.

The National Hockey League had the limelight stolen by two rookies. . . Dave Catherun, Sherbrooke goalie, answered a last-minute rush call from the Red Wings and marched his NHL debut with a 4-3 shutout over the Leafs. "Dutch" Reibel, who occupies the coveted spot between Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay, on the Wings' power line, came through with flying colors, scoring six assists to lead the loop with his mates. It looks at this early stage of the game that the Wings and Habs will be the powers to contend with, but "ya never can tell."

Queen's surprising Golden Gaels upset the Redmen from McGill with a 13-13 victory while Johnny Metras' Western Mustangs lowered the Blue of Varsity by a more convincing score.

SOFTBALL ANNUAL!

City and district softball will pass into the record books here Friday night when the Belleville and District Softball League rings down the curtain in a blaze of "knife and fork" and presentation glory.

Chairman of Amateur Softball Association secretary Frank Werner, Hamilton, will be the guest speaker while other special guests will include Stan Scrafton, well known Kingston athlete and sports enthusiast, and Howard Judd, provincial director of the Kingston Penitentiary. Warden Dick Allen, of the KP, regretfully announced he will be unable to be present due to a special convention, but sends along his regards and appreciation in a letter to district convener Dan Lee.

However, there are some wrinkles to be ironed out and President Cy Berridge reminds team managers, coaches, etc., about the special meeting being held in the city hall council chambers tonight at 7:30. It is important that all be present in order to finalize plans for the Friday night party.

At this time the many beautiful trophies and individual awards will be presented. To Mike Whalen, and his merry men, will go the Lane will go the W. J. (Bill) Ost trophy, emblematic of the city "A" championship. Herbie Hsen's Northern Electric contrivals will be presented with the Labatt Trophy, emblematic of the "AA" title. The leading hitters of the "A" and "AA" sections will be awarded the Feller and Conger Lehigh trophies, respectively, while the Warden Allen Trophy, symbolic of the Penitentiary Softball Congress, will go to the Glen Keys.

DOTS 'N FLASHES

Walkerton Hartleys, starry intermediate "A" softball squad, which edged Point Anne in the Southern Ontario finals series, took the first game from North Bay by a 5-4 score over the holiday, but lost the next two up north. . . . Campbellville won the intermediate-"B" series from the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines in two straight games . . . Pewees softball banquet is scheduled for the near future when the trophies, prizes, etc., will be given to the 'moppets' : . Underground has it that "Milliken"will have a hockey league of its own this season. Meanwhile the Ox Pointers, we are told, are building a strong entry for the Trent Valley grind . . . Ditto Wellington. Keith Weese, Centreville gift to organized baseball is well on his way to his third, or is it, fourth straight championship. . Keith hurried the Listowel intermediates to the western title and on Saturday defeated the Bowmanville Roses 10-3 in the first tilt of the provincial titular series. More about Weese, later . . . There must be some "lucky" blood in Pat Maracle, the Point's pitching sensation of the season just over- We are told Pat is hugging the forty mark, and the old flipper apparently improves with age. . . . How about wrapping up this Belleville District Baseball League championship with a sudden-death game, and getting the business over. . . . Hamilton Ossingtons who nudged the Glen Rays out of the Southern Ontario Junior "A" softball title, met defeat against Kirkland Lake and are all tied up . . . John McKenzie is the new baseball coach at Albert College. . John took over from the popular Johnny Hayman, who was likewise a lover of strength with the city intermediate basketball squad. . Johnny is attending the Ontario Educational College, Toronto . . . . Chuck Dreesen should present Art Feever with a season's ticket to Ebbet's Field next season. "Fesv" was, and is, as loyal to the "Bums" as any froth-blowing fraternity brother that frequents the taverns along the revetments of the aromatic Gowanus.

Well-Named David Gatherum Shuts Out Toronto Leafs 4-0 After Wings' Sawchuk Is Hurt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 21-year-old rookie, whisked from Detroit Wings' farm club at Sherbrooke, Que., as a last-minute replacement for goalie Terry Sawchuk, emerged as a star in the National Hockey League play during the week-end.

Fort William-born Dave Gatherum was flown to the Motor City Sunday after Sawchuk suffered a knee injury Saturday night. He shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0.

He stopped 32 shots, two of them close-in drives by Leaf Captain Ted Kennedy in the last two minutes of play.

Three games were played Sunday and two Saturday. The Leafs opened their home season Saturday night with an easy 6-3 win over Chicago Black Hawks. In Montreal, the Canadiens downed Detroit 4-1.

In other action Sunday night Boston Bruins defeated the Canadiens 4-1 and New York Rangers downed Chicago 5-3.

Kelly Shines

Red Kelly gave the Wings their victory Sunday night when he led a three-goal barrage. He scored one goal and later set up tallies for Gordie Howe and Rookie Bill Dineen. Ted Lindsay scored the other goal, his 467th in the Hockey League, after pinchoiling Johnny Pierson scored twice for the Bruins, Jerry Toppazzini Mohns, the year-old rookie from Barrie and Joe Klukay added the other. Veteran Elmer Lach spoiled Jim Henry's shutout bid.

Third Period Rally by Hy Buller and rookies Ron Hildebrand and Camille Henry gave the Rangers their win over Chicago. Max Bentley, said to the Rangers by Toronto this year, got the Hawks' goal. Gus Mortson scored the third.

The Black Hawks staged after the first period in Toronto Saturday night. Harry Watson and Bob Solinger set up goals for Ted Hinton and Sid Smith and Ted Sloan added the others.

Vic Lynn and Biff Gadsby counted for Chicago.

Maurice Richard scored the 350th goal of his NHL career as the Canadiens downed Jack Red Wings in Montreal. Tom Johnson, Ken Reardon and Bert Harvey tallied the others. Alec Delvecchio scored Detroit's goal.

When Terry Sawchuk was removed from the game with his knee injury the Red Wings sprung Rons (Leftv) Wilson, 5-year-old assistant trainer who practises with the team after play begins. He's used frequently in exhibition games. He had only four shots to handle.

England Victor Over Wales 4-1

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)—Three snap goals in three minutes gave England a 4-1 victory today against Wales in an international soccer game watched by 61,000 fans at Ninian Park, Cardiff.

Welsh inside-left Ivor Allchurch scored the first goal for Wales after play began. But then, after 11 minutes from the interval, left-half Alf Sherwood rallied with England's Tommy Finney and had to be taken off the field. With the Welsh defence weakened, Tommy Wilshaw, inside-left, equalized for England just before half-time.

When play resumed, Wilshaw quickly headed another to put England ahead 2-1.

Nat Lofthouse, giant England centre-forward, then landed two goals in the Welsh net in the following two minutes.

SUDBURY WHIPS SCOTLAND

NORTH BAY (CP) — Sudbury Tech Blue Devils Saturday won their fourth straight Northern Ontario secondary school football victory by downing North Bay Scotland Hall Golden Bears 20-10.

The win practically assured Sudbury of a berth in the Red Feather tournament in Toronto.

Wings' Rookie Keeps Pace With Scoring Leaders

MONTREAL (CP) — No sooner have the boys again got the feel of sticks, skates and bone-jarring bodychecks than the National Hockey League's list of top point-getters once more reads like who's who in Detroit.

In the league's first official compilation this season, released today, four Detroit Red Wings are at the top. It's almost axiomatic that Gordie Howe is No. 1 man in the parade.

Into such select and long-established company as Howe, Ted Lindsay and Red Kelly has come a sprightly young rookie, Earl (Dutch) Reibel. The youngster has matched Howe's goal totals, but the NHL scoring champ ranks first because he has two goals along with his assists. The left centre man of the Detroit production line has made his contributions evenly with assists—six of them.

Kelly, the Red Wings' high-scoring defenseman, and Lindsay have counted two goals and two assists apiece for four points. Next cousined of Montreal Canadiens is tied with them with his four assists.

Tops In Goals

The man currently with the most goals is Montreal's ace sniper, Maurice Richard, who has five goals. His NHL-career total now stands at 350, a record beaten just as often as Monsieur Richard bags himself a goal.

Then Dick Richard at three points in the early-season play are Frankie Eddelkrand of New York Rangers, Ted Sloan of Toronto Maple Leafs and Gaetan Duchesne, Bill Gadsby of Chicago Black Hawks.

All the leaders have appeared in three games except Eddelkrand and Sloan, whose teams have been in only two games.

Detroit and Montreal head the league standing with two wins and one loss in as many games.

The Bruins, the Leafs and the Rangers follow with two points each.

Chicago Black Hawks, who got away to a fast start last season, have taken three beatings in as many games and are last.

Sugar Jim Henry of Boston Bruins allowed only one goal in the Bruins' single game and currently is boss man among the goalies with a goals-against average of 1.00.

Bombers Lose Tom Ford

WINNIPEG (CP)—Halfback Tom Ford has been lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the remainder of the 1953 Western Interprovincial Football League season.

Club doctors Monday said Ford suffered a ruptured kidney injury Saturday and may possibly "be out of football for life."

Ford was hurt when struck by the knee of a Saskatchewan Roughrider player in the fourth quarter of a game Bombers lost 18-13.

The 26-year-old speedster, now General Hospital, formerly played with Toronto Argonauts, Balmy Beach, Navy and Indians in the east before coming to Winnipeg in 1950.

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Baltimore Orioles aren't worried about their first season in the American League. They expect to sell around $500,000 worth of tickets by opening day. But they realize they will face trouble the second year unless they have a greatly improved ball club, plus some color, and that was why they made their unsuccessful bid for Vic Wertz, whose lavish trading pulled the Chicago White Sox out of the doldrums.

Actually, some of the members of the Baltimore group would have favored Wertz, but Phillie fans need such a go-getter and showman to tide them over during the rebuilding process. They know that the attendance record Veeck set at Cleveland in 1948 still stands.

"But we can't sign him," one of them said, "because the group of owners who hate him got it down in writing that we couldn't before they agreed to let us have the franchise."

Scouting the minor leagues is a sad story these days. Billy Myers, the former Pittsburgh pilot who now is heading the bushes for the same club with trouble shooting for Branch Rickey.

"When I go into a town nowadays what I run into is some sort of giveaway night. Maybe it's dishes the country.

"And the kids I talk with—all they're thinking about is how big a bonus they can get. They're not interested in just playing baseball the way we used to be."

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

For some reason or other, we've always been on the side of the underdog, no matter what the sport. Yes would hardly call Ted Williams, the Boston Sox Homerun hitter, an underdog, especially if you recalled his salary. But we were griped, on occasional visits to the Boston ball-park, by the almost vicious fashion in which Williams was greeted when he fielded a ball, or came to bat. We never understood why such a truly great athlete should receive such scant treatment, and till it a tribute to Williams' courage, and tenacity, that he should continue to star in the face of such unfriendliness.

Perhaps it will be different in coming seasons for the splendid Sprinter, as the tall, slim batter has been termed, now that he is definitely a war hero. We hope so particularly after hearing a story that came out of the west coast, after Williams landed there on his return from Korea.

He came from Hawaii on a transport plane on which there were two bunks for sleeping.

When told Williams was on that plane, a serviceman is said to have cracked: "I know who'll be in one of those bunks when the plane lands."

After the plane landed, a sports writer picked up a hitchhiking sailor who had come from Hawaii on the same plane.

"What sort of man is Williams?" the writer asked.

"A completely right guy," was the answer.

"What did he do?" prodded the writer.

"Well, he came aboard with an armful of magazines and dropped them around for us to pick up and read."

"Where did he sleep?"

"He just piled on the floor with the rest of us."

And from Washington, D.C., we got another Ted Williams story that belies the claim that he's indifferent to requests, gruff and disobliging.

A baseball fan named Jim McNally, a great admirer of Williams, wrote Ted asking for a couple of autographs for himself and his son, Jim Jr., former Washington-Lee High School sports star. Ted responded with two signed photos just three days after the request. Like Ted, both the McNallys are ex-Marines.

Williams was Captain Williams of the US Marines. He took no leave, as he flew back from the battle front, than was available for all others, enlisted or otherwise, so we feel pretty sure we're not alone in hoping that Captain Ted Williams regains the eye, his swing and his speed quickly enough to hit .400 for the Boston Red Sox in the years to come, a hope that seems well grounded, for he was clouting off home runs in his former brilliant fashion, soon after rejoining his club.

Grid Season Fools Experts As Underdogs Rise To Smite Favored Teams

Larks Unsaddle Riders Twice To Climb Into 1st Place Tie; Cats, Argos Split Weird Duo

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Thirteen senior football games were played during the Thanksgiving week-end on fields from Montreal to Edmonton and the results pointed up one thing: This national autumn pastime will drive you crazy.

Here are some of the reasons: Edmonton Eskimos, said the experts last August, hadn't a chance in the Western Interprovincial Football Union. So the still-T Eskimos, all year long a scrambled Calgary Stampeders 36-15 and 32-6 for victories Nos. 10 and 11 in their first place tie and a spot in the western final.

Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, with a bunch of newcomers to the Canadian game, were a big question mark last August. "Wait until next year" was the pre-season theme. What happened? The Als whip Ottawa Rough Riders 34-4 and 26-12 and now share the lead with Hamilton.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats mauled Toronto Argonauts 36-2 at Toronto on Saturday and Argonaut fans just about cried the Double Blues out of Grey Cup contention. But Argonauts, sometimes called the New York Yankees of Canadian football, tamed the Bengals 30-13 at Hamilton Thanksgiving Day.

Flichock On Field

Back to the WIFU: Saskatchewan Roughriders whipped the Blue Bombers 16-13 at Winnipeg on Saturday and made it a double with a 14-13 decision at Regina on Monday. And they did it with coach Frankie Filchock handling his team from the quarterback slot in place of the injured Glenn Dobbs.

The Thanksgiving football festival made it almost certain that the Bombers and Roughriders will meet in the two-game total-point semi-final playoff series and that Calgary will "wait until next year" to get back into the Grey Cup race.

Each club has three more games to finish the schedule and Stampeders are six points behind Roughriders and Bombers.

The situation isn't as simple as that in the Big Four. Montreal and Hamilton are tied for the lead with 18 points each, two up on Toronto and Ottawa. Each team has five games left.

Things Are Levelling Off

Things are levelling off in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who entered the league this season after a 25-year absence, beat every other team in eight starts—a game but they now hold only a two-point lead over Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach.

Imps Trip Dutchmen

The Dutchmen had things their own way with a 36-5 decision over the winless Redmen at Stratford Friday night to start off the weekend activity but the Imps, former OHFU champions, knocked them over 23-6 on Monday. And Hamilton, who usually have a tough time picking up point against Sarnia, whipped the Imperials 16-12 at Toronto Sunday.

Alex Webster, playing his first year of Canadian football, tore the Ottawa line to shreds Saturday in the Als' first victory. John O'Quinn, Jim Miller and Phil Adrian scored for the Montreal mainers. Ray Poole kicked a field goal and two converts. Tex Coulter booted two singles and was credited with a safety touch. Gene (Choo Choo) Ross scored the Ottawa touchdown and converted it.

O'Quinn, Webster and Chuck Hunsinger took passes from Rae Eicherwerry for touchdowns Sunday for the Als. Poole kicked two field goals and was credited with a safety touch. For the Rough Riders, Avatus Stone took a Tom O'Malley pass for one major and Roberts tipped the Montreal line for another. Roberts also booted two field goals.

Vito Ragazzo, Royal Bailey and Lou Kusserow connected for touchdowns for Hamilton Saturday. Tiger-Cats counted on field goal and three converts. Cam Fraser kicked two singles and Merle Hapes got another. Quincy Armstrong earned a safety touched.

Hobby Does Trick

Bobby Wirkowski fired touchdown passes for Argonauts Sunday to Al Bruno, Hal Faverty, Uly Curtis and Joe Scudero. Bob Hoby made three converts good. Curtis went over for the Argos' fifth touch. Minnerow and Bernie Custis registered majors for Hamilton with Logan converting both.

An 83-yard touchdown dash by Dick Gregory sparked Beachey victory over Sarnia Sunday. He also converted his major and kicked a field goal. Quarter Bob Scheidenback went over for the other Toronto major, Jack Glendenning and Bobby Lee scored unconverted majors for Sarnia.

Eric McKeever, Bobby Lee and John Florence rolled for Sarnia touchdowns against Kitchener. McKelvie kicked a field goal and three converts and Kusts roughed one for Lee. Andy Gilmore scored the Kitchener touchdown, converted by Ron Tracey.

Listowel Trims Bowmanville 10-3

LISTOWEL, Ont. (CP)—George Arlein, a Windsor sandlot product, scored Listowel touchdowns in a 10-3 win over Bowmanville Rosebuds in the first of the finals for the OBA Intermediate B championship.

The lanky second baseman exploded two home runs while registering a perfect day at bat with five hits in five trips to the plate. Shortstop Bob Childs collected four safeties in five appearances, including a double. But his error on Bob Gallagher's bounder paved the way for all three Bowmanville tallies in the fifth frame.

BULLDOGS WIN

NORTH BAY (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs of the OHA Senior A series Monday night defeated North Bay Trappers of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group 4-2 in an exhibition game.

Senior All-Stars Edge Dutchies In First Game

KITCHENER (CP)—The OHA Senior A All-Stars edged the Allan Cup champion Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 6-5 in the league's first all-star hockey game here Monday night.

The Dutchmen scored first with Scholes slipping in a pass from Sam Kennedy and Don Roff. The All-Stars came back with quick goals by Joe Carveth and Ferguson, but the Dutchies drew even for a first-period tie with Gerry Theberg netting.

John Muretich scored early in the second period for Kitchener but Ronnie Oberholtzer counted twice to put the Stars in the lead as the period ended.

Terry Lashuk and Art Hurst each got a goal for the Dutchmen in the three minutes of the third period but All-Star George Allen evened the score at 5-5 at the 19:36 mark. Tommy Burlington came through with the winner at the 19:43 mark.

Joe Nolan Gets Credit

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, 1953-53 OHA Senior A champions, 1952-53 Allan Cup winners, defeated Louisville Stars of the International Hockey League 6-2 in an exhibition game here Saturday.

After being held to a 1-1 tie in the first period, Kitchener scored three unanswered goals in the second and added another two in the third before Louisville counted their final pair.

Leading point-getters were Harry Pavlka and Gerry Theberge of the Dutchies and Joe Nolan of Louisville. Each notched a goal and an assist.

Mustangs Rally to Defeat Varsity As Golden Gaels Edge Redmen 13-12

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The jinx that has thwarted University of Toronto Blues from defeating University of Western Ontario Mustangs in senior intercollegiate football competition since 1938 hold good again Saturday as the Mustangs surged from behind for a 13-12 verdict.

Saturday's verdict at Little Memorial Stadium, London, put the Mustangs alone in first place with four points, two up on the Blues, McGill Redmen, and Queen's Golden Gaels. Queen's edged the Redmen 13-12 at Kingston Saturday.

Varsity just ran out of gas Saturday after leading 10-0 at half time on touchdowns by Bob Flaherty and Phil Muntz. Then Western found themselves and tallied two touchdowns, both converted, and a single. Gino Fracas counted both majors and kicked the converts.

At Kingston, Frank Geard, outstanding kicker for the Tricolor, booted a single near the end to break Otts deadlock. Jack Cook took a forward from Wally Mellor neatly to Baltimore, which moves and romped for a touchdown for the Gaels early in the game. Gary Schreider converted. In the second period the Redmen tied it on a pass from quarter Les Shaw to George Klein. Fred Wilmot kicked the extra point.

Ron Stewart counted the second Queen's major and Schreider converted it. In the third quarter Herb English plunged over from the one-yard line for a McGill major which wasn't converted. Ken Wright kicked the tying point in the finale before Geard pulled the game out of the fire for the home team.

Land Big 'Uns Out Sasky Way

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—The biggest fish caught in Saskatchewan waters this year were bigger than ever before.

Results of the 1953 Saskatchewan anglers derby announced Monday showed that in five of the nine classes, 1953 winning entries were all-time highs.

The largest fish, a 43-pound lake trout, was taken by A. J. Rudolph of Rice, Minn., from Lac La Ronge. Harvey W. Schulte, Gary, S. D., landed the best northern pike, a 30-pounder caught in east trout lake. A 13½-pound pickerel caught by Dave Schneider, Burrtall Sask., in the South Saskatchewan river, topped the previous mark for the species by 2½ pounds.

Bobo's Manager Sees Turpin Movies, Predicts Olson 'Will Toss Too Many'

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—"Bobo will throw too many punches for him" says Sid Flaherty, manager of middleweight champion.

"Bobo throws punches all the way, three minutes every round," says Sid. "Ten rounds, 15 rounds, he will be in there throwing all the time.

"Turpin will have to hustle a lot more than he did with Humez if he expects to beat Bobo. Even if he does I feel Bobo will win."

Flaherty made his comments Monday after watching a movie of the June Randy Turpin-Charles Humez fight shown for the benefit of American and British sports writers and the fight mob.

Dull, Easy Win

As was reported at the time from London, the pictures showed Turpin winning easily but without brilliance in a dull contest.

Whether Turpin has more to offer or has slipped since his second and lasting fight to Ray Robinson two years ago is the big question.

That will be answered a week from Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden when Turpin and Olson battle for the middleweight throne vacated by Robinson.

Asked whether he plans to show Olson the pictures, Flaherty shook his head.

Always In Shape

"I dont believe in that," he said. "Any good fighter should be able to adjust himself to style of his opponent in a couple of rounds. Bobo is a good boxer. He'll know what to do. To me training means one thing—get the fighter into condition. Bobo is always in condition and he'll stay that way."

In the movie, we saw Turpin let Humez with an occasional good right to the British Empire champion's midriff. "My, that was a saucy right."

Said Sid with a chuckle, "he (Olson) will have to watch out for that 'saucy' right."

North Bay Trims Walkerton 3-1 For 'A' Title

NORTH BAY (CP)—North Bay Garland Pepsis Monday gave the north its first all-Ontario intermediate A fastball championship in 12 years when they defeated Walkerton Hartleys 3-1.

The Pepsis won the best-of-three series over the defending champions 2-1. They lost the first game Saturday night but won the second Sunday morning 10-1.

A 12th inning home run by right-fielder Holly (Cuggie) Gauthier with one man aboard gave the Pepsis their win today.

'Peanut Boy' Buys Club

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—As a boy of 14, Martin D. Haxke sold peanuts in the Syracuse Chiefs' baseball park. Nineteen years later he's the owner of the money-troubled International League club.

Haxke announced during the week-end that he has purchased the Chiefs from William F. Hofmann Jr. He said the club will continue to operate here and will have a working agreement next season with Philadelphia Phillies.

He termed the purchase, at an undisclosed price, the "realization of an ambition."

Sport in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Boxing Association made it official Monday: There isn't a heavyweight fighter in Rocky Marciano's class.

For the first time since Joe Louis was in his prime, the NBA left a big blank in the "logical contender" slot now among the heavyweights.

The NBA's fall ratings gave the same vote of confidence to Jimmy Carter, the world middleweight champion. No logical contender was reported in sight in that division.

Roland LaStarza, who was right behind Marciano in the heavyweight ratings, slumped to third place among the heavyweight division's outstanding boxers as a result of his technical knockout loss to the champion last month.

Moving ahead of LaStarza were Dan Buccerone of Philadelphia and former champion Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati. Nino Valdez of Cuba got a fourth-place listing among the obstructing boxers.

The NBA limited ultimatums to two champions to defend their titles or risk losing their crowns. These warnings went to Archie Moore, the light - heavyweight champion, and Percy Bassett, who holds the interim featherweight title while titlist Sandy Saddler is in the army.

Most cluttered division was the middleweight, where the title has been vacant since the retirement of Sugar Ray Robinson. The 1-2 logical contenders, Randy Turpin and Carl (Bobo) Olson, fight for the championship Dec. 9.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs of the OHA Senior A series Sunday suffered their first defeat on their northern exhibition tour by taking a 4-0 blanking from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group.

Danny O'Connor, Henry Backor, Hub Macey and Ken Greene scored the goals.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group and Windsor Bulldogs, new entry in the OHA Senior A series, fought to a 2-2 draw in an exhibition game Saturday night.

Lyle Stasiuk scored both Greys scored for Windsor. Ronnie Lay and Roy Hextmer counted for the Greyhounds.

newcomers to Sydney Millionaires of the Maritime Major Hockey League arrived here Sunday.

They are: John Kubenic, a centre from Fort William; Ray LaCroix, rightwinger who played last year with Valleyfield Braves, and Roger Guay, last year with Quebec Junior Citadelles.

NEW YORK (CP)—Earl Sande, making a rubber-arm comeback at the age of 54, finished fourth on the Calumet Trigger in the first race at Jamaica Monday.

The six-furlong event was won by Fighting Wire, with Eric Guerin aboard, with Abe Saltzman's Royal Rebel second, nearly a length back.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Are comedians born or made?

They're born, says Bert Lahr, a comic of the old school.

In Lahr's case, the old school was burlesque, but not the kind that is found in decrepit theatres today.

"Burlesque was clean in those days," he recalled. "There was no such thing as the strip-tease. I can remember seeing signs backstage that warned actors would be fined $10 if they used blue material. And I played one house in Omaha that advertised 'We want women.' The place was packed with women at the matinee."

Although burlesque and vaudeville were good training grounds for comedians, Lahr thought the real funny men were born that way.

"I mean the real comics — the clowns," he explained. "The real comic is one who 'can come on and say 'hello' and make the audience laugh at him. Bobby Clark and Ed Wynn can do it. You can't name many more.

"The trouble with most present-day comedians is that they're all alike. They stand up and tell jokes. That's all they do, and they're only as funny as the jokes that are written for them.

"Back in the old days of Broadway, each comic had his own style. A new one would come up perhaps every five years, but he would be certain to be unique. Men like W. C. Fields, Bobby Clark, Ed Wynn, Raymond Hitchcock, Richard Carle — each had a style of his own.

"About the only newcomer who has shown an original comic style is Jerry Lewis."

Lahr admitted the future is dark for spawning great new comics. Vaudeville has vanished. As for burlesque—"too much filth." TV offers some opportunity; he cited Jackie Gleason and Red Buttons as bright possibilities. But Lahr feels that TV can burn out a comedian.

I observed that comedy is also taking a back seat in Hollywood, now that the film makers are concentrating on big epics for the large screens. Oddly enough, Lahr wasn't as pessimistic about movie comedy.

"Movies haven't been a comedian's medium," he observed. "They started out to be in the early days when comedies reigned supreme. But then audiences got more concerned with the lovers in plot stories, and the comedian fell into the background.

"However, I don't think comedy with a lot in big screens. The laughs will be bigger, that's all. When I saw 'The Robe,' I noticed there was one big laugh in it. It was just a simple line, but it drew a big reaction. That showed me that audiences are eager to laugh."

AT THE BELLE—Paramount's laugh-laden "Stalag 17", starring William Holden, Don Taylor and Otto Preminger, is continuing at the Belle Theatre. Life Magazine says—Emerges as one of the finest comedy dramas out of Hollywood this year.

AT THE McCARTHY — The sly "Desert Fox" Rommel, again portrayed by James Mason finds that his blitzkrieg technique isn't invincible for the first time, a happy portent of things to come, in "The Desert Rats" new Twentieth Century-Fox battle spectacle delineating the heroic defence of Tobruk, now playing at Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Representing the Allied viewpoint in the desert are Richard Burton and Robert Newton, who share stellar billing in the Robert L. Jacks-Robert Wise venture.

THE REGENTS

Hats off to the Regent Juniors Theatre management and coach, To all the umpires and the fans Who watched their fame approach.

Each time a game was planned The players were all there, What happened to Belleville Baseball Club The bleachers were so bare!

It seemed from where I sat And watched them play the game, They gave their very best Why didn't we do the same.

From the section in the East The victorry was won, That plucky little team did : A job that was well done.

But when they met the Crawfords The battle it was rough, The Crawfords won it in two straights For Regents it was tough.

The score was eight to one And Crawfords got the cheer, But our famous little Regents Will fight again next year.

The Kibitzer

If you can laugh at tragedy, some of the things that happen in a bridge game are really funny. It's on thinking of what happened in the deal spread out here:

NORTH
♠A 5
♥A K 4 3
♦A K 3
♣Q 8 3

WEST EAST
♠K J 7 6 ♠Q 10
♥10 9 8 7 6 ♥Q
♦None ♦10 9 8 5 4 2
♣7 ♣K 9 7 5

SOUTH
♠4 3 2
♦Q 7 3 2
♣A 10 8 6 4

The players bid it like this!

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 S	Dbl	5 S
5 C	6 H	Dbl	6 S
7 C	Dbl	Dbl	Dbl
Pass	Pass	7 D	Dbl

Most of the bids in this list could be criticized. The first north double was premature. South should have passed it even though it is barely defensive with a fast heart lead.

East is justified in going five spades over the north double of five hearts. He must like it back to the first suit bid by his partner. This co-operation is suggestive of him.

Where south gets the idea of bidding six diamonds is something to take to a psychoanalist. To come up with such a bid the player had to dig pretty deep into the bag of imagination.

Having doubled four spades for penalty it seems odd that north should not double six in the same suit. His going to seven clubs as a substitute is a little out of reason, to say the least.

How north can go to seven diamonds is something more to have about. South's bidding shows more clubs than diamonds. It looks as if it would be safer in clubs, not seeing opponent hands.

Laugh at the bidding and have a time with. Number is the west end of the club jack. He thought he next double called for a lead of that suit. Still funnier is the fact that seven diamonds made easily.

Would you bet it can not? Don't be funny.

American Student Editor Describes Visit to Russia

Six months ago, three young American student editors asked Moscow if we could be visit the Soviet Union. To their amazement, they were granted. In September, Lark Emerson of the University of Colorado, Daniel Berger of Oberlin College and Lewis Gould Jaffe of the University of Michigan flew off for two weeks in Russia. Here is Mr. Jaffe's story of what he saw.)

Written For AP Newsfeatures
By ZANDER HOLLANDER

NEW YORK (AP)—An American in Russia feels he's in another world.

In the two weeks I spent there, I was never allowed to forget the Iron Curtain.

We toured Moscow's busy, wide streets frequently. Leaving the Hotel National, I noticed the frowning MVD militia men stationed around the clock at the door. Their eyes followed in our rubber-necking tours, but MVD guns showed up often. They wore long, heavy blue overcoats with red epaulets, and gentle wrist widths at their hips.

Once, at a state-owned market off Gorki Street, I took a picture of a crowd of Muscovites elbowing determinedly for a chance to buy scarce Ukrainian melons. Seconds later, an MVD man avowed up, asked to see our passports, and we couldn't take pictures. We argued that the tourist bureau had given us permission. He finally checked and came back to apologize. The crowd seemed to be marvel that we got away with it.

Tedious Procedure

From what I could see, Muscovites spend many non - working hours waiting in lines. In my one experience, I queued up with them for bread, butter, which was rare, and candy, which was rubbery. For each of the three items, I had to line up three times.

First, you line up to find out what they're selling and how much. Then you line up to get a purchase ticket from the cashier. You'll see when you pay. Then you get in a third line to get what you just paid for.

After dark, I saw many Russians return to slum homes, hidden behind an ill-kept facade of massive buildings. I looked into lighted windows on people living four or five to one dreary room.

We found the new Moscow state university a gleaming, imperious monolith atop Lenin hills. It looked opulent. Most of the 17,000 students we found, were there on scholarship. Some get preference by putting in two years of voluntary labor in the construction of the school, opened last month.

In Moscow's state library we noticed reading rooms well stocked with American and British scientific journals and bulletins from the United States departments of agriculture and commerce.

Distorted Picture

Judging by their conversations with us, the average Russian gets a picture of the U. S. painted in broad strokes of poverty, bankruptcy and oppression for the worker and farmer and of great wealth and power for the "bourgeoisie" and capitalists.

During a stormy argument in a Ukrainian schoolroom, we tried to make some sturdy collective farmers understand how American farmers have prospered in recent years. I saw them smile. They didn't believe us.

Still, in less arguments, there were times when we Americans seemed to be getting through to some of them at present. We could tell when we were beginning to gain—the unhappiness party-liners quickly changed the subject.

In such discussions, the Iron Curtain was not completely rigid. It was more like self-sealing tire, closing off the leak before any real damage was done.

STUDENTS WELCOME

LONDON (CP)—Thirty-six Canadian engineering graduates, in Britain to take up the Athlone Fellowships inaugurated two years ago, attended an "Introduction to Britain" program before beginning studies at engineering firms and universities.

$50,000 ROBBERY

SPOKANE (AP) — Two well-dressed, red-haired men robbed a market of $50,000 Sunday. The men took $30,000 in cash and $20,000 in cheques from the low cost market. The money was week-end receipts.

Democrat Named To Senate Post Held by Taft

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio Governor Frank J. Lausche Monday appointed Thomas A. Burke, Democratic mayor of Cleveland, to the senate post left vacant by the death of Senator Robert A. Taft. Burke is the Cleveland democrat on the Senate with 48 Democrats, 46 Republicans and one Independent.

The appointment gives the deciding vote to vice-president Richard M. Nixon should a Senate vote result in a deadlock.

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon is the only Republican in the bipartisan ticket but later bolted the party. Since Taft's death last July 31, Morse has been voting Republican on policy matters.

Governor Lausche also is a Democrat.

Burke won the election for mayor in 1945, 1947, 1949 and 1951, serving longer than any other mayor in the city's history.

The church was becomingly decorated with baskets and vases of autumn flowers. The service was opened with quiet music by Mrs. W. S. Harry. Then the congregation stood and sang: "Holy, Holy, Holy", while the choir walked up the aisle to their seats in the organ loft, singing as they came. The lesson, was found in Hebrews and Rev. MacKenzie's sermon was on "Faith" — "for without Faith, we can do nothing". The choir supplied two anthems: "Joy" and "He Lives".

The evening service was held with the Rev. S. E. Larman of Hallaway - Church, Belleville, being the guest speaker. The service opened with quiet music by Mrs. Glen Sickle. Then the choir came up the aisle and all sang: "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow", followed by prayer by Rev. Puttenham. The hymn, "Day Is Dying In The West" was sung in unison. The scripture reading was found in John 3:1-16. The choir gave an anthem, "Praise The Lord Most High".

Next Sunday is to be "Communion" Sunday at Johnstown. Mr. Puttenham welcomed Mr. Larman to Johnstown. The choir sang an anthem, "Who Is Like Unto Our Glory"? Rev. Larman's text was: "What After the Anniversary? Anniversaries are good things but of something good does not come of it, what good are they? Our love must become active. We must not be against having the glow of the time to pass after they are over."

A fine day of service was fittingly ended by singing, "The Day Thou Gavest, Lord, Is Ended." A goodly number attended both services. The anniversary supper is to be held on the 14th of October in the Acme Hall.

Mrs. T. Rolston, B.C. Minister, Dies of Cancer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Tilly Rolston, 62, the first Canadian woman to hold a cabinet portfolio, died in hospital here Monday night. She was operated on Sept. 26 for cancer and had been in critical condition since.

Mrs. Rolston was appointed minister of education in the British Columbia cabinet in 1952 after Social Credits first victory at the polls.

Before that, she had sat in the legislature as a Progressive Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member for 10 years. She represented Vancouver-Point Grey.

Crossed The Floor

In 1951 Mrs. Rolston quit the coalition and sat as an Independent, joining W. A. C. Bennett who made the same move three weeks previously.

Mrs. Rolston and Mr. Bennett later joined the Social Credit party. Mr. Bennett became B. C.'s first Social Credit premier.

In the June 9 election this year, Mrs. Rolston lost her seat to Liberal leader Arthur Laing but Premier Bennett persuaded her to continue as education minister. It was reported that the government planned to hold a by-election to seat Mrs. Rolston.

Female Women's Rattles

Mrs. Rolston was well known for her vigorous battles in the House on behalf of women. She was largely responsible for a government decision to allow manufacturers to color margarine.

She introduced the Rolston forbills for financing education, a controversial bill which caused the Social Credit government to be defeated on the floor of the House last March.

Mrs. Rolston is survived by one son, two married daughters, eight grandsons and one grand daughter.

Britain to Launch Southeast Asia Council Scheme

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Britain soon will launch a project for an allied defence, and economic council in Southeast Asia, diplomatic officials reported Tuesday.

They said it is clear the only way for an eventual wider Pacific alliance, linking countries in terms of defence and economic co-operation.

Prime Minister Churchill is understood to be sponsoring the project personally. At his core would be such Commonwealth countries as India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand. Eventually the aim would be to enrol the United States, France, possibly Japan and other countries in the area.

In Planning Stage

Although still in its planning stage, the foreign office has been directing out some countries about the idea, an informant said.

The information was sent as Field Marshal Sir John Harding, chief of the Imperial general staff, headed for Canberra to meet Australian and New Zealand military heads. Representatives of the three countries are due to discuss all aspects of military defence in the Pacific. They will dwell, in particular, on the future role of the Australian-New Zealand-United States (Anzus) security alliance from Japan's British, against her will, was barred.

The regular flying time is 18 hours.

The company's spokesman said the flight carried 36 passengers, a crew of nine and 3,000 pounds of freight.

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Except for patches of cloud over Hudson Bay and along the east coast, all of Canada and the U.S. had clear skies this morning. Temperatures in Ontario varied from 21 at Killaloe to 34 at London and 47 at Kapuskasing.

Warm and somewhat drier air will overlay this district. A continuation of fine autumn weather is expected today and Thursday.

FRANKFURT, Germany (CP)— A Belgian airliner crashed in flames just after takeoff from here today and all 40 persons aboard were killed.

There had been earlier reports that the twin-engined Convair was carrying 48 persons. But the operators, Sabena Airlines, announced in Brussels that there were 40 persons—36 passengers and four crew—aboard when it crashed near the village of Kelsterbach, about two miles from Frankfurt airport.

An eyewitness said the aircraft crashed and burned shortly after clearing the runway. The plane was bound for Brussels. It had arrived here earlier from Salzburg, Austria.

The crash was not far from the spot where two British airliners likewise went down March 22, 1952, killing 43 in what was until now Germany's worst air disaster.

Two children were reported to have been among the passengers who died in today's crash.

Police, firemen and ambulances raced to the scene of the accident but when they reached the spot there was nothing they could do.

Chessbrough's bus plunged into a canal from the highway after collision with a stalled truck. The charge against him was reduced from manslaughter, after a preliminary hearing at Morrisburg last week.

He has chosen to be tried by a judge without a jury.

HAMILTON (CP)—Two elderly sisters died in hospital here after they were struck by a car Tuesday night.

Miss Ellen Dow, 79, died after being admitted to the hospital and her sister, Florence Bryce, 73, died one hour and 40 minutes later.

Police said the two women were returning home from a bible meeting at Centenary United Church.

Constable Shiba Ban said the car was driven by Howard Crofley, 67, of Hamilton.

The sisters were struck just after they had alighted from a bus shortly before and were crossing the street, police said. Florence Bryce was struck by a car driven by Howard C. Crofley, 67, of Hamilton, with reckless and careless driving.

Boston Barber's Son Not Interested In Whether His Bride Is Princess

NAGOYA, Japan (Reuters)—A Boston air force man's romance with a Japanese princess touched off a flurry of frontpage controversy in Japan today over the question of whether or not the girl is a royal princess.

But the person least interested in the argument was Sgt. Peter de Tefano, son of a Boston barber, told reporters that he met Michiko while he was teaching English conversation here.

"I did not know she was a princess until after I proposed. And I don't really care one way or another," he said. She told him her family lost all their titles and property after the war.

Japanese imperial household officials promptly said they knew nothing of the story.

Imperial household officials said there were two daughters of former Japanese princes named Michiko. One was the 26-year-old third daughter of former Prince Kuni and the other was a daughter of former Prince Kayo, 30.

Both princes were brothers of Emperor Hirohito, but lost their titles after the war. They both married commoners.

Some Japanese newspapers suggested that Michiko might be a member of the family of former Prince Takatsukasa, a member of one of the oldest lines of Japanese nobility but no relation to the emperor.

Several newspapers and news agencies said thorough investigation did not seem to substantiate her alleged relationship with the royal family.

British Guiana Workers Burn Canefields

See Economic Distress Result of Destruction

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—Smoke from burning canefields hung over Georgetown today, pointing up a threat of economic distress to this troubled British colony.

Fires blazed on at least two nearby sugar plantations after workers walked out in protest against the British courier of government ministers from the colony's left-wing People's Progressive party.

With strikes paralyzing or slowing most of the sugar industry, British Guiana's principal source of income, observers predicted the pinch would come soon. Business men already complain of a drastic drop in trade.

Britain kicked out Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and five other People's Progressive ministers last Thursday, charging they were plotting to turn British Guiana into a Communist state. The party replied by calling a general strike. So far only the sugar workers have responded.

Governor Bans Strikes

Governor Sir Alfred Savage invoked his emergency powers Tuesday night to keep the walkouts from spreading. He banned strikes by transport, shipping, harbor, communication, port rail and public utility workers.

The governor has other emergency powers granted him by London to deal with the situation. Those include the right to make arrests without warrants, to search premises, building of vehicles, and the censorship of press and radio.

Mills Close

The canefield fires were set on two plantations about 10 miles east of Georgetown. One mill closed after its workers walked out but the second was grinding with makeshift crews replacing regular workmen.

Only one mill in the Georgetown area operated normally. Two were closed down by the strike Monday and 11 others were grinding only with skeleton crews of key workers to operate the machinery.

British officials today lifted through control the People's Progressive Party documents which police say connect the party with an affiliation with several international Communist groups.

The documents were taken Tuesday in raids on PPP headquarters and the homes of about 40 party leaders.

One Dissenting Voice

At a meeting of the Georgetown council Tuesday night, PPP chairman Dr. Jagan was the only one in lone dissenting vote against a resolution supporting Governor Alfred Savage and the action of the council's loyalty to the Queen.

He said "God has no necessity for pledging my co-operation to the governor," Burnham declared. "And my loyalty to the Queen must be taken for granted."

Meanwhile Shiba Ban was seen in Georgetown—far larger than any ever reported in Japan—receiving a respectful attention Tuesday night as the Roley Welsh Fusiliers band played "God Save the Queen."

The Guianese flocked to a procession of band music by the British troops.

London Parley May Determine Next Move in Trieste Dispute

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles flies to London tonight for conferences with what determine the next move by the United States and Great Britain in the explosive Trieste dispute with Yugoslavia.

U.S. officials said there is plenty of time to seek a diplomatic solution of the issue in the face of warlike threats by Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito.

The word there is no deadline for removal of about 7,000 British and American troops from zone A of the Trieste territory, which Yugoslavia has said he will counter the shift in occupation troops with force. U.S. and British diplomats alike said it would be two or three months, possibly even longer, before the change is made.

No Emergency

The state department insisted Dulles' trip to London for Big Three foreign ministers' talks, although it came on short notice, was not the result of any sudden emergency.

Dulles, due to leave tonight, conferred for an hour Tuesday with Ambassador Georges Theodore Popovic, who pressed his government's proposals at a meeting of the United States, Britain, Italy, Yugoslavia and France on the Trieste issue in light of the new U.S.-British policy.

That policy, announced six days ago, calls for removal of American and British forces from zone A and giving administration of the zone to Italy. Zone A includes the city of Trieste. Zone B, comprising the rest of the 320-square mile area, is occupied by Yugoslav troops.

Tito's move some scale could result if Tito carried out his threat to march into zone A when Italian troops move in.

Russia's efforts to exploit the Trieste issue in an attempt to make the most of trouble in the loosely organized camp of anti-Soviet nations was apparent here today.

Popovic said Dulles told him he could give an answer on the proposal for a five-power conference because "he has to consult on that issue with the other governments concerned."

Diplomatic informants said they regarded it certain the Yugoslav proposal would be considered at London, and that no decision would be made before that.

There was no indication thus far of any change in the U. S.-British decision to get out of Trieste and proceed, if possible, a direct settlement between Yugoslavia and Italy.

Both Washington and London had anticipated angry protests from Tito.

The Soviets accused the United States and Britain of breaking a commitment in the Italian peace treaty to make Trieste a free international territory under UN protection. Washington and London have contended it was Russian refusal to agree on a governor for such a territory which has compelled them to seek some other solution by direct agreement.

Yugoslavia has also followed the same policy on Trieste as long as Tito was an ally of Moscow. But since the break a year ago, Trieste became of less concern to Russia.

The new developments, however, gave the Kremlin a new opportunity to beat the two Western powers with an old club.

At the UN yesterday, Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky pictured his country as the true champion of a free Trieste. He urged the powerful Security Council meeting to make a "decisive step" toward early agreement for appointment of a Swiss as governor.

Officially, the state department had no comment.

The Trieste problem was not the only subject matter which entered into Dulles' decision to go to London. He is expected to confer there with Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain and Vice-Premier Georges Bidault and probably Prime Minister Churchill.

Although U. S. officials said the sessions had been "in the works" for many days, it was understood that the immediate timing had been agreed upon so suddenly that Dulles cancelled a plan for the week-end.

It was understood that a desire to talk into the Trieste problem, as a means to help cover a new note to Russia about Big Four talks on Germany, were determining factors in the timing.

Police and Pickets Battle Twenty Minutes at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Police, pickets and workers were involved in another the strikebound plant of Wallace Barnes Co. Ltd. today clashed in a 20-minute free-for-all.

The fight was over a seriously hurt. Nearly a score of strikers and others were arrested.

The melee began when two workers attempted to walk through the 200-man picket line. Police were lined up along the edge of the sidewalk, in the area between them and the company gate.

The picket line, composed of members of local 504 United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (Ind.), manhandled the two men and pushed them back.

Police moved in to restore order but were shoved away. Meanwhile other strikers slammed the gate shut, standing with their backs to it to keep police out.

Union officials said "about 20" workers, heeding a back-to-work movement started in the main room, gazy, got through. The company said the plant, shut down for 18 weeks by a wage dispute, would be open today and that workers who did not report would be considered to have quit.

Controller Annoy Pickets

Keeping a promise he made to the union, city controller Sam Lawrence walked on the picket line today. Across the street his ex police chief, Frank Kennedy, conferred with officers of his 70-strong Just Wages Party on their fall begin.

As the pickets pushed the police back they shouted "keep the scabs out"; they milled around Chief Lawrence and Controller Sam Lawrence had left the scene for a minute before the struggle started.

Paddy wagons provided a shuttle service for prisoners, among whom had to be carried spreadeagle fashion to the four vehicles.

George Harris, regional director of the UE sent out a personal message to F. M. Buckingham, president of the company, announcing: "You may have got some workers in, but how you had better get a helicopter. You'll need it to get the springs out." The company manufacturers small ten-sion springs).

Angry Yugoslavs Demonstrate Over Trieste

Storm Capital's Streets Defying West Powers

By ALEX SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP)—Irate Yugoslavs stepped up their anti-Western demonstrations over Trieste as President Tito today awaited the outcome of Big Three talks in London.

With thousands of shouting demonstrators storming Belgrade's streets, the Yugoslav chief assembled his top lieutenants for a conference into the night shortly after it was announced that the foreign ministers of Britain, the U. S. and France would confer Friday in the British capital.

It was thought Tito might be considering sending a special representative to be privy to the Western viewpoint on the ministers. This previously had called for a four-power conference of the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia.

Not Too Happy

There was no official reaction to Russia's surprise demand at the United Nations that the security Council quickly name an active Trieste territory and make Damage was reported extensive in New York, however, described Yugoslavia's UN representative as "indifferent but not too happy" over the proposal.

High Yugoslav officials here continued to warn of serious trouble to come if Britain and America can carry out their plan to give the Allied-occupied zone A of Trieste to Italy.

Tens of thousands of howling, angry demonstrators jammed Belgrade's biggest mass protest so far against the Western decision.

Earlier Tuesday crowds had attacked the British reading room and embassies and Consulates in Zagreb and Yugoslav who entered the U. S. information service headquarters. The USIS director was beaten up Monday.

Division Chief Says Many Drs. Drug Addicts

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. C. A. Roberts, chief of the federal, mental health division, said Tuesday a "considerable number" of Canada's doctors are drug addicts.

He told a meeting of the 53rd annual Congress of Correction of the Canadian Welfare Council that the "serious waste" of provincial-trained men demanded action.

"All physicians addicted in a degree, some in appreciable degree either a personal or marital problem," he said. Some became fatally addicted because of runaway horses or were galloping up and down the road.

The district court with the shrill cries of its frightened horses.

Some were found five to six miles away from the track.

Hubert Soucy, owner of the track, said one of the horses owned by Vic Lutnam, believed to be from Ontario, who lost eight horses and equipment in the fire.

Ed Birch of Smiths Falls, Ont., owned horses and Leonie Brosseau of Montreal also lost three.

Soucy said the half-mile track and grandstand was leased to Maurice Michaud and Donat Simard, both of Montreal, who had operated under the name of Provincial Racetrack Enterprises.

Soucy said that 125 stable hands remained at the track overnight, but the their work in feeding the horses.

15,000 Ontario Paper Workers May Walk Out

TORONTO (CP) — Strike votes among 15,000 Ontario pulp and paper workers will be taken Monday for next Sunday. Indications are there will be only a short time before the deadline for a general strike deadline if the men favor a walkout.

The strike vote call went out after the majority report of a conciliation board in Toronto recommending against any wage increase in the dispute between 11 AFL unions and 40 companies.

Ontario mills now have a 40-hour week and a basic hourly rate of $1.41.

The unions seek a five-per-cent wage increase and a five-polot program of improvement in other conditions of work.

A minority report signed by Professor Vernon Fowke, Regina, recommended the five-per-cent increase, but left the other items for later negotiations.

The last agreement expired last April 30 and negotiations have stretched on since then.

In addition to the wage increase, the unions want the right to accumulate from year to year the annual sick leave of six days up to a maximum of 30 days; uniform vacation with pay benefits among all the companies under contract, and the elimination of certain Sunday work related to the paper-making machines.

30 Race Horses Burned To Death In Montreal Fire

$800,000 Loss at Race Track As Stables, Grandstand Burn

MONTREAL (CP)—A spectacular early-morning fire today destroyed 30 horses in five barns at the Richelieu race track. No one was reported injured.

The horses were trapped when the fire quickly swept through the wooden barns. Approximately 200 horses were freed by trainers and stable hands. The animals galloped into nearby fields and roamed neighboring highways.

Names of the horses destroyed were not immediately known. Most of them were primed harness racers.

The track is located at the eastern end of the island of Montreal, about 14 miles from downtown Montreal. A harness racing meet, in progress for several weeks, was due to end Nov. 1. Owners of the track said that no further races will be run this year.

Loss Set At $800,000

Besides five stables, the fire destroyed most of the track's grandstand and damaged the club house. Damage was estimated at $800,000.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known. Some reports believed it resulted from faulty electrical wiring. The fire broke out in the barn of the trainers were asleep near the stables when some 10 British and American horsemen can carry out their plan to give the Allied-occupied zone A of Trieste to Italy.

Tens of thousands of howling, angry demonstrators jammed Belgrade's biggest mass protest so far against the Western decision.

Earlier Tuesday crowds had attacked the British reading room and embassies and Consulates in Zagreb and Yugoslav who entered the U. S. information service headquarters. The USIS director was beaten up Monday.

Horses Terrified

Trainers and stable boys attempted to free all horses but this proved impossible. In the stables where the fire originated, some horses shied back deep into their stalls when the gates were flung open.

The remains of 13 horses were found in stables where the fire started.

Police stopped traffic across a bridge at the end of the island Montreal because about 40 runaway horses were galloping up and down the road.

The district court with the shrill cries of its frightened horses.

Some were found five to six miles away from the track.

New Spy Plot Hinted in U.S Signal Corps

NEW YORK (AP)—Hints of a dangerous new spy plot today underscored testimony before a Senate sub-committee that a number of top secret army documents are missing.

Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) said Tuesday that his investigations sub-committee was told the documents disappeared two years ago and that some dealt with radar, a key part of U.S. defence against Soviet atomic attack.

The sub-committee is holding closed hearings here into the possible loss of classified information at Ft. Monmouth, N.J., where the U.S. Signal Corps has a laboratory. McCarthy said the probe "definitely involves espionage."

Possible Espionage?

Defence Secretary Charles Wilson, asked Tuesday in Washington if espionage was suspected was involved at Ft. Monmouth or whether the matter concerned security leaks, declared:

"It looks like it might be worse than just a security leak."

The Chicago Tribune today quoted Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.) as saying in a speech Tuesday night that 36 of 77 documents he said were missing from the Ft. Monmouth laboratory were found recently in the Russian zone of Germany. Dirksen allegedly added after his talk that the papers were related to U.S. radar defences.

In Washington, the army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

Lieutenant Testifies

McCarthy, speaking to reporters in New York after Tuesday's executive session, said a former signal corps lieutenant gave testimony about the missing documents.

"If they got into the hands of an enemy," McCarthy said of the documents, "they could be extremely dangerous to this country."

McCarthy would not say whether the documents are missing from Ft. Monmouth or from some other army research unit. McCarthy said the former officer, whose name was not disclosed, provided these additional details about the secret papers:

Search Still On

The general civilian employees of the signal corps asked that a search be made for the missing records. The search started in 1951 and still is continuing.

The certificates of destruction has ever been issued for the documents which are missing. Orders were issued that no papers noted on their contents were destroyed. Even the signatures of two unidentified army officers.

Destruction of classified army documents normally requires the approval of someone in authority, McCarthy said. From this, he said, it can be assumed that originals have not been destroyed if no such certificate has been issued.

SMOKE BACKING UP CAUSES FIRE RUN

Smoke rolling from around the edge of the roof at the rear of the Oddfellows Hall on Front street caused a quick run for the Fire Department this afternoon. The alarm turned out to be nothing more than smoke backing up from the furnace stuffed at the rear of the building and no blaze at all on the roof itself.

The alarm was rung in for the lock company factory on Pinnacle street, the smoke leading observers to believe a blaze had started in the rear of the factory.

RESIDENTS ASKED NOT TO BURN LEAVES ON ROAD

An appeal for citizens to refrain from burning leaves on the pavement or sidewalk was made today by City Engineer Charles Mott. Mr. Mott asked that residents burn leaves in their front lawns and place them in piles at the curb. City trucks will then pick up the leaves.

At the same time the city engineer warned that children should not be allowed to play in the leaves while they are piled at the curb. Serious accidents have occurred when children buried themselves in leaves only to have the pile run over by cars or trucks.

Reserve Army Units to View Film at Theatre

There will be a garrison parade with a theatrical finish in the city tonight.

Members of the city's reserve army units, the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment's battery, Essex 10-98, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment commanded by Lieut.-Col. R. H. Widdifield will parade through the city to the Capitol theatre where they will see the picture "The Desert Rats".

The parade will be headed by the Hasty Pees-military band and possibly the Pipe Band of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment.

"The Desert Rats" is a screen story of the famous Eighth Army under "Monty" when they turned the tide of battle in Africa and gave the vaunted Rommel a lesson from which he never recovered.

The lobby of the McCarthy Theatre is studded by a lot of attention with a number of interesting weapons used in the African and other campaigns of World War II.

Harold Seldon Donates Trophy

A new trophy for Belleville sailors has been donated by Harold Seldon.

The award, to be known as the Harold Seldon Trophy, is to be presented each year to the Sea Cadet unit in the city's annual dinghy racing.

The trophy consists of three silver sailboats mounted on a base which is circled by plaques on which the Sea Cadet unit's name will be inscribed each year.

The award will be presented for the first time at the annual presentation night of the Sea Cadet Corps, Quinte, scheduled for October 22. Three 10-foot dinghies were donated to the unit during the past year and competition during the season was keen.

"In the Bay St Quinte we have the finest body of water for sailing in Ontario," said Mr. Seldon. "In time the railroad was constructed, coming here by the old Battleford trail from Saskatoon.

"In donating this trophy I hope to emphasize the value of recreational values of sailing, and to encourage young people to avail themselves of the great opportunities for good sport which the Bay of Quinte offers."

Pallbearers were Sam Slade, Ralph Walker, George Hamilton, C. E. Walker, Bert Millar and Neil Walker. Interment was made in the North Battleford cemetery.

New $15,000 Federal Dock Taking Shape at Victoria Park

Belleville's bid to return to its former position as one of the finest yachting basins in southern Ontario is taking giant strides forward as the city's waterfront gets a new $15,000 federal dock.

Frank G. Fulford, M.P., for Hastings South was responsible for securing the appropriations for this major harbor improvement.

The dock is being constructed on the southern tip of Victoria Park and will extend eastward into the harbor.

Plans call for the construction of an L-shaped dock that will extend eastward for 90 feet and then northward for 100 feet. Additional plans include new facing for adjacent shoreline, which has crumbled and fallen away in recent years.

At present plans for the extension from the shoreline have been sunk and workmen are filling them with stone. A similar dock on the site was constructed on the south side of this extension several years ago and withstood against rough weather from the south.

Four piers are still resting on the shoreline. They will be used in the construction of the outboard or tending arm of the ladder piers construction. The ladder piers are 10 feet long and will be spaced at 12 foot intervals.

When completed the dock will be 14 feet wide and surfaced with three-inch planks.

May Construct Slideway

There is talk of constructing a slideway in the south end of the harbor to tap the Moira River and provide a cleaning current in the harbor itself.

The dock is expected to be in use when the boating season opens next spring.

When completed the dock will provide the city of Belleville with a completely protected harbor and much sorely needed docking facilities.

Other improvements in the harbor during the past year include the building of the new boat house of the Schuster Coal Company and removal of the pier on which the Cold Lightning Ice Co. had built a Marine supply store, and the construction of the Belleville Yacht Club's new quarters on Victoria Park.

This combination is expected to restore the city of Belleville to her former status as a favorite summer stopover for touring Canadian and American yachtsmen.

Y's Men Want To Place Signs On City Outskirts

Belleville Y's Men want visitors to know that there is such a service club in the city and are willing to erect signs on the city outskirts to advertise the fact.

Monday's council Alderman Gerald Ryde tabled a recommendation asking permission for the signs to erect such signs. He noted that signs erected by the Belleville Y's Men club have deteriorated by passage of time and vandalism and that the council appearance will not see fit to replace them.

He was told, however, that at least one other service club in the city had voted $500 at its share of the expected cost to replace the signs at the city's entrance. All service clubs had contributed toward the cost of erecting the present signs. He was assured that his club would be willing to go along with any plan of the Inter-Service Club Council to have suitable signs erected.

Old Car Built In 1908 Will Pay Visit to City

A throwback to the days of linen dusters, veil-wrapped hats, rubber horns, hard rubber tires, and bugeye lamps, will arrive in the city tomorrow.

It is a "Glide" automobile, built in 1908 and the sole survivor of an all-out production of 19,000 of its kind constructed in Peoria, Ill.

While it is a far cry from the "crank-job" days when auto drivers lit acetylene lamps by hand, and scared all the horses in the land, to the sleek, 130-miles-per-hour convertibles of modern times, the "Glide" clugs merrily along at a modest 25 miles an hour piled an hour clip oblivious to the rather jobs, that flash past the old girl at every opportunity.

She has a neat shiny brass trim. Her wheels are high, a foot below her towering fenders. Her protruding front springs act as bumpers and she hulks with the help of a handbrake. Her rubber-pouch horn may be a little asthmatic but she can exude sonorous burps that give plenty of warning.

Lord Clive has proceeded along the highways on many states in the union without aid of mechanical crutches. In fact she hasn't been hospitalized since she started a lengthy tour of the land in aid of advertising and charitable ventures of various kinds.

Arrive This Afternoon

The "Glide" will arrive from Oshawa this afternoon and remain "on parade" all day tomorrow, Friday. Then, if the brave old girl is known, is part of the famous collection of old cars owned by the well-known operatic, radio and screen star, James Melton, who died in Belleville a few years ago.

During the Glide's stay here she will be put up as an up-old French custom of delivering perfume to elderly. In this case the ancient vehicle will be graced with a beauteous young local belle, who will personally deliver "L'Aiguille" perfume from the Lattimer Drug Store.

The Glide will be parked on Front street during its stay here to give the public ample opportunity to see what the 1908 style of automobile looked like. It will travel along the main throughfares and quite likely will be used to transport officials and prominent citizens to various destinations during their regional conference being currents to be held here.

Engineers Hear Of Coronation From President

Ross I. Dobbin, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada was guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada held Tuesday evening in the A.N. & A.F. Veterans Hall.

Mr. Dobbin, who has been associated with the Institute since his graduation in 1910, was elected president of the organization this spring, and was its representative at the Coronation.

In an amusing address Mr. Dobbin recounted the highlights of his trip to England. He described the Coronation as he saw it from inside Westminster Abbey.

He also told of his being a guest at the Queen's garden party and attending the naval review at Spithead.

Mr. Dobbin touched briefly on his visits to British factories as a guest of the Engineering Society of Great Britain and stated that in his opinion Britain was rapidly regaining the position which she formerly held in the manufacturing world.

Formal Talk

He closed his informal talk by promising to work throughout his term for the best interests of the professional engineer.

Mr. Dobbin was introduced by Carl Whittemore, president of the Belleville Branch of the Institute and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by Mr. S. Sillitoe.

Those at the head table were: Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Dryzdale, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sillitoe, Mr. and Mrs. Garth Wade, C. S. Whittemore, R. I. Dobbin, A. L. Kellaly, and C. A. Bradley.

Following the dinner and Mr. Dobbin's address, members of the Institute, their wives and guests enjoyed dancing to the music of Ivy Wareham.

Noise of Trucks Under Fire In Council

The noise made by highway transports as they roar through the city during the night and especially the racket made by idling motors at the truck stops at local restaurants, came under fire at city council Monday afternoon.

Alderman Arthur Keegan said he had received many complaints from residents on Pinnacle street, who claimed they were getting keep awake during the night by the idling motors of transports parked along their street. Residents would leave motors running to keep cabs warm while they caught a sandwich and cup of coffee.

This destroyed TV reception as well as kept them awake.

The reason they park on Pinnacle street is because there is no room left on Front Street, Intersected Alderman Tice, "Perhaps listing of Front and Pinnacle streets below the four corners are free of city council Monday afternoon.

Discussion swung around to be had received many complaints could be forced to equip their vehicles with mufflers to reduce noise, but no direct action was taken.

REMARK. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie Remark who passed away October 14, 1944. There's a face that is haunting us ever more, a voice we used to hear. There's a smile we'll remember forever, a heart that was true to the last. There's a sad but sweet remembrance of a mother dear and good. There's a token of affection, dear, kind and true, there's a thought for you, a memory remembered by Albert, Ada and children. O14

REMARK. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Annie Remark who passed away October 14, 1944 and Charlie Remark who passed away October 13, 1937.

Sweet things have happened
Since you were called away
Things that you loved you'll enjoyed
Had to do without
So many things to share with them
But you're not about
Things that could be so much nicer
If you were about
Sadly missed and remembered by son James, daughter-in-law Mary and grandson Gerald. O14

Thoughts of them are always near.
Oft in silent moments they come
Memory may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That is always concealed.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Rose, son-in-law Jack and grandson Gerald. O14

Students, Staff Concerned Over Adverse Publicity

TRENTON (Special)—The teaching staff and the students of Trenton High School voice concern over the adverse publicity given the school's gym-styled uniform.

"Female students are not forced to wear tunics," according to an irate official spokesman. "They are recommended because we feel they are healthier and much smarter looking than orthodox clothing." Allegations that students who did not wear uniforms were docked marks on their examination papers were denied. "We attach a gold bar to the students good conduct card," he explained.

Since stories about the short uniforms appeared in other newspapers girl students are on their toes higher. Some parents on the other hand make their daughters wear the skirt just above the knee in a more conservative manner.

Reasons of one of the older students: "I have been wearing a uniform for four years and this is the first time there has been criticism."

Controversy started after Board of Education members Doug Whitley and Ivor Walling, labelled girl students wearing school uniforms "majorettes."

Betty Smith, of Oshawa, is reported to be somewhere in the Trenton area. Police request she call home immediately about an urgent family matter.

A car on fire on West Street last night attracted a great crowd of people and cars. Application of chemicals by firemen had the flames under control without damaging the vehicle.

Thirty Chambers of Commerce Represented at Conference From Whitby to Kingston

Representatives of approximately thirty Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade from Whitby on the west to Kingston the east, and north to Haliburton, gathered in Belleville today to attend a regional conference and to discuss matters relating to industrial expansion and Chamber programs.

Approximately 45 delegates were on hand as the conference got underway this morning at the Y.M.C.A. Registration started at nine o'clock and the conference got under way shortly after ten. Conference chairman is Charles M. Cawker, president of the Belleville Chamber.

A civic welcome to delegates was extended by Mayor A. M. Hulse who referred to the important place which the Chamber of Commerce had in the municipality. "Regional conferences allow a continued contact between the local chambers and the Ontario and Canadian Chambers of Commerce," he said.

Referring to the local chamber, Mayor Haig noted that it has been very active in matters that manufacturers and commercial interests have to take into their impact fest on the community.

Among the items on the day's agenda were the discussion of such topics as "Industrial Expansion in Your Town", "Industrial Promotion," and "Your Chamber of Commerce Program."

Freeman Burrows, former manager or the Belleville Chamber and current vice president, was scheduled to act chairman of the panel discussion. He introduced then responsible for arranging of the day's program, and also members of the panel, who were to answer questions fired by the visiting delegates.

Panel Members

Panel members included Mr. Burrows as chairman, Tom Brady, manager, Industrial Development department of the Royal Bank of Canada; Lorne S. Campbell, Trade and Industry Branch, Department of Planning and Development, Toronto; D. N. Cooper, Industrial agent, Canadian Pacific Railways, and H. H. Hamill, manager of the Ontario Chamber, who substituted for Howard Comtoy, manager of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

Each of the panel members in a brief talk outlined just how their organizations assisted in locating industry in Ontario communities.

Mr. Brady said the bank's activity in industrial promotion went back about 30 years. He said the work was discouraging as there were few communities ready for different municipalities. He urged the Ontario municipalities to get the possibility of business transfers as a means of getting new industry.

Don't Forget Local Industry

Mr. Campbell urged municipalities not to forget industrial expansion of industries already located as this type of activity has overshadowed location of new industry. To illustrate his point there were 128 new industries located in Ontario last year with an investment of about 30 millions. Expansion of industries already located was ten times that with an investment of 380 millions.

Mr. Cooper noted that the railways were the pioneers in the promotion of industry location. "Railroads were interested because of the traffic freight angle," he said.

He urged that municipalities keep both railways in mind, when planning annexation as property served by both railways should be chosen if possible if full co-operation of both transportation systems was expected.

Mr. Hamill said he was surprised to learn of the importance of the expansion of industry already located in Ontario, and advised the local chambers of commerce not to overlook this phase of Chamber activity.

After a mid-morning break the conference went into a workshop discussion on industrial promotion followed by an open forum question-and-answer period.

Speaker for the noon luncheon was Ivor Wagner, president of the Owen Sound Transportation Company. R. M. Campbell, vice-president and general director of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Company Ltd., Toronto, is to be the speaker at the evening dinner which will bring the conference to a close.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS UNUSUAL

Tribute to the safety in which the nation's railroads use passengers and goods at high speed across a vast ntinent is the fact that whenever there is a railway ac- dent in which one person is killed it earns headlines.

Car accidents have become so frequent that it is now ually news when a fatality occurs. Unless the victim be ewsworthy woman of some prominence, or unless the acci- nt has occurred in the neighborhood of the reader's ome or unless the crash has spectacular features, a re- ort of a fatal car accident is merely a routine news item. t when on Sunday a train was derailed at Gracefield, ue, and the engineer and fireman were killed, this was unusual an occurrence as to warrant a comprehensive report.

During the same week-end 29 persons were killed in accidents in Ontario. By sheer weight of numbers these accidents should have earned the headlines, as far as individual treatment was concerned, and became a matter of statistics.

If 29 persons had been killed in a railway accident in place in Canada the fact would have been announced in screaming headlines and a wealth of pictures.

And if there had been 29 railway accidents of any kind seven persons would have been injured—only at would have caused as much comment as a new world ar or the Yankees losing a world series.

MOST UNLIKELY TO SUCCEED

The United States is considering the possibility of giv- Russia guarantees against any new German aggres- ion.

The Associated Press, in a report from Washington, tates that "no one here knows whether such assur- nces would make Germany arming in the Western alliance ore acceptable to Russia."

Sometimes it appears as if nobody ever knows what ussia's reaction will be to any proposal. But, if it was ossible to guarantee against Russia with some ort of certainty, surely this is the instance.

Such assurances would not make the rearming of ermany more acceptable to Russia.

If, as most indicate, Russia envisions the day hen she will embark on a war of world conquest, she ould not want Germany armed.

And if, in the circumstances, Unlikely event that Russia has ceased so frightened by the events of two great wars that her ction to a rearmed Germany is really a fear of a new erman drive for "living space" she is certainly scared ough not to discover much comfort in "guarantees," no matter who gives them.

A SUSPICIOUS ACTION

The action of Chedid Jagan, ousted Prime Minister f British Guiana, in calling for a general strike can hard- be said to strengthen his contention that he is not a ommunist.

The strike is being called as a protest against the anding of British troops in that colony. It will certain- not lead to an early withdrawal of these troops. Its only possible result will be to stimulate them.

If Jagan and his wife are not Communists or Communi- sympathizers, it is easy to understand how they must egard the sudden suspension of the constitution, re- ently granted, as unfair. But if the British Govern- ent is in error in judging them to be Reds, surely their first course of action was, while denying the charge, to ask patiently that a new constitution be drafted and hen, if the new constitution made it possible, to again appeal to public opinion in the colony and seek re-elec- ion.

If they had done that, and if the new constitution had not provided some method for the people to have ex- pressed their real convictions, they might have been able to make out a defence for a call for strike action. No such defence for a resort to what is, on the face of it, a po- litical strike can be considered valid under the present cir- cumstances.

WEATHER STILL FASHIONS CAMPAIGNS

In a world which is seriously considering the possibil- ity of hanging up a few space stations so that the earth can go slowly around them in the sky-dwellers' atmo- spheric cannon, it seems strange to realize that weather still vetoes the plans of generals.

In Napoleon's day, of course, there was nothing un- usual in even the Little Corporal being forced to evacuate Moscow by the advent of the terrible Russian winter. There were, however, people who were convinced, more than a century later, that the Nazi panzer units round Russian Rostov as little to their liking as had the Corsican.

But many changes have come to the world in the brief decade since the German spearhead froze to a halt after a long, jagged line from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

Thus it seems strange to read that one of today's wars, that in Indo-China, is scheduled to spring to life again shortly—because the rains are nearly over.

Here is Canada we can understand an army being halted by blizzards, but rain sounds so harmless. We do not know the monsoon—and its results. In Indo-China, though, despite twentieth-century developments, the mon- soon has limited activities to a series of out-of-season raids by General Navarre on Viet Minh supply bases. Now the dry season is approaching and the question at issue is whether these raids will have served the ability of the Communist forces to carry out their customary after-the- rains offensive—and whether General Navarre himself has sufficient forces to enable him to move over onto the at- tack.

Three Grades In Assaults

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Many citizens in this country and other countries are under the impression that a sure way to invite neck-deep trouble is to slug a policeman, or even worse, a patrol sergeant.

Now it seems, that in Britain at any event, that if one feels an urge to attack a member of constabulom, a police officer is ra- tioned. He can call for trouble upcoming. A dispatch from London mentions a court case in

Frank Talk About Peers

(Manchester Guardian)

A great work of reference is now in sight of completion. The first volume of the new, revised edition of "The Complete Peerage", by G.E.C., came out in 1910. To-day it reaches part one of its twelfth volume, "Shakespeare to Trenton" (Saint Catherine Press), and another volume should complete the great work of the House of Lords.

The peerage comes down only to 1931, but there has been one volume on the creations from 1901 to 1928, and no doubt in a few more decades there will be still another covering peerages since then and peerages to be.

Its great value lies in its honesty and its detail. It is as open about the scandals of the peerage as it is about the glories, and it has the more devious tricks of peerage law. Why should it not be frank? A monumental record must be full of facts, and the nobility, whatever they may be, can afford to let facts be the stuff of our history.

And where else could one find so much sheer British eccentricity? "Skelmersdale to Towton", edited with all the scholarship of Scholarship by Mr. Geoffrey H. White, has rich and full of the unexpected. One can "open the book at random and find a page that is packed set with items far of smallpox though inoculation became a mania. Or a Duchess of Northumberland's economy was so great that when her husband wanted a coach to go to London the table nothing was put but a leg of mutton at the top and a dish of potatoes at the bottom.

Or the Countess of Sunderland was once presented to the family because she was "too young, not being much past fifteen, and so unexperienced as to be hardly speaking a sentence in a family speaking of no counts, and no beauty having somewhat of a likeness to her but was the Earl of Sutherland whom his grandmother, Lady Sutherland, rattle-pated, drunken sort", and a much later Duke who was "fond of hunting on horseback and of hounds and watching the fire brigade at work." There is Margaret Harpsley Townsend who "always sat at dinner with her hat on."

The first Lord Lyveden bought his peerage from James I for 10,000 pounds. A successor gained a large part of his inheritance away.

An Earl of Thanet, his contemporary, won 40,000 pounds in a night, breaking the bank twice; and another night lost 138,000 pounds. A Marquess of Thomond died at 38, Horace Walpole said, "because he would not be shrigged", and those famous wits, Walpole and an English subject, brandy, smalls- beer, and tobacco."

Lord Lyveden Somerton, the friend of the elder Pitt, sacrificed "ev'ry human consideration" to selfish cunning", died of apoplexy, and married, with a lady in a rustling silk dress, to haunt Hinton Ampner. A Lord Tankerville was a miserable man, and a later lord went round with Moody and Sankey; a Lord Stanley of Alderley became a Moslem.

The first member of Manchester, Pocklington, became Lord Sydenham but would have liked to be Lord Manchester. He was the owner of the place had not objected. So also had Somerset before being Lord St. Lawrence but was crushed by Melbourne: "Why, damn it, sir, you have had a better title long enough for that, eh? Sciplo Africanus, eh?"

On some of the "evolved" peerages there is comment, but it is rarely severe, scathing. Thus on Strabolgi:

The investiture of His Excellency Barony is due to the fact that a membrane containing a record of the transactions of the Privy Council was somehow inserted in the Parliament Roll of 10 Edward II.

There are some remarkably interesting genealogical notes. Thus the present Lord Abergavenny is apparently the only male descendant of Sir John Nevill, Knight, by his grandfather, 1st Baron Grey of Groby, 1st Earl of Kent, 1554; of Reginald Grey, Duke of Suffolk and 3rd Marquess of Dorset were respectively 1st Duke and 1st Marquess of Dorset (created 1475) and President of the Council.

The Duke of Suffolk, like his daughter Lady Jane Grey, whom he executed, Queen, was beheaded by Mary. There are signs in this last volume of some straitness of funds. It is to be hoped that the completion of this fine work will be assured.

You May Be A Confucian

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Confucius, who was born in what is now the city of Shantung, died the year 551 B.C. He served the Provincial Government as Minister of Justice, after which he took to wandering from province to province, soliciting princes and ministers, and giving advice to anyone who would listen to him. Soon he acquired a tremendous reputation, and his followers regarded as a great teacher and philosopher. He wrote a wonderful book, and many of his sayings are used every day by people who think they are speaking or writing in their own words.

There is a common belief that what is called Confucianism is the religion of the Chinese. Most of Chinese are Confucians. Confucianism is not a religion at all, but simply a code of good and honest living. It tells the people to respect parents and old people, honestly in dealing with one's fellow men, whether in the family, among friends and strangers, or in business, and loyalty to the state. The essential principle that is Confucianism in brief. So that any persons, whether Mohammedan, Buddhist or Christian, may also be a Confucian, without changing their religious location.

It may surprise many people to know that, 500 years before the Christian era, Confucius, in setting forth principles of living, actually said: "Do not do to others that which you would not have others do to you," which is perhaps the cardinal principle enunciated by the Golden Rule. About which came many years later. Among the popular sayings of today are: "Speak barking dog never bites"; "Haste makes waste"; "Where there's a will there's a way"; "Be sure you look before you go ahead." All of these maxims were uttered by Confucius about 500 years ago, and in the Chinese equivalent of what is common speech today.

The birth of the great Chinese teacher is a national affair, and his name is as familiar as that of Christ. But he would turn in his casket, if he knew his people were now being misled by a handful of Chinese who have completely reversed his teachings.

London's Antiquity

(Oshawa, Times-Gazette)

It is interesting to read of the election of Sir Noel Bowater, a director of the Bank of England, as Lord Mayor of London, England. This news is particularly interesting to us as the late Sir Noel's father was Lord Mayor of London in 1938 and his uncle the same office in 1930. Thus, three times within his family a great tradition has been carried on.

To us, however, the most interesting fact in the announcement is that Sir Noel is the 631st Lord Mayor of London. The history of the office dates back to the year 1191, and the ceremonies which attend the election of the Lord Mayor are steeped in the most ancient traditions. The Guild hall, in which the ceremony takes place, is one of the oldest in the country, and the robes worn by those taking part dates back to the fifteenth century. When Sir Noel rides through the City of London on the Lord Mayor's procession a few weeks from now, he will ride in a coach over 200 years old.

In a new country like Canada, we do not set quite the store by great antiquity of that old city which is the heart of the British Commonwealth. Three hundred years before Columbus discovered the new continent Europe was busy setting its Lord Mayors. At the time that the first white settlers landed at Quebec, the city was over 500 years old. True, it was not the capital of the country at that time, but much of its antiquity was centred in the old London of today.

There is something to think about in the fact that the city of London has remained down through the centuries as the heart of the capital of Britain and the centre of the Empire and Commonwealth. Despite its instability, the soundness of things British is shown by the fact that it stood the tests of time. And with Britain's great recovery from its losses of the second World War, it looks as if London will still be standing when many hundreds of years from now.

Don't Omit 'Please'

(Picton Times)

From the point of view of cost alone, notices in parks and beauty spots have to be terse and to the point. But this terseness, by culling out the small words of courtesy such as "please," turn them sometimes into brusque orders which antagonize certain reader resistance. If that resistance is strong enough, the object of the notice is defeated.

JUST WHAT IS THIS RHEUMATISM?

Here's what the big shots in the profession call a "preliminary report."

Oregon reader writes:

I have been taking calcium and D for several years now and it really keeps the pain and stiffness out of arthritis.

Massachusetts reader writes:

Husband taking calcidox as recommended in your calcium booklet. Rheumatism of many years standing is getting great relief.

Michigan reader writes:

Three years ago I developed more aches in my joints than one joint would ache and pain like the dickens in the calf of leg for several days, then it would let up there and start in the neck or hip. . . . I started using a daily ration of C_8 and D in sufficient amounts to meet need and within three or four months my aches and pains were just about a thing of the past. I sure hope you live forever . . . .

Testimonials might be of some value if the writers gave more precise information. These four, and many more like them, fail to state (1) how much calcium and vitamin D and for how long a period, and also (2) whether they did or did not happened to think of it or every day.

You may think it is just snobbery on the old quack's part, when this insistence on eating the C_8 and D. But in view of the fact that this is my suggestion, if you "try" it at all you should do so in say, regardless of what some trained nurse, fellow racketeer or sob jerk tells you about the danger of calcium deposits in your joints, arteries or brains, if any. I have said here many times that chronic rheumatism, or if you prefer to drive a more expensive car, swell of "arthritis" (arthritis means inflammation of joint) is not a specific disease or ailment for which a specific remedy or treatment should be used. It is just a convenient name for a variety of complaints in which joint disability is a prominent feature.

Before I make this world-shaking announcement I warn you that I'm only a plodding old one-horse-buggy doc and I actually had to sell my horse and buggy and get a car because every time my theory or belief if you think I know more than you do, or reject it if you think you know more than I do about the rheumatics.

I believe that in most cases of chronic rheumatism or arthritis that confronts us is physical degeneration of the intervertebral disc (-lia). The degeneration (consult Webster for the medical terms) of the intervertebral (-lia) is the inevitable consequence or manifestation or nutritional deficiency through the years, mainly calcium and vitamin D deficiency. Why this occurs, I know not, I know from long experience that it doesn't always. Not maybe FIX that as it another day.

TODAY'S TALK

Remembering And Forgetting

It is amazing how much data this brain of ours is capable of holding and storing away. But there is also much that we do not remembered things, that inspired and lifted us, that we loved, people whom we have loved, scenes that have stirred our emotions, and wonders that have flashed across our minds—these are carefully stored away for the darkness of moments of life.

The bitter experiences, the many defeats of the mind and spirit, and the unhappy periods—these we like to forget, though they may have left their trace in our conscious ness, subsoils our memory and groupings. There is an unfolding of life within each one of us, that is known only to ourselves. Is it any wonder, that we are misjudged and assailed unjustly at times? One is another understand us when we are so unfamiliar to our own self?

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could have a sanitarium for the dead so that it could only "record the sunny hours"? Perhaps we would be equipped with this ability to forget so that there would always be space for new things with room for remembering, and which we wish so much to keep and remember. Perhaps we can so school our memory that it will forget the useless things that we ought to forget.

If I were not gifted with this ability to forget how meaningless would all the books be that are published each happy days. There would only be objects to look at and useless pictures of no valuable space. Thank God I have a memory that reminds me of years that have passed, and that have furnished me because of the love that I have had for days.

How destructive to the mind and to character to remember bitter experiences and unhappy days. There is so much of beauty that is deathless in the world—so much yet so little attention. There is nothing more destructive to happiness and indeed to health, than to harbor bitterness and unhappy past experiences.

SHOW YOUR FAULTS

Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the nineteenth-century British novelist who wrote "The Last Days of Pompeii" and a score of other less famous novels, once said, "If you wish to know your faults, read the type that faults your virtues."

This is a strange statement, it seems to me, at first glance. But it seems to mean that we are loved more for our faults than our virtues: that is, the more faults and fewer virtues we have, the more friends we shall be likely to have. Of course Bulwer-Lytton did not mean that, and the statement does not actually say that it says, "Show more of your faults than your virtues."

This is a strange statement, because as a superficial glance, it seems to mean that we are loved more for our faults than our virtues: that is, the more faults and fewer virtues we have, the more friends we shall be likely to have. Of course Bulwer-Lytton did not mean that, and the statement does not actually say that it says, "Show more of your faults than your virtues."

But in the sense that it does not show out-shows your true self.

Now this actually loves a hypocrite and life being what it is, most people would rather not expose sooner or later. It is hard to say which is better to be deceived continually about someone without ever discovering the truth, or to endure the cruel disappointment of being undeceived.

All human beings have faults; all reasonable human beings admit them. Show your true self, and be loved for what you are. Never stop trying to be better than you are, but never pretending to be better than you are.

Prominent Canadian Artists To Give Concert at Park School

Two young Canadian voices will be heard on Tuesday, October 20 at 8.15 p.m., in the Air Chief Marshal Breadner School auditorium when Roger Bobillard, tenor and Frank Keyes, baritone, both of Ottawa, present one of many program on their first concert tour together.

"S. S. Quinte" Co-ordination Cruise variety show-goers will remember Flt/Lt R. J. Robillard for his delightful rendition of "When the Stars are Brightly Shining" from Puccini's "Tosca." Since his retirement from the RCAF last summer, Mr. Robillard has been busy with Mr. Keyes planning a concert tour which will take them through parts of Ontario before mid-January.

The twenty-eight-year-old artist's appearance in the Trenton-Belleville districts is due to the efforts of the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary, who are sponsoring the performance on a non-profit basis.

Critics have acclaimed Mr. Robillard's voice as: "A rarity, a real tenor . . beautiful plaintive singing . . delightful singing."

Praised as: "A sensitive singer . . a full rich baritone," Mr. Keyes' presentation of "true bel canto singing" is a result of his early training in Ottawa and Toronto.

In describing their work together, the critics have added: "Duets were exceptionally interpreted."

Frank Keyes, CBC soloist-recitalist, has appeared on network radio shows, "National Sunday Evening Hour" and "Opportunity Knocks." In addition to his radio work, Mr. Keyes is assistant to the director of the Ottawa Grand Opera Company and has made several appearances in various Ontario communities.

Both have won major awards in Canadian music festivals and will be accompanied at the piano by Kinsella Bowen, of Ottawa.

Mr. Robbillard received his training in Ottawa and London, Ont., and prior to retiring from the RCAF, served as a pilot at RCAF Station Trenton. He too has made several radio appearances and has given solo recitals and joint concerts. As years performer, Mr. Robbillard has appeared in opera performances of Mignon's "La Traviata."

Mrs. G. C. MacDonald, convener, is being assisted by Mrs. V. A. Rutherford, piano arrangements; Mrs. Kl Running, tickets; Mrs. W. G. Dever, program; Mrs. Paul Hunt, seating, and Mrs. C. Dolan, entertainment.

Six hundred tickets are available for the one night performance and may be obtained in downtown Trenton from the Opportunity Shop, 62 King Street or Mrs. Dever, Cityview, 213 Front. RCAF personnel may obtain tickets from any mess.

Trustees and School to Meet

British Colonial Policy Outlined to Kiwanis Club

New emphasis in British colonial policy was described as "the most constructive, dynamic project in the world today" by Kenneth Granville Bradley, Director of the Imperial Institute, London, in an address to the Kiwanis Club of Belleville Tuesday noon.

"Some people have been going about gloomily predicting the breakup and collapse of the Commonwealth," said Mr. Bradley.

"They are wrong. The Commonwealth is growing bigger and stronger every day. I believe that it is entering the greatest period in its history."

Mr. Bradley, born in India in 1904, the son of an officer in the Gurkha Rifles, started his career in the colonial service at the age of 26 when he was put in charge of an area in northern Rhodesia the size of the Dominion part of Ontario.

There were few problems of public administration that he did not face in 16 years in Rhodesia. During World War II, in addition to administering his vast territory as district officer, he organized an information service, that included the editing of a newspaper in five languages and the construction and operation of a radio station—that became a model for other colonial radio stations.

Mr. Bradley's extensive experience in colonial affairs includes service as assistant and finance chief secretary of the Falkland Islands, under secretary and acting colonial secretary of the Gold Coast.

Founded Journal

In 1948 he founded "Corona" a professional journal for the colonial service and when it was firmly established he became director of the Imperial Institute in London. The Institute is the centre for information on the countries of the Commonwealth, and it is Mr. Bradley's current task to interest the children of Britain about the Commonwealth.

The speaker pointed out that the slogan in the colonial policies of Great Britain during the past 100 years had been by force of circumstance for the most part, but that now self government for the colonies is definite policy.

"The only colony to leave the Commonwealth on the attainment of self-government is Burma," said Mr. Bradley. "We hope that no other leave and we don't think they will."

The whole idea of Commonwealth has changed," he said.

"There is an elasticity in the idea of Commonwealth, that is its greatest strength."

He pointed to the status of India as a self-governing republic but still a member of the Commonwealth.

"That sounds like an impossibility," said the speaker. "But the Indians know where they stand and so do we. We fight shy of a constitution or legal ties, because once legal bonds are established then there would be something to break and I am convinced the Commonwealth would crumble."

Own Experience

As an illustration of the new colonial policy, Mr. Bradley cited from his own experience in Africa.

"In Rhodesia nine tenths of the work was trying to teach the people to look after themselves. Spoon-feeding dependent peoples is not the way to civilize them. People must build for themselves if spoon-fed they get lazier and lazier. They must realize that everything depends on their own initiative."

In Rhodesia Mr. Bradley was dealing with a native population that had been educated by Arab slave traders until the tribal structure had disintegrated. To educate these people is a mammoth task that "results in the civilizing of about 10 per cent of the population in one generation."

"We go for the 10 per cent," he said. "The 90 per cent who are educated follow the 10 per cent right or wrong."

"It was like going ahead 150 years in time to move to the Gold Coast," said Mr. Bradley.

"Twenty-five per cent of the population was highly civilized as we know civilization. They were clever, charming, industrious, able people."

Mr. Bradley expressed warm admiration for the Africans of the Gold Coast, who had made such progress in the administration of their own affairs that in February 1954 they will emerge as almost completely self-governing states with African prime minister and elected African ministers.

Both is the faith of aluminum interests in Canada and Great Britain in the stability and maturity of the natives of the Gold Coast that they are subscribing one third of the money for a $400,000,000 aluminum development project that will include bauxite mining, hydro-electric developments, and an irrigation scheme to bring 400 square miles under cultivation.

Co-ordination Demonstrated Unity

Mr. Bradley felt that the Co-ordination Cruise of Queen Elizabeth demonstrated powerfully that intangible something that unites the Commonwealth and the tremendous loyalty that each country in its members without benefit of laws or statutes.

Mr. Bradley was introduced by Jack Wood and the thanks of the club were expressed by past president Mark Vanner.

Augus Duffy, on behalf of the club, expressed the appreciation of Kiwanis for the co-operation of the public and separate school principals in the staging of their recent track and field meet on the occasion of National Kids Day. Public and separate school principals or their representatives were present as guests of the club.

Winners at the meet were presented with handsome silver cups, and George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre promised winners free tickets to a forthcoming movie.

Temporary Washrooms Will Be Provided Under City Hall

Temporary washrooms will be provided for the public beneath the city hall building in the rooms where public washrooms existed some years ago, it was decided yesterday by city council.

The recommendations to re-open the old washrooms came from the property committee under the chairmanship of Alderman Wilbur Countryman, who assured that the arrangement would be but temporary, pending selection of a permanent site some time in the near future. The rooms are now used for parking meter repairs and another location will be provided for this purpose.

There was little discussion on the recommendation to provide temporary washrooms beneath the city hall, although Ald. Keegan introduced what he termed an amendment which called for use of washrooms in the Memorial Arena on a temporary basis.

"We have to do some drastic thinking in an effort to curtail expenses," Ald. Keegan said. "We have to control our budget and save money before people start moving out of the municipality because of high taxes."

Objects to Arena

Ald. Tice objected to any move for the public to use washrooms at the Arena. Such a scheme "would not work," he said, noting that the arena commission could not turn the doors of the arena open to maintain a public washroom.

At the same time he did not think the location under the city hall was the proper place. "It would only be a makeshift," he said. "If we are going to build a washroom let's build a proper one." He said any permanent washrooms should be in the vicinity of the market square.

Ald. Countryman noted it was the intention of the property committee to bring in a recommendation to council as to a location for a permanent washroom.

Outfitting of the temporary washrooms would cost an estimated $1,000, it was stated. This amount would also provide sanitation until the end of the year although it was expected it would be possible two months before the washrooms would be ready for use.

Whistle Tooting By-Law Given Two Readings in Council

Whistle tooting by trains will be a thing of the past in Belleville if a by-law read in city council yesterday gets its third reading and is approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Council gave two readings to a by-law which would put before the people at the next municipal election a referendum asking whether the municipality should go to the expense of properly protecting level crossings and rule out blowing of whistles and ringing of bells by railway locomotives.

The matter was introduced to council two weeks ago by Mayor Haig, who noted he had received many complaints from citizens who objected strongly to the noise made by locomotive whistle tooting. The matter was turned over to the traffic committee to investigate the cost of protecting level crossings.

Yesterday in council Alderman Mrs. E. Temple an Exman of the traffic committee said it was almost impossible to secure an estimate of the cost of warning signals but an average cost of from seven to ten thousand dollars for each installation could be expected.

Flasher Type

That would provide a flasher type signal of which at least six and possibly eight such installations would be needed. He noted the city would be required to pay 30 per cent of installation charges and would be expected to pay 50 per cent of maintenance costs which would run about $200 annually for each.

He said signals would be required at Church, John, George, Newberry and Foster on the Canadian Pacific track and also possibly on Hershimer Ave., and Sidney street, while a signal would be needed on Moira street, East over the C.N. tracks and also possibly at St. Charles street.

In view of the heavy cost of providing adequate signals, Alderman Temple said if the matter was placed before the electors he doubted very much if it would carry. Council concurred.

The question of liability on the part of the municipality should an accident occur, after whistle blowing was outlawed, was raised by Mayor Haig. City Solicitor R. J. Prindle said in his opinion there would be little liability on the part of the city if the Board of Transport Commissioners approved of the by-law and the crossings were properly protected.

"Railway crossing accidents are just a matter of carelessness," he observed.

The solicitor went on to point out that possibly the board of transport would not approve of flasher type signals for all crossings in Belleville, if only wigs or ringing gates were called for the cost would be much greater.

Several Accidents

Alderman Reid wanted to know to what extent the public was demanding that whistle tooting by trains be ruled out in the city. He was told there had been several complaints from residents who were "vociferous" in their objections.

The by-law given first and second reading by council provided for up to $25,000 as the city's share of installing crossing signals and up to $2,000 annually for maintenance costs.

Two readings only were given the by-law, it being understood that aldermen were under no obligation to approve of a third reading. This, it was felt, would give council an opportunity to get public reaction to the question.

Permanent Top May be Placed On City Well

The city public works committee will investigate as to the cost of placing a permanent top on the north Pinnacle Street well as a means of protecting its waters from contamination making the well unfit for use.

Council was told that the health department had ruled the water in the well as unfit for human consumption, the suggestion being that surface water getting into the well was possibly responsible.

Mayor Haig agreed that the Pinnacle Street well was a landmark in the city and if the water was being contaminated by surface drainage then a permanent top might be well worth while. He said he had asked the sanitary inspector for a report on the well but this had not been received.

A recommendation placed by Alderman G. Hyde called for the public works to go ahead with placing a permanent top on the well, but Ald. Forbes, as chairman of the committee, suggested the matter be turned over to his committee to get an estimate first on the cost of the work.

Commission To Make Decisions About Booklet

The city industrial commission under the chairmanship of Alderman William Argue will use its own letterhead to whether a new industrial pamphlet should be printed to advertise Belleville and its industrial position.

Alderman Argue told council he and the chairmen of sections of "Industrially Yours," a booklet printed about eight years ago, were due to meet shortly and his committee was asking direction from council as to whether a new booklet should be printed or whether the value of an industrial booklet, many claiming that a well-written folder would be more suitable do a better job in interesting the heads of industry.

Alderman Keegan, as member of the commission, said in his opinion a booklet was needed but with the possibility of the city annexing additional area he doubled the wisdom of going ahead with a new booklet until annexation proceedings were completed. "Only then would the city know what industrial sites it would have available," he said.

Gay Colors, Chic Trimmings Formula For Smart Hats

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The formula for hats designed by London's royal milliners involves gay colors and chic trimmings.

"If hats chill hats," says Yorkshire's Kate Day, who with Claude St. Cyr of France is making hats for the Queen's coming Commonwealth tour.

Just to prove it, in a recent autumn collection Miss Day showed hats in red and black, pink and lime, pink and peacock blue, mauve and green, all for whether that "brings out the worst in British hat wear."

An audience of press and buyers, eyeing such summers as a closefitting green velvet pot encircled with "leaves" of soft feathers that dipped down one cheek, was obviously assessing what the Queen might select for her Commonwealth tour wardrobe.

Shed In Style

Her choice might be something like the red velvet half-hat with horn trimmed of matching velvet flowers, or a charming black pillbox with "leaves" of black and gold tassels. Materials, however, would be very different.

The Queen will have hot, humid and warm weather throughout her six-month tour and her hats will be gossamer weight, close-fitting for wind-trimmed according to choice. All, however, will have one thing in common. Neither brim nor trimming will hide her face from any angle.

This rule for the Royal Family takes into consideration by Simone Mirman, a dark-haired Frenchman who makes hats for Princess Margaret; by Madame Vernier, who designs for the Duchess of Kent, and Asge Thaarup, who made hats for the Queen's Canadian tour.

Some chic autumn bonnets shown by Miss Mirman include a cluster of mink tails capping the head with an emerald-colored mink's head in front in a point over the forehead.

Tassels Hats

Shaggy hats of many styles were the highlight of this show. There was a petrol blue Burmese hat with pointed crown in long-haired nutria, and a gaucho turban with pointed pillbox crown in white shaggy panne and soft swathe encircling the hair, and a black velvet contraption consisting of two outlined hands joined at the wrists and sporting ruby nails.

Miss Mirman seems determined to bring the kitchen to women's heads. Last year she trimmed hats with coal. This year the choice is kitchen string twisted and tasselled to embroider black patent berets. Even the floor has its uses—a black scalloped velvet scull cap is topped by a brush of black rug wool.

Turbans come in every form with the face-framing severity of the scarves British women tied around their hair in wartime. These, however, are different—frail evening turbans glinting with jewels, while panne turbans suggesting the east and Tibetan lamb hug one tightly. And there are lace styles in a new silver-plated nylon lace.

Bringing Up Baby

With Collected by Miss Ellen Barker, Director of 3?
Activity is just as important as rest to the young infant. As a matter of fact, baby should be encouraged to kick his little feet and wave his little arms. A few minutes five minutes before bath time (minus clothes) is excellent. And last, but not least, a good laugh, several times a day is not only beneficial for baby but oh so rewarding for you.
Right start for little tots-ers. Baby scheduled for spoon-fed foods soon? Why not try starting him off with Gerber's Cereals? All five—Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Wheat—are pre-cooked, strained and designed to help make little baby's bones grow big and sturdy. Most of the tots who make Gerber babies their business . . . their only business, these fine cereals have the nice-to-the-tongue texture, body and flavor that infants love. For free samples of Gerber's Cereals, just write me, Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box 17, Toronto 18, Canada.
In the bag. A mother we've heard of recently uses a plastic shoe bag to store baby's toys. Her washing bottles (tacked on the back of the kitchen door). Pockets hold bottles perfectly, the plastic is water-proof and easy to wash. Worth a try for mothers who have limited working space.
* * *
Specialty of the House. Gerber's Strained Orange Juice—processed just for those tots. Made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for high Vitamin C content and mild natural flavor. Freshly pasteurized too, and extra finely strained to go through nursing bottle nipples easily. Gerber's Orange Juice is truly a "natural" for baby's daily Vitamin C needs.

The Rev. Timothy M. Wesley, of Newmarket, formerly of Lakefield, performed the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald Wilson, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of satin, Burgundy lace and net, fashioned with molded bodice of lace and net, with long sleeves ending in V points over the hands. The graceful skirt of satin was accented by matching lace medallion. She wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion and carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Kenneth Wilson, Belleville, as matron of honor, wore an allegrtive floor-length gown of blue nylon net and lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. William McCoy, of Belleville, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for thirty-five guests. The bride's mother, wearing a gown of wine crepe with corsage of white carnations, received.

For the honeymoon to New Brunswick, the bride chose a green dress with black accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Bacon will reside in Belleville.

Gay Colors, Chic Trimmings Formula For Smart Hats

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The formula for hats designed by London's royal milliners involves gay colors and chic trimmings.

"If hats chill hats," says Yorkshire's Kate Day, who with Claude St. Cyr of France is making hats for the Queen's coming Commonwealth tour.

Just to prove it, in a recent autumn collection Miss Day showed hats in red and black, pink and lime, pink and peacock blue, mauve and green, all for whether that "brings out the worst in British hat wear."

An audience of press and buyers, eyeing such summers as a close-fitting green velvet pot encircled with "leaves" of soft feathers that dipped down one cheek, was obviously assessing what the Queen might select for her Commonwealth tour wardrobe.

Shed In Style

Her choice might be something like the red velvet half-hat with horn trimmed of matching velvet flowers, or a charming black pillbox with "leaves" of black and gold tassels. Materials, however, would be very different.

The Queen will have hot, humid and warm weather throughout her six-month tour and her hats will be gossamer weight, close-fitting for wind-trimmed according to choice. All, however, will have one thing in common. Neither brim nor trimming will hide her face from any angle.

This rule for the Royal Family takes into consideration by Simone Mirman, a dark-haired Frenchman who makes hats for Princess Margaret; by Madame Vernier, who designs for the Duchess of Kent, and Asge Thaarup, who made hats for the Queen's Canadian tour.

Some chic autumn bonnets shown by Miss Mirman include a cluster of mink tails capping the head with an emerald-colored mink's head in front in a point over the forehead.

Tassels Hats

Shaggy hats of many styles were the highlight of this show. There was a petrol blue Burmese hat with pointed crown in long-haired nutria, and a gaucho turban with pointed pillbox crown in white shaggy panne and soft swathe encircling the hair, and a black velvet contraption consisting of two outlined hands joined at the wrists and sporting ruby nails.

Miss Mirman seems determined to bring the kitchen to women's heads. Last year she trimmed hats with coal. This year the choice is kitchen string twisted and tasselled to embroider black patent berets. Even the floor has its uses—a black scalloped velvet scull cap is topped by a brush of black rug wool.

Turbans come in every form with the face-framing severity of the scarves British women tied around their hair in wartime. These, however, are different—frail evening turbans glinting with jewels, while panne turbans suggesting the east and Tibetan lamb hug one tightly. And there are lace styles in a new silver-plated nylon lace.

Club Activities

HARMONY CLUB

The members of the Marsh Hill Harmony Club attended the Templeton Mission in Belleville, on Friday night in a group, instead of their regular program.

After the meeting in Belleville, the group met at the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. Giffin, where several items of business were discussed. Mrs. Giffin conducted a Biblical contest with Mrs. John Brown and Mrs. Fred Cassidy as winners.

Refreshments were served by the committee with Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Finkle as conveners.

'What Shall I Tell My Child?' Topic At Pr. of Wales H-S

The regular meeting of Prince of Wales H. & S. Association was held last evening with the president, Mrs. Marion Sproule, presiding.

Mrs. Lewis read the Scripture, Psalm 91.

Business followed and Mrs. Burtt's room won the banner, Mrs. Burtt being the largest number of parents present.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Orr then introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Taylor Frankish, of Albert College, whose topic "What Shall I Tell My Child?", was highly commendable.

At the close of his address he showed a film on "Human Relations."

Mrs. Gray and her committee served refreshments.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

Miss Fairfax Gladly Is Spelling Out Problems Which Perplex Her Readers

Borrower Should Replace Lost Article

Whether you're young or older, it's not an easy thing to hold fast to either a principle or a person if the love of the person you honor and cling to or make him of you for it. To do so, takes, in the first place, a lot of plain everyday common sense—the kind of honest, clear-sighted commonsense that can distinguish between things and people that are worthwhile and those that are not. After that, it takes strength of character to go your way seriously and be loyal all to the worthwhile people and things, disregarding the others.

Here is a letter from a girl who is no past this sort of spot. She has a boy friend in whom she believes, but becoming gossip in her town about his family background and circumstances is narrow-minded and stupid, she has become afraid to have her name associated with his.

She says: "I am a junior in high school, and so is my boy friend. He is a fine boy, but my parents treat him nicely and have made me objections about his family and home, even though there is a big difference in the way we were brought up.

"My family has always had everything. We go to church, we have been brought up to love money, we travel, and have a clean and good home. He has a drunk for a father, and his family never go to church, and his mother never keeps their home nicely. I suppose because she has a lot of children to care for.

"As far as I am concerned, I don't care what kind of home this boy has, because he is a good, decent friend, and I love him and he loves me. But because of his family, people don't seem to want this boy to come around, and so I am left out of things, too, because I go with him. There is nothing bad that anybody can say about him. What they can say is that he will grow up to be just like his old man, which is no good.

"This boy says he knows what a difference there is in our homes, and that he will stay away from me if I want him to. I don't want this, but I am going to be honest because I go with him, what else can I do?"

Worthwhile Things

What I would say to this girl is that one can never begin too early in life to learn those two things I mentioned in the beginning: to figure out the things and people that are worthwhile, and then to have the courage to stick by them no matter what anyone else says.

She knows in her heart, it seems evident, that it's not very important whether or not her boy friend comes from the same type of home that she does, so long as he is the good loyal friend and the nice boy she says he is. If he is observant and smart, it will not be hard for him, as he observes others, to learn, or acquire, most of the things this girl says she has always had. Moreover, the man he will in all probability grow up to be is the right wife for him. She has a fine opportunity to be useful to a deserving man.

Of course he doesn't have to be "just like his old man," and she shouldn't be so silly as to let gossip mean greatly mislead her about this. Gossip is likely to be as disregarded by living with a drunken father that he will be specially tarred in this respect where he himself is concerned.

Since this girl's parents treat this boy so nicely, and haven't opposed her friendship with him, they have obviously wise enough to look beyond the superficial things and see the good qualities which make him the kind of boy they are willing their daughter should have for a friend. It is fine that she has broadminded and understanding parents.

As for the friends who leave her out of things because they don't want her with a boy of whom they are far less worth having for friends than he is. The best thing she could do would be to show them that she's smart enough to know the difference between them and the friends worth having and the ones who are not. If she is sensible enough to stick to her guns, I think that the "other girls" and boys will not only come around to her side, but will like and respect her more than they ever had before.

MRS. W. D. ELLIOTT

Beautician

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I was invited to lunch and most expensive sweater to the daughter of a friend of mine. The reason I loaned my best sweater was to impress the young lady with my wardrobe so that nothing else would suffice for her, and at the time she most definitely needed a wrap. The youngster lost my sweater, or else it was picked because of her carelessness. The point is should my friend, the girl's mother, offer to replace the sweater, and if so, should I accept or refuse her offer? Is my mother the beautician? I offered to replace it, but at the same time saying it was not the youngster's fault. What would good manners suggest at this particular point?

M. L.

Honestly, as well as courtesy, demand that when a borrowed article is lost, the borrower (or in this case, the mother) should make every effort to replace it by an article as similar as possible to the one borrowed. It should be taken for granted that this replacement should be straightforwardly arranged . . . there should be no fully-shilly-shallying, no "beating around the bush" about it. The mother of this careless girl should at once offer to replace the sweater . . . and you should accept her offer as a matter of course. However, it's one thing to say what the borrower (or her mother) should do . . . and quite another thing to get her, to do it. Your friend sounds not easy to deal with in a difficult situation . . . her "it-is-entirely"-offering replacement shows this, and certainly "beating around the bush" it was not her daughter's fault. How you meet her point of view and behavior depends on how much her friendship is to you. (I, do think, however, that you yourself were somewhat at fault for not being wiser when you lent your "best and most expensive" sweater to a young girl who only needed a wrap for warmth, not a fine sweater for glamor allowance. "To meet her maliciously "fastidious-ness" you should have said something like this: "I'd really not like to lend you this sweater because it's my very best one, and if anything happened to it, I doubt if I could replace it. But here's a very nice one that will be even more useful to you, because it's so cozily warm."

Man Caller And His Coat And Hat

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Please settle an argument between my brother and me: Is it, or isn't it, correct for a hostess (a hostess of any age, a married woman or a girl greeting her "date" at the door) to take a man's coat or hat when he arrives or to hand it to him to put on or to help him put on his coat when he departs. Indicate where he is to leave his coat and hat . . . in the entrance-hall closet or on a table or chair or wherever. (Naturally a hostess assists a man who is crippled, or blind, or has other needful assistance.) Who wins, lady friend, you or your brother? My bet is that your brother will win . . . a man who doesn't need assistance

Celia.

To make light of the work of steak requires 325 deg. you have to go along with it.

Now is the finest time of year for dessert fruits. Festure them in all their beauty. Pass bowls of them laden with luscious Bartlett pears, Lombard plums, purple Concord grapes. Put in a few peaches for good measure, although they are a bit dripsy to be eaten anywhere near a good damask tablecloth. Pass crackers. If the crackers in your box have become a little limp from summer or fall humidity, spread them sparingly with butter, and put them in the oven for about 5 or 8 minutes, to dry out and crispen. This buttering and crispening improves them and makes them perfect under bits of fancy cheeses.

Queen Facing Same Problems As Persons Leaving on Trip

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A host of personal chores and decisions confront the Queen these days, typical of the problems facing persons leaving home on a long trip.

Packing has to be done to fit schedule of varied activities, clothes and means of travel. Presents have to be bought for the family that will be spending Christmas without her.

When she boards the plane for the flight to Bermuda Nov. 22, starting an Australian tour lasting six months, she will have chosen both the jewelry and clothing inside the lightweight luggage purchased for her 1951 Canadian trip. There will be enough to last until she boards the chartered Ilser Castle at Jamaica, Nov. 27. It must be suited to the occasions before her and befitted for a Queen.

Summer Dresses

Most of her clothes are ready—with the exception of a few final fittings and the inevitable last-minute decisions even queens leave for the last moment. Concerns are the variety of weather she will meet on this around-the-world journey, the sought advice on clothing colors and materials from diplomatic sources of the countries concerned.

One thing is certain. The wardrobe will range from warm to downright hot until she gets back home next May. She is expected to wear many silk and nylon materials of gossamer weight and she's picked at least a dozen off-the-shoulder cottons ranging in price from $2 to $20.

As she did on her Canadian tour, the Queen will probably include a lot of ballet-length evening dresses, easier to wear and less bulky than the embroidered offshoulder she has made famous.

Already packed are crinolines, hat and shoe boxes and the dress-crested black and brown leather suitcases that have been in the Windsor family for more than a generation. Another case lists detailing contents and position in it.

Advance Tips Guarded

One subsidiary, problem has been that, as usual, the Queen has kept secret for months the chosen outfit than most of her subjects. That is because the clothes and color she wears at a certain function are indicated to closely-concerned women well ahead of time. The custom prevents wives of officials and diplomats from the embarrassment of choosing the same color dress or closely identical.

The knowledge goes, however, to only a chosen few. Other than that the dressmakers are sworn and she appears in them, when details are readily given out by the designer concerned.

The problem of hot-weather clothes has been considered carefully to provide the Queen with different shades and types required for her "English roses" complexion in any climate. Adviser is Australian-born Thelma Holland, who has looked after the Queen's beauty problems since her teens and who was responsible for the natural beauty on Coronation Day.

Then there are presents, as important fatefulness task. One will be a birthday present for Prince Charles, five years old on Nov. 14.

BEAUTY

Good Looks Depend Upon Nutrition

There are young ladies built like silvers who are such in love with their slender silhouettes that they are afraid of gaining a single pound. They live on practically nothing a day and would consider the consumption of a green salad plain gorging. Their fear of taking on weight actually amounts to a phobia.

What these misguided girls do not realize is that a long continued diet deficient in proteins, vitamins and minerals on a diet that is not well-balanced eventually leads to malnutrition, which is more common than most of us realize. Overweight, of course, is a health menace, but so is underweight!

Undernourishment can affect the spirits as well as the body. Many a girl, determined to keep her measurements trim, and fanatically limiting her food intake, will find eventually that she becomes easily irritated, falls into frequent moods of depression and that her once good disposition is swelling. Her digestive motors are crying out for fuel, that's what's the matter.

It is very nice to sport a waistline that can almost be spanned by the fingers of her hands but it is an asset that isn't worth the starving for. And what does the svelte look mean anyway, if cheeks are pale and there is no ginger in the step?

Healthy from malnutrition comes on slowly. The first sign is lack of exhaurance. A girl tires easily. She is no longer the life of the party; it is just too much bother. Every little task looks like a big job. Even though she may have had a good night's sleep, she does not awaken in the morning refreshed.

Appetite is regulated to a certain extent by one's eating habits. If you are accustomed to a breakfast consisting of a cup of coffee your stomach won't expect much. Load up on a maintainance breakfast for a time and you will soon be keen about it.

One needs proteins, found in meats, eggs, fish and cheese; one needs carbohydrates, and a certain amount of fat. Milk is not just a beverage, but food, and the adult should drink at least a pint a day. Fruit and vegetables help regulate the organs of digestion and furnish valuable vitamins and mineral salts.

Ousted Premier Calls on Guiana Workers to Strike

British troops dispatched to Guiana prepare to patrol the streets of Georgetown, capital of the South American colony, to forestall any attempt on the part of government supporters to set fire to the wooden colonial government buildings. Sir Albert Savage, top left, governor of the colony, removed Prime Minister Cheddis Jagan and five members of his cabinet, accusing them of attempting to set up a Communist state. Jagan and his wife, top right, deny they are Communists and called on native workers to strike in protest. The strike is spreading slowly but so far little violence has been reported.—Central Press Canadian.

Queen Returns From Vacation In Highlands

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh and their two children returned by train to London today at the end of their summer vacation in the Scottish Highlands.

The Queen's first major engagement is the state opening of Parliament Nov. 3 at which she will deliver the speech from the throne announcing the business the government will tackle in the coming year.

Before this, on Saturday she will unveil the Runnymede memorial to war victims.

Next week she will hold the first of two Investitures at Buckingham Palace, the only two she will be able to hold before leaving on a six-month Commonwealth tour Nov. 23.

Queen Looked Cheerful

The Queen looked rested and cheerful as she stepped from the train wearing a slim-fitting, grey flannel suit with a matching grey felt hat.

Princess Margaret, whose own public duties will necessarily be heavier this year in the Queen's absence, also appeared fit and healthy in her black and white donegal tweed suit. With it she wore a black velvet cap.

Prince Charles and Princess Anne, both dressed in blue, were each holding a pet dog.

Kitimat Project Greatest of Kind In Commonwealth

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Let Prince Philip have very full schedule give him a hard hat, a sturdy pair of boots, a good guide and use of an airplane.

Do all this and there still would be a lot of work to take part in everything at the Kitimat aluminum project as British Columbia's industrial frontier. The scenery alone could keep a man busy for weeks, they say.

Kitimat is the tidewater township where the Aluminum Company of Canada's smelter will begin turning out its first aluminum ingots shortly before the Duke of Edinburgh arrives in Canada July 29.

But Kitimat means other things, too.

There is a hollowed-out mountain at Kemano, encasing the huge turbines which will power the $450,000,000 project.

There is the 46-mile transmission line over the mountains from Kemano to Kitimat. There is the tent-pitched camp in deep snow, in the summer months, to get it over the 4,000-foot summit of Kildala pass.

Bottling up the canyon of the Nechako river is the biggest dam of its kind in the British Commonwealth. The water, made free by the dam, will move westward to provide the reservoir of power that is the No. 1 attraction in production of aluminum.

Sunnyside Park Will be Moved To CNE Grounds

TORONTO (CP)—It had to go. There was no question about that in the motor age, it was an out-and-out nuisance.

But the problem that had been batted about Toronto for more years than most people care to remember was: Where?

An anachronism in the modern age, smack athwart a choked, six-lane highway, Toronto's Sunnyside amusement park has had its future settled. It's to be moved a mile east to the Canadian National Exhibition grounds, probably next spring.

The city-owned fun spot stretches from west Queen street, southward across Lakeshore boulevard toward the Lake Ontario shore. Through it pass two main thoroughfares leading to the junction of No. 2 highway and the Queen Elizabeth Way.

Drivers' Nightmare

Motorists entering Toronto from the west don't need to be told about Sunnyside. To them, for most of the 40 years it has been located there, it's a confusing tangle of vehicles slowed to a crawl or halted altogether by thousands of pedestrians of all ages who daily swarm there from spring until fall stream back and forth across the boulevard.

Some civic officials thought it should be moved to Toronto Island out in the bay. Others suggested a lakeside spot south of the highways. Still others felt it should be transferred out of the city altogether. The CNE site has always had its backers. The concessionaires, of course, wanted to stay put.

The matter has been settled at last. A decision to build a $4,500,000 bridge at the Humber river, eliminating a number of traffic bottlenecks, and the necessary approaches, meant that Sunnyside had to go, as soon as possible.

Quickly, a section of the CNE ground, used only two weeks of every year, was selected as the next summer the roller coaster, shooting gallery, merry-go-rounds, miniature auto rides, hot dog stands, backers, weight-guessers and hula-girl music will be gone from their old stand near the boardwalk.

Canada Faced With Challenge Says Geo. Drew

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Monday night that the fiercest competition in world trade caused by the resumption of high production in countries torn by the Second World War faces Canada with a challenge: To offer the things that are needed at prices that people are willing to pay.

"The welfare of every Canadian will depend on what we do to meet this challenge," he said in a speech prepared for the Advertising and Sales Club of Ottawa.

In competition Canada has great advantages, he said. Her raw materials are the envy of the whole world, and she is the only country in the west with all five sources of industrial energy — coal, water power, oil, natural gas and atomic energy.

The only way she can meet the present challenge is by greater efficiency in production, distribution and selling.

Seeking Clues to $300,000 Ransom Money FBI Questions Man and Woman in Shifts

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today sought to pry new information from the kidnappers of Bobby Greenlease in hopes of uncovering some clue that might lead to $300,000 of ransom money still missing.

Teams of federal agents, working in shifts, questioned 34-year-old Carl Austin Hall and his 41-year-old woman friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady in their 11th floor cells in the skyscraper Jackson county jail.

Nearly half of the record $600,000 ransom was paid by multi-millionaire automobile dealer Robert C. Greenlease Sr. has been recovered.

Hall, who admitted killing six-year-old Bobby and burying his body in a lime-filled grave, first said he thought he lost $300,000 while on a drinking spree in St. Louis. Later he said he believed Mrs. Heady lost the money.

If Mrs. Heady has offered any information on the $300,000, officers have not disclosed it.

James A. Robey, special agent in charge of the FBI here, said earlier yesterday new evidence would be made in Washington.

Two matrons at the St. Louis city jail, where the prisoners were held when first caught, disclosed Mrs. Heady was the "best behaved woman prisoner" ever to occupy a cell there.

Mrs. Grace Gates, a matron for 12 years, said Tuesday night she had "never seen a colder, more scheming woman in my life."...

She seemed absolutely unconcerned," said Mrs. Margaret Kosnig, supervisor of matrons.

Hall and Mrs. Heady, a plump divorcee described as an alcoholic, spent six days in the jail.

Federal kidnapping charges have been lodged against the pair. If they elude conviction on the federal charges, they still would face Missouri state kidnapping charges and Kansas murder charges,—both carrying the death penalty.

—SHORT WAR—

HOVE, England (Reuters)—Lord Balfour of Inchrye, Conservative parliamentary under-secretary for air during the Second World War, worried Tuesday that the next world war might be won or lost by air power during the first few hours.

Philip Is Duke Earl and Baron But Not Prince

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Protocol note to Canadians who play host next year to the Duke of Edinburgh:

Don't call him Prince Philip. Except as an intimate or colloquial form of address, it simply isn't correct.

Formally, the full title is HRH Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth, Baron Greenwich and Greenwich in the County of London. For ordinary purposes, that boils down to the Duke of Edinburgh.

The point is that the Duke is by heredity a prince, by virtue of blood royal, that is of Britain's Royal Family. Under he is a Greek prince. He was born Prince Philip of Greece, received his style and titles and became plain Lieut. Philip Mountbatten Feb. 8, 1947. When he married Princess Elizabeth, now the Queen, in November that year, the late King George VI proclaimed him HRH Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, but did not confer upon him the titular style of prince.

Of course, says Buckingham Palace, close friends and even members of the household staff might well call him Prince Philip —but it just isn't done in court documents, official publications or newspapers that take such things seriously.

Interviewing of Anti-Red PoW in Effort to Coax Them Back in Fold Starts Thurs.

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The potentially explosive face-to-face meetings of Communist explanation teams with 22,300 former Red soldiers who renounced communism while in their captivity begins Thursday in an atmosphere charged with tension.

The Communists notified the Korean repatriation commission today they would start the long delayed screening of the anti-Red PoWs in an effort to coax them back to their native lands.

UN Start Later

The UN command told the commission it would not begin Thursday. The Allies presumably are in no hurry to start meeting with the one Briton, 23 Americans and 333 South Koreans who refuse repatriation, a small number in comparison to the thousands of Chinese and North Koreans who spurned return to their homelands.

The Red persuasion efforts will begin at 8 a.m. (6 p.m. EST today) and last eight hours daily.

The Reds told the commission they would concentrate first on Chinese PoWs and hoped to interview 1,000 the first day.

The Communists will have 14,500 Chinese and 7,800 North Koreans to interview. If they maintain the 1,000 daily rate, the Reds conceivably could get three or even four cracks at each man before explanations end Dec. 24.

Work On Leaders

However, Allied observers felt the Reds would rush through some captives and work hard on others—particularly the leaders, whom they rest probably would follow.

The repatriation commission met to iron out details for the explanation sessions.

Five-man observer teams from India, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Switzerland lined up at the Indian headquarters for briefings. The observers will sit in on the interviews, which the commission ruled could be conducted either as an individual or group basis.

The Reds, who have insisted on single interviews, presumably will have their explanation teams meet with the PoWs individually.

Meanwhile, the South Korean government sub-pedaled its bitter campaign against the Indian custodial force guarding the captives.

Second-Highest Popular Vote Polled in Aug.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's August general election saw the highest voter registration in Canada's history and the second-highest popular vote.

Preliminary figures released Tuesday by Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, showed an eligible voters' list of 8,384,176 and 5,540,527 votes cast in the 261 ridings where contests were held.

The winning Liberal party slipped slightly from its 1940 vote total, and the CCF popular vote also dropped. The Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit picked up votes, the latter making the heaviest gain in ballots. The Communist added 9,000, but through they wound up with no seats.

The popular vote was well under the 1949 record of 5,948,971. Both these figures take in only unspoiled ballots.

The voter-registration figure was an all-time high by a good margin, exceeding the previous top of 8,-982,445 in the election four years ago.

The actual number of electors who voted is not known. Apart from the number of spoiled ballots, a factor influencing the total is third two of the constituencies, Halifax and Queens, P.E.I.—are double-member ridings where the electors cast two votes.

The chief electoral officer estimated unofficially that about 66 per cent of those who had a chance to exercise the franchise did so.

The ballot figures show the Liberals obtained 2,619,038 votes, or 46.86 per cent of the total. In 1940, they had 2,929,261 for just over 50 per cent.

The Progressive Conservatives bettered their 1940 vote showing slightly while gaining 10 seats. They got 1,751,673 votes (31 per cent) compared with 1,742,276 (30 per cent) four years ago.

The CCF, though they almost doubled their Commons representation from 13 to 23, slipped on the vote. The Socialists got 696,191 (11 per cent) as against a 1940 total of 782,410 (15 per cent).

Social Credit rang up 305,909 (5.4 per cent) compared with 139,815 (2.5 per cent) in 1940. The Social Credit seats rose from 10 to 15.

Churchill Had Best Shipping Year in History

By BERNICE MacIVER

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—Canada's shortcut to overseas markets is going into winter hibernation after finishing the most successful season in its 22-year career as a shipper of grain.

The shipping season at this Hudson Bay port closed at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday with the sailing of the 3600-ton steamer Berlin.

The Berlin's cargo brought to 31,732,000 bushels the number of bushels cleared in the summer months when Churchill is an active port.

Grain moved last year—and that was a record season—totalled 8,-900,000 bushels. Last year, 26 grain ships cleared port this year 31.

So far this year 3,401 cars of grain have been unloaded. Wheat amounting to more than four times the terminal elevator's 2,500,000-bushel capacity has been turned, cleaned and shipped.

No more grain ships will clear port this year because of the prohibitive insurance rates after mid-October and, later, the ice which blockades the port's approaches.

Trainmen Killed As Ottawa Train Jumps Track

The engineer and firemen of this CPR train were killed, but 35 passengers escaped serious injury when the locomotive tender, baggage car and one passenger coach jumped the rails at Gracefield, 65 miles from Ottawa. The locomotive and tender plowed 150 feet into the bush before coming to a halt and rolling over. No cause of the wreck has been established.

Duke to Steer Clear of Big Cities on Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—The Duke of Edinburgh will generally steer clear of big cities when he visits Canada next summer, government officials said Tuesday.

He will open the British Empire Games at Vancouver July 31. But he will miss Montreal and Toronto and will touch neither the Atlantic provinces nor the Prairies. He will make his 30-day tour by air, officials said.

Officials said it will be another month or six weeks before exact dates and times are worked out.

Philip will arrive at Ottawa July 29 and leave for home from Quebec City Aug. 17.

His other points of call, besides Ottawa, Vancouver and Quebec City, will be Victoria, Kitimat, B.C., Port Radium, Coppermine and Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories, Churchill, Man., and Valcartier military camp near Quebec City.

May all his calls be Social!

When firemen get a business call it usually means that Fire is loose again . . . trying to satisfy an insatiable appetite for human lives and property dollars.

It would be a much happier world if firemen never had any business!

But, unfortunately, business is getting better all the time. Careless smokers are frequent callers. So are people who permit faulty electrical fixtures in their homes . . . and others who never check their heating systems.

Keep your name off this list of callers! Help prevent fires in your home by using common sense . . . today and every day.

Wanted Man Still at Large

CALGARY (CP)—Donald Henderson, wanted by Calgary police for the 1949 murder of Yvonne Levesque, still is at large.

Fingerprint experts in Ottawa have confirmed that a man arrested at Schreiber, who recently told Ontario provincial police he was Henderson, is not the wanted man. Henderson's fingerprints had been sent to Ottawa for comparison with those of the man who claimed to be Henderson.

Henderson is listed as No. 1 wanted man by police in Canada. The man held in Schreiber was remanded for mental examination.

U.K. Air Engineers Visit Eisenhower

Representatives of the British aircraft industry leave the White House after conferring with President Eisenhower. From left: Patrick Dolan, Sir Roy H. Dobson, director of A. V. They say that Britain has developed air defence machines that are "unbelievable" and would surprise any air invader with their effectiveness.—Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

I came home from the market with celiery and stuff, and I put the bag down on the kitchin table saying to ma, Oh boy, anybody that says Sherry Judge aint a dope, I guess they never met him or even heerd of him.

Now Benny, we mustnt judge others, ma said. It takes all kinds of people to make a world. That is a proverbial fact, so if we go around criticising people, the next thing we know we'll be criticized for it criticising. Besides we all have our little weeknesses and hidden faults, she said, and I said, Oh boy, there's nothing hidden about Sherry's dopyness. Everybody can see the dopey things he does as plain as day, I said.

Well, just forget all about it and let others make remarks, ma said. For land sakes what did he do now? she said, and I said, Well, you know that funkman that comes around with a horse and wagon?

I dont think so, ma said, and I said, Sure you do ma, it's the one the horse had corns around here. Well anyways, Sherry went around the street with me, and we seen the way home the horse was standing waiting for his customers, and Sherry that is his dopyness is to claim that if you held cellery out to a horse, he would eat anything but the green leaves that get thrown away anyways.

Goodness, I'd hesitate to trust a horse to that extent, ma said, and I said, That's just what I told Shorty, and I held the cellery out to the horse to prove it, and the horse only left the stump, and I had to pull exter hard even to rescue that much. Oh boy, is Sherry a dope? I said.

The result being I had to make a special trip for more cellery.

Steel Production To Break Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel production this year will break all previous records by a "wide margin," from Age, U. S. national metal-working weekly, says today.

"The fourth quarter decline in steel business has been greatly over-rated by some of the so-called experts," Iron Age says.

Output this year is expected to reach 112,000,000 net tons of ingots and steel for castings—about 7,-000,000 tons more than the previous high of 1951, says Iron Age.

"Outlook now is that fourth quarter business will be only a shade below third quarter," the weekly adds. "This optimistic forecast is based on the fact that cancellations of orders have already hit a peak and are now declining." Inventory correction "appears to be over the hump."

irst Trip South Of Arctic Circle eal Surprise

EDMONTON (CP) — Seventeen ar-old Samuel Smith has made first trip south of the Arctic ircle and he's almost surprised Edmonton by his first look at ood streets at night, a ride in automobile, a visit to a movie ouse, and cement sidewalks.

The school boy from Aklavik, 90 miles to the north, flew to Edmonton at uncharacteristic speed to join the navy. He was here he was a year too young to ll return to school in Aklavik.

The boy who said he "camped the Corona Hotel, one of the ew hostelry hotels in downtown dmonton, found lighted streets an amazing sight.

"Back home you need a flash- ht to walk at night and even ien it's much help," he said. ou either trip over dogs or cats r you fall into holes."

On his first night here Samuel ent to a show. The floor was ot covered with ice. He had ot been used to and he also found it ifficult to sit still in his seat. urns and use it as a cushion. Having able to buy candy in the ovie was another surprise, but ot the greatest surprise were the prices. In Aklavik he kept him bottle. A doughnut and coffee ould cost 75 cents.

Samuel finished grade eight at the Anglican mission school in klavik. Although his parents, who ve by fishing and trapping, have ome in Aklavik for the last hundred ears, the mission, When not studying Boy Scout work, movies, choir nd cubes and skating, kept him busy.

Now he will return to school and his grade nine with much of his ureles taught by correspondence with the Alberta education department at Edmonton.

Pro-British Unionist Party avored to Win

BELFAST (Reuters)—The right- ing pro-British Unionist party ovt Ulster has a heavy fa- vorite to win the forthcoming gen- eral elections in Northern Ireland to extend for another 5 years the 30-year- control over Parliament for an- ther four years.

Nominations for the Oct. 22 elec- on closed with 11 members of arty returned unopposed to the 52-seat House of Commons. The ther 41 will be held in the local ontestants.

It is indicated that the party pro- ably would retain the power it has ad since the separate northern arliament was created in 1921.

Among those returned unopposed ere Prime Minister Lord Brooke- orough, Health Minister Dame ora Porter, and Sir Norman ewington, Speaker of the House. our Nationalists, who want a nited Ireland, and a Labor, also re returned unopposed.

Up Quiet

For Northern Ireland, long a poli- cal storm-centre, this election ems likely to be unusually quiet. In ontrast to the explosive 1949 elec- on there have been few clashes etween the Unionists and Na- ionalists.

Northern Ireland is self-govern- ng, though an integral part of ritain. Its foreign policy is han- led by the British government.

Monday's nominations actually erved 42 seats. The other four re held by Queen's University, elfast, where members are elec- d separately.

The strongest challenger to nionist supremacy is the North- ireland Labor party in Bel- ast, which hopes to win back three four seats it lost in the Union- ist landslide four years ago.

The Laborites, counterpart of the ritish Labor party, back the ritish connection and advocate ro action against unemployment.

Controversial Issues Facing College Students

MONTREAL (CP) — Controver- sial issues Tues. faced 55 delegates representing 30,500 Canadian uni- versity students as the annual gathering of the National Federa- tion of Canadian University Stu- dents entered its second day.

Delegates divided into four com- missions to tackle the thorny ques- tions of increasing membership levy and exchanging student dele- gations with Russia.

A faction of the federation wants to employ a full-time, salaried president who would take a year off from his studies to handle fed- eration affairs from national head- quarters in Ottawa. To this end, they would increase dues from 25 cents annually to $1.

Two Montreal universities take opposite stands on the issue. Last year, the University of Montreal refused NFCUS when the fed- eration voted down the proposed increase. This year, the U of M sent only "observers" to the meet- ings.

McGill University has said it will strongly oppose an unwarranted raise in the membership fee.

Several universities also have threatened to resign the federa- tion support the Russian ex- change program, whereby a group of Canadian students would tour Russia and a Communist delega- tion would make the rounds in Can- ada.

Main objection is that a visit to Russia would expose Canadian students to be "misunderstood"— branded as Communist sympathizers.

Another problem is federation relations with the Communist-dom- inated International Union of Stu- dents. The federation now sends observers to IUS meetings, but some universities are known to favor all-out unity with the Inter- national group.

Coal Industry Goes on Trial For Its Life

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, (CP)—The Maritime coal industry went on trial Monday in the Colchester county court house, fifty-nine delegates from District 26, United Mine Workers (CIO) in a court room for a convention that may mean life or death for the collier- ies.

Two blocks away in the railroad yards the horn of a diesel loco- motive sounded defiance. Diesels plus oil furnaces, electric stoves and rising coal prices have helped bring the industry to its present pass.

President Freeman Jenkins and brother officers said the situation was "critical but not hopeless."

They put an answer in federal subsidies and modern production methods.

They said, in a report to the con- vention: "The federal government now fit to subsidize the industry during the late war and should when necessary continue to do so. "Maritime coal has the right to higher wages and improved working con- ditions must go on. Our member- ship cannot be expected to subsid- ize this industry through low wages."

The miners, without a contract since June 30, get a basic $0.74 a day.

The Nova Scotia government had been asked to set up a royal com- mission.

Three-Point Plan

To meet the crisis the officers suggested:

1. A cut in production costs by modern coal extraction and pre- paration methods.

2. Offsetting railroad diesellza- tion by using coal to run en- gines now burning U. S. coal.

3. Creation of coal for elec- tric power instead of building more hydro plants.

Dominion Stores Aid Medical Research Work

The establishment of a re- search fund for the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology was announced Monday by the of- ficials of Dominion Stores Lim- ited and the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Toronto.

The $25,000 initially contribut- ed will enable the Department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology to carry out program of research and teaching, the need for which has long been apparent. The benefits of this fund will be passed on to the entire Canadian public through lives saved by discoveries made in the field of research and by improved teach- ing of obstetrics and gynaecology.

Since the Department of Ob- stetrics and Gynaecology was es- tablished in 1912 it has earned for itself an enviable reputation through its research program and techniques that have been de- veloped as a result.

"In establishing this research fund we believe that we are as- sisting a branch of medicine that is extremely important but that has not received the recognition it is due," J. William Horsey, pre- sident of Dominion Stores Lim- ited, said, in announcing the fund.

Bullfighting Losing Fight For Popularity

MADRID (AP) — Bullfighting here is not what it used to be. Soccer outclasses it 4 to 1 in pop- ularity. Even baseball and basket- ball are catching up fast.

The bullfight arena has a job filling the 25,000 seats on Sun- day during the March - through- October season. But 60,000 to 80,- 000 cheering fans show up every Sunday the Royal Madrid soccer teams play.

International basketball matches like the one with Italy a few months ago, drew nearly 20,000.

Baseball is not as far advanced. But as many as 5,000 have shown up for recent games.

Desertion of the bullring began during the republic. After the civil war there was a temporary revival caused by a magnificent matador, Manolete, killed in 1947. Then a revulsion for blood sports was fol- lowed with lack of topflight bull- fighters, high prices and poor bulls.

Most important, bullfighting is not a participator sport. Children get little kick any more out of passing an imaginary ball with a flannel rag or using their fathers and grandfathers did. They're out now with a ball, any size, kicking it around at every opportunity.

Religious Theme of Douks Key to Riddle of Sect Born 300 Years Ago in Russia

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP) — The Russian phrase "Slava Bohu" (praise God) rings through the history of the Doukhobors, mostly with sadness but sometimes with joyful tone.

This religious theme is the key to the riddle of a sect born 300 years ago in protest against ritual changes in the Russian Orthodox Church. It has lived to plague Canada with perhaps this country's strangest puzzle.

The problem is stated simply: What is to be done with some 2,500 persons, members of a radical Doukhobor sect, who defy the law of the land by upending graves-stones, dynamiting railways, setting homes on fire, parading naked and refusing to send their children to school?

Involved Problem

But the problem becomes more involved when it is remembered that these people whisper "Slava Bohu" to justify their actions, and for the most part mean it.

What is the meaning of people—mostly older women—who show their bodies publicly without apparent shame?

Why do furtive figures scurry through the valleys of the Kootenays, place bombs on railways, then return to their shabby dwellings and prey no liver are lost, Slava Bohu?

Authorities emphasize that the "guilty" Doukhobors—the Sons of Freedom—number only 2,500 of 18,000 Doukhobors in Canada.

"Orthodox" and "independent" Doukhobors have become useful additions to Canadian life, particularly as farmers but also in politics, law, business and other fields. Early Industry

"They turned the Kootenays into a garden," said one government official, referring to the migration of 11,000 Doukhobors from the Prairies to British Columbia early in the century.

But while the more law-abiding Doukhobors created the garden, a splinter Sons of Freedom group created squalid villages such as Krestova, their stronghold, where bedsteads from homes destroyed by fire serve as backyard gates. It is located on a lofty plateau beside the Selkirk mountains, Kresteva is a barren place of unpainted shacks and rutted roads, dismal monument to a people loved by many but understood perhaps only by the God they believe whispers fantastic commands in their ears.

Their story began when a mid-17th-century upheaval in the Russian Orthodox Church set the faithful arguing about such things as whether they should be blessed by two or three fingers.

Repudiating such quibbling the Doukhobor religion came into being holding the belief that man before God is sufficient unto himself, brother to all and available to him through his own loving and conscience, intuition and inspiration, as opposed to the teachings of the great "western" religions that man is born in sin and must be saved by an act of grace.

In some respects, the ideas of the Doukhobors are similar to those of the Quakers. Cutting themselves away from their ancient faith in those cruel days of Czarist Russia, the Doukhobors adopted pacifism almost at once as a cardinal belief. Worship Leader

The simple Doukhobor peasants sought among themselves a leader, and immediately endowed him with heavenly powers although they had just threw aside religious authority.

In later days in Canada, in the words of one official, this was to lead them to accept the above vicious preddings of a drink-sodden libertine in whose shorted obscenities at meetings they sought double meanings, messages from the creator.

In Russia they were persecuted unsuccessfully. Largely through the efforts of the novelist Leo Tolstoy, who became their partisan and the communal way of life led him to consider the Doukhobors the only true Christians, they got a chance to come to Canada.

At the time Peter (the Lordly) Verigin was their leader, although in Siberian exile. Tolstoy donated the proceeds of the novel "Resurrection" to their cause and they came to the Canadian Prairies in 1899.

Go arrival at Halifax, a leber official greeted them aboard ship and declared "on behalf of the workingmen of this country, I welcome you." The Doukhobors knelt and put their foreheads on the cold planks, overcome with gratitude.

Aided By Quakers

Among others welcoming them was a delegation of Quakers, who also contributed to the passage of the Doukhobors, a word which means "spirit, wrestler."

In Parliament, there was some criticism of the liberal government action in allowing them to enter the country, but the minister of interior (Clifford Sifton) said: "I think the House will not agree with the suggestion that because a man may have conscientious objections to bearing arms that therefore he has not courage, therefore he has not those qualities which go to make a good citizen."

Peter the Lordly was released and joined his flock in Canada in 1902, but not before unrest began. The first nude parade occurred at Yorkton, Sask., when 1,200 Doukhobors, men, women and children, marched naked for 10 miles.

Then began the burning of homes, the dynamiting of railways, the arrests and imprisonments.

Peter the Lordly was killed in a mysterious explosion on a train in 1924 and his son Peter (the Purger) Verigin succeeded him.

Peter the Purger was deported to Russia in 1928 and died there in 1939. Another son, William Verigin, succeeded him.

Under William Verigin the Sons of Freedom movement grew. Its members refused to send their children to school, refused to register births, marriages and deaths, refused to take out automobile licences.

Then began the burning of schools, the dynamiting of railways, the arrests and imprisonments.

Today the Sons of Freedom are a problem to the provincial police, the courts and the penitentiary system.

Spent Two Weeks Inside Russia

Mark Edmond, 23, of Boulder, Colo., and Zander Hollander of Brooklyn, N.Y., are shown with Russian books and their baggage shortly after their return to Berlin from a two-week trip through the Soviet Union. At a press conference, the youths said they were not restricted in any way in their movement about Moscow, but two young women accompanied them constantly and served as interpreters. The young college editors said they were permitted to visit a newspaper plant, a university in Kiev and other establishments be-hind the Iron Curtain and even had a peek into the Kremlin. Ods said he took pictures throughout the trip and although he was stopped once and asked to identify himself repeatedly, none of the films of his camera was taken away from him. They returned loaded with Russian souvenirs, mostly booklets and pictures.—Central Press Canadian.

Frontier Port on Western Shore of Hudson Bay Marks Up Fine Shipping Record

By BERNICE MacIVER
Canadian Press Correspondent

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — This frontier port on the western shore of Hudson Bay has marked up a shipping record, despite the barricade of ice which cuts the shipping season to three months of late summer.

More than 9,300,000 bushels of grain have poured from the spouts of the giant white terminal into the holds of 27 ocean vessels. By the season's end Oct. 15 another five vessels will have raised the total to about 10,000,000 bushels.

Last year, 26 ships took a record 8,500,000 bushels.

Incoming cargoes this year have included British cars, window glass liquor and general cargo.

Sub-Arctic conditions which make insurance rates prohibitive before mid-July and after mid-October make the port unattractive for most of the year, in winter, the port is dead.

Shorter Route

Through Churchill, some 1,676 miles as the bird flies, grain from Calgary to Liverpool compared with the trip through the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

The port of Churchill is 22 years old and was carved from a peninsula of rock and muskeg. A Canadian National Railways line and a service by Canadian Pacific Airlines link it with the rest of Canada.

Plans for the terminal elevator were laid in 1929 with care taken to allow for expansion. When and if exports increase, it will be possible to enlarge the terminal to a capacity of 16,000,000 bushels.

After the grain arrives, diesel engines draw the loaded grain cars up a spur line to the elevator and onto the car unloaders in the track sheds. There are four unloaders, each capable of emptying eight cars an hour.

Modern Equipment

The modern cleaning, drying and grading equipment throughout the elevator is in quadruplicate, making it possible to handle four different grades of wheat at one time without the risk of getting them mixed.

The port can load three grain carriers simultaneously. A 10,000-ton ship, the average also calling at Churchill, carries anywhere from 280,000 to 300,000 bushels of wheat—calculated in terms of 1,700-bushel cars—165 to 255 grain cars.

While shipping grain is the reason for Churchill's existence, it is also becoming a new headquarters for mining company survey parties.

Nine parties worked out of the port this summer after impetus to the search for minerals was provided by a government survey the previous year covering 57,000 square miles.

Britain's Top Boxing Man In New York To Probe Turpin Press Reports

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

HOCKEY!

There is much conjecture on the "hockey street" as to what will comprise the Redmen Senior "B" hockey club personnel this season. The only information available at the moment from official sources is that the majority of last year's squad will be back, augmented by the allotted quota of four imports. Three, actually, if the powers-that-be see fit to allow Bob Taylor, ex-pro and ex-native son, to wear a Redmen livery.

Latest word on the Taylor-Shore deal is from the OHA to the effect that they are looking after the matter and foresee little difficulty in getting the big defenceman's release.

Tony Parisi, sensational young goalie of the 1952-53 Redmen, won't be around this year. He is reported to have signed with a European hockey club. "Fresh-Em-Out" Tony should go big with the spuds over 'ome or on the continent.

However, it's stated, that a goalie formerly with the Kenora team will be around when the bugles blare the first practice call in June. Seven or eight other net-work hankies will be on hand on October 19, it is hoped, when they turn out for the "cutting" process.

The Redmen, bolstered by a couple of hard-hitting defencemen and a goal-getting forward or two, should make things mighty interesting for the rest of the pack, providing old age hasn't taken too heavy a toll on some of the veterans of the squad. They carried the ultimate champions from Kingston to a seven-game group series finals last year that produced the best senior hockey seen here in many a season, and with a little more reserve power might have closed the victors. But this year is another year and "Golden sabre!"

Practice will get under way in Memorial Arena as soon as ice is available. We understand ice making has started, but the boys ran into a little "pipe" difficulty which might cause a brief delay. However, they should have time to get in many a serious practice grind before they face the barrier against the Kingston Goodyears here on October 30.

And while on the subject of hockey word from the district has it that there might be a junior "B" grouping after all. Wren Blair, boss-man of the Oshawa Truckers, has been appointed recreation director at Port Perry, but will still maintain his puck-chasing interests in the Motor City. Blair hopes, it is reported, to ice a junior "B" squad in the "Perry" and that could include a number of Oshawa youngsters.

Hopes are being held out in the western part of the district that a junior "B" loop, consisting of Peterborough, Oshawa, Lindsay and Kingston, might come into being. However, this latest news will mean another shake-up in OHA plans as the Kingston Vics, OHA vice-prexy Frank Buckland informs us, have been given permission to play in the Ottawa Valley League, since no junior grouping in this district were available at the time. He said the OHA is seriously considering the formation of such a group with a lakeshore or another team being added . . . Hmmm.

CANADIENS COMING!

City and district fans will get, many of them, their first glimpse of the colorful Montreal Canadiens on January 13 next year when the Habitants will play an intra-club game in Memorial Arena. The announcement comes from Bill Malway, who says the Stanley Cup champions will appear here under the auspices of the Belleville Y's Men's Club. Richard, the fabulous Jean Beliveau, Boom-Boom Geoffrion, Elmer Lach and all the color and ice-lane fire of the Habs will be on hand. Canadiens made a tremendous hit with city and district fandom a few years ago when they played their first exhibition game here, and the colorful champions will likely be greeted by a packed arena.

LOTS OF CHOICE!

We do not know whether the Canadian Rugby Union-Import rule affects the Peterborough Petes senior "B" hockey club, but a look at the roster of imports leaves the impression it's a knock-out for defencemen, pro-rata basis.

The apparent burying of the Petes-Eagles hatchet, the importation of a playing coach, ope Eddie Redmond, said to be an ex-professional, has given senior hockey in the Littlest City a big jolt in the arm.

Redmond, scribe Don Grant columns, has brought in a starry array of hired help, which may cause some extensive noggin-scratching on the part of the Petes' mentor when the time comes for the axe to fall.

There's Eddie Prentice, another ex-pro, last year with the Kenora Thistles, and Denny Lewis, Hamilton lacrosse star, signed by the Trailermen for next year; (those guys are not going to let that Mann Cup get away without a struggle), and Rod Kellum, who last year was with Kitchener. Bill McMaster, back from the Scottish wars, will team up with tough Keith Montgomery on the defence. Jim Munro is back in a Petes' livery and will pair off with one John Hannah who played with the Perth Panthers in Scotland last year, if that means anything.

The veteran Ray Harding has announced his retirement and the Petes' boss-man will have quite a job filling the shoes of that battle-scarred "old" pro netter, who was always a tough nut to crack for the Redmen and other sharpshooters. The Petes have brought in one Eddie Donlevy from Nelonda to fill the Harding void. Not known this writer, we wouldn't be the least bit surprised to see the venerable Ray back between the pipes.

The other teams of the group are getting the jump on the Redmen as far as practice sessions are concerned, we hear, are now on the ice, as are the Petes, while Oshawa has already racked three or four exhibition games away.

LEAFS SELL POST

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League Tuesday night announced the sale of pitcher Carlton Jim Sallers of the OHA Senior A series Post to Baltimore Orioles, new American League entry, for an undisclosed amount of cash. Post, a southpaw, was purchased from San Antonio of the Texas League last spring.

Worried Over Randy Attitude; Meanwhile Olson Tubs Thump As Bobo's Manager Leads Band

By JACK HAND

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP)—Bobo Olson is no ordinary "Bobo." He doesn't boast how he's going to win 20 games, like Bobo Newsom used to do. He doesn't try to pick a round like Rocky Graziano. He doesn't act like a "Bobo" at all.

"I'll be doing the best I can," he said today in his dressing room at Convention Hall where he is training for his Oct. 21 world middleweight title date with Britain's Randy Turpin at Madison Square Garden.

They say Olson got his nickname because his kid sister tried to say "brother" and it came out "Bobo."

Sid Flaherty, the manager, likes the "Bobo" of this company, if there is one.

One-Way Fighter

"I think Turpin is a one-way fighter," said Flaherty, meaning he had only one style. "As I see it, this fight hinges on condition and pace. The first to fold up under pressure will lose. This guy (Olson) has never folded up yet."

Flaherty never saw Turpin in the flesh. But he watched carefully the films of his two fights with Sugar Ray Robinson and his last outing against Charles Humez.

"In his first fight with Robinson, his most effective punch was the rabbit punch," he charged. "I won't stand for any of that."

Advised by visiting British writers that Turpin's camp claimed Olson used some illegal blows with the side of his glove against Paddy Young, Flaherty fired up.

"This fight is in the United States, not in London," he said. "I made sure of that. I'm sure the New York State athletic commission will make sure its rules are enforced."

The writers urged Olson to compare Turpin, as seen in fight movies, with fighters he had met. The closest he could come was Robert Villemain, the once durable Frenchman.

Olson did say that he considered Turpin an "award" fighter and figured Robinson was "better in every way." He explained Robinson's defeat by Turpin in their first fight by saying: "Turpin had the strength on him."

Apparently he doesn't think Turpin will "have the strength on him." He is not overly impressed by the Turpin punch.

LONDON (AP)—The top man in British boxing headed for New York by air today determined to find out what's going on at Randy Turpin's training camp.

Teddy Waltham, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, was plainly worried over conflicting press reports on the mental attitude of the British middleweight who fights Bobo Olson for the world title next Wednesday.

"I am going straight up to Gressingore's to have a talk with him," Waltham told reporters before boarding a plane at London airport.

"I hope if there's something troubling him, it will come out."

Tuesday the London press carried headlines over a statement by Turpin that he'd pull out of the fight "if anyone bothers me."

Today, the headlines changed to "Turpin turns down—I wouldn't be happier," in the Daily Mirror, and "Turpin decides to feel happy" in the Daily Express.

Kelly Meets Crump

NEW YORK (CP)—Lightweight Brian Kelly of Niagara Falls, Ont., was booked by matchmaker Billy Brown Tuesday for a 10-round welterweight scrap with Richie Crump of New York at Madison Square Garden Oct. 30.

The Kelly-Crump bout will be a prelude to the main 10-rounder between lightweights George Araujo of Providence, R.I., and Ted Davis of Hartford, Conn.

Davis won the New England lightweight championship Sept. 10 by beating Araujo in a 10-rounder at Boston.

Riding Derby Winner 'Zev' 'Handy' Sande's Greatest Thrill

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Enzi Sande was born at Groton, S. D., Nov. 13, 1898, and was raised on a farm near American Falls, Idaho, where he rode cow ponies.

He stayed in Idaho until he was 16, little dreaming that one day he'd be ahead of all of the racing world and win most of the major stakes on the turf—races whose names are listed among the most famous in the history of the American turf.

Racegoers made an idol of Sande, who didn't back his mounts, they backed Sande.

He started a bench in front of his locker at Belmont Park. Sande wiped the mud from his face as he came from the wet track where he was making his comeback at the age of 54.

Looking Backward

He smiled, shut his eyes and seemed to be talking as if he had just dismounted from the mighty Man O'War.

"I rode Man o'War once—in 1920 Mister Stakes at Saratoga, and we won by six lengths. He was the greatest horse I ever rode.

"His regular jockey, Clarence Kummer, broke a collar bone in a spill, and they asked me to ride Big Red in the Miller and the Travers stakes. But my friend, Commander J. K. L. Ross, had Sir Martin in a race in Canada on the day of the Travers, and I had to ride up there.

"But, Man o'War. He was the super horse. I haven't seen anything that compares with him, although Citation was a great horse.

"As for others I have ridden—well, I just don't know. There were Zev, Exterminator, Zev, Gallant Fox, Grey Lag, Sarazen, Crusader, Mad Hatter, Chance Play, Flying Ebony, Nellie Morse, and Billy Kelly to name a few."

Thrilled Many Times

His biggest thrill?

"I've been thrilled to within an inch of my life so many times that even now it's hard to say. I guess winning my first Kentucky Derby with Zev in 1923, and then with Flying Ebony in 1925 were the greatest.

"I fell at Saratoga on Aug. 6, 1924. I broke a leg and a collarbone. They thought I'd never ride again. Well, I fooled them.

"The next spring, the late Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt asked me to ride Sarazen, and we won and broke the track record in 1:59 flat de Grace. I knew I was all right again."

Was Derby Is Mod

Before the 1923 derby, Sande had no mount. He was under contract to William du Pont, and Sarazen horses didn't show enough derby class.

"Quatrain was the favorite, but he was to be ridden by Benny Browning, although his owner said it would be okay for me to try and offer Benny $2,000 and 10 per cent if we won. I decided not to ask him.

"Well, that evening the late Mr. William Duke, trainer for Gifford A. Cochran, came to me and said Flying Ebony if I'd ride.

"I took him, and then came a terrific downpour. Flying Ebony could run in the mud, and he won. Quatrain couldn't, and he finished 12th."

Roberts, Poole Big Four Scoring Leaders

TORONTO (CP)—Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts and Ray Poole, a couple of imports who have put the foot back into Canadian football this season, are the Big Four scoring leaders at the three-quarter mark of the schedule. They've scored a total of 32 points on kicking.

Roberts, who joined Ottawa Rough Riders last year after a season with Montreal Alouettes, heads the scoring list with 24 points on five touchdowns, five field goals, 23 converts and one single.

19-Point Week-End

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Roberts, who scored 19 points in Riders' double loss to Montreal Alouettes during the week-end, in a cliche 11-point lead over Poole, kicking star from New York Giants who joined the Als this season. Poole picked up 14 points last week-end on three field goals and nine converts, giving him a total of 32 points.

Avatus Stone of Riders, an early-season pace-maker, dropped into a third place with 27 points. Stone scored one touchdown during the week-end.

Chuck Hunsinger, also of the Als, is fourth with 25 points, five up on Ken Ploszerow of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Canadian-born Tip Logan of Tiger-Cats is sixth with 23 points on three field goals, 17 converts and two singles.

Mances Leads ORFU

John Mances of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen leads Ontario Rugby Football Union scorers with 31 points, 22 up on Bobby Lee of Sarnia Imperials.

Gino Fracas and Jacques Belec of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs lead the Intercollegiate scoring race. Fracas has scored four touchdowns and seven converts in two games for a 27-point total. Belec has 11 points on two touchdowns and a single.

Bucceroni, Slade Meet Tonight; 'Rocky' the Ref.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dan Bucceroni and Jimmy Slade, both looking for a shot at the heavyweight title, and Rocky Marciano, the guy who holds it, enter the ring at the same time tonight at the St. Louis Arena.

Bucceroni, the Philadelphia butcher boy, and Slade will be the slugging principals in a 10-round match. Marciano will serve as an interested third party in the televised match as referee.

Pansy is ranked high among the heavyweights and will be favored. Slade, a clever New York Negro officially listed as a light-heavy, probably will give up as much as 30 pounds in an effort to gain recognition among the heavies.

Bucceroni, 25, usually scales about 193 pounds.

Both are confident. Bucceroni figures a victory could set up a February match with Marciano, whose latest title defence set down Roland LaStarza on a TKO.

Slade, 26, also sees the bout as a springboard to a Marciano match.

A knocked out Don Cockell (the British heavy sting) and 1 think I can, if not Marciano a better fight than Nino Valdes or Ezzard Charles."

They'll Do It Every Time

More than 4 millions. Oil is used in the furnaces or heaters of more than a million Canadian homes—better than one in four.

Oil plays a large and growing part in our everyday living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

How does Canada rank among the nations in known oil reserves—

8th? 17th? 21st?

How many barrels of oil (35 gallons to a barrel) do you think Canadians use in a year—

8 millions? 165 millions? 300 millions?

In the past 10 years, the average wholesale prices of all commodities have risen 85 per cent. Have prices of Esso gasolines risen—more? less? about the same?

Energy produced at Niagara Falls each day is equal to that in 9,000 barrels of crude oil. Prairie oil fields now produce energy equal to how many "Niagaras"—

2? 11? 18?

Taxes take a big part of a company's income. How would you say Imperial's 1952 tax bill compared with its dividends? Was it—greater? less? about the same?

For down the list a few years ago, Canada now ranks eighth. Except for a group of Middle East countries —Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia—only the U.S., Venezuela and Russia have larger reserves.

Last year 165 million barrels—about one gallon each day for every man, woman and child. Canada uses twice as much oil as she did six years ago.

Much less. The average wholesale price of Esso gasolines across Canada is up about one-third as much as the average for all commodities.

The energy of the oil produced in the western oil fields each day is about 18 times that generated at Niagara.

Taxes were $35 millions, about 2½ times dividends to shareholders. For each dollar of income, Imperial paid 10¢ in taxes and 4¢ in dividends. Esso figures do not include gasoline sales tax paid at the pump.

St. Kitts Teepees Win Third in Row, Greenshirts Edge Galt Hawks 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Teepees moved barely ahead their Thanksgiving Day lookout, climbed on top of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series with a 3-2 victory over Quebec Citadelles in Quebec Thursday night.

Orval Costello, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts travelled to Galt where they edged the Black Hawks 4-3.

The victory for the Teepees was the third consecutive and their second over Quebec. It put them in the leading slot—two points ahead of Montreal Nationale and Kitchener.

Defenceman Ian Cushenan fired the winning goal for the Teepees with seven minutes to play. Cushenan's counter, a 30-yard shot in the first period but Quebec tied it in the second.

Other marksmen for St. Catharines were Hank Ciesla and Gordie Hesketh. Gilles Thibault fired both for the Citadelles.

Two Periods Each

In Galt Bruce Jones, who bagged the second goal for Kitchener, went to their decision. Rene Rochette and Glen Cressman completed the total.

Neil McDonald clicked for two for the Hawks and the other went to Mac Lalonde.

Kitchener Galt came close several times. They couldn't catch Kitchener. The Greenshirts had a 2-0 edge in the first period, but their lead whittled to 3-3 in the second and notched another tally in the third before the Hawks closed out the scoring.

Harris Flynn got the shot to Costigh Biltmores in tonight's only scheduled game.

Unhappy 'Hap' Protests Game With Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)— Barrie Flyers Thursday announced they have protested their 3-3 overtime loss to Hamilton Tigers in the OHA Junior A opener here Saturday.

Hap Emms, coach of the Flyers, sent a telegram to Bill Sherry, Tigers' manager, saying the protest was lodged over a player used by Hamilton. The player, Jimmy McWhirter, was on option to the Montreal Canadiens last season.

McWhirter, a left-winger, was released by St. Catharines Teepees. Emms said he had an option to try the player out for one week and said McWhirter should have been playing for the Flyers Saturday.

McWhirter, a native of Hamilton played for Hamilton in the OHA senior series last season after getting a temporary release from the Teepees.

Korchak Returns Lead in West Scoring Race

WINNIPEG (CP)—Despite a 15 point performance by Billy Vessels, Winnipeg's Bud Korchak maintained his lead in the individual scoring race in league-leaders' 34-13 win over Calgary Stampeders, but failed to increase his lead when Eaks again whipped the Stamps 32-6.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press, however, show Vessels headed eight points on Korchak who booted seven points in Winnipeg's 40-6 double loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders during the week-end. Korchak now has 57 points on one touchdown, eight field goals, five singles and 23 converts.

Vessels, who ripped over half-back Pete Thodos of Calgary into second place, now has 50 points on 10 touchdowns—tops in that department. Thodos scored one touchdown for a total of 44 points. Wilbur Snyder of Edmonton and Del Wardlaw of Hilltop took over fourth and fifth positions respectively. Each came home with 12 and 18 points.

DeSpirito Not Alarmed Over Record; At 17, He Only Makes $50,000 a Year

By BUD WEEKS

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Jockey Tony DeSpirito's national record of 388 winners in 1953 is all right today but the "teen-age riding sensation" shows little concern. And you really can't blame him.

Many a sports champion sets a record which stands for decades only to be topped by some young upstart in the twilight of the veteran's career. It's a cozy, sentimental recollection.

But should Wee Willie Shoemaker—half his season's winning total to 321 with two victories today at Golden Gate Fields in Albany, Calif., no such sentiment need be forthcoming. DeSpirito's doing mighty well for himself.

At an age when most youths are biting the schoolroom, this wiry, darkly-handsome 17-year-old is making more than $50,000 a year dieing the job he likes best.

He started the horse racing habit two years ago, breaking the record of 388 set back in 1906 by Walter Miller and tied in 1930 by Shoemaker and Joe Culmone.

DeSpirito grossed $86,000 in 1953 as a 16-year-old apprentice and finished with a total of 1,149 mounts. It was a meteoric rise for a boy from Lawrence, Mass., who hung around the Rockingham Park stables here so long that someone finally gave him a job walking horses.

The year DeSpirito actually has surpassed his 1952 winning percentage is his amazing lead. Far behind Shoemaker's 388 victories. They missed more than 100 racing days through illness and suspensions. But he still has 266 winners.

At the moment DeSpirito has a hot streak going at Rockingham Park here with 14 winners in 25 mounts in the last three racing days. He has 37 winners in 106 rides in that meeting.

He just won't let a horse quit on him and furious stretch drives are his trade mark. In Narragansett Park's closing program Sept. 19 he rallied four mounts and won on all four.

Champion Yanks Bring Up First Negro Players

NEW YORK (AP)—World champion New York Yankees Tuesday brought up Vic Power and Elston Howard, Negro stars, from their Kansas City farm team, in the American Association.

Power and Howard, two of eight players promoted by the Yankees' parent major league organization, will be the first Negroes ever to wear a Yankee uniform. Both will join the club at the spring training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., next February.

Power, a right-hand hitter who plays infield as well as outfield, carries a .349 batting association batting title this season with a .349 average. The 24-year-old also paced the circuit with 217 hits and 124 total bases.

Howard, a feet-footed flychaser batted .296 in 139 games.

Both of the eight players coming from Kansas City; the other two were brought up from Birmingham of the Southern Association.

The Kansas City boys' include Outfielder Hector Lopez and Wally Burnette, catcher Lew Berberet and pitcher Bill Virdon. The two Birmingham hopefuls are outfielder Emil Tellinger and Hal Smith.

The Yankees also purchased Harry Schaeffer and infielder Frank Verdi to Kansas City.

Shoemaker Lacks Two for Record

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Wee Willie Shoemaker made three trips to the winner's circle at Golden Gate Fields Tuesday, bringing him within one victory of matching Tony DeSpirito's U.S. record of 388 wins set last year.

Off recent performance, Shoemaker seemed almost certain to crack DeSpirito's record today. Wee Willie is scheduled to ride in seven of today's eight races.

Shoemaker's victories were in the second race aboard Mr. Cassmoke, in the sixth with Yondelega and in the eighth aboard Silvery Old.

Bowling News

The final tournament of the local Ladies' Triangle Mixed Bowling was held by the bowling club on the holiday and it was a great success. Thirty-six players turned up and on excellent greens and in perfect sunshine, three games were each played with Jack Smith, Mrs. R. Hewson and Mrs. L. McLean skipping the only three-game winner. The tourney was arranged by Orio Smith, chairman of the library committee, assisted by his members Mrs. Mott, Mrs. Mc Millan and Mrs. Orr, convenor of the women's section.

Bruce Miller, Mrs. Irene Ward and Jack Smith, three games each, were first prize winners in the afternoon event. Mrs. Mott, Mrs. Orr and third with Mrs. Helen Buchanan, Mrs. Irene Ward and Mrs. Hewson in fourth place. Ernie Boulton, Mrs. C. A. Mott and Wilfred Price were fifth, William Hancock, Mrs. Smith and Doug Row, Robert Carter, Mrs. Gordon Brown and J. S. Black. Mrs. Bram Humphreys, Ernie Vanner and G. B. Hyde, Mrs. H. Hewson, Ernie Jones and Garn Dobbs, 'Mac' McDonald, Mrs. C. E. Bell and C. H. McGuire, Mrs. Orio Smith, C. L. Hyde and Percy Davison and Miss Winnie Smith finishing in the last place.

Mrs. Mott and Mrs. Orr and James Hanna finishing in that order.

One game was played in the morning and two in the afternoon and some excellent bowling resulted. In a short time the greens will be prepared for winter and the bowlers will only have the memory of an excellent year. It has been the best season in many years for the club.

Modern Baseball Sport or Business, Argument Before US Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court Tuesday heard initial pleas in an historic battle over the question of whether organized baseball violates the country's anti-trust laws.

Lawyers for former minor league players asked the high tribunal to outlaw the much-despised "reserve clause," heretofore a modern high finance baseball.

Defence counsel relied heavily on a 1922 Supreme Court ruling that baseball's game is exhibition and does not fall under the anti-trust laws.

The hearing is to continue today.

Major Contentions

Lawyers, seeking to brand baseball as an illegal monopoly in restraint of trade, based their arguments on these major contentions:

1. Baseball is a commercial enterprise and thus is subject to anti-trust laws.

2. It is heavily tied up with radio and television and is actively in the field of advertising.

3. Baseball exercises an illegal monopoly over the activities of its players and teams as well as its physical plants and exhibitions.

Howard C. Parks of Santa Barbara, Calif., representing the ball players, said that in his opinion the 1922 ruling should be overruled. He also said baseball is big-time with radio and TV, is a far different activity than it was back in 1922.

Contract Legality

Norman S. Sterry of Los Angeles, representing baseball, argued that the anti-trust question was not involved in the appeals now before the court. He said that the legal appeals are based exclusively on the validity of the contracts the player contracts, particularly the reserve clause.

The reserve contractual clause, written into all baseball contracts, puts a player under the absolute control of the club which owns his contract. The club may sell his services as it sees fit or keep him under its control, but the player may not make any deal of his own with other clubs.

Sterry told the court that the reputation of baseball was not its business. He suggested that Congress might be spelling out just what baseball may or may not do.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — The man who sets out to shock the United States public about the evils of college football is at a terrible disadvantage, because there isn't much he can say that isn't already known. Besides, the revelation is much too busy right now trying to buy tickets for next Saturday's big game to stand still for the shock treatment.

The average fan's sons who can read who do not know by this time that successful U.S. college teams are recruited and subsidized, and that the overall picture is not a pretty one. Most of them are easily upset by hypocrisy at the university level. The newspapers and magazines have been full of it for years.

However, anyone who would like to have the entire mess laid before him in one lump, complete with unsavory facts and copious figures, is invited to obtain a copy of Richard J. Miller's book, "Run, Boy, Run: Football, which becomes available today. The author, a member of the Illinois athletic staff, has gone to a great deal of trouble and will not be popular in some quarters.

Because the book takes in so much territory, ranging from a $50,000 bonus payment said to have been made to one unnamed player down to the cross commercialism of the bowl games, it is a bit difficult to decide where to let Mr. Miller start swinging. However, there should be widespread interest in his choice of the 11 schools which (in his opinion, mind you) are most open to censure, namely:

Alabama, Baylor, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan State, Mississippi, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Princeton, Southern Methodist, Texas, Texas Christian, UCLA, USC and Wisconsin.

"With occasional exceptions," the author states, "they are dedicated to the single objective—winning. To achieve this, they recruite the best high school football horses, and so they join the mad rush to buy the best players, secure the best coaches, build the best stadiums, while the real values of intercollegiate sport are tossed into the ash can. The year 1951 found the athletic director of big-time football at its lowest ebb since 1894."

To back up his assertions, Miller goes into detail on the number of athletic scholarships offered annually by most of these schools, as well as others, and in some cases tells the embryo grid-star what other financial inducements he may expect to receive. If nothing else, the book should prove a valuable text book for the high school hero as he shops around.

Sport in Brief

EDMONTON (CP)—Ordered by the Oklahoma draft board to report for an army medical examination, halfback Bill Vessels of Edmonton Eskimos left Tuesday for the United States to clarify his military status.

Eskimo president Ken Montgomery said the order was "not unexpected." The club knew when it signed Vessels that he was of military age. He is 21.

Accompanied by Eskimos coach Darrell Royal, Vessels went to Great Falls, Mont., to talk with draft board officials there. Special permission was given for the switch to the Montana centre.

Vessels, one of the sensations of the Western Interprovincial Football Union in his first season with Edmonton, is the second leading scorer with 88 points made up of 18 touchdowns. Last year with Oklahoma Sooners he won the Heisman Trophy after being voted the No. 1 U.S. college football player. He was the top draft choice of Baltimore Colts.

KITCHENER (CP)—The Ontario Rugby Football Union game between Toronto Balmy Beach and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen originally scheduled for next Saturday night will be played Saturday afternoon, league officials said Tuesday.

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Sydney Millionaires of the Maritime Major Hockey League have asked the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to suspend two players who failed to turn up for Tuesday's opening workout.

Both four-year veterans of the club, they are Fred Hildebrand of New Westminster, B.C., and Alex Shilkof of Port Arthur, Ont.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ken Yost of Winnipeg was re-elected president of the Western Canada Softball Association at its annual meeting here during the week-end.

The association adopted the rules of the American Softball Association, "with the exception of pitching" and decided western Canada finals, men's and women's, must start about Sept. 8.

REGINA (CP)—Clarence Bligh was re-elected president of the Saskatchewan branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at the annual meeting here during the week-end. Delegates passed a resolution asking reduced fares for athletes attending Dominion and British Empire Games.

KIDNAPPED BY GYPSIES

PARIS (Reuters) — Police searched today for beautiful, 19-year-old Rose Dethiere, alleged to have been kidnapped by gypsies two days ago. Her father, Roger Dethiere, a carpet merchant, told police a ransom of $1,400 had been demanded Sunday night by two men who knocked at his door.

Cayuga Family Has Ball Club

CAYUGA, Ont. (CP)—When softball games are played in this town the fans usually get one line-up like this:

Shortstop, Jim Baird; first base, Norm Baird; second base, Charlie Baird; third base, Rollin Baird; pitcher, Donald Baird.

The outfield? Jack Baird, Doug Baird, Norm Baird, Batboy: Brian Baird.

The team, comprising fathers, sons and nephews in the family, is in the running for the championship at Cayuga, about 20 miles south of Hamilton.

Townsfolk don't mind the Bairds' winning games but they won't stand for a Baird as an umpire. Blood is thicker than a close decision, they say.

Blue Bombers Official Resigns

WINNIPEG (CP) — President Karl Slocomb of Winnipeg Blue Bombers said Tuesday the club has accepted the resignation of Stu Clarkson, 34, assistant coach since May, 1952.

At a press conference, Slocomb said no replacement will be made for Clarkson. "It is too late in the season."

Slocomb said George Trafton still is coach and "there'll be no executive changes."

Clarkson told reporters after the conference that he had resigned "for the sake of club harmony." He and Trafton didn't see "eye to eye" on many occasions.

He said he thought the Bombers —now tied for second place with Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Interprovincial Football Union standings—had the player material to "go all the way" to the Grey Cup.

Thailand Boxer KO's Briton In 1st Round

BANGKOK (AP) — Champion Songkitrat of Thailand Tuesday night moved into contention for the world's bantamweight title by knocking out Jimmy Pearce of Britain in the first round.

A flurry of hard blows to the face and body sent Pearce crumpling to the canvas. He was counted out in two minutes, 47 seconds of the scheduled 10-rounder.

Pearce until recently was ranked by Ring Magazine as the fifth featherweight contender. Chamrern is rated best in his class in the Orient. Both weighed 118 pounds.

Jimmy Carruthers of Australia, world's bantamweight champion, is scheduled to defend his title against Chamrern in January or February if the champion gets past Dave (Pappy) Gault of Spartanburg, S.C., in a title fight in Australia Nov. 13.

Five Provinces Are Not Using Defence Money

OTTAWA (CP)—Five of Canada's 10 provinces have not touched a penny of more than $2,000,000 in civil defence funds offered them by the federal government in 1952 and 1953, Mai.-Gen. F. F. Worthington said Tuesday.

The wartime task expert, now in charge of civil defence co-ordination for Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island could have had the money on a "matching grant" basis. He explained that the federal government is willing to put up one civil defence dollar for every dollar put up by the provinces.

Gen. Worthington said in an interview that Ontario and Quebec, whose annual "allotment" of federal civil defence funds is $622,-923 and $433,923 respectively, think that the federal government should shoulder the entire expense of civil defence across the country.

"They have refused to touch a cent of the money we have offered them," he said.

Used Full Quota

Of the other five provinces, British Columbia and Alberta have utilized their full quota of federal funds, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have requested and received about 90 per cent and Newfoundland about 40 per cent, the general said.

The annual quotas for the 10 provinces, totalling $1,445,000, are: Newfoundland $32,978; Prince Edward Island $7,876; Nova Scotia $60,806; New Brunswick $45,958; Quebec $433,081; Ontario $622,923; Manitoba $63,397; Saskatchewan $68,538; Alberta $83,343; and British Columbia $122,616.

Gen. Worthington, commenting on the Ontario and Quebec contention that all civil defence expenditures should be shouldered by the federal government, said:

"We feel there is a distinct responsibility at each level of government and with every community. This responsibility must entail a financial outlay as well."

TONIGHT at 5.00 p.m. "COUP TIRE" with EDDIE FISHER

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players can get themselves into the darndest messes. Then, when you are ready to make an issue of their acts, an amazing thing happens. They crawl out wearing meddles.

The players floundered around in this deal:

NORTH

♥A 5 4 3 2
♦K 8 3
♣Q 5

WEST

♣K 9 7 5

SOUTH
♥10
♦Q J 2 7
♣A 10 8 6 4

South got himself elected the declarer at a grand slam contract of seven spades. This was later doubled by east. Notice the slew of red sparklers in the east hand and you will not blame him.

It happened that east also doubled seven clubs just before that. This was taken by west in a mean that east wanted a club lead. So, the west hand lead from west was his lone jack of clubs.

Dummy south covered with the queen. East went over it with the king. South won this trick with the ace. His heart to the ace entered dummy. On a club return, south trumped with ace while east played.

Next to the ace entered dummy. On another club return, south barely covered what east played. South now cashed a top club, dummy hand throwing away the spade that was still there.

This cleared the decks for a spade ruff. So, south led a small spade and ruffed small with a dummy diamond. A heart return from the dummy hand was held to a big full of diamonds and nothing else.

South overruffed whatever west dung onto this trick. The last south spade was led and ruffed with dummy diamond king. East could do nothing but throw one of his trumps on it.

A heart from dummy forced east to ruff, of course. But south simply overruffed whatever trump east played. The final south club was ruffed with dummy trump too, and hopelessly casting a trump.

There are now two cards left in each hand. Both those in east are trumps. Both those in south are trumps. With six cards in dummy, south tops whatever east plays. Sweep it up.

LONG PRISON TERMS

TORONTO (CP) — Three men were sentenced Tuesday to a total of 32 years in prison for the $3,000 armed robbery of a tavern here last July. Leo Gauthier, 47, received a 12-year sentence; William Lowe, 25, got two concurrent 10-year terms for the tavern robbery and a certain conspiracy charge. Patrick Joseph Sigerson, 24, was given concurrent seven-year terms for the same offences.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

CALGARY, Alta. (CP) — Somebody's just asking for trouble.

The automobile used in week-end style as automobile belonging to detective Harold Barefoot of the city police. The thief abandoned the car opposite the home of Chief Justice J. McLaurin of the Alberta Supreme Court and drove off in the judge's car.

Dodgers Drop Charlie Dressen As Manager

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers today dropped Charlie Dressen as manager.

Dressen led the Dodgers to National League championships in 1952 and 1953, but lost to New York Yankees in the world series both years.

The failure of Dressen and the Dodgers to come to terms for 1954 was a surprise to baseball observers, who expected Dressen to return with a salary increase.

President Walter O'Malley in making the announcement said that he and Dressen had been unable to come to terms after a lengthy conference Tuesday.

Asked Long Contract

He said that Dressen demanded a three-year contract and that it was not the policy of the Brooklyn club to sign a manager for more than one season. He said that was the only factor in Dressen's refusal.

Dressen said he had no immediate plans. Mrs. Dressen is in a Long Island hospital for observation and treatment and he said they would leave for their home on the west coast as soon as she is released.

Later, Dressen said he would be glad to settle for $25,000 a year, but wouldn't go further. O'Malley was just as adamant that he will give only a one-year contract.

May Talk With Orioles

Dressen said he was looking around for another post, and was interested in the possible opening with Baltimore Orioles, successor to the St. Louis Browns.

Dressen's advantage in his contract stand was influenced by the three-year renewal given Eddie Stanky of St. Louis Cardinals and the two-year contract the fifth-place New York Giants gave Leo Durocher.

Dressen, 55, took over the managerial reins of Brooklyn in 1951 after leading Oakland to a Pacific Coast League flag the previous season. Under his direction, the Dodgers built up a 13½-game lead in mid-August of 1951 to lead the pennant to New York Giants in a post-season playoff.

Dressen and the Dodgers stoned for this failure, however, the next two seasons.

Dressen was the first National League manager to win two consecutive pennants since Billy Southworth accomplished the feat with the 1942-43-44 St. Louis Cardinals. He directed a power-packed Dodger team that established 35 records in racking up 105 victories last season, the most ever won by a Brooklyn team. His win clinched the flag Sept. 12.

Farm Tractors To Be Licensed

TORONTO (CP)—Spokesmen for the Ontario department of highways said Tuesday legislation at next session of the legislature to license farm tractors.

This would make driving tractors while under the influence of alcohol a criminal offence and keep children from driving them, one official said.

He said the department has tried many times to get the legislation passed but that farmers blocked it, contending tractors are farm implements and their travelling on highways only incidental to their main work.

FATAL PROVES FATAL

GALT (CP)—Fred Potter of Toronto, who fell from a railway train at a week ago, died Tuesday night. Police said Potter, hitching a ride on the car, went to sleep and rolled off.

AT THE McCARTHY—Robert Newton and Richard Burton are two of the Aussie warriors extricated with the defense of Tobruk in the picturization of how Rommel was stopped in North Africa, "The Desert Rats," Twentieth Century-Fox sequel to "The Desert Fox" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. In the "guest" role of Rommel is James Mason, who first starred in the part in the earlier film. Robert Wise directed and Robert L. Jacks produced the Richard Murphy script.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Things are going well for at least one Chaplin—Charles Chaplin, Jr.

After years of unspectacularly, young Charlie is finally getting his break. He plays the lead as the heavy in "My Pal She-," a mountain movie produced by Robert L. Lippert.

"I couldn't be happier," enthused the comedian's son. "I've never even mind being typed as a heavy, because I know I could switch to the St. Louis Browns.

Dressen's advantage in his contract stand was influenced by the three-year renewal given Eddie Stanky of St. Louis Cardinals and the two-year contract the fifth-place New York Giants gave Leo Durocher.

His win clinched the flag Sept. 12, mixing the record for the earliest clinching by one day. The 1906 Chicago Cubs clinched the flag Sept. 11.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 15, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — For the studious and the alert there are excellent opportunities to move forward in chosen fields. The P.M. hours are especially favorable for mechanics, engineers and salesmen, so take advantage of them.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — May be unexpectedly gainful if you are alert and ready to act decisively. Some contention likely in financial matters; otherwise, you can expect good results.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Suggest great care be exercised in money and property deals. Work, position could be jeopardized if you are not rightly co-operative. Think well before acting; don't be too assertive.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — No day for extreme or wrong over things that haven't happened. Urgent matters cry for attention. Sharp judgment and penetration will bring best results. Be accurate in business.

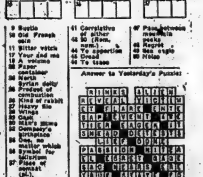
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A middle-of-the-road day. Take problems up in order of their importance and don't rush into the unknown. You can learn from observation and sound advice. Use all gracefully.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — The story goes that everything comes to him who waits, but one can wait too long. Give tasks some study immediately. Investigate agreements and contracts thoroughly. Do not allow sentiment to sway you.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your income may take a boost this month. Keep feet on the ground, eyes on developments, and don't hang on to outdated ideas, methods. Be consistent in judgment for true gains.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Use the initiative—but quietly—in essential matters; don't over estimate your capacity to deliver. Have system, a conservative attitude and to be more alert to opportunities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some dull influence that don't let them affect your goal to achieve. For greater eventual gain, forego some personal desires, now. Consider others' action always.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Anything worth doing is worth doing well. You can give a fine account of your stewardship when you really try. Hold to right principles and with God's help you need have no fears.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Steady effort is all you need to put over your ideas and plans. Proper attitude, with sterling fortitude will bring desired results.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—If you have a full program that means success is likelier if you function in a smooth, natural manner. Plain sense appreciates graciousness. Look up and smile.

YOU BORN TODAY: are affable and fair-minded. Also serious; at times very persistent. Guard against concerning self too much about others, however helpful you may wish to be; it can be misconstrued, inadvertently cause irritating conditions. You are artistic, have talent for the stage, music, the arts. Generally capable but may be too set at times to try new undertakings. Be progressive. One can school oneself and it helps success. Avoid taking on more than you can handle and shun in many ways to bring marked worry.

ANGRY

Tito has publicly proclaimed his country's determination to send its armed forces into zone A—including the strategic port city of Trieste—if and when Italy takes over the area.

(The New York Times said today that despite Yugoslav threats and violence, Tito's government is asking the United States and Britain for a Trieste solution that would enable Italy to take over zone A.

(In a dispatch from its correspondent in Belgrade, The Times said Tito is demanding that this solution include a Soviet-American guarantee against further Italian expansion along the Adriatic toward Yugoslavia.)

(In Belgrade, however, the Yugoslav deputy foreign secretary, Alex Bebler, flatly denied The Times report.

"It is not correct," he said. "There are no new moves and there are no new proposals by Yugoslavia."

Call Rally Of Protest

In Trieste port, meanwhile, anti-Italian parties angrily protested an official ban on public meetings and called a giant rally later today in defiance. The territory's 4,000-man police force has been mobilized for possible trouble but local officials said they did not expect to call on the 7,000 British and American occupation troops for assistance.

There is considerable sentiment within the city of Trieste to keep the 7,000 Allied occupation troops there and to maintain it as an international port.

This was the idea when the 320-square-mile Trieste territory was taken from Italy after the Second World War and divided between Allied and Yugoslav occupation forces. The 1947 Italian peace treaty called for its establishment as an international free territory.

Under the past 6 terms, however, the Security Council was supposed to name an international governor for the territory. Russia and the West have never been able to agree on a man for the job.

The Soviet's demand for new Security Council action in effect calls for implementation of the Italian peace treaty provisions. A U. S. spokesman at UN headquarters, in turn, expressed doubt that the Russians were interested in a peaceful solution of the Trieste issue. Other Western diplomats were reported cool to the Communist move.

MUST BE PRESUMED DEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department said Thursday most American military personnel now classified as missing in action in Korea "must eventually be presumed dead." It reported that after the Sept. 6 prisoner exchange there remained in the "missing" category 3,713 members of the army, 78 navy personnel, 671 airmen and 483 marines.

Democrat Wins In Wisconsin For First Time

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP)—Rural west central, Wisconsin elected a Democrat to Congress Tuesday for the first time in his history.

And the Republican who lost said the results "showed clearly that the farmer and laboring man do not like the present administration's policies."

The man who won the special election for 9th District representative to succeed the late Merlin F. Hull, a Republican was Lester R. Johnson, 52, a small town district attorney from Black River Falls.

The lower was state Senator Armour L. Pelnell, 36, who has spent 11 years in the Wisconsin legislature.

Johnson keyed his campaign to a promise to vote the same way as Hull had voted. He also denounced the administration's farm policy.

Pelnell had stressed that he was "four square" behind President Eisenhower and his administration.

Three Egyptians Sentenced To Die As Foreign Spies

CAIRO (Reuters)—Three Egyptians, two of them government officials, were sentenced to death by hanging today for spying for a foreign power.

Two of the men, Mohamed Kzzat Mohamed Ragheb, 32, and Duiss Maximos Swelha, 32, were said to have been employed in the Egyptian war ministry.

The third, Alfred Awaw Mikhail, was said to have worked at Fayid where the headquarters of the British Middle East land forces is situated.

They were all charged with having spied for a foreign power by supplying it with reports and official information, thus aiming at harming the country's safety and interests.

A Cairo journalist, Mahmoud Shkry, 23, was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment Tuesday for treason.

The first man to die as a result of the current treason trials by the revolutionary tribunal was hanged Tuesday. He was Mahmoud Sabry Aly, 39, who once worked for the British forces in the Suez canal zone.

Uranium Field Rushes Work As Winter Near

REGINA (CP)—Uranium field parties and construction workers are rushing to finish the 1953 season, perhaps the most significant in Saskatchewan's northland mining history.

Autumn hangs over the uranium belt as bulldozers and supply barges still ply the Athabasca river from Waterways, Alta., and across Lake Athabasca to Bushell, the province's inland uranium port. Cutoff date for insurance coverage was Sept. 17, but captains still are navigating the water routes.

In Uranium City, more than 600 miles northwest of Regina and serve centre for radio-active ore development and prospectors, construction hands are covering in buildings for the winter.

Population of the uranium belt climbed to more than 3,000 this summer with roughly 125 in Uranium City. Prospectors and the field workers will start to fly out during the next few weeks before the winter sets in.

Dust Drifting

But diamond drills still bite into the grey rock on a number of properties.

This year so far a record 16,500 claims have been filed in Saskatchewan and the total is expected to pass 17,500 before the end of the year.

Ontario and Quebec, Canada's principle sources of mineral wealth, have surpassed that total variety—once in Ontario and four times in Quebec.

In Uranium City, which mining men say is more advanced than Yellowknife, the shack-bent appearance of the frontier town is gradually disappearing. This summer, modern homes were erected, some for employees of the Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. mine and mill. Production at the government owned corporation, which processes all radio-active ore, is the province, started this summer.

Uranium City now has a new general store, office block, garage, post office, three restaurants, and a modern four-room school. All will thrive as snow and cold stops further work in outlying areas.

SIGN PROTEST LETTER

PARIS (AP)—Two hundred members of the French parliament signed a joint letter of protest Friday against the recent arrest in Poland of Cardinal Wyszynski. The letter was sent to the Polish embassy here, with a request that it be forwarded to Warsaw.

Five Candidates Ready for Battle In By-Elections

REGINA (CP)—Five candidates were in the field Tuesday when nominations closed for the two Saskatchewan provincial by-elections Oct. 26.

The by-elections are being held in constituencies of Rosthern, without representation last spring when provincial Liberal leader Walter Tucker resigned his seat to contest the federal election, and in Souris-Estevan riding, a seat vacant since Liberal whip Ed. J. McCormack was killed in Regina traffic accident last winter.

Present standing in the 53-seat house is: CCF 42, Liberals nine and two vacant.

The CCF party nominated John Thiessen, 30-year-old Aberdeen farmer in Rosthern, and William Scheiman, 30, Gravelbourg teacher, for Souris-Estevan. The Liberal candidate in Rosthern is Samuel Carr, 48, rural municipal secretary at Warman. Robert E. Kohaly, 32-year-old Estevan barrister, was nominated by both Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties to contest Souris-Estevan.

Relieved of Headaches, Backache; Dizzy Spells "Feel Like New Person"

"Wonderful How Much Better I Am Since Taking Syrotone," Says This Woman. Now Sleep Better, Digestion Improved, Have More Energy.

"After the wonderful results I got by taking Syrotone I will gladly recommend this medicine to any person suffering as I did." said Miss Marjorie Rose, 635 Wheaton Street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

Didn't Feel Well

"About 18 months or my stomach began giving me trouble and I haven't felt well ever since. I would get terrible gas, nausea and heartburn after eating. Sometimes I would have no appetite for bread and I couldn't eat practically no fat meat—bacon, gravy and such kitten stuffs. I had a nagging headache and my nerves were so on edge all the time I wouldn't get my poor self up right. A few weeks ago I read about Syrotone helping other people suffering as I was, so I got it. Within a week after starting the first bottle I felt better. As I continued the course, nervousness and heartburn cleared up, I don't get those awful headaches or dizzy feelings and the pain has left my back. Also, my nerves are calmed down, so I sleep better and have more energy through the day."

Has Helped Thousands

Many people have used Syrotone during the past eight years for relief of distress and again say it is wonderful. They can always depend on to help them. Containing 12 of the famous Vitamin, Herbs, and Roots, Syrotone acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, improving their action, while at the same time it helps relieve gas, aids digestion, tones nerves and invigorates tissue the system and aids assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syrotone is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Three Persons Burned To Death In Ottawa Fire

Mother Dies Seeking Child Who Had Escaped Onto Roof

OTTAWA (CP)—Three persons died early today in a west-end blaze which swept through the interior of a four-apartment frame dwelling at 82 Sherbrooke street.

Burned to death were Harold Murray, bank accountant, and his wife, Margaret, and Mrs. Katherine Griffin, who occupied a second-floor apartment above the Murrays. Damage was estimated at $30,000.

Five persons, roused by two passers-by who saw smoke pouring from the building, managed to escape. They were Mrs. Griffin's daughter, Maureen; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lanctot, owners of the building, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis.

The fire, apparently caused by defective wiring, started in the basement in the Murrays' living room while the Murrays were asleep. Their only escape was through the blazing living room. A second door leading from their bedroom to the entrance of the building had been nailed shut and blocked with furniture during recent renovations.

Vain Attempt

Mrs. Griffin, a daughter of Thomas Smyth, mayor of Carleton Place, died trying to save her daughter, not knowing the girl had already escaped. Awakened by shouting, she roused Maureen and entered the hall to rouse the Murray family.

She was trapped when she returned for her daughter, not knowing the girl had broken a window and escaped to the roof of an adjoining building.

Maureen was taken to hospital with face and head burns and cuts.

The two men who gave the alarm were Robert Lawton and Jack Fagan, who broke in the front door and ran from door to door shouting. When they opened the door of the Murrays' apartment, they could hear the couple vainly trying to escape, but a wall of flame blocked their way.

Firemen from four stations controlled the fire soon after they got there but 35 minutes after it started.

Govt. to Float $700,000,000 Bond Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has decided to float a new $700,000,000 bond issue to provide funds to pay off two maturities next month and convert portions of the second victory loan maturing next March, the finance department announced Wednesday.

It will be the biggest financing operation in three years, giving investors higher rates of interest than those on the maturing issues.

The new issue, to be offered to investors through investment dealers and banks, will be opened at the Bank of Canada Monday. It will consist of two issues: Bonds running for one year and eight months at 3-per-cent interest, maturing July 1, 1955, and 4½-year, three-per-cent bonds maturing May 1, 1958.

The new 3½-per-cent bonds will be offered at 99.50 to yield about 3.40 per cent to maturity and the three-per-cent bonds due 1958 will be priced at 97.15 to yield about 3.89 per cent.

The new issue is to provide funds for the redemption on Nov. 2 of $500,000,000 of maturing bonds issued originally in 1951 and 1952, bearing a two-per-cent interest rate. It also will be used to convert a portion of the second victory loan maturing March 1, 1954.

Both new types of bonds will be non-callable to maturity.

Originator Of Supermarkets Dies in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Clarence Saunders, 72, originator of today's supermarkets who made and lost $15,000,000, died Wednesday.

Saunders changed the grocery business 36 years ago with the $4,600 Piggly Wiggly stores. They made him a rich man in his early 20s. He lost the stores in a complex Wall street battle.

Saunders recently announced plans for a mechanical grocery store that he believed would put him "back in the million-dollar class within a year." The mechanical store was to be completely self-service with the customers not only sucking their own groceries but also selecting them.

Saunders began his grocery store career as a $4-a-month clerk.

Oil Pumped Out Of Don River

TORONTO (CP) — An oil substance covering the Don river in Toronto's east end was pumped out of the river Wednesday night by tank trucks.

Earlier, police and firemen patrolled the river to keep pedestrians from tossing lighted matches or cigaret butts into the oil and possibly causing a major explosion or fire.

Harbor master H. J. Soelgrove said he could not say where the substance originated.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Temperatures during the period 16 to 15 degrees above those of Wednesday morning across southern Ontario with Clear Creek reporting 59 and Trenton 51. Slightly cooler air has pushed as far south as northern Lake Huron and is expected to cover the lower Great Lakes by Friday morning. Very little disturbance will occur at the boundary of this warm and cool air because both air masses are quite dry.

Expert Predicts Vertical Take-off Of Planes Within Fifteen Years

OTTAWA (CP)—A top British aviation authority said today Canada is designing secret aircraft projects so revolutionary in concept there is nothing to equal them in the free world.

Sir Roy Dobson, chairman of the board of A. V. Roe and Co. Canada Ltd. and managing director of A. V. Roe and Co., Manchester, England, in a press conference that Canada "takes no back seat" to any country in aircraft design.

He declined to disclose details of the secret projects, except to say they are being blueprinted at the Avro plant at Malton, Ont., and to make this prediction:

"Within 15 years, there will be vertical take-off of planes, eliminating take-off and landing-speed problems. The planes will go straight up and then shoot straight ahead."

There have been reports that Avro has planned a "flying saucer" type of jet aircraft, but Sir Roy declined to say whether this is one of the projects he has in mind.

Sir Roy is a member of the British Hawker Siddeley group design council, headed by Sir Frank Spencer Scrigley, managing director of the Hawker Siddeley Group Ltd. The eight-man team has been holding a quarterly design council meeting in Canada.

They conferred with Canadian government officials after touring the Avro plant at Malton.

Sir Frank, also declining to disclose the nature of the secret projects, told reporters who pressed him for amplification that "the project in Canada are fascinatingly interesting."

Sir Roy, speaking for the group, said he is hopeful that Canada's all-weather jet fighter, the CF-100, will find customers overseas.

During the council's recent trip to the United States, officials there expressed interest in buying the CF-100 for shipment overseas to NATO countries.

Proposed New Wing for Belleville General Hospital

Shown above in an aerial view of the hospital area is the architect's sketch of the proposed new wing which will house 100 adult beds increasing the official accommodation of the Belleville General Hospital to 220 beds and a modern nursery with 38 bassinets. The expansion also calls for a 25 unit children's department. Old sections of the existing building will be converted into offices and other necessary service departments.

Medical Staff Gives $60,000 To Building Fund

New Wing to Accommodate 100 Beds, Modern Services

A campaign to raise $1,250,000 for the expansion of the Belleville General Hospital was officially announced today by J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors. At the same time Dr. R. T. Potter, president of the hospital's medical staff, stated that doctors had already pledged $60,000 towards their one objective of $75,000.

The building fund is being sought jointly from governments and private sources and totals are divided as follows:

Public Subscription	$600,000 (to be raised)
Government Grants
County of Hastings	$200,000 (assured)
City of Belleville	$200,000 (assured)
Provincial and Federal Grants	$250,000 (indicated)
Total	$1,250,000

The minimum public objective of $600,000 is being sought from business firms and corporations, company wide canvass, organized groups and individual men and women in Belleville and the County of Hastings.

Canvass Starts Nov. 24

The general public canvass will take place beginning Tuesday, November 24, but an advance Special Names canvass of natural organizations, local businesses and individual men and women has already begun.

Mr. Yanover said that the decision to proceed with the expansion program has resulted from a long careful study of continued growth of population in the community and the greatly increased demand for hospital accomodation by people of Belleville and the County of Hastings. He said that for some time the hospital has been hopelessly overcrowded and the difficulty of obtaining accommodation for even emergency cases has assumed dangerous proportions.

Demand Greatly Increases

He said that from its early years before this century the hospital has grown to serve an expanding need from a demanding population. In 1941, with the war being completed, 1,358 baby patients and 724 maternity cases were accommodated. In 1945 there were 5,748 bed patients and 1,035 babies born. In 1953 it reached 6,443 bed patients and 1,272 newborn. "Increased population," he said, "which has resulted from the growth of industry and the general influx of people into this expanding prosperous area, has made the demand on the Belleville hospital more and more apparent. Today the hospital serves an area comprising 60,000 people in the villages and the County of Hastings with accommodation meant to serve only half that number.

The expansion program calls for a modern nursery which will increase the official accommodation of the Belleville General Hospital to 220 adult beds and a modern nursery with 38 bassinets to receive the literary prize from a field of 25 candidates, including U.S. writers Ernest Hemingway and Carl Sandberg, British novelist Graham Greene, Italian Alberto Moravia and France's Albert Camus.

Pope Bitterly Assails Action Taken By Poland Against Cardinal Wysynski

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In his sternest rebuke of atheistic communism since he became Pope 14 years ago, the Pope today bitterly assailed the action taken by Poland against Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski.

He said that Communists tried to "mock" at protest were coming to him daily from all parts of the earth.

We raise our own most sorrowful and solemn protest against this violation of the sacred rights of the Catholic Church," the Pope declared.

His protest was contained in a message to the Catholic Church's hierarchy and clergy throughout the world for next Sunday—Mission Sunday.

In it, he outlined the hardships of missionaries today—hardships, he said, which include prison and death.

Cardinal Wyszynski, Archbishop of Warsaw and Gneizen, was removed from his residence at Warsaw last month. He is the Catholic Church's last free cardinal in communist controlled countries.

The Polish government said on Sept. 28 that the cardinal had been prohibited from fulfilling his religious duties because of alleged violation of a 1950 church-state agreement, and had been assigned to a monastery.

Vatican sources said they received reports he had been placed under arrest. Four days after the Poles announced their action the Roman Catholic church put the penalty of excommunication on all its members who had any connection with the steps taken by Warsaw.

Hamilton Plant Again Scene of Wild Battle

HAMILTON (CP) — Fist fights broke out between pickets and police again today when 50 workers tried to enter the strike-bound Wabcor Barnes steel springs plant.

At least 12 men, one with blood streaming from head wounds, were arrested. Eighteen were injured.

Fighting started at a side gate a few hundred feet from 100 police who were posted at the main entrance to stop any new outbreaks of violence after a pitched battle was routed Wednesday.

Six pickets, members of the United Electrical Workers (Ind), were charged with obstructing police after that fight. The plant, which manufactures small tension springs, has been closed since June 24 when the union rejected a conciliation board report which did not recommend wage increases sought by the men.

Chinese War Prisoners Reject Efforts to Coax Them Home

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Balking Chinese war prisoners today rejected overwhelmingly the first Communist attempts to coax them home.

Of 500 Chinese who met Red interviewers in an opening session, only seven requested repatriation to Red China, said the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission.

The long-delayed interviews began only after Indian custodian troops pried the wildly demonstrating Chinese from their compounds with threats of force.

Seven Hours Late

After delay of two Indian ultimatums, the first 200 rock-throwing, bugle-blowing anti - Red Chinese were herded into the Communist interviewing. The explanations began at 2:12 p.m. more than seven hours behind today's schedule.

They originally were to have started Sept. 24, but were delayed by wrangling over facilities.

An Indian spokesman said the seven Chinese would be returned to the Reds in a ceremony tonight at Panmunjom.

He said Communist persuasion would fail to 1,000 prisoners Friday, including at least 500 North Koreans.

The atmosphere was charged with tension in the opening of this vital psychological phase of the armistice, but there was no violence.

Indian guards had to prevent the first prisoner from slipping away as he was taken before the interviewer.

A UN interpreter said the Reds told the PoW: "You must go back to your home, to your family."

Refusing to face the interviewer, the prisoner answered: "No, I want to go to Formosa."

"Do you be cheated by the UN," the Red interviewer argued.

"I have made up my mind," the PoW replied.

When the Reds saw they were making no headway, they gave up, the observer said. Then the prisoner was left alone to make his choice between two doors—one to repatriation and Red China, the other back to his compound. He chose the latter.

Steel-helmeted Indian guards stood outside the explanation centre and others with big sticks were outside the explanation booths.

Still more guards were posted along the road leading to the centre from compounds where the rest of the 22,900 anti-Red PoWs screamed and shouted.

Waving Chinese Nationalist flags, the first 200 prisoners emerged from their stockades and climbed aboard trucks to the interview area after a check Indian battalion surrounded their barbed wire enclosure.

Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, head of the repatriation commission, ordered the troops to drag the PoWs to the interviews if necessary after they had refused to leave their compounds for nearly seven hours.

The prisoners could be heard shouting from two miles away as they first defied Thimayya.

CHURCHILL WINS NOBEL PRIZE FOR LITERATURE

Is First Statesman To Get Literary Prize

By GUSTAV SVENSSON

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill today was awarded the 1953 Nobel Prize for his brilliant historical writings.

Britain's famed war leader thus became the first maker of history to receive a Nobel Prize for reporting it.

The 315,293-crown ($33,840) award for literature was announced by the Swedish Academy after a brief formal session this afternoon.

The decision was clearly the most unusual ever taken by the academy, which has been distinguishing the literary world's Prizes since the turn of the century.

Statesmen, including premiers and foreign ministers, have been awarded nearly a score of Nobel Peace Prizes, which are distributed by the Nobel committee of the Norwegian Parliament. But Churchill is the first statesman ever to receive the literary prize.

Canada Unlikely To Change Tariffs

LONDON (CP)—Lord Barnby, a Conservative peer, said today he thinks the Canadian Parliament is unlikely to change any tariffs as a result of remarks he may have made.

Lord Barnby returned to London Wednesday after a visit to Canada, where he spoke at the annual Canadian wool convention, he was reported to have said he thinks Canada's duty on imported textiles is too low. Reports of the speech published in Britain drew some critical cism from the wool textile industry.

Commenting on this, he said: "In a statement his remarks in Toronto were misinterpreted, and he was glad they had received attention. 'My own conviction," he said, "is that the new Canadian Parliament is unlikely to alter tariffs and what no remarks by private individuals would receive any attention."

McCarthy to Call German Scientist As Witness

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy said today a German radar scientist who fled a Russian laboratory at gunpoint and officials reports of top-secret documents stolen from Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and used by Communists.

McCarthy, chairman of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, said the scientist will be called as a witness by the committee.

McCarthy told newspaper men that the scientist, who he did not identify, worked in the Russian-controlled Paran laboratory in East Germany and fled to Western Germany more than a year ago.

The scientist gave American airforce intelligence officers a "detailed story" of the use the Communists were making of the documents, McCarthy said.

HAS RIPE RASPBERRIES IN MID-OCTOBER

When he retired as C.N.R. car inspector in July of 1952, Harry Stubbings said he was going to devote his time to gardening. Today, at his home at 34 North Park street, he can show the results of his work. A Spanish onion and a wheat radish in which Hollywood would certainly describe as super-colossal are among his exhibits, but topping the list are plump ripe raspberries. The bushes on which they grow are not any immature ones which would have ripened later had not recent frosts shrivelled them.

Appeals to Nehru For Help Against British Action

By JULIAN BATES

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters)—Former premier Cheddi Jagan today urged Premier Nehru of India to help to combat Britain's "undemocratic" action against his Peoples Party.

Jagan sought permission from Nehru to present his case before Parliament in session in Delhi.

Earlier, Jagan cabled the Indian delegation to the United Nations for help but received no reply.

The decision to cable Nehru directly came after Jagan and other deposed ministers of his leftist People's Progressive Party met at the ex-premier's home. The cable also asked that party leader L. F. S. Burnham, former education minister, be invited to address India's Parliament.

Trip Delayed

Nehru has campaigned incessantly for greater independence of British dependencies since 1947, while the Canadian Chamber of Commerce expressed approval, mately 700 local organizations and was elected worker working toward the maintenance of good business, good government and good citizenship.

Albert Seniors Defeat BCI In Grid Tilt

By Peter Upper

The Albert College seniors clobbered the Belleville Collegiate Juniors 32-0 at Albert College Wednesday afternoon in a scheduled COSSA Senior B tilt.

Albert College out-classed the Juniors in all departments but it must be remembered that they are the best in the Senior B loop at present. The juniors are entered in the Senior B loop because of no junior A competition in the district.

Bob Lama for the Albert crew ran a B.C.I. fumble back for about 100 yards for a TD. He was chased all the way but none of the B.C.I. players was fast enough to catch him. Lama went right standing up. He was almost out from the section of the start to his feet and stayed in the game.

Albert had a faster bunch with the pass plays clicking and the running plays making yards. Pete Beach, the physical director and coach of the team, seemed jubilant over the victory.

The Collegiate Juniors play host to St. Mike's on Monday. The field has yet to be announced.

Vice-President Ontario Chamber Heard at Luncheon

"The relation of business to the well-being of the community, and the responsibilities of members of Chambers of Commerce in keeping informed at a high level were stressed to delegates attending the Chamber of Commerce regional conference at their noon luncheon held yesterday.

Speaker for the luncheon meeting was Ivor Wagger, president of the Owen Sound Transportation Company and vice-president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Wagner pointed out that each and every citizen was personally interested in the stability and prosperity of his or her own community. However, each community was directly or indirectly concerned with all other communities because no community is self sufficient and therefore must rely on many things produced elsewhere.

Progress within the community was closely linked with business and the success of business was largely governed by the willingness of the individual to apply himself.

He said at the community level a Chamber of Commerce should be recognized as a leader in public affairs

Happy Work Force Needed For Productivity

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Edinburgh said today an industry that wants high productivity must concentrate on building up a happy work force.

And this is a matter of spirit, a question of "the proper basic feeling" of employees, the Duke told a luncheon of the National Union of Manufacturers.

"No amount of efficiency experts, labor saving devices, canteens or even pension schemes will necessarily make any difference to the spirit of the work people. Like the old song—'It's not what you do, it's the way that you do it.'

"That's what gets results. In my opinion, the working formula is: Happiness plus efficiency equals high productivity."

MONTREAL (CP)—The number of horses killed Wednesday in a fire that swept through five stables and the grandstand at Richelieu Park was placed at 17 today.

Retail Bacon Prices Soar

KITCHENER (CP) — Retail bacon prices in the Kitchener-Waterloo area have soared to over $1 a pound, an increase of about 30 per cent over the price of two months ago.

Officials of three packinghouse firms here said today the situation is general across Canada.

The current price of sliced side bacon now ranges from 95 cents to $1.10 a pound. The increase is attempting to do too much and recommended that one or two projects be chosen for each year.

Mr. Fraser, of Peterborough, warned against plugging what he termed a "lost cause."

Contentious Point

Store closing hours and their relation to accommodating the farmer was a contentious point in most Chambers, it was revealed. Delegates from some of the smaller centres noted that stores on their communities stayed open one or two nights a week for the convenience of the farmer. Others thought that the times had changed and with the farmer now not driving a horse and buggy he could drive to town almost any time during the day to do his shopping. Some delegates thought a by-law calling on stores in certain groups to close at certain hours was the answer. Others felt the matter could be decided by all parties co-operating.

Bill Wills of Belleville thought the important thing was for stores to stay open at times convenient to the customer and suggested the Chamber might take a survey to determine what the customers thought. "The trend" he said, "was toward a five day week. This with two nights open, might prove the answer."

Parking was also mentioned. Chas. Cawker advised that a start be made in this while centres were still open. Otherwise there would be no property available, he assured.

Another question discussed was what the Chamber could do to promote good local government. The answer seemed to be that good government came from the citizens themselves. It was recommended that the Chamber take no part in local government except to encourage people to get out and vote, and to preach the gospel of being law abiding.

Industrial Expansion, Plans To Improve Communities Subject of Conference Talks

Problems relating to industrial expansion and how the Chamber of Commerce organization can be planned to be of better service to the community, were discussed by more than 100 delegates attending a Chamber of Commerce regional conference held in the city yesterday.

The conference was attended by presidents, officers and secretaries of about 30 Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade in the Central Ontario district between Whitby and Kingston and Hallburton to the north.

President of the Belleville Chamber, Charles Cawker, presided over the discussions, which saw panel members answering questions and problems introduced by members. The conference sessions were held in the gymnasium of the YMCA where luncheon and dinner was also served to the visiting delegates. Speaker at the noon luncheon was Jew Wagner, vice-president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, and president of the Owen Sound Transportation Company. At the dinner meeting in the evening the speaker was R. M. Campbell, vice-president and managing director of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Co. Ltd. of Toronto.

Immediately following the afternoon session of the conference delegates attended a reception sponsored by Corby's Distillers Ltd. at Corbyville.

The morning session of the conference was given over to discussion of ways and means of attracting industry to provide jobs for young people who otherwise would be forced to move to larger centres to seek employment.

Panel Members

Panel members for the morning session included Freeman Burrows of Belleville, as chairman, Ron Brindle, business development department, Royal Bank of Canada, Lorne S. Campbell, trade and industry branch, Department of Planning and Development, Toronto; D. R. Cooper, industrial agent, Canadian Pacific Railways, and T. H. Hamill, manager of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

The question of inducements being given to industrial prospects to encourage them to locate in particular municipalities, came up for discussion, it being intimated that tax concessions and free land had been given in some instances.

A spokesman from Whitby said such inducements offered elsewhere had caused potential industry to lose interest in his municipality.

Delegates from towns with one to two thousand population felt that the smaller municipalities had special attractions for industry. Among these were a lower basic wage rate plentiful supply of unskilled labor lower cost of living, lower transportation costs and more pleasant living conditions.

Patsi member Lorne Campbell noted that few industries coming to Canada were looking for tax concessions, while Mr. Brady agreed, that most industries were not looking for high-ly-skilled workmen, but for good honest workers whom they were prepared to train.

Employment of a "paid" or "permanent" Chamber manager or industrial commissioner was advocated by panel members but in the absence of such a man a retired manufacturer was a good man to have as a contact to meet representatives of industry. The value of personal contact was emphasized.

Value of Booklets Discussed

The comparative value of industrial brochures or booklets was another matter that came up for discussion, it being pointed out that the cost of such a brochure was high and it was difficult to prove any tangible results.

One of the panel members said he had an open mind on the subject. He agreed that such a program was costly and it was difficult to get the right distribution. He thought the answer in a small town was to get folks together concerning the municipality and send these along with a personal letter, to industrialists making enquiries.

Chamber of Commerce program, including retail activities, tourist promotion, commercial and civic activities, was under discussion during the afternoon with delegates showing much interest in the matter of store closing hours. Panel members for the afternoon included Charles Cawker as chairman; S. R. Curry of Tweed; Jim M. Fraser, of Peterborough; J. A. Gair, Wellington, and Don Kingdon, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber.

Projects which would best serve the community ranged all the way from an adult education program to assisting in housing development and promotion of the tourist industry. A Kingston delegate noted that the tourist trade was really an "industry" in his area and meant three million dollars annually to Kingston and district.

TCA Cancels Orders For AVRO Jetliner

OTTAWA (CP) — A. V. Roe of Canada Ltd. originally built the Avro Jetliner for the crown-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines, but TCA cancelled its orders, a British aviation authority said today.

The official told reporters, that TCA laid down construction specifications and Avro built an even better plane than TCA wanted, but still TCA wouldn't buy it.

The jetliner now is standing idly in the Avro plant at Malton. The official said the government paid 75 per cent of the construction costs and Avro footed the other. TCA had asked Avro to build a jetliner that could carry 32 passengers per cent.

Ranges for flights up to 600 miles. Avro built the jetliner to carry between 36 and 64 passengers up to 1,000 miles.

"TCA cancelled the contract," he said, declining to go further into the reasons for cancellation.

UNIFORMS FOR STUDENTS

Teachers and students at Trenton High School are reported indignant over criticism of the school's gymstyled uniforms for girls.

Wearing these tunics is not obligatory. One might have thought that this avoidance of any compulsion would have headed off controversy. Not so. Criticism now seems to be chiefly based on the contention that the uniforms are too short. But in this case it appears that the Trenton girls are clad in uniforms which lack uniformity, they being permitted to select their own skirt lengths.

Perhaps one ought to be more surprised that these uniforms have been worn for four years without any controversy than at the fact that such a debate has finally developed. Generally the mere mention of a uniform for students is a sign for a real battle right away. Opinions on this subject seem always to be sharply divergent, with nobody taking the middle ground. Those who advocate uniforms advance a variety of arguments, generally featured by the contention that their adoption tends to wipe out social distinctions and to place the daughter of a poor family on equal footing with the girl from a wealthy home. Opponents answer with a question: Why wear uniforms, with the more thoughtful contending that since social distinctions do exist it is well for the child to learn to accept this situation, while still at school.

While the wearing of tunics is not compulsory in the Trenton High School, it would be surprising to most parents if most students did not choose to wear them. Much more difficult than teaching young people to conform is the task of convincing them that it is not always essential that they act and dress and think in exactly the same way as their companions.

168-HOUR WEEK FOR TEACHERS?

Dr. Winnifred E. Bain, president of Wheelock Teachers' College at Boston, believes she has the "real answer" to the shortage of teachers which is a problem in the United States as well as in Canada.

Dr. Bain would encourage female teachers to continue working after marriage.

She suggests she would oppose such a procedure where the married teacher has pre-school children "but once the children are off to school they can spare their mothers a good deal of time."

Perhaps, however, Dr. Bain is overlooking a point. Can these mothers spare their few hours of freedom from children?

Many mothers work, but generally their occupations provide a complete change from their household duties and a change, we are told, is as good as a rest.

There we would certainly be no rest for a married teacher who, jumping out of bed in the morning, would first have to hustle around to get her own children ready, then follow in their footsteps and take charge of a class, later return home and resume the direction of her own brood. That would make the teacher-homemaker face a 168-hour working week, with children filling every hour of it.

It may be argued that a lot of men teachers have children, but that is not the precise point. It is obvious family problems into mother's lap when he wants a few minutes peace and quiet.

Some married women with school-age children are already teaching. If they feel capable of fulfilling this arduous schedule they are assisting in easing a critical situation in the nation's schools. It seems reasonable to suggest that the community ought to refrain from coaxing reluctant mothers to undertake a task which might prove too demanding. Not only the mother-teachers but their children both in mass-room and home would suffer if the 168-hour work-week proved too hard on the nerves.

A TICKLISH SITUATION

Some time ago one of our contemporaries, whose exact identity has slipped our memory, did a masterly job of criticism of such phrases as "not too good" and "not too happy". The purpose of this phrase has now changed. The description of the reaction of Yugoslavia's UN representatives to Russia's proposed solution of the Trieste crisis. These Yugoslavians were described as New York as "indifferent but not too happy" a state of mind which, if markedly indefinite, nevertheless seems to fit in well with the jumbled juggling for power which characterizes Russia's attitude.

At odds with both Yugoslavia, on the one hand, and Britain and the U.S. on the other hand, the Russians have managed to come up with a proposal which suits neither and at the same time pose as staunch supporters of a policy of adhering to treaties.

There is a certain humor to the situation.

TAKE IT EASY AT CORNERS

In a short six-block walk the other day, just at dusk, saw two cyclists narrowly escape being hit by cars.

In both cases if there had been an automobile in the same, our opinion, would have rested on the motorists. They timed corners too quickly.

In both instances the young boys on the bicycles were successful in carrying out the necessary manoeuvres to avoid an accident. If they had been hit, the motorists might have argued that the cyclists were where they had no reason to be. That would have been true, but all of to make mistakes. The difference is that when a motorist makes a mistake in traffic, the worst penalty inflicted upon him is likely to be dented fender. With the cyclist it is more likely to be the head which is bashed in. The hands are a little more difficult to bump out.

Take it easy on the corners. The next cyclist you meet might be your son.

DISAPPOINTED SURGEON

The surgeon sadly said to me
When I had told my ills:
"Another doctor you should see.
This is a case for pills."

"I'm sorry, but the truth I state,
You've come to me in vain.
There is no need to operate
To make you well again.

"I'm one who only cuts and sews
When cause for that is sure.
You'd better go to one who knows
What pills and tinctures cure."

A tear I noticed in his eye,
I knew hard for him to say.
But I was light of heart and I
Went smiling on my way.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you are in a hurry everybody in the world seems to be taking his time. When you are prepared to take it easy, everybody in the world seems to be in a hurry.

There appears to be no average gait among humans. It would not be fair to strike the average between those of us who are in a hurry and those of us who are taking our time. It would be a false and misleading average. We need averages. Only a few years ago, it would have been possible to arrive at some sort of average speed of human beings. Unless you were very well off, there were no means of being in a hurry. You could walk or drive two or three miles an hour. A horse and buggy would go at a reasonable speed for short distances. Street cars speeded up our gait, but only in highly restricted areas and within strict limits of the streets of the community. Almost 1900, there was not much use being in a hurry. Not many people died of hypertension and heart complications in 1900.

Now, almost anybody can be in a hurry. If they haven't got a car, they can hire a taxi in two minutes. If busses and trains aren't fast enough, they can buy a ticket for an aircraft. It is now practical, now possible, to be in a hurry. A new factor has entered into all our lives. After 5,000 years of knowing that there was not much use trying to hurry, we all have set forth ourselves to the disturbing fact that we can hurry whenever we like and whenever it is demanded of us. It is possible for a most important alteration in human environment than social change, political change, technological revolution, universal education. It is a change that affects our gait and our structure. It cows began to grow wings, if cabbages learned to speak, if lightning could be suddenly discovered to be a natural talent in all of us and if we were forced to conceal our thoughts from one another, a more startling change could not be conceived than that human beings, who for countless ages have never really had to hurry because they didn't have the means of doing so, are each year, each day and each hour being supplied, as fast as science can devise it, the means of hurrying at speed and hurry, even to stay where they are in the rat race.

Rhee's Austrian Wife

(By Marguerite Higgins in the American Weekly)

A small, alert woman hazel-eyed and grey-haired came this Fall to have entered the high point of her lifetime. She was getting ready to play a conspicuous role in connection with the post-armistice peace conference.

Her name is Francesca Maria Barbara Rhee. She is the second wife of South Korea's 78-year-old President Syngman Rhee. As his constant companion and secretary, her role will be that of his confidante and helpmeet.

It is anyone's guess as to how much power she will wield. But this is certain: She is dark, intelligent, determined husband, who is so much older than she is, will consult her, will depend on her for much, will be cheered and encouraged by her. He will need her. She is shy, she stays in the background, but she is his strong right arm.

His protective quality of hers dates from a time away back when they first met. It was in Geneva in 1922. Rhee was there, trying to win support for Korea at the League of Nations. Rhee's friend Madame Frederick Donner, the daughter of a family of Chinese from merchants, was staying at the hotel with her mother.

Rhee, a bachelor and the young Viennese, who was a university-trained expert in economics, were introduced. Rhee, learning Francesca noticed a hole in Rhee's sock.

"This man is too busy to take care of himself," she said to her mother. "He should have told her mother. "I must do it for him".

The acquaintance developed into romance. As Rhee's work took him from country to country, Francesca followed him. Two years after they met they were married in a Methodist ceremony in New York City.

They have always been close. They have always been happy. Francesca prattered. It seems that her love for Korea has come to equal her husband's.

I think back, for example, to an incident of January, 1951. For the second time in a year the Communist troops were preparing Rhee's hillside home in the capitol to find out if the Korean War veteran would move.

I arrived in the midst of a domestic crisis. The household staff was pleasing with Madame Rhee to pack up some of the lovely bold whalebone for the escape south. She refused to take anything except one change of clothes for herself and the president.

"What do we care about suits and rugs when we are losing our liberty?" she asked. "We should never clutter up transportation with boxes of goods when we can give our lives for such a risk".

She is; I think, a plain woman, devoid of the chic that marks an individual such as Madame Chiang Kai-shek, but nevertheless is gifted. She knows Korea's problems. She knows what Rhee needs. She and President Rhee speak English together and because of her profound piety and English he relies on her in a secretarial capacity in his dealings with foreigners and often in his relations with the press.

Both she and President Rhee are Christians, and in the evening they often sit down with the Bible. One read aloud to the other, each taking turns. There is no doubt about the affection they have for each other or admiration for his intellectual capacities' and his fight for his country's independence.

Recently she has been pictured as "The real power behind the throne," a manipulator of Korean politics and a speculator on the black market. These stories are ridiculous. She has been with Rhee for three years and I can testify that Madame Rhee is not only above reproach. She is a wise companion and a secretary to the point, but the idea that she has time to do the bossing. As for an interest in the black market, I have seldom known a couple who by inclination or record have shown less interest in the making of money things.

Like any devoted wife, she tries to save her husband's energies. Rhee's interest in his work along well with the Diplomatic Corps but she is too busy for ladies who lunch. She is loyal to her husband's cause. So when someone recently criticized him for his stand against a truce and his demand for Korean unification, she said positively:

"You see, he is not a politician. He does not have much time."

You can be sure that through all that twilight she will be beside him.

Canada's Atomic Boss

(By Reginald Hardy, condensed from Hamilton Spectator)

When a young fellow whose face or conception and the ability to think through to the answer is the ultimate end.

Dr. Lovell's success would seem to be based on these particular qualifications plus the fact that he is always up on his knowledge and possesses a natural gift for administration. He gets along well with his staff, also, that he is able to project his enthusiasm and his ideas to those about him.

Unlike a few of the government's "young men in a hurry" Dr. Lovell is not over-loaded with college degrees. Although he attended the University of Toronto and graduated with an honours Bachelor of Arts degree in Natural Science his education stopped right there. He had not intended going through law and he would probably have made a good lawyer at that.

Dr. Lovell's father, Bennett, a lawyer practising law today had it not been that he decided to express himself in another way. He decided on behalf of the Liberal Party during the 1911 campaign. It was around this time that he caught the notice of Hon. C.D. Howe, and when Howe became minister in 1935 he brought Bill along as his secretary.

As Mr. Howe's Man Friday during the hectic years of the war, Bill Bennett relieved his chief of multitude of chores. As often as it fell to his lot to speak for his minister, to act as a buffer between the public, parliament and mercurial Mr. Howe and the press. Like a good secretary he was the man of action rather than of display. Mr. Howe found a handsome asset young Bill Bennett that he soon developed. Over the years he had to say "No" it was usually in a diplomatic way, finally that aroused antagonism rather than friendship.

And perhaps he was preoccupied with other problems, too, for Bill was a bachelor. He was a confirmed capitalist that definition, because he had a wife and children and no less than seven children including one pair of twins.

Bill married Elizabeth Josephine Pallock, of Fort William,—in 1936, and it's wasn't four years before young Bennetts are girls, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett would be the first to say to having a complete ball team.

One might expect that a man who is president of a large government corporation and who has a family of seven children would have little time left for hobbies, but Bill Bennett manages to find some opportunities for relaxation. He finds time for golf, curling and canoeing and skiing, bobbles in which he is joined by the rest of the ubiquitous Bennett clan.

TWO WISDOM TEETH MISSING

The armful of propaganda that daily bounces across the desks of my slaves directly into the circular bin, the quick disposal treatment because it is easily recognizable at a glance. Once in a while, however, a piece of propaganda escapes detection and so gets into my playroom.

Dr. Brady

For instance today came a "free lesse" from a magazine article about tooth decay, quoting a dental school dean as follows:

Although the idea that a clean tooth never decays is more than fifty years old, the prevalence of (tooth decay) is on the increase despite a half century of vigorous tooth-brushing . . . But in practice a clean tooth never exists, for a person who eats normally always has many micro-organisms and food debris in his mouth no matter how often he brushes. The most that can be said is that if we did not clean our teeth they would be worse than they are."

The dean's opening and closing statements are contradictory, but then, his meaning is obvious: People who brush their teeth regularly in the hope of saving them might as well holler down the rain barrel. Indeed there would be better prophylaxis, it seems to me, for it to be done in the rain barrel and the saving would pay for much needed dentistry—the only known way to save teeth when decay has occurred.

The dean is quoted further:

"Tooth decay seems to be as affliction peculiar to the human species . . . Today there are 'pockets of decay in the world, primitive or otherwise, with truly healthy teeth . . . Tooth decay has shown a disquieting tendency to grow with civilization."

Come with me to Tristean da Cunha—no, I'm just kidding—but do read what you can find in the library or elsewhere about the people who live on the three wee "lonely" isles in the middle of the South Atlantic. They are one people who at least up to 1940 or 1950 had the finest teeth in the world.

The dean's closing statement is, in my opinion, debatable. Within that of the Yankee wise acres did not "clean" our teeth of (tooth decay) in the days of powdered and pasted and pumice tinted and flavored soapy nostrums we might be able to save teeth but to pay for good dental treatment when we need it. Not that the cash saving alone would make so much difference. It would still take a lot of education to find the small and hygiene because most Americans are too much to take proper care of their teeth.

For years I have used no toothbrushes or dentifrices. For washing mouth and/or teeth I prefer to swish and swash water. For cleanliness I'll post a wager with any one of my age whose teeth look as hard, tambly-pambly dentifrice. My thirty teeth are all functional—no wisdom teeth and several of them were made and installed by dentists.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE "OLD TIMERS"

Intelligent youth listens to his elders—that is, if he supplements his intelligence with wisdom. Somewhere about the age of forty the magic behind getting the news and views of the past begins to dawn on him, and that's the age when he becomes a smart individual! People in the country have rare respect for "old timers".

When I was working my way through college in a Midwestern town, I was a night clerk in a local hotel. It was when they had a big stove in the lobby, and on cold winter days there was always a gathering about it, the same as there is today in many a rural country store. When I was not on duty there I used to sit with the ones about the big stove and listen. The interesting ones were those that had learned much from life. I learned much from the tall lean Texas men who had known struggle and many a defeat, but they were not complainers. They were a brave life with courage.

It was a joy to listen to the talk of the blacksmith, the carpenter, and the harness maker, when I only known way to save teeth when decay has occurred.

The dean is quoted further:

"Tooth decay seems to be as affliction peculiar to the human species . . . Today there are 'pockets of decay in the world, primitive or otherwise, with truly healthy teeth . . . Tooth decay has shown a disquieting tendency to grow with civilization."

Come with me to Tristean da Cunha—no, I'm just kidding—but do read what you can find in the library or elsewhere about the people who live on the three wee "lonely" isles in the middle of the South Atlantic. They are one people who at least up to 1940 or 1950 had the finest teeth in the world.

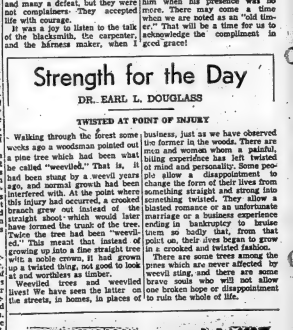
Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TWISTED AT POINT OF INJURY



Walking through the forest some weeks ago a woodsman pointed out a pine tree which had been scarred by lightning. He said that it had been stung by a wevvil years ago, and normal growth had been interfered with. He knew where this injury had occurred, a crooked place was started instead of the straight shoot which would later have formed the trunk of the tree. Years later had been "wevvil-ed." This meant that instead of growing up into a straight trunk, with a noble crown, it had grown up a twisted thing, not good to look at and worthless as timber.

Wevvled trees and wevvled lives! We have seen them all over the streets, in homes, in places of business, just as we have observed the former in the woods. There is a wevvled life where a painful, biting experience has left twisted the called results of insanity. Some people allow a disappointment to plague them of their lives from something straight and strong into something twisted. They allow a bereavement, a broken engagement, marriage or a business experience hurting or bankruptcy to hinder them so badly that, from that point on, their lives have grown into a crooked and twisted fashion.

There are some trees among the pines which have never affected by wevvil sting, and there are some lives which have not allow one broken hope or disappointment to ruin the whole of life.

Atomic Warhead Believed Tested In Australia

By ROTH JONES

WOOMERA, Australia (AP) — Unofficial observers speculated that Britain's second atom test weapon—set off earlier today in this South Australia desert region —was a projectile warhead.

A third British test is scheduled here soon.

There was, as usual, no official word on the type of weapon exploded today, but observers based their warhead theory on the comparative smallness of the devastated area and the fact that the blast was officially described as smaller than the one Britain set off in her first atomic test, a year ago.

Blast 42nd In West

Today's blast was the 42nd atomic explosion reported by western nations since the United States set off the first one in New Mexico eight years ago.

The Russians were believed to have detonated five atomic explosions before a recent series of tests that included an unspecified number of blasts.

After today's explosion, Australian political leaders united in calling for an international ban on the use of atomic weapons. Prime Minister Menzies told the House of Representatives that Australia would do all in her power to press for an effective system of international control and inspection of atomic energy.

Although comparatively small, the blast was an awesome, terrifying spectacle. A huge hemispherical ball of fire glowed brilliantly for several seconds over the target area as a giant brown cloud mushroomed up thousands of feet above the barbarized desert plain.

Reporters who flew over the blasted area later, however, reported little or no crater was visible even when their plane went down to within 300 feet of the ground.

Annual Apple Day Saturday

On Saturday over 600 Boy Scouts and Cubs, each carrying a basket of apples, will be going from door to door soliciting public support for their most worthy cause.

The boys will cover the city. Selling tags! No. They will give you the tags and also an apple in grateful appreciation of your help.

These are the boys who ("promise to do a good deed every day").

Among other things they help elderly people across the street, clean windows in church Sunday schools, take out garbage, shovel snow and cut grass for sick people, deliver blood donor posters, plant trees for reforestation, and help in fire prevention under the direction of the fire department.

They are trained to help in civil defence, message carrying, signalling, first aid and many other important smaller duties are their task. Scouts learn to look after themselves outdoors. They learn to light a campfire with not more than three matches without the use of paper; go out on overnight hikes, as well as know how to cook their own meals. At their Scout camp this year, all cooking was done by the boys themselves in small groups.

All of this training takes money although no one in the local organization receives any remuneration for their work. An opportunity will be given to the general public to assist in this work on Saturday. Be as generous as you can.

500-Pound Cake for Ike's Birthday

Republican women in Hershey, Pa., made a huge 500-pound cake the centerpiece for President Dwight D. Eisenhower's 63rd birthday party. The "cake" was made of wood with a special insert for real cake. This circus supplied a big-top tent for the affair which attracted over 20,000 guests. Three tons of beef were ordered for $100-a-plate dinners. Many non-paying guests brought box lunches. ARREST TWELVE

Same Enter Plant

The workers converged on the side gate early this morning. Some managed to get into the property while others fought with the strikers. Police hurried to the scene, hustled the men into cruisers and took them to jail.

Most of those arrested today were strikers. One was a worker attempting to get into the plant.

The 18 were treated in the plant for minor injuries.

F. M. Buckingham, company president, said he will seek a blanket injunction restraining picketing today.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells last week issued a temporary injunction restraining union members from intimidating plant workers. The injunction expires Oct. 22.

Thirteen Charged

Charged with intimidation and common assault was Nicholas Andrinovich, 31. Charged with obstructing police were John Bell, 25, Edward Pritchard, 40; Donald Stewart, 35, John Lesell, 31; Michael Popwich, 25; Nicholas Gjesolo, 27, Thomas Dargobei, 26, James Henderson, 24, Thomas Davidson, 28, John Dewolfe, 42, and Clarence Rolling, 31. They were remanded to Oct. 22.

Albert Dixon, 57, who police said was trying to enter the plant, was charged with obstructing police.

The company said about fifteen moved into the plant today. The union claimed only 30 went back to work.

CHURCHILL

Only one historian has obtained the award before Churchill, the German Theodor Mommsen, who received it 81 years ago at the age of 85 for his history of ancient Rome.

Retiree Was 65+

Churchill increased the number of literary Nobel prizes won by Britons to six. Only France has won more—eight.

Although Churchill had been mentioned for a week as recipient of this year's prize, the awarding body maintained its traditional attempt to guard the secret of its choice to the last moment.

The rules require a Nobel prize winner to deliver a Nobel lecture in public within six months of Dec. 10, the date on which the award is presented.

Churchill has wooed the beauty of the English language through much of his 78 crowded years. The fabulous world statesman, war leader, one of history's noblest orators, painter, star reporter, war correspondent and politician once summed up his approach to writing thus:

"Generally speaking, the short words are the best, and the old words the best of all."

HIGHER ALLOWANCES

PARIS (Reuters)—The French Council of Ministers Wednesday night approved a bill to raise family allowances by 10 per cent. Family allowances are state subsidies paid to married parents to help offset the high cost of living. Under the new law, a couple with two children and only one source of income will receive 3,795 francs (about $10.75) a month instead of 3,450 francs ($9.65).

Even She Doesn't Own One

Miss Amparo Fernandez Concha, daughter of his excellency Senor don German Fernandez Concha, Peruvian ambassador to Canada, examines the tail section of the Indians of Cuevas, ancient capital of the Incas, to display a rare vicuna pelt. The woman, a three-foot camel, is one of Peru's animal rarities, found only on the high Andean plateaus and producing a wool so fine that the Inca emperors used to restrict the use of it for themselves. The little animal gives up his wool unsheared, and all attempts to domesticate it have been unsuccessful. The pelt is owned by Ed. Provan, Toronto.

Eastern Star Order Sponsors Dainty Tea, Attractive Bazaar

Yesterday afternoon the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, was in festive attire for the tea bazaar of the Order of the Eastern Star, with its dark green ferns, baskets of mixed asters and bronze and golden chrysanthemums. These, with the lovely autumn outside, the mauve-blue sky, and the drifting scarlet and gold maple leaves all betokened the autumn time with its harvest richness.

Receiving the guests at the door were Sister A. McMullen, worthy matron, and Sister R. Denike, wife of the worthy patron, while near at hand were the treasurers, Sisters P. Westover, R. Reid, M. Douglas, F. Patterson and E. Taylor.

Pretty Tea Table

In the quadrangle formed by a fence of white enamelled pickets, and gray chairs, was the tea table, prettily appointed with white damask, centred by a beautiful silver five-branched cornucopia filled with wine-colored, bronze and golden tinted 'mums, interspersed with feathery asparagus fern, and flanked by two branched candelabra holding tall, white tapers. Pleasantly silver services at either end added their pleasing note of anticipation.

Those who presided were: Sisters E. Nayler, M. Elliott, E. Dobbs, D. Riviere, G. Baker, and D. McGlashon, while those who replenished, were, Sisters H. Barraer, T. Liddle, H. McLean, M. Smith, L. Pitt, and D. Westover. Those who served were, Sisters E. Fox, D. Boyle, R. Carson, M. Hatton, H. Tuby, L. Locke, M. Gay, J. Clapp, B. Reid, E. Stewart, F. LaRue, W. MacKeen, E. Martin, B. Shaw, M. Hepburn, C. McKinney.

The tea room hostesses included, Sisters B. Embury, M. Shaw, and P. Barlow.

Quaint Tables

Little quaint guest tables, each covered by a white linen cloth and centred with a tiny glass bowl containing wine, bronze and gold colored 'mums, filled up the remainder of the tea-room, while along the north and west walls were the candy booths each one bearing out the autumn motif with garlands of autumn tints, and at the east end of the Temple were the silken flags of the Order and of the Union Jack, guarding tall standards of lovely pale pink and mauve asters.

The first booth was that of the candles, spic and span with its red and white bows on a valance of white, and tall, candy canes not only guarding the pretty little blue cups and baskets, and boxes of chocolate fudge, nut-topped maple creams, dainty fudge, and chocolates and cellophane bags some of each variety, but mutely reminding those who stopped that Christmas, the time of candy canes, was but 61 days away.

In charge of these dainties were: Bessie Clarke, convener; Orrie Adams, Violet Bishop, Win Carr, Ann Fisher, Margaret Hobson, Sara Morgan, Zetta McGhee, and Emily Stevens. Guarding the tempting white-iced angel cake which would go to the holder of the lucky ticket, and which was donated by sister A. Davidson, on behalf of the business girls, were Sister I. Orne, convener of the tickets, and Sister D. Clarke, convener.

Mecca Of Interest

The apron booth, with its garlands of orange, green and bronze was a mecca of interest, with dainty white, half aprons of organdy, designed with embroidered flowers in a yellow basket, gingham aprons in red, and white check; pink aprons with a wide border of colorful Paisley pattern, dark, all-over work aprons, and many others in colorful prints and factory cotton bound in red, with flanges at the sides to save sticky fingers from the clean housedress. Convening this were: Sister S. Orne, Sister G. Gray, assisted by Sisters, N. Brown, M. Black, G. Black, O. McDonald, E. Clancy, D. Duffin, J. Smythe, J. Eggleston and F. Laycock.

The children's booth, ornate with its bands of fluted yellow, had a variety of articles for sale, little white rubbers; mitts in shades of blue, both dark and light; some with fancy backs; little knitted sacques; dolls dresses; and plates of sugared apples on sticks so tempting to little lips; but the highlight of this booth was a beautiful walking doll, dressed in blue and pink-dotted organdy, edged with narrow lace. She wore a matching pink-dotted bonnet, knickers, and dainty white slippers and pink sockees. She would become the treasure of some little girl at Christmas time from the holder of the lucky ticket. The conveners of this booth were: Sister S. Bush and Sister J. Adams, with their helpers, Sisters B. Mifflin, J. Smith and E. Maybee.

Delightful Array

The homecooking booth, convened by Sister P. Kerr and coconvener, Sister E. Reid, had a delightful array of good things to tempt the most particular. There were pink cakes sprinkled with chocolate; angel cakes, date loaves, pickles, apple and pumpkin pies, banana cakes, cup cakes and bran muffins, tea biscuits and chocolate cookies, grape jelly and relishes, Chinese chews, fresh eggs and a basket of delicious apples — the ingredients of the most popular of pies. The assistants at this booth were: Sisters, E. Bailey, D. Cowles, E. Bush, N. Drummond, M. May, C. Elliott, F. Moon, A. McLean, M. Niblock, B. Law and E. Jeffries.

A grocery hamper and basket filled to the brim with sour fruits, and other table necessities were convened by Sister Stella Docette with Sister E. Warham as co-convener, and helpers Sisters, G. Carscallen, M. Brisman, A. Thompson, R. Skinner, M. Gay, L. Tompkins and Z. Potter.

On the fancy-work table and novelty booth, convened by Sister P. Berry and co-convened by Sister L. Hall, assisted by Sisters I. Brown, M. Carmichael, L. Law, C. Bonsdale, A. Hamron, M. Oliphant, S. Pidgen, B. Patterson, H. Smith, E. Hannants, A. Scott and G. Adams, were, at either end a weeping birch tree in miniature, while lovely, scalloped valances in green, yellow and bronze overlapped each other. These were further accentuated by iridescent oak and maple leaves in shades of scarlet, red and gold.

Attractive Articles

There were crocheted edged handkerchiefs, pretty green guest towels, shopping bags of crevionne, lace doilies, attractive hot plate mats made like little cushions in colors of yellow and green, crocheted face clothes, costume jewellery, little white chickens in crochet to keep the breakfast eggs hot, china ornaments of dogs and rabbits, pictures in frames, dishtowels, and a variety of combs, in different shades.

Convening the dainty refreshments were convener, Sister P. Johnston and co-convener, Sister M. Cross, assisted by Sisters, M. Barr, I. Bolton, V. Johnston, D. Sager, D. Stewart, E. Stanton, G. Jeffery, H. Dewberry, E. Hagerman, M. Mitts, A. Stairs and G. Smith, with Sister R. Morden and co-convener, Sister E. Hick, had charge of the tea room. Floor conveners were Mrs. A. Davidson and Mrs. W. Slavin.

Winners

Those winning the lucky draws were: for the doll, Mrs. G. Adams, city; for the angel cake, Mrs. J. Thompson, city; for the dainty silver blue ribbon tied box of chocolates, Mrs. J. Calvert, city, and for the grocery hamper, Mrs. H. Clapp; and the grocery basket, Mrs. I. Williams and Mrs. E. Stewart.

A dainty tea and pretty bazaar bringing much credit to its convener, Sister P. Moore and coconveners, Sister A. Elliott and W. Quinney.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When There's No Happiness At Home, Seek Legitimate Outside Interests

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married almost 30 years and have a large family, two of whom are married.

For a long time my husband has been unfaithful to me. For the last several years he has worked away from home. I went to a lawyer about getting a divorce, but he advised me not to get one because of our children.

About a year ago my husband told me he was in love with another woman. I talked to her several times on the phone and she finally told him that because of our family, and because she believed I was a good woman, she would not let him come to see her any more.

Then she ditched him when another man, with whom she had lived before, came back into her life.

Finally, he lost his job, and we got behind financially. His people gave us groceries for two months until they found work. Then he said he had learned his lesson and was going to do better. But I am getting myself to believe or trust him any more.

He comes home every Saturday afternoon, and is always complaining that he feels bad, that he has to have lost all his love for me as he never wants to be intimate with me. He says he is getting old, but I can't help wondering if the reason why he is like this is because he is still having affairs.

Mrs. A.T.R.

Dear Mrs. A.T.R.:

To be quite frank—and there certainly is no point in being anything else—I think it quite possible that you are sizing the situation up correctly. Somehow even the little you tell me about your husband does not give me any more confidence than you have that he really has turned over a new leaf.

It doesn't seem to me that there is much that is sound and constructive in the relationship between you two, as it stands now, and my feeling is that you would be wise, since evidently you plan to stay with your husband, to fill your life with enough interests of your own so that your mind and time will not be empty of things you enjoy doing and think about. Otherwise, you may yourself leading a very barren existence indeed.

Moreover, if you do find yourself some interesting and worthwhile activities, you may become a new and more entertaining person who will attract your husband's attention all over again. And, then, life may become much more normal for you.

I et things ride for awhile, while you try this plan, and then let me know the developments.

Father Forbids Boy Friends To His 16-Year-Old Daughter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old, and my father will not allow me to go out with a boy I like very much or even to talk to him. He says I am too young.

Well, I know I am too young to go out, but I can't even go over to his sister-in-law's house and watch television with him there. He is a very nice boy, and never fresh like some of the other boys. He also has very nice parents and a little sister eight years old who likes me. I would like just to be friendly with him, so could you give me some advice?

C.S.R.

Dear C.S.R.:

Don't you think that perhaps if this boy's sister-in-law were to call your father up some time and ask him if she could invite you over to spend the evening at her house, he might allow you to go? Why don't you talk this over with her and see her if she won't do this? Or get the boy to ask her.

She could tell your father that her brother-in-law would bring you home early, or at whatever time he said, and if your father objected to that, then she might say that she would bring you herself.

Sometimes when parents feel their daughters are too young to go out alone with boys, or to have anything much to do with them, if an older person steps in tactfully, they see things differently.

Try this and see if it helps.

Cheese—The Delight Of The Skillful Cook

By Mary Moore

More than a little cheesed off orated milk. When hot stir until smooth. Beat until thick, light stir egg yolks in large bowl (this mixture as so you are using one egg apiece), then stir into them 2-6 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, shake of cayenne and the hot cheese sauce. When blended fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Do this carefully, for you want to retain all of the air. Turn into buttered baking dish (or large frying pan in which you have melted 2 tablespoons butter or fat) and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes or until well-puffed and golden. Serve at once. If you cook this on top of stove, reduce heat after first two minutes, and cook gently until omelette is set and well-puffed, then brown and dry off top in oven or under broiler.

Tomato Cheese Salad Mold

This is one of those ideal little numbers that may be molded in a ring and when turned out centre may be filled with a chicken or fish salad, or it may be molded in individual molds and each one used as an item on a cold salad plate.

Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-2 cup water for five minutes. Heat 1 10-oz. tin condensed tomato soup, add gelatin mixture and stir until dissolved. Stir into this two packages (3 oz. each) of cream cheese, beating well until smooth. Cool. Fold in 1-2 to 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Pour into ring mold or individual molds and chill.

Mesereal Ramasnet

This is macaroni and cheese—but a new 1953 version. Boil until tender 1 1-2 cups broken macaroni—this makes 3 cups when tender. To it add 1 cup each cottage cheese and sour cream, 1-4 cup each very finely chopped onion and grated cheddar cheese, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 3 drops Tabasco sauce, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley. Place in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with 1-4 cup each fine breadcrumbs and grated cheddar cheese mixed together, and some paprika and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes.

Cheese Straws

This is for those girls who want to make cheese straws to serve with their salads or fruit cocktails, but cannot master the knack of making puff paste. In a bowl cream 1 tablespoon butter, then work into it 1-3 cup flour, 2-4 cup soft breadcrumbs, 3-4 cup grated medium or old cheese, 1-8 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne. When these are thoroughly mixed add exactly 2 level tablespoons cold milk. Barely blend, roll out 1-4 inch thickness. If you have a pastry jagger cut out in 1-2-inch wide strips about 4 or 5 inches long. If you use a knife cut into 1-3-inch wide strips, and then twist up and twist them to look like an elongated corkscrew. Place on baking sheet and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until puffed and golden. If you are afraid of such a hot oven, bake them at 375 deg. They will be delicate but not quite so crisp. If you chill them before baking they will be puffier still.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. SEECHEMAN

Too Relative-Conscious

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is planning to have us announce her engagement during the holiday week in December, when her fiance will be home from college. I originally had in mind giving a buffet party for the immediate families and a few close friends. However, now I find that the members of the two families and the relatives will number over 50, and that there also would, of course, be a number of close friends of both families. How we have a problem as to who should be (or is to be) invited.

My daughter's fiance has expressed a desire to have a small and simple affair. He suggested not inviting all members and relatives of two families, but only a few, just to include his friends. I feel that someone is going to resent this, perhaps his mother or his father, each of whom might like to have some invited and not others. Families have their likes and dislikes among themselves, and I don't think it fair for daughter's place to invite the one and not the other. Her fiance's parents are very conservative, and for our daughter's sake we would not want any criticism. What is your opinion about this family situation, and please suggest how I should deal with it.

M.

You omitted to tell me what your daughter's wish is about who is to be invited to her engagement announcement party. Does she agree with her fiance that it should be small, simple, "selective?" Is inclined to agree with the fiance that you are too relative-conscious, and apparently have not given enough thought to including the friends of the engaged couple. Why invite Cousin Agatha, who has never shown any interest in the family and probably has a dislikeum of interest, if any, in the engagement, and omit Jane Smith, Lane and Kenneth Hall, who are beloved friends of the couple?

My suggestion: Consult your daughter's wishes in the immediate members of the two families (parents, sisters, brothers), a few really close and really interested relatives of both families, and intimate friends of the fiance and the fiance. On your own list, get your daughter's suggestions first, then combine them with your and your husband's suggestions. Then if your daughter wants the same type of announcement-party her fiance wishes, have her ask him for his suggested list, then graciously and straightforwardly talk over this list with his parents, and ask for their suggestions. Don't be worried or baffled by their conservatism . . . The Engaged Girl Should Open The Presents At The Announcement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When presents are brought to an engagement-announcement party, should the fiancee open them at the party before the guests and apparently have not given enough thought to including the friends of the engaged couple. Why invite Cousin Agatha, who has never shown any interest in the family and probably has a dislikeum of interest, if any, in the engagement, and omit Jane Smith, Lane and Kenneth Hall, who are beloved friends of the couple?

My suggestion: Consult your list, including only the immediate members of the two families (parents, sisters, brothers), a few really close and really interested relatives of both families, and intimate friends of the fiance and the fiance. On your own list, get your daughter's suggestions first, then combine them with your and your husband's suggestions. Fashion Flashes

The big success of the season is going to be those all-over printed sheer wool dresses, a new way of bringing a splash of color into the winter scene. A beauty is a scoop-necked sheath in allover floral print. For date use, it has a full apron overskirt of silk in the same print.

No doubt about it, the leather hat is new, especially for dressy wear, and it is selling well. White capeskin makes a pillbox, the leather manipulated and draped like fabric. A large jutting side-wing gives height and width.

Not nearly as bare as has been the case, is the new word on late afternoon clothes, with the covered-up look gaining in popularity, mainly because it stamps the dress as new, we think! Anyway, typical of the new offerings is a sheath dress of corded Alencon lace with a mink collar marking the high neckline. Elbowlength sleeves.

The high point marks the crown of many of the new little hats. Cocoa brown velvet makes a pixie turban draped to a high point, the fabric softly tucked in front. A shy blue ostrich feather fancy, sways at the side.

A beautiful season for separates, no doubt about it. Richly textured sweaters team up with matching skirts in lovely colors, and there are novelties galore. While linen is used for a long sleeved blouse ruffled with cotton lace fore and aft. Nice with tapered pants of honey velveteen or with a skirt of black tweed embroidered all over with rose and black silk dots.

Trieste Issue High on Agenda Of Dulles, Eden, Bidault Parley

LONDON (AP) — United States Secretary Dulles flew to London today for "save the peace" talks with Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault. The explosive Trieste situation gave the conference new urgency.

The U.S. policy maker was due here in mid-afternoon. Accompanying him in a U.S. Air Force plane were his wife and four top state department experts.

Bidault was due from Paris early tonight.

The latest Big Three talks were scheduled to open Friday at the foreign office and to last through Saturday. Trieste undoubtedly was top item for discussion, but a fistful of other topics faced the three ministers.

Dine With Churchill

Prime Minister Churchill arranged to dine with Dulles tonight and to meet Bidault separately. Churchill was expected to urge on both men his project for an informal conference of himself, President Eisenhower, French Premier Joseph Laniel and Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov.

As he left Washington Wednesday night, Dulles in a statement expressed hope the London talks would "make some progress" toward easing world tensions.

The three nations' "undeviating objective," he said, is "to seek out, with all of our allies, the basis for a lasting peace."

"We cannot, of course, expect by a single meeting at London to devise solutions for all existing problems. We can hope to make some progress in finding the way whereby we and others can move with vision toward easing of existing tensions," Dulles declared.

Although both the foreign office and the U.S. state department claimed the get-together has been in the making for some time, it was given a war-or-peace urgency by Yugoslav President Tito's threats to use force to forestall the announced British-American plan to turn over Trieste's zone A to Italy.

Steady Keeps Yes

In addition to Trieste and Churchill's Big Four project, the ministers also were expected to give final approval to their new note inviting Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to meet them in Lugano, Switzerland, Nov. 9 to discuss Germany and Austria, and to study latest developments on the projected Korean peace conference.

Diplomatic Fight Over Trieste Shifts To UN

By TOM HOGE.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The diplomatic battle to keep a shooting war away from Trieste shifted to UN headquarters today as Security Council debate on the explosive issue was overshadowed by the impending London talks on the question.

With their foreign ministers meeting in Britain's capital Friday and Saturday, British and American delegates here waited to see what tack Russia's Andrei Vishinsky would take before the council this afternoon.

Vishinsky's proposal — that the council again try to set up an international administration over both zones of Trieste and give the whole area independence three months later — so far had met with a cold reception from Yugoslavia and Italy, the two claimants to the area.

Expect Moscow Echo

Vishinsky was expected to lead off the council meeting with an echo of Moscow's earlier charge that the United States and Britain violated the 1947 Italian peace treaty by their decision to turn over Trieste's zone A—occupied by British and American troops—to Italy.

Belgrade, scene of violent anti-western rioting since the British-American announcement, kept a close watch on the UN and London discussions.

The United States and Britain both indicated they would not intervene at once in the council debate.

There was no advance indication of what role, if any—Yugoslavia would play in the debate. It was no secret, however, that the Yugoslav delegation wanted no part of the Soviet proposal and tried vainly to prevent Vishinsky from entering.

U.S. Open-Minded

Yugoslav President Tito already has proposed a conference of the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia on Trieste. U. S. State Secretary Dulles, leaving Washington Wednesday night for London, also reported open-minded toward that suggestion.

Italian circles at the UN indicated they were awaiting instructions from Rome on whether to seek permission to take part in the council debate. Italy is not a UN member but maintains a permanent observer here.

One source close to the Italians said they felt it would be wiser if both disputants stayed out of the council discussion.

College Students Won't Affiliate With Red Group

MONTREAL (CP)—The international commission of the National Federation of University Students has recommended that the student group not become a member of the Communist-dominated International Union of Students—at least for the present.

The recommendation will go before the plenary session of NFUS' annual meeting. Some 32 delegates, representing 38,500 students at Canadian universities, are attending.

Meeting separately, the international commission decided against IUS associate membership for the Canadian group, but attached a rider to the motion to give the federation executive power "to investigate the possibilities of relationship with IUS in th future."

Hits Oppression Of Catholics And by Catholics

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury Wednesday denounced Communist persecution of the Roman Catholic church but added that there are "horrible stories and denials of just liberties which lie at the door of the Reformed Catholic church itself".

The archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, highest ranking clergyman of the Church of England, made his statements in an address to the joint synod of both houses of the Canterbury Convocation, which included diocesan bishops and clergymen of various ranks.

Condemns Position

The archbishop considered the recent ouster of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Primate of Poland, by that country's Communist regime. The archbishop said he was glad to receive from his Roman Catholic friends expressions of appreciation for his stand, then added:

"In honesty to them and to the truth, I ought to say that there are oppressions and denials of just liberties which lie at the door of the Roman Catholic Church itself. And one must say that the church has not yet learned the lesson that toleration as between Christian bodies, or bile is the last word as to their proper relations, is the first and essential word to those who would follow the teachings and spirit of the Lord."

Dr. Fisher told the meeting that in conflicts between the church and Communist states, "it does not follow that the church is always or entirely right."

"If sometimes a church may be in danger of surrendering too much to the state, it is also possible for a church to resist unwisely or to claim too much.

"One cannot, therefore, assume forthwith that whenever an ecclesiastic is restrained he is free from all blame—though in the case of the Primate of Poland, I believe that to be so.

"It must be recognized that in past and present history, a church claiming more than its due may try to advance the Kingdom of God by the employment of political force and by denials of just liberties."

Slovene Schools In Trieste Closed As Tension Mounts

By WEBB MCKINLEY

TRIESTE (AP) — Anti-Yugoslav riots brought a protest today from Yugoslavia's economic mission here and the closing of all Slovene schools as tension mounted in the disputed port city.

Civil police kept a sharp watch to prevent a repetition of the Wednesday night violence, during which Italians and Slovenes clashed with fists and umbrellas and pro-Italians broke furniture and windows at the economic group's headquarters.

Delegation secretary Velimir Milovic delivered the protest note personally to Maj.-Gen. Sir John H. Winterton, British chief of the Allied military government.

The note accused the territory's police force of "failing to protect" the Yugoslav building. The Slovene schools closed in protest.

A police communique said three persons were slightly injured in the disturbances Wednesday night. One of the casualties was an unidentified Allied official of the police.

Stormy Session Held

The communal council passed a resolution in a stormy eight-hour session Wednesday night hailing the Allied-promised return of the territory's zone to Italy. The resolution called on "all civilized nations" to back Italy's claims to Yugoslav-controlled zone B.

Over opposition shouts and angry speeches, the resolution was supported by Christian Democrats, Liberals, Republicans, Social Democrats and the pro-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI). These groups hold more than 60 per cent of the council's seats.

Communists and 7 party-line Socialists abstained from the vote, and pro-Yugoslavs and Slovene groups opposed it.

While the pro-Italian band was storming the Yugoslav office, the council was debating another section of the resolution citing "the calm and dignified reserves of our people and the unperturbed course of our civil life."

That part of the resolution also was adopted.

The night's disturbances against Trieste, zone A to Italy, defied an Allied ban on public meetings.

As 2,000 persons demonstrated and 8,000 watched, small fights broke out between umbrella-swinging Italians and Slovenes.

Some 300 police broke up the demonstration but about 150 pro-Italians marched to the headquarters of the Independent Front, favoring internationalization of Trieste, and ransacked the office. It turned out to be the wrong office, belonging to a private business concern.

Then about 200 pro-Italians charged over to the nearby Yugoslav economic offices, forced their way inside and tore up the furniture. Police rushed into action with riot sticking.

Triumphal Arch for Red Propaganda

Just beyond the tents in which truce negotiations were carried on in Panmunjom, the Communists are building this "triumphal" arch through which they hope to march many of the 20,000 Chinese and North Korean war prisoners who have been refusing to go home. A temporary shelter in which to house the bulky POW's has been rushed by the Neutral Nations Repatriations commission. There the Communist representatives have an opportunity to present their "explanations" to the anti-Reds who refuse repatriation.—Central Press Canadian.

... and YOU?

Mark Twain once told the story about a Blue Jay so energetic he filled an abandoned shack in the woods with acorns. Got it just about overflowing, too, just by saving up systematically—putting something away, little by little, until it grew into a lot!

That's a pretty fair policy for any of us to follow. Acorns wouldn't do you much good. But, if you stored up Canada Savings Bonds, you'd be in pretty good shape to meet whatever turns up tomorrow . . . to handle any financial upsets — perhaps to enjoy yourself the way you'd like while you're still able to sit up and take notice!

A few dollars every payday will get you Canada Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Or, by instalments through your bank or investment dealer. You'll never miss the money that way. And you'll be pleasantly surprised just how fast you can build up a tidy little nest egg that earns you good interest. Tomorrow won't look after itself . . . why don't you start looking after it . . . now?

Sailors, Fishermen, Miners, Steelmen Keep Strikes Going; 18,500 Idle from Walkouts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gold miners in Ontario and Quebec, deep sea sailors, British Columbia woods workers and Newfoundland fishermen are keeping Canada's wave of strikes going while further labor unrest threatens on other fronts.

A Canadian Press survey today listed upwards of 18,500 idle from walkouts over a variety of causes, including wages and hours and the checkoff of union dues.

The work stoppage by more than 5,000 Newfoundland fishermen, who quit fishing after a month ago to await a price rise, may be nearing its end. The provincial government this week promised to supplement payments offered by the dealers and the fishermen are considering the offer.

Steel Still Closed

The latest of strikes which started in July in the Timmins area of northern Ontario and spread to the copper-gold producers, involving more than 8,000 workers, altogether, appears no nearer settlement. The federal government recently announced it will continue its subsidy to gold mines, a move thought to put company officials in a more favorable settlement union wage demands, but so far negotiations have run into a deadlock over the insistence of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) on the granting of the dues checkoff.

Under the checkoff, a company collects union fees—usually by payroll deduction—and remits the money to union officials. The arrangement, which calls for extra bookkeeping on the company part, relieves the union of the work of gathering the monthly dues and helps to keep its income constant.

One thousand members of the seafarers' International Union (AFL-TLC) have been on strike since 1 Sept. in a fight against Canadian flag deep-sea ships to enforce demands for a 25% increase in monthly wages and a 40-hour week at sea. About 12 ships are reported strikebound of 37 affected sailing at sea.

A strike by the same union against four inland shipping companies was averted when the companies agreed to the 40-hour week.

In the northern British Columbia interior, 1,000 woods workers are idle as a result of the strike called three weeks ago by the International Woodworkers of America (CIO) to back demands for a pay increase over the present basic $1.39¼ an hour. The companies rejected a conciliation board award of three cents hourly.

Apply For Strike Votes

Also in British Columbia, 3,000 woods workers in the southern interior, 1,000 electrical workers in Vancouver and Victoria and 4,000 members of the Pulp-Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers Union (AFL) have applied for government-supervised strike votes.

Some 15,000 pulp and paper industry employees will take a strike vote next Sunday in a six-month wage and contract dispute between representatives of 11 unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and of 13 Ontario companies. They seek a five-per-cent wage increase and other benefits. Ontario mills now have a 48-hour week and a basic hourly rate of $1.41.

About 720 employees of Dominion Bridge Company Limited, members of the steelworkers union, are on strike for a three-day boost of 16 to 18 cents during the contract year while the company favors increase of four to six cents an hour over the basic range of $1.22.

On the strike are 600 Quebec province pulp workers seeking a 40-hour week without reduction in pay or night differential and 13 employees of Ashtabula Metal Products Limited of Windsor, Ont., which manufactures small steel parts for the automotive industry.

Police and strikers clashed Wednesday outside the Wallace Barnes spring-manufacturing plant in Hamilton after a company back-to-work order. Police charged 800 picketers and escorted 15 workers into the factory property. The United Electrical Workers (Ind.) has been on strike since June 21 over wage demands.

Corporal Going Back to Korea For Fourth Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Cpl. B. A. Clinton likes excitement, so he likes Korea, so he's going back for the fourth time.

The army said Wednesday the Montreal policeman, called a few days ago from a west coast port. He was one of the first Canadians to see service in Korea in 1950.

Since that time, when he accompanied the advance party of Canadians as a member of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Cpl. Clinton has changed regimental badges twice.

After serving his second tour, as personal rifleman to the commander of the 25th Canadian Brigade, Brig. J. R. Rockingham, Cpl. Clinton returned for a third time with the Royal 22nd Regiment. He now belongs to the 2nd battalion of the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada.

Freed of Charge

HAMILTON (CP)—Nell Cameron MacDonald, 49, was freed by an assize court jury here Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Ethel Mulholland, 50, during a wine-drinking party in an Elgin street rooming house last month.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow said that he was in agreement with the verdict, for in the administration of justice, a jury had to be satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt before convicting.

MERRY OLDSTERS

LONDON (CP) — "The Merry Imps," a six-piece band young in heart, has been playing for three years under direction of 81-year-old Bill Makepeace at an old-age pensioners' association here. Average age of the musicians is 74; the youngest is 60 and the sole woman player 71.

Credit Unions Mark Birthday In Many Lands

REGINA (CP)—One in every 12 Canadians sits back and chuckles today at his ability to borrow money and save at the same time.

These 1,300,000 persons are observing International Credit Union Day and the 195th anniversary of a community system of financing which has multiplied as fast as a chain letter.

Ceremonies in Canada and in other parts of the world call for talks at addresses, banquets and dances. Credit union officers in Saskatchewan, where the movement is strong, hope some day to have the third Thursday of October declared a holiday similar to Labor Day.

Began In Germany

Principle of the credit union—borrowing money at least cost—was conceived in 1848 by William Henry Haffenden, mayor of the town of Flammersfeld, Germany. The idea was brought to North America by Canadian, Alphonse Desjardins, who organized the first credit union in 1900 at Levis, Que.

Latest figures available show there now has 9,300 unions with assets of approximately $400,000,000. There are more than 18,000 under the Canadian Birmingade, Brig. J. R. Rockingham, ham system with 8,000,000 members and combined assets of $2,000,000,000.

With their motto of "not for profit, not for charity, but for service," members save more than $1,000,000 in interest charges last year.

One Man Killed

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was killed and another injured Wednesday night in a collision between a car and a bus on a high way between St. Hilaire and SAPN Madeleine, 20 miles east of here.

Dead is Andre Magnan of Welland, driver of the car. A passenger, Roland Lefond, 36, also of Welland, was taken to hospital at St. Hyacinthe with undetermined injuries.

None of the passengers in the bus were reported injured.

HEADS CONSERVATIVES

KINGSTON (CP)—D. J. Rankin of Kingston has been re-elected president of the Kingston-Addington Progressive Conservative Association.

Joseph Lewis of Camden East is secretary-treasurer and J. Howard Joyce of Kingston assistant secretary-treasurer.

Think Future Home Buyers Will Face Higher Charges But to Have Longer to Pay

OTTAWA (CP)—The future home buyer likely will have to bear the cost of the government's proposed new mortgage insurance plan. He also may have to pay a higher interest rate on National Housing Act loans.

These are understood to be two of the many features of the new housing legislation to be presented at the next Parliament, which opens Nov. 12.

The legislation, announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent Oct. 4, now is being drafted by the government's housing experts. It will provide for mortgage insurance to allow banks to lend money on mortgages, with the aim of increasing the supply of money available for home construction.

Guarantee Repayment

Lending institutions would have the government guarantee that mortgage loans be repaid.

Mortgage insurance premiums will be based on the face value of the mortgage and likely will be about 1½ per cent of the mortgage value.

Maximum interest charges under the National Housing Act—now fixed at 5½ per cent—likely will be raised to 5½ per cent. Both of these additional charges probably will be borne by the home buyer.

Thus the cost of a new home under the proposed scheme may turn out to be a little higher than under the current NHA program. To offset this the government, as announced by Mr. St. Laurent, plans to reduce the down payment and extend the maximum repayment period on "lower-priced" homes.

Though Mr. St. Laurent gave no details of what the government considers to be "lower-priced" homes, it is understood they will be those costing roughly between $9,000 and $12,000.

May Raise Ceiling

Under the NHA joint mortgage lending scheme of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and commercial lending groups, loans up to 80 per cent of the construction costs can be obtained, with the maximum loan placed at $10,000. This ceiling likely will be raised to about $12,000.

It is understood the mortgage insurance scheme will differ from that in the United States, under which premiums taper off, being computed at one per cent of the balance of the mortgage as it is reduced each year.

In Canada, the insurance premium will be a flat percentage of the face value of the mortgage and paid over the life of the loan. For example, on a $10,000 mortgage, the rate likely will be 3½ per cent, or $350, added to the loan, bringing it to $10,350.

The premium costs would increase normal monthly mortgage repayment instalments. To offset this, the government likely will increase the maximum life of a mortgage to possibly 30 from 25 years.

Under the current NHA-plan, the interest rate on a joint CMHC commercial loan is fixed at 5½ per cent, CMHC puts up about 90 per cent of the loan and the commercial lender 75 per cent. But CMHC actually subsidizes the interest rate, by taking only 3% per cent on its portion of the loan while the commercial lender gets 5% per cent of his portion.

Ask Government Loans

Under the proposed changes, CMHC would withdraw from the lending field, leaving it entirely to the commercial lenders, expanded to include the chartered banks.

This would normally mean CMHC no longer would have control over the interest rate. However, the government is likely to stipulate in its proposed amendments that mortgage insurance will not be available on mortgages which bear an interest rate higher than 5½ per cent.

Teachers to Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario will meet in 12 Ontario cities Oct. 17 and 21. A main topic will be the lowering of public school teachers' qualifications in the province.

The teachers will also discuss the curriculum in schools and the recreational reading habits of public school children.

The Oct. 17 conferences will be held in Leamington, St. Marys, Orangeville, Smiths Falls, Gravenhurst, Kenora and Timmins, the Oct. 21 meetings in Kincardine, Niagara Falls, Etobicoke, Trenton and Sudbury.

Nurse Marie Josette Francoz is shown caring for children in the village of Mog Duc. Young and old were inoculated against cholera.

HINT FOR CAR-MAKERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Suggestion that automobile manufacturers agree to place all car bumpers at a uniform height from the pavement was made by Mr. Justice Andre Demers in Superior Court here. Hearing an accident case, his lordship said damage would have been less if the two bumpers had met squarely.

Mayor Lamport Still Refusing To Bear Costs

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport told board of control Wednesday "it's a cinch" Toronto would be only a secondary target should war break out.

He indicated Toronto is not budging from its refusal to share costs of a visit by a civil defence demonstration convoy. The convoy now is touring western Canada.

He said the cost of the visit would be much "more" than the $400 figure set Tuesday by Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, civil defence co-ordinator, at Ottawa.

FAVORITE HORSE

LONDON (CP)—Pompey is dead but not forgotten. The bones and tail of the 19-year-old Royal Horse Guards steed, who took part in the Coronation procession, have been mounted in the regimental museum and the public has expressed its sorrow in hundreds of letters.

Canadians Too Modest in Speaking Of Country, Speaker Tells Meeting

Canada is a land of unlimited opportunity and depending on the initiative of its citizens will forge ahead in almost unbelievable greatness.

This, in a few words, was the prediction of Robert M. Campbell, vice-president and managing director of the Walter Thompson Advertising Company, Ltd., Toronto, who spoke Wednesday night at a dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce National Conference held at the Y.M.C.A.

"But the trouble with Canadians is that they are too modest," the speaker declared. "What they need to do is to stand up and be counted."

Mr. Campbell said that recent developments in this country had given truth to the words credited to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that "the twentieth century belongs to Canada." Canada, he said was the only country in the Western hemisphere where the most unlimited natural resources were still little developed.

Attracting Outside Capital

Canada's potentiality was fast attracting outside capital. Foreign firms were clamoring to establish factories and were looking to this country for expanded markets.

"So today we are on the threshold of believing in our own greatness—a greatness that other nations have seen for long before we ourselves saw it—a greatness that transcends even Laurier's prophetic remark."

The speaker said that even the United States was looking to Canada. It relied on Canada for its pulp and paper, newsprint, nickel, uranium and iron and a host of other natural resources, which she had run out of. He said that the United States envied Canada's future—a future bigger than its own greatest boast.

Not Overshadowed

Canadians in the main had grown up with the feeling of being overshadowed by the United States. "It was time," the speaker said, "that we overthrew that tradition and reached back and listened to Laurier's dream that the 20th century belonged to Canada.

He said that Belleville, and all the other Belleville's in this country, had a part to play in Canada's great future. It was to the interest of all that we take a quick look at what is happening and try to figure just where the Belleville's of Canada can cash in on the collective Canadian star.

"We have the iron of Labrador, the gas and oil of the West, the Kitimat of British Columbia, the uranium and gold of the north, and he myriad of other natural resources still untapped. We have a stable government and the respect and envy of our neighbors."

Look Confidence

The trouble was that Canadians lacked confidence in themselves. They have hung back and rejected responsibility and have let government and bureaucracy and hard philosophy engulf them. Government had been elected without consideration of the issue involved.

"We have abandoned our rights as citizens to professional stewards—good steward in most cases, better than us in many cases—but in doing so we have ceased to be responsible in the administration of our affairs."

But there was still hope. There was still in Canada a hard-rock core of Canadians who refused to "let George do it." These were the men, who made up the membership of the many boards of trade, commerce organizations across the country.

The speaker admitted there are many Canadians standing on their own feet, who do not belong to any Chamber of Commerce. But they lack the collective voice, in unity there was strength.

Cross-cut of Thinking

Mr. Campbell says it the Chamber is a fair cross-cut of independent Canadian thinking on the part of those who refuse to knuckle under to bureaucracy and the effectivism of government by abandonment.

Again referring to Belleville's place in the future of Canada, Mr. Campbell said that Belleville could share in this greatness only in direct relation to the effort that members put into promoting Belleville.

"And what has Belleville to offer?" he said. "Only you in Belleville know that."

It may be new industry. It may be some undisclosed role in the St. Lawrence Seaway project, or it may be something none of us has seen yet. But only the people in Belleville can find it.

In conclusion Mr. Campbell, noting there were three main principles to remember when seeking progress. One was that Canadians must stand on their own feet or someone else stands on them. Another was that Canada is forging ahead and the community that doesn't keep pace falls behind, and finally he reminded that the entire Chamber of Commerce organization, provincial or federal, stood behind to help in any way it

Peace Guarantee One Proposal To be Discussed

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times says today a guarantee by the United States, Britain and Canada for peace in Europe is one of the proposals being discussed here to allay Russia's fears of the European Defence Community and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In a London dispatch, Drew Middleton writes that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is expected to place the proposal before U. S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles and France's foreign minister, Georges Bidault, when the three meet here this week-end.

Official opinion in Britain, the dispatch says, appears to have reached the conclusion that it is useless to propose any guarantees in Europe involving the neutralization of territorial areas or the security of countries. It is believed anything of this sort would invite the veto of one or more interested European governments and antagonize the right wing of the Republican party in the U. S. Congress.

Middleton says it seems likely, therefore, that any guarantees emerging from the Big Three meeting will be assurance of the peaceable intention of the various military defensive measures taken by the West since 1948.

"The proposal that the United States, Britain and Canada, three non-continental powers, should guarantee Europe against aggressive action by any party signatory to the defence community treaty or a member of the Atlantic alliance is finding increasing favor."

Such a proposal, the newspaper says, would be an important step toward "the construction of a Western position from which relaxation of world tension could be negotiated later."

GOOD NEIGHBORS

PATRICIA, Alta. (CP)—When the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Donovan burned to the ground recently their neighbors provided accommodation, bedding and clothing. Then they arranged a community shower which brought $1,500 in cash gifts.

Mr. Donovan said, "I don't know what could.

"Because it's your organization, comprised of people like yourselves and geared to help people like yourselves. But if we Canadians went to benefit personally from Canada's limitless future, we must be personally responsible.

"That," Mr. Campbell said, "is what the chamber stands for. That's all it stands for. That's all it is. The rest is up to you."

Group of Czechs Shoot, Kill 2 Red Policemen

BERLIN (AP) — A group of Czechs fleeing through the Russian zone towards West Germany killed and wounded a third, it was reported today.

Six men and a woman, apparently trying to reach the West through Berlin, were caught by the police on a train at Lochau, the report said. As the police attempted to arrest them, several of the men whipped out pistols and opened fire. They ran from the area and have not been found.

Plunges Into Canal

CORNWALL (CP)—Gordon Stark, 36, of St. Eustache, Que., escaped through the window of his transport truck Wednesday after the vehicle plunged off the road into 25 feet of water, five miles west of here.

Operations to pull the truck from the water held traffic up for five hours.

DIES AFTER UPSET

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (AP) — John H. Diefert, 63, a retired official of the Aluminum Co. of America drowned Wednesday night as a cabin cruiser smashed into a concrete ice breaker and overturned in the Monongahela river at nearby Crucible. Three other occupants escaped.

Board Denies Discrimination Against Boys

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP)—School authorities have denied discrimination against the two young sons of Negro parents, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg when they ruled the boys must leave school here unless adopted by a Toms River resident.

School principal Dewitt Ricketts said Wednesday the local board of education decided four years ago that only legal residents should be allowed to attend Toms River schools. Since then, he said, 40 children have been refused admittance.

The Rosenberg boys, Michael, 10 and Robert, 6, are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bach here and attend Toms River elementary school. Their legal guardian, however, is Emmanuel H. Bloch of New York, defence counsel for the Rosenbergs during their trial.

Bloch has accused school officials of singling out the Rosenberg boys, "because they are the children of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg." The Bachs were informed last week of the school regulation and were asked to decide whether to adopt the children.

SCOHARIE

SCOHARIE — The community was well represented at the Plowing Match at Cobourg. It was a lovely time for a drive as nature's paint brush painted lovely scenes in autumn colors everywhere and a bright sunny day added lustre to them all. Among those from here attending the Plowing Match were: Mr. Norman Leavitt, Henry and John Norman Leavitt, Gerald Huff and Larry, Mr. and Mrs. William McGee, Mrs. Burton Hobson and Roger, Mr. and Mrs. Carman Hobson and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Finley Hennessy, Ronald and Elwood Hennessy, Mr. and Mrs. A. Baxter and Lindley, George Hanna, Mr. Theodore Foster and Miss Norma Foster, and Mrs. Harry Foster and Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff visited friends at Napanee recently.

A number from here enjoyed the services conducted by Dr. Templeton at Belleville last week and also the service at Picton United Church on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hanna were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. Theodore Foster and Miss Norma Foster.

Mrs. Blaine Foster and Darlene spent a few days last week in Picton. Mr. and Mrs. Foster and Darlene were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira McWilliam.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Howe and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Hobson and girls and Mrs. Gerald Huff attended Madoc Fair on Wednesday.

Mr. William McGee enjoyed a brief holiday back north during the week-end.

Miss Foster accompanied Bruce McCormondale, AAR, and several boys of the Calf Clubs to Kingston on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Shaw spent the week-end in Picton with her sister, Mrs. Welbanks.

ALTER CONVENTION DATE

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario CCF headquarters announced Wednesday that the convention scheduled here Nov. 27-28 to choose a successor to provincial leader E. B. Jolliffe will be held Nov. 20-21. Inability to get hotel accommodation the Nov. 28 week-end prompted the change. Nov. 28 is the date of the Grey Cup football final here.

Federal Doctor Cuts TB Rate In Mental Hospital

QUEBEC (CP)—A 35-year-old federal government physician has cut the tuberculosis death rate in a Quebec mental hospital from 25.5 to 5.6 per cent and gathered knowledge that may soon serve Canada's Eskimos and Indians stricken with the disease.

Using as a base the controversial BCG vaccine developed in France shortly after the First World War, the experiment cut TB deaths in St. Michel Archange Hospital from 66 in 1950 to 49 in 1952. Only six deaths have been recorded for the first six months of the current year.

Because of clinical accidents in a test administered to a group of children in Germany, resulting in 200 deaths, BCG has not been accepted in all countries. One of the countries where BCG has aroused opposition is the United States.

Extend Experiment

Quebec's largest mental hospital, St. Jean de Dieu, Montreal, now is preparing to apply the St. Michel Archange experiment.

Organizer is Dr. J. E. Labrecque, director of the federal immigration hospital, Second World War veteran with the medical corps who studied at Saranac Lake, N.Y., and the Charles Camsell Indian Hospital at Edmonton.

Now in its fifth year, the experiment's results were revealed recently.

Dr. Labrecque, one of the few specialists in the singular form that tuberculosis takes among Eskimos, was called in because of his experience in working with large groups.

In view of his special interest in fighting the disease among the Eskimos, Dr. Labrecque followed progress of the experiment with an eye to findings that would improve detection and immunization against the disease.

He said in an interview Wednesday he feels BCG is giving "interesting results" and so far has been almost 100 per cent effective in protecting inoculated patients against tuberculosis.

President Sees Some Signs Of Recession

VANCOUVER (CP)—A. R. Mosher of Montreal, president of the Canadian congress of Labor, predicted Wednesday that Canadian unionists will find it harder to negotiate wage increases this year.

Here for the International Woodworkers of America annual convention, Mr. Mosher told delegates: "I don't want to be pessimistic, but I think there are some signs that a recession is coming."

Despite this, he said, unions should press for wage increases wherever possible to maintain public purchasing power. This was the main way to prevent a serious depression.

"I think in many cases it would be wise to shelve a general demand for higher wages and concentrate on making other gains," he said.

A union with the "right idea" was the non-operating railway brotherhoods, currently negotiating a 1954 contract. The railwaymen said last month they would not seek a general wage increase, but would concentrate on gaining better pensions, holidays and other fringe benefits.

Future of Trade With States Causing Concern

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports to the United States likely will rise to an all-time high this year, but officials are concerned over the future of that top-ranking world market.

The causes of concern are many. They include continuing pressure by some segments of U.S. industry for higher tariff protection; increasing dependence of the Canadian importer on the American supplier and the deepening deficit in Canadian-American trade.

Though prices have eased slightly Canada's exports to the U.S. are likely to rise to a peak of $3,500,000,000 this year, a jump of about $150,000,000 over the previous high of $3,349,000,000 in 1953, officials predicted today.

Coupled with this jump, however, is the forecast of an increase in imports to a record $3,309,000,000—up more than $300,000,000 from $3,977,000,000 in 1952.

TRADING GAP GROWS

A lot of these imports—machinery and equipment—are being allowed into Canada's industrial expansion, but they are making it more difficult for Canada to bridge the trade gap with her neighbor.

Canada usually runs into a deficit in U.S. trade, but this year the adverse balance may reach a high of $80,000,000, soaring well above the $627,900,000 deficit in 1952.

In most previous years, Canada has been able to balance her American deficits with trade surpluses in other parts of the world. But this year her sales to Britain have dropped while imports have increased, narrowing the possible surplus from this trade quarter.

The outlook now is for an overall international trade deficit of more than $100,000,000.

Cry of Secession Again Heard In Northwest Ont.

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—The old northwestern Ontario cry of "secede from Ontario and form a new province" was revived Tuesday night at a city council meeting.

Ald. John Spooner said northwestern Ontario is being turned into "a Sahara desert through reckless exploitation by interests in eastern Ontario and the United States. We are the land of the forgotten people."

Ald. Robert Limbrick said northwestern Ontario is no longer the gateway to the west, but "the back door to the east."

"We are not going to listen to any more of the talk we hear from Queen's Park. The sooner we get wise, secede and form our own government, the better. Then development will spur the northland."

Ald. J. E. Young called for "a vigorous approach" to industrial development. He said even though northwestern Ontario occupies 39 per cent of Ontario's land area, it gets few of the province's new industries.

Ald. A. F. Hawkins, chairman of the Fort William industrial development commission, said efforts at obtaining new industries have received "little or no help from Toronto."

Bar Association, Arbitration Act, Are Criticized

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Trade Union Congress (TLC) opened its annual convention here today with attacks on the Canadian Bar Association and the Provincial Conciliation and Arbitration Act.

John Bruce of Toronto criticized the CBA for a resolution approved at its recent convention in Quebec City urging that federal and provincial cabinets be given power to withdraw the right to strike in labor disputes involving public safety and public health. The resolution also proposed that disputes be subject to binding arbitration.

Mr. Bruce said the CBA was "sticking its legal beak in our affairs again."

Mr. Bruce, a veteran of 60 years in the labor movement, said there will never be any freedom until B.C.'s Conciliation and Arbitration Act is abolished and "we are allowed to conduct our own affairs."

Want Coal Mines To Get Same Aid As Gold Industry

TRURO, N. S. (CP)—The Canadian coal industry should receive federal aid on the same scale as farming, fishing and aluminum industries, the District 26 United Mine Workers (CIO) convention was told. Wednesday.

District president Freeman Jenkins said Nova Scotia's coal trade needs much more financial help if it is to get through the present period of mechanizing its production methods.

The convention passed a resolution urging Ottawa to adopt the long-sought national fuel policy the miners say would assure permanent markets and better living standards.

Mr. Jenkins said the federal government and Dominion coal board had not carried out their responsibilities to the industry.

Need Coal Policy

He said a Canadian coal policy was a natural outgrowth of the recent Carroll coal commission, which carried out a searching inquiry into the industry. Instead the only results had been appointment of the coal board, some increase in freight assistance and a boat to help mechanize the mines.

The debate brought out these statistics: Canadian mines produced about 16,000,000 tons of coal last year while United States imports were 34,500,000 tons. Ontario, which uses 16,000,000 tons a year, took only 75 tons of Nova Scotia coal and that for experimental use.

Duke of Edinburgh to See Eskimos, Gold, Uranium On '54 Visit to Far North

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—An adventurer's paradise—Eskimos, native Arctic surroundings, magnificent scenery unspoiled by civilization, flashy uranium, and gold being carved from the wilderness of rock, tundra and muskeg—lies in store for the Duke of Edinburgh when he visits the Canadian northland next summer. Much of this horizon-to-horizon expanse of lakes, bush, and waste he will see from an airplane.

Monday's announcement from Buckingham Palace of the Duke's proposed visit to Canada July 29 to Aug. 17, 1954, listed Yellowknife, N. Radnen and Coppermine as Northwest Territories itinerary.

Including Yellowknife, the territory's northern tour likely will start at Yellowknife, "the gold, fish and uranium city" of 3,000 population on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, 600 miles north of Edmonton. From there it is a 2-mile flight to the Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. "Consay" uranium town of Port Radium on Great Bear Lake. Another 2-mile hop north lies the tiny Eskimo settlement of Coppermine, 40 miles into the Arctic circle.

From the 33-year-old Duke lands Coppermine, likely by pontoon-equipped aircraft in Coronation Gulf, it is believed he will travel by first member of the Royal family to set foot inside the Arctic Circle.

What is he likely to see at these northern points?

Yellowknife

A trip down the shaft of a gold mine, where workings range from 500 to 2,000 feet underground; pouring of a gold brick probably also is in prospect.

Giant Yellowknife Gold Mines Ltd. Camlaird No. 4 producer creating the highest-quality gold of any major Dominion mine, is three miles from the centre of the picturesque town, situated on a big fish distinct old and new communities.

Giant Gold Brick

The Giant Yellowknife mine, with annual production value of about $4,500,000, poured its 1,000th gold brick about four months ago. Of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's Con mine, one mile from town, a gold brick weighs about 28 pounds and is a little bigger than an ordinary red building brick.

The two mines have a combined mining force of some 600 persons and the companies have erected a small townsite at the mine for some employees.

The new section of Yellowknife, modern in electric street lighting and a sewage disposal plant, is on sandy flats linked with an all-weather gravel landing strip. A mile to the east, on a rocky peninsula, is the "Old" town with its numerous shanties and tents of pioneer days. Here live most of Yellowknife's 200 Indians.

Covering most of the territory between Yellowknife and Port Radium is the Yellowknife game reserve which shelters caribou, ducks and geese. Catches of 20-pound lake trout are common.

Talbheid narrows.

Port Radium

This is a small, fairly isolated town of 350 persons all deriving their livelihood from Eldorado's uranium mine, one of Canada's top producers of the precious ore.

Land On Lake

In winter, aircraft land on the ice of Great Bear lake alongside the settlement, but Philip will have to touch down at Sawmill bay and travel the 50 miles north either by boat or helicopter.

While most of the surrounding country is rugged with steep 500-foot rocky bluffs falling into the lake, the settlement itself is on a point of land at the edge of the water. The annual ice breakup on the lake occurs in July, probably only a few weeks before Philip's arrival.

Coppermine

The Arctic coast will be ablaze with colorful pih-cushion-like wild flowers and there will be little or no evidence of snow or ice when Philip arrives at the 32-odd red and white frame buildings that make up Coppermine, a gathering centre for the area's 200 Eskimos and 27 white people.

Here, the Duke likely will be invited in for tea at the Hudson's Bay Co. trading post or at the Anglican and Roman Catholic missions. He probably will want to know about the work of the four men attached to the transport department's weather, signal and radio station and that of the two-man RCMP detachment.

Also awaiting his inspection will be the caribou-skin tents of some 30 Eskimos, the federal government's day school for Eskimo children and the health department's nursing station. He will also see about 100 Huskies tied up for the summer.

Little Benny's Note Book

I been late for dinner too mutch lately, and this afternoon I accidenly thought, Gosh, I wonder what time it is.

And I asked some man going past and he said, I think it must be 6 thirty.

Heck, six 30, I thought.

And I hurry up ran home, and pop was reeding his paper in the living room, and I said, Jimminies, pop, is dinner all over already?

For Pete's sake no, it's not even reddy yet, but take it easy, it wont be long now, pop said. It's just a little after six, he said, and I said, Heck, darn that darn guy.

What guy are you darning? POP SAID, AND I said, The darn guy that told me it was half passed 6 and made me run home all my mile when I could of walked another half an hour and then walked home easy. What do you know about a guy that got around like ing kids they're a half an hour late? I said.

A fiend like that ought to be put in a concentration camp on bread without butter, pop said. The first thing we know I'll have to take you to a syko annalist to get you straightened out. Would you know the guy if you saw him again? he said, and I said, Sure, I could even reckonize him with my eyes shut, just by his voice.

We'll go rite out and find the scoundrel and land him over to a pleeceman, pop said, and I said, Aw G, pop, he'll think we're crazy.

Then we'll just forget it, pop said, and I said, Well can I go out again a little while before dinner?

Definitely not, pop said, and just then ma called us back to the dining room, ending the subject.

Weather Favors Best Harvest In Many Years

TORONTO (CP) — Ideal weather the last few weeks has guaranteed one of the best harvests in many years, the Ontario agriculture department said today in its weekly farm report.

Fall plowing is general in most counties and many farmers already have silos filled. More fine weather will ensure early harvesting of potato, apple and corn crops.

Fall plowing in Grey county is one-third complete and fall wheat is showing a reasonable amount of top. Potato digging in Simcoe south is in full swing while red clover and flax is being cut in Wellington.

The weather has been favorable to soybean harvesting in Lambton and the sugar beet crop is also being cut. Middlesex county reports good progress in apple picking. Fall wheat is still being seeded in Prince Edward county.

Light frosts have hastened the grape harvest in Lincoln county but the yield is lower than in 1952. Most grapes have been marketed in Welland county.

Potato digging and grain threshing is prevalent in Cochrane south. Fall plowing is advanced in both Kenora and Manitoulin. Sudbury reports a good demand for dressed hogs.

Brothers 'Re-mited

TIMMINS (CP) — Two elderly brothers were re-united Monday at nearby Ansonville after 45 years' separation. Neither knew the other existed during that time.

John L. Vient, 87, of Worcester, Mass., met with his brother, Al Cummings, 73, of Ansonville, a victime of amnesia since a railroad accident in 1905. Vient thought his brother had been killed in the First World War.

Cummings did not know his real name was Vient until authorities checked while trying to find out his correct age for an old-age pension. They got in touch with John Vient at Worcester.

Legal steps are being taken to establish that Al Vient and Al Cummings are one and the same.

'Pee Wee' Reese, Dodger Captain, May Become Successor To Dressen

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OR DOES IT?

It just goes to show that in baseball, like any other sport, a matter of twenty-four hours or less is the difference between a champ and a chump, a hero and a "bum."

CHARLIE DRESSEN

Last night the world stopped for the faithful of Flatbush. The bistros were hushed. The tavern's television sets flashed nightly programs unseen by the nonexistent. The white collars of the schoopers were mottled with tear specks. Along Flatbush Avenue there was one topic of discussion. And it was not war, taxes, the supreme court baseball probe, moider, Marylin Munroe, or Campy's home run record.

For the faithful from Greenpoint to the battery will eat their Thanksgiving turkey without Dressen.

Baseball observers not only in New York rocked back on their haunches yesterday afternoon when the Dodger front office announced that it had severed association with Chuck Dressen. Dodger fandom realized that the beloved "Bums" in World Series bridesmaid apparel but never reached the ring stage, after two successive National League flags.

Along baseball row the nation over, it was expected that Dressen would return to the helm of the Dodger ship, with the salary check upped over that of last year. But Prexy Walter O'Malley, boss man of the Dodgers, stated simply that it was the club's policy not to engage a manager for more than a year at a time. Dressen wanted a three year contract, but, according to O'Malley the pair was unable to come to terms.

That was the reason given for the parting of the ways between the colorful Chuck and the Dodgers. But there are brows wrinkled along the baseball ruition. Could it be that some of the alleged managerial "beefs" puffed by Dressen in the recent World Series had something to do with the divorce?

Armchair and bleacher coaches disagreed with Chuck on more than one occasion when his strategy seemed off the beam. And only the fact that the Dodgers won the game, especially the first one when he ordered two bunts, at a critical moment (remember?), saved the "Bums" boss from more severe criticism.

But even these scarce lapses cannot take his record with the Dodgers away. It should be noted that Dressen after losing a 13½ game lead in the 1951 pennant race with the Giants and forfeiting the flag in a subsequent playoff series (the Bob Thompson episode), rallied the Bums the next two years, made a powerful machine out of them and went on to win the flag in decisive fashion. Not only that but he led the Dodgers to 35 records in setting up a mark of 105 victories in 1953.

Whatever team gets Chuck and it might be the nurse job with the new-born Baltimore Orioles, will get a canny mentor, one of whose many baseball forte is the gentle art of signal stealing.

As one baseball writer said a few months ago, "Any time Charlie wants to pick up a few thousand between jobs, he can get them on the strength of his being the most effective counterspy in the business." And Chuck does not disagree with the statement.

"Last year I called pitches and stole signs which accounted for some of the Dodgers' success, and the year before the Dodgers won the National League flag by four and one-half games, the inference is plain."

But sometimes the best of things boomerang. And that is what happened to the estimable Chuck. As a matter of fact he was hoist with his own signal-theft petard. It happened in the World Series of a year ago when the Bums were leading the Yankees two games to one.

Brooklyn moved Andy Pafko to third and Gil Hodges to second on a sacrifice. Dressen was coaching at third, the ole brain fairly humming. Joe Black came to bat and Chuck decided on the squeeze play. The count was one and one.

Dressen fidgeted nervously, going through a lot of wacky motions as both Hodges and Pafko watched for a signal. Dressen's hand flashed momentarily to this throat. Allie Reynolds, on the mound for the Yankees, saw the arm and the ball flashed to the plate. Down the basepath, hightailing it for home came Pafko. Then it happened. Reynolds' pitch was low and well outside. Black lunged for the ball-trying desperately to get a piece of it. It plunked into Yogi Berra's big mitt—and Pafko never had a chance.

To the Flatbush faithful it looked like a piece of enemy sabotage. It was just that. In passing the signal Dressen had overlooked one thing and that thing was a Yankee player named Billy Martin. Several years before the two had worn the same monkey suits on a Pacific Coast League team. Dressen was the manager, Billy an outfielder.

Martin recalls: "When I looked over at the coaching box and saw Charlie ere to his throat, I knew right away what was coming. It was the same old squeeze sign he used back in Oakland. I signalled Berra and Yogi relayed it to Reynolds. All Allie had to do was waste a pitch and that was that."

Secretary Dick Bridgman of the Trent Valley Hockey League, announced today that the loop is holding a re-organization meeting in the Belaven Recreation Hall on Sunday, October 25, starting at 2 p.m. All last year's entries are urged to send representatives while newcomers will be given a cordial welcome.

Indicates He Is Receptive To Post If Offered to Him, But Hopes 'Boss' Will Return

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—Charlie Dressen, still resting today he will not return as Brooklyn manager for anything less than a two-year term, may be succeeded by Dodger captain Pee Wee Reese.

Reese, a favorite of Brooklyn president Walter O'Malley and long regarded as a possible future successor to Dressen, indicated strongly he would be receptive to taking over the Dodger reins if they were offered him.

"I always said before that I wouldn't consider a manager's job while I still have some good playing years left," said the 34-year-old star shortstop. "But now this thing. . . . I don't know. Things look a little different now."

Reese Surprised

Reese expressed surprise at the failure to rehire Dressen as Dodger manager Wednesday and said he hoped Dressen would return next year.

"I never imagined anything like this would happen," he said. "I don't want to say anything right now that might be misconstrued. Charlie is a great manager and I hope he comes back next year. He did a wonderful job this year. As for myself, I will have to talk with the club before I can say anything. I certainly don't intend to contact them. They will get in touch with me if they want me."

Asked whether he was considering Reese as a possible successor to Dressen, O'Malley said:

"That's something we'll discuss in a week or so. Right now we're going to give Dressen a week to think it over."

Wanted 3-Year Contract

Dressen, flushed with two straight National League championships, has demanded a three-year contract for $50,000 a season. O'Malley countered with an offer of a one-year pact at an increase in salary from $35,000 to $42,500. Dressen attempted to compromise for a two-year contract at O'Malley's salary figures. He was turned down.

Dressen promised to give O'Malley his final answer before he leaves for his California home Monday.

"I realize other clubs are signing their managers to two and three-year contracts," said O'Malley. "It was their decision to make long term contracts. The Brooklyn club has paid more managers more money for not managing than any team in major league history. I was a stockholder in the club when we paid Casey Stengel, Burleigh Grimes and Leo Durocher for not managing the Dodgers. As long as I am the head of this organization, it will never happen again."

Dressen Bitter

Dressen, plainly bitter at what he considered unfair treatment, said he felt he deserved a long-term contract.

"Why should I sign for anything less than a two-year term?" he asked. "All my friends tell me I'm crazy to sign a one-year contract. . . . I win two straight pennants, something no other manager ever did in Brooklyn, and they want to give me one year, I'm not gonna do it."

Despite their failure to see eye to eye, O'Malley had some nice things to say of Dressen.

"Charlie has done a magnificent job for Brooklyn," he said. "I certainly don't blame him for our failure to beat the Yankees in the world series."

Boston Could Be Dark Horse In National Hockey League; Leafs Face Old Jinx Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, the giant-killers of last season's National Hockey League playoffs, have ambitions to become giants themselves this season.

The fact that the Bruins are the only unbeaten team in the NHL after a week of activity isn't too significant in itself, since they've played only once while everyone else has had two or three outings.

But the Bruins' debut last Sunday was a resounding 4-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens, the proud Stanley Cup holders who just barely outlasted the underdog Bostonians in the final last spring.

Same Old Bruins

The team that entertains Toronto Maple Leafs tonight is virtually the same tatterdemalion aggregation that barely sneaked into the playoffs last April and then ousted the first-place Detroit Red Wings in the semi-finals before bowing to the Canadiens.

The incomparable Milt Schmidt, with a sedate 35 in his years of service and general spark-plug duties, Thirty-three-year-old Sugar Jim Henry still guards the nets. Defencemen Bill Quackenbush and Hal Laycoe and penalty-killing forward Joe Klukay, all in their 30s, are still around.

The line of Fleming Mackell, Johnny Peirson and Eddie Sandford, which carried the mail in last year's Stanley Cup bid, accounted for two of the opening-night goals against Montreal. A newcomer worth watching is left-winger Doug Mohns, from the Memorial Cup champion Barrie Flyers, who fired a third tally Sunday.

The Leafs go into Boston with a 1-0-1 record in the books after the most fearsome jinxes in the NHL. Their record over the last few years shows few victories over the Bruins on their home grounds —just one in seven tries last season.

No Moore For Montreal

Meanwhile, Montreal, tied for league leadership with Detroit with two victories in three starts, entertains New York Rangers, who have split their first two games. The Canadiens will go without right-winger Dickie Moore, who probably won't play again before Christmas after suffering a shoulder separation at Boston.

Defenceman Bud MacPherson will make his first appearance of the season on the Moore's place.

The Rangers are short left-winger Nick Mickoski, who suffered a bruised hip as they beat Chicago Sunday and will be replaced by rookie Camille Henri, up from the junior Quebec Citadelles. Dean Prentice, another forward, still is recovering from a shoulder separation and will be out for two more weeks.

Bucceroni Wins Decision Over Jimmy Slade

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dan Bucceroni dumped Jimmy Slade for a nine-pound in fourth round and then shook off a vicious comeback by the New York Negro to win an unanimous 10-round decision Wednesday night.

Bucceroni, the Philadelphia butcher boy, weighed 189 to Slade's 177.

Both fighters entered the ring hopeful of gaining momentum in their bid for a crack at the heavyweight title. At ringside, waiting to referee a co-feature bout, was Rocky Marciano, the reigning heavyweight king.

Marciano withdrew as a referee in the televised bout after strong protests from his manager, Al Weill.

Weill said his fighter shouldn't be in there because Bucceroni is a definite title contender.

Instead Marciano refereed another recent Marciano victory, Riley of St. Louis and Bobby Why of Los Angeles.

In the main go the 26-year-old Slade was clipped with a rousing left and dumped with a follow-up right in his own corner in the fourth.

Turned partially on his back with his right leg twisted beneath him, Slade rolled over with his hand on the ropes at seven and pulled up by the time referee Dick Young reached nine.

Sande Won 39 Major Stakes In 1923 to Set World Record

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—It was in 1923 when Earl Sande, already stamped as one of the greatest jockeys of all time, fell in love with the daughter of Sam Hildreth, wife of the noted trainer.

"We were married that year," Sande said as he adjusted his equipment in the jockey's room at Belmont Park, where at the age of 54 the one time riding wizard is attempting another comeback.

Then followed the greatest of his successes on the racy track. In 1923 Sande's horses won 39 major stakes races, a record that never has been equalled.

The low-headed kid from Idaho had the pick of the horses—he was a hero of the golden 20s, along with such as Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth, Bobby Jones, Red Grange and Bill Tilden.

"My wife died in 1927 from a blood clot," said Sande, lowering his head for a moment.

Suffers Reverses

Perhaps the blow made him a bit careless in his riding. He doesn't like to talk about this, or some unfortunate business reverses. He was suspended in Maryland for interfering with another horse in a race.

Ill from dieting to hold down his weight in 1928, and discouraged, Sande took a trip to Europe.

"I thought I couldn't stand it for a while. I thought I would go crazy. And then on that trip I realized that the world was too big for my little town."

Back at Belmont and reinstated in 1930, after an unhappy experience training his own horses, "the handy guy" got a chance to ride the great Gallant Fox for William Woodward's Belair stud.

The Fox of Belair reeled off victory after victory, earned a record of more than $300,000, and Sande was on top of the world.

In 1931 he laid off again—weight troubles. He tried another comeback in 1932, but was forced to give up because of a bothersome appendix. That fall he went to work for Col. Maxwell Howard and trained the great Stagehand and, second only to the greatest doubles at one track in racing history, winning the Santa Anita Derby and Santa Anita Handicap.

And Again Disaster

Ten years later Sande's racing and breeding stable numbered more than 20 horses. Then another blow. In 1942 Jamaica stewards said they had found traces of a drug in the saliva test of Sande's horse, Big Stage.

A federal grand jury refused to indict Sande on charges of illegal possession of narcotics. The stewards explained the horse probably got the drug accidentally from an old bridle used during a previous workout. But Sande was suspended for 60 days.

"That killed me—60 days without action. When I got started again, the horses took to coughing, and it broke me."

He sold all but five horses now has only one left.

Sande Rides Again

Sande took a trip in the saddle again.

"I feel great, and this is giving me a great lift. I've had more fun in the last few days than in a long, long time. It will be a happy day when I can pay off some debts to some very good people who have strung along with me."

Sande said he couldn't ride as many horses a day as he used to, but "I can give a good account of myself with two or three a day."

'Homesick' Randy Turpin Unworried Over Outcome of Fight With Olson

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP)—Randy Turpin, 25, who trained for his native England, said Wednesday he was only a pound and a half over the welterweight limit for his 10 date with Bobo Olson for the world title.

"I'll have no trouble making the weight," he told reporters.

Asked why he had not boned up frequently as he did when training for his rematch with Sugar Ray Robinson two years ago, he replied:

"I just don't feel like a lot of boxing.

"We are doing it and jokes over the top too soon."

A contingent of British boxing writers who have followed his entire career were favorably impressed by his sharp answers and bright mental condition of the 27-year-old Negro. However, they didn't get a chance to see him in the ring for this was another of "vacation" days.

Turpin insisted he was not taking Olson lightly.

"I consider him as tough as Robinson," he said. "As far as I'm concerned everybody is a champion until proved otherwise."

Turpin tried to, but reporters said he was thinking of checking the whole thing for going home.

"I am not happy," he said. "But that isn't the fault of anyone but myself. The people here have done anything I ask. It's just that I feel a bit homesick."

Dressen Headed For Baltimore, Says Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — It may safely be put down that Chuck Dressen, the quitting czar of the best jobs in baseball unless he has reason to believe that another bear just as good or better is open to him. A lot of things have been said about the little guy, but no one has yet accused him of being dumb.

It is our strong guess, then, that the man who is spurning a one-year Brooklyn contract calling for $42,500 means to wind up managing the Baltimore Orioles for his old compadre, Bucky Harris. It all fits in too well.

Word has been kicking around for several days that the new Baltimore combine, having failed to land Frank Lane of the Chicago White Sox, has decided to sign Harris as its first general manager. It would be difficult to make a better choice.

Bucky's present job as pilot of the Washington Senators doubtless would last as long as owner Clark Griffith does, but Griff is an elderly man and, besides, Harris has for some time been anxious to take himself off the field and do his heavy thinking from a chair in the front office.

With Yankees.

He had succeeded to a post with the Yankees until Larry MacPhail talked him into returning to the beach, and he promptly drove the Bombers to a flag. But then MacPhail went out in a blaze of million-dollar glory and the Dodgers-owners, Mr. Webb and Dan Topping, gave Bucky the boot in favor of a fellow named Shotton.

Now the time looks right for the talented "try manager" to return to the executive end, and his first choice for a field lieutenant almost surely would be the peppery Dressen, who was one of his coaches when the two-year hitch with the Yanks. We have it on exceptionally good authority that this is the intended setup.

Of course, there is the little matter of the Orioles already having a perfectly good manager named Marty Marion, who has completed only half of a two-year contract. A member of the Baltimore group here said he didn't think, though, that there was very much option on Marty. At the new owners feeling that they need a "bigger name" at the helm.

Enos Slaughter raced from first base to home plate with the winning run, on a line drive single to the eighth inning, to give St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 win over Boston Red Sox in the deciding game of the 1946 world series. Harry Brecheen nailed down the victory seven days ago today by retiring the last three Boston batters in a row, while two were on base.

Claim Contracts Put Players In 'Slave Position'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers contesting restrictions as organized baseball told the United States Supreme Court Wednesday that baseball contracts put players in a position "equal to slavery."

They asked that the game be declared a commercial enterprise within the meaning of the country's anti-trust laws. This would clear the way for court tests of player contracts.

Lawyers for baseball replied that baseball is a sport, not a commercial enterprise, and that therefore the courts have no authority to look into contracts.

They said the contracts are an essential part of baseball and that the kind of contract now in force is necessary for the continued existence of the game.

Two days of argument were completed Wednesday before the court. A decision is not expected until spring.

The nine justices seemed particularly interested in the detailed discussion of the baseball "set-up" games, and for a time the argument settled down to a debate on the extent that baseball has moved into the field of advertising.

Lawyers Frederic A. Johnson and Seymour E. Martinson, representing a Boston minor league player and a minor league club-owner, contended and TV contracts give baseball owners 25 per cent of their income.

Raymond T. Jacobs, representing baseball, replied that radio and TV have no bearing on the playing of baseball.

Wolves Whip Mercurys 9-2

SUDBURY (CP)—Sudbury Wolves whipped Owen Sound Mercurys 9-2 in an exhibition hockey game here Wednesday night.

Goaler Bobby Gillson of the Mercurys had little chance on any goals that got by him. He made some spectacular saves on 47 other Sudbury shots.

Al Miller, in the Sudbury net, only had to handle 19 Owen Sound shots.

Frank King, Marcel Clements and Bish Beaudry, all newcomers from the Maritime Major League, each scored two goals for Sudbury. The Wolves' other marksmen were Vic-Joe Piche, Leonard Speck and Conrad Bonhomme.

Jerry Reid and Al Hoaking tallied for Owen Sound.

The Wolves rang up a 3-1 lead in the first period and fired four more past Gillson in a one-sided second period.

Biltmores Edge Barrie Flyers For First Win

BARRIE (CP)—It took Guelph Biltmores 23 seconds to break into the win column of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings, Wednesday night.

The Biltmores, on the short end from the start for the first two periods, tied the count 5-5 in the final 20 minutes to send the contest into overtime.

In the extra period they exploded for two goals in 23 seconds to defeat Barrie Flyers 7-6 here for their first victory in three starts.

Bob Attersley, high-scoring forward obtained by the Biltmores from Oshawa when the Generals suspended operations for this season, scored the winning goal for Guelph. Bob Forhan sailed the victory away with the final marker.

Jim Richardson, Guelph defenceman Smith, Johnny Martan and Ed McQueen scored for the Flyers.

Besides the goals by Attersley and Forhan, Bill Hicks and Jack Bowman got Biltmores' hits, with singles going to Ian Scott, Chick Chalmers and Bill Hicks.

The Biltmores play host to Queen Charlottes Friday. Other action that night will see Galt Black Hawks at Barrie and Hamilton Tigers at St. Catharines.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP)—Earl Sande, riding idol of the roaring-'20s who has returned to the saddle at the age of 54, brought home the first winner of his comeback campaign Wednesday.

After nine straight failures, the veteran "Iron" scored in the sixth race at Jamaica aboard a 16-1 shot, Mr. Jinks. Sande, in winning, he beat out the king of modern jockeys, Eddie Arcaro, who was aboard the odds-on favorite, Wil Be There.

After finishing the T. F. White filly to the winner's circle after the final starting race, Sande was all smiles.

"I wish everybody in the world could have had as I had right now," he said.

Sande, who won three Kentucky Derbies in his heyday and who was the leading rider of the fabulous golden era, brought Miss Wessie across the wire a head in front of Arcaro's mount, Piedmont Lass was third.

Richmond May Replace Baltimore In International

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—International League president Frank Shaughnessy announced Wednesday night he will make a "conditional recommendation" that the class-AAA circuit draft Richmond as a replacement for Baltimore.

The condition: That the city provide a suitable park for its team.

Shaughnessy conferred for several hours with mayor E. E. Hall and other city officials and then told reporters:

"I'd love to have Richmond in the International League."

He also gave his stamp of approval to Harry Selbold, the millionaire business man who has offered to operate a Richmond franchise in the IL if directors approve membership for the city.

Shaughnessy said Selbold has been invited to attend a meeting of IL directors in Montreal Sunday. The meeting has been called to discuss the indemnity the league will demand of the American League for the loss of Baltimore, new home of St. Louis Browns.

Costello May Join Black Hawks

GALT (CP) — Murray Costello may yet become a member of a National Hockey League team this year.

Costello, high-scoring forward with Toronto St. Michael's College Majors last year, was transferred to Galt Black Hawks of the OHA Senior A series this season. Galt cage Black Hawks of the NHL, who own rights to Costello, made the shift.

But Chicago have been hit by a spate of injuries and have sent Costello in a few games. Bob Wilson, eastern representative for Chicago, said Costello will play with the Hawks against Detroit Friday and Saturday and his showing in the two NHL games would determine whether or not he will be signed to a professional contract.

At half time, mayor Garnet Coulter will present a trophy to the RMC captain, Jim Palmer of Kingston. The trophy is donated by Winnipeg cadet services for competition at the college in a sport yet to be chosen.

Billy Vessels To Report To Draft Board

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimo's halfback sensation, Billy Vessels from Oklahoma, is scheduled to report to a United States Army draft board at Great Falls, Mont., for a pre-induction physical Nov. 27—one day before the Grey Cup final in Toronto.

Eskimo coach Darrel Royal, who accompanied Vessels to Great Falls Tuesday, returned to Edmonton to report that the second top scorer in the Western Provincial Football Union has continued to Oklahoma City to confer further with draft officials there about his status. Vessels is expected back Friday, the time by which action here next week-end.

Royal said Vessels went to Great Falls primarily to ask permission to take his physical there. His application was granted.

Presumably, if Eskimo enter the Grey Cup final, Vessels would take his physical Nov. 27 and then be flown east to Toronto for the classic the following day.

Sailing for Korea

On board the liner taking them to service in Korea are three members of the Canadian Scottish Regiment of the 2nd Battalion, the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada. As they were to leave they were informed of their new name. Previously they had been called the 2nd Canadian Highland Battalion. Left to right: Cpl. B. Martin, Victoria; Pte. J. Dunbar, Windsor, Ont., and Pte. J. Walker, St. Thomas, Ont. They take a last look at their old hat badge. (CP from National Defence).

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Jumping Jehosaphats think every good bridge hand leads but to a slam. Up they leap to tell partner about it, seldom counting to see if they actually have the tricks they promise.

A pair of hoppers were feeling the call of their wild bidding in the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠Q 10 6 4 2
♥A 6
♦K Q 4
♣8 4 3

WEST
♠J 9 8 7 3
♥9 8
♦J 6 3
♣K Q 7

EAST
♠K
♥7 5 2
♦10 9 7 5
♣6 5

SOUTH
♠A 5
♥K Q 10 4 3
♦A 6 2
♣A 10 2

They went at it like this:

South	North
1 H	2 S
3 H	5 H
7 H	Pass

The north hand may look pretty good to him, but it lacks the six tricks his immediate skip takeout is supposed to promise. Crediting it like he did at the very start, he should have slowed down after.

Not this baby, however. He was not going to let his partner sit there and stop at a game. He made a second jump, this time beyond a game. As if he had not already said too much.

Nor was south any slouch when it came to crowding his values to the limit and beyond. He was no virgin in the urging to extend himself at the least sign of strength in the pair.

Encouraged by the power north was waving at him, south made it his business to go to seven. He might have bid eight if the laws of bridge had permitted it. He was that kind of a huckleberry.

Many a bridge partnership is composed of such a pair. Both do the pushing. Each gives the other a shove as around and around they go and where they stop nobody knows.

Having put themselves in seven, do you know what? They made it. West's opening lead was the club king and dummy's side should have been punished. But I'll be doggoned if they didn't make it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When will you be seeing color TV in your living room?

A lucky few will get it next year. Most of us will have to wait until 1955 or later.

"We expect there will be between 50,000 and 75,000 color sets in operation by the end of 1954," says Barry Wood, color co-ordinator for NBC-TV.

"After that, it will be up to the manufacturers. There are 270 makers of sets in the U.S., and 70 tube manufacturers. If they go together on production, there's no telling how fast the sets could be turned out.

What will it cost you to convert to color?

Opinions vary. Wood reported that the current cost of a color set is between $800 and $1,000 for a 14-inch screen. However, CBS has announced that by 1955 it will be producing a color tube costing only 30 per cent more than the black-and-white tube.

The fact remains that we will have a considerable wait before we are dazzled by color on the home screen.

But the networks aren't waiting. CBS had a demonstration of its new color equipment in New York last week. The network has begun broadcasting color on its experimental basis since Sept. 10.

Wood told me some of NBC's activities in color.

The first color show will be Carmen on the NBC opera Oct. 31," he said. "After that, each of our shows will receive one color telecast during the season. In that way, the personnel on each show will be trained for color and will be ready for the conversion when it comes."

I asked him what was required for the switch to color.

"The cameras and other equipment have to be changed," he replied. "The lighting has to be retargeted; during color, more light is required. The actors use a lighter kind of makeup.

"As far as the sets and costumes are concerned, there is no limitation, except for artistic use of color. All colors must be tested so that they blend artistically and do not clash with the dramatic purpose.

"Color has meant a conversion for NBC personnel, he added. Executives and production workers were required to take color perception tests, the same as air force candidates.

"Out of 200 who took the test, only two were doubtful. Luckily, they were in capacities where it didn't matter," Wood said.

The color on TV is true, he explained, despite how you take home movies and the sky turns out to be bluer than it actually is!" Wood said. "That doesn't happen on TV. The blue is the exact color of the sky."

Does he foresee a time when all TV is in color?

"That's hard to say," TV may turn out to be like the movies. Some movies are in color, some aren't. The public doesn't seem to object to seeing black-and-white movies if they're good."

St. Mike's Bow To Campbellford By 12-11 Score

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Staging a powerful fourth quarter offensive the Campbellford High School entry in the senior rugby league came back from a 11-0 deficit to edge St. Mike's 12-11.

St. Mike's opened the scoring in the first quarter when Wayne Fox shot a pass to his left half, Massara, for the major but the convert was missed. Six more points were added in the second on a TD by O'Neil from another pass by Fox. Kelly booted the extra point.

No scoring took place in the third quarter although Campbellford marched to St. Mike's two yard line on a series of short passes by McFarlane. They were halted there and Fox kicked fit. Mike's out of trouble.

The final part of the game was a story of another color when Garvey intercepted a pass on St. Mike's 25 and carried it over only to follow with a convert. The play went from end to end of the field to the other until R. Barnum went through the line and on the end run with about one minute left to play. That tied the game but they were not satisfied with a tie so Garvey kicked the convert to win the game.

Garvey and McFarlane were the best for Campbellford while Fox was good on passing and kicking for St. Mike's.

Campbellford: Kelly, Grills, Jones, Calden, Puddefiat, Ellis, R. Barnum, McFarlane, Baker, B. Barnum, Gerrits, Garvey, Elliott, Holmes, Hendricks, Smith, Hagerman.

St. Mike's: Williams, Faley, Belanger, Trudeau, Masterson, Kelly, Schrieder, Fox, Massaro, Massara, Hawkins, Ryan, Brown, St. Denis, Black, Johnston, Johnson.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 16, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Extra caution urged, especially if making changes, quick decisions; handling tools, machinery; in railroading, mining, all hazardous activities. Sensible action always pays.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't indulge in despondency or discouragement. Head up, eyes ahead! Right thinking and right acting will get you there. Responsibilities will bring benefits, maybe not immediately, but soon.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Day calls for conservative action and control of the emotions. Maintain a steady pace, use keener judgment. This way you will achieve.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A pleasant disposition and a hopeful outlook your big aids this not-all-too-easy day. You may have to hustle a bit harder but the returns will be gratifying. Help others to success.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Caution stressed caution when handling tools, machinery, in travel, mining, all hazardous activities. Day is for mental work, alertness in grasping opportunity; lovers skilled mechanics and management.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Not an easy period if you seek unusual help or desire immediate benefits or gains from efforts. Never despair; keep right on at an intelligent pace and you'll profit, be happy.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A day for forethought, system, smart approach and management. It won't pay to procrastinate, or to rush on heedlessly. Investigate new undertakings before investing in them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Self-control, patience, kindliness are "musts" now. These assets aid one to judge better, see things in their true light. You can get ahead in schedule; perhaps try new things.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Much depends upon your requirements and how you manage matters generally. May not be a "smash hit" period but you can keep up with schedule and gain ground by doing your best.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A tendency to feel dissatisfied if everything doesn't go well. Toss these notions away and pitch in with fresh enthusiasm —even in usual routines—and you can win benefits.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Great care stressed if entering partnerships, starting new ventures, business. Day requires keen judgment, perhaps sound advice from those who know. Regular tasks should run smoothly.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your reaction to details will show how you measure up. Today's responsibilities are important to achievement. Be serene, confident, honest in dealings and you won't fail.

YOU BORN TODAY may have scientific inclinations. You have high ideals and many traits. All these will not avail you, however, unless you cultivate them. Your generous nature and even balance in judgment are great assets. You make able managers of institutions, good governors and politicians; are fearless in the defence of right; just, humane. Prayer, spiritual development will always stand by you. Birthdate, Noah Webster, lexicographer, journalist; Eugene O'Neill, dramatist.

DRILL HALL BURNS

CAMP BORDEN (CP) — Fire Wednesday destroyed the old Royal Canadian Army Service Corps drill hall at this big Canadian Army (Active) army base. Firemen saved an adjoining building used since the Second World War as a theatre. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Rene Beaudoin To Be Nominated As Speaker

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will nominate Lt. Rene Beaudoin, 61, as Speaker of the Commons for the next four years when the opening of Parliament Nov. 12. Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday after a cabinet meeting.

The prime minister also told reporters that William Robinson, 48, chairman of House committees for the last five years, will be nominated as deputy speaker.

The French-speaking Mr. Beaudoin, deputy speaker in the last Parliament and Liberal member for Vaudreuil-Soulanges, will replace Ross Macdonald, 62, of Brantford, appointed to the Senate last summer.

Senator Macdonald is expected to become the new government leader in the upper chamber.

Mr. St. Laurent said the cabinet had decided on recommendations for the government leadership and the speakership in the Senate but added he could not announce them until the recommendations had been approved by Governor-General Vincent Massey. He said announcements are expected today.

Chosen Senate Speaker

The expectation has been that Senate government leader W. McL. Robertson, 62, of Halifax will be the speaker in succession to Hon. Elie Beauregard, 69, of Quebec who served in that post for the last four years.

Senator Robertson's health has been regarded as a main reason for his switch from the onerous leadership job he has held since 1945. Before that, he was national president of the Liberal party.

The Beaudoin speakership in the Commons and the reported appointment of Senator Robertson follow the traditional pattern of alternating French-speaking and English-speaking presiding officers in Parliament's two houses.

In the Commons, Mr. Robinson, who sits for Simcoe East, has been the logical successor to Mr. Beaudoin as deputy speaker for the last few years. The committee chairman—who presides over the Commons when it sits in committee-of-the-whole to discuss legislation informally—customarily moves up to the No. 2 position.

Cardinal Leger Tells of Catholic Aim in Education

OTTAWA (CP)—His Eminence Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal said Wednesday night the field is practically limitless for lay service from the jurisdiction of not an inhibitive zone of thought and human-title.

"The Catholic aim in education," said the French-Language Education Association of Ontario, is to help form the "whole man" and to help him on the way to his true destiny.

"The purpose of man's existence is a pilgrimage towards the absolute and all educational work has to that goal. The first goal of Christian education was to create the soul of youth a sense of its true destiny.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking the last half of his first cigar, and ma said, Well, William, Maud News is through with her first year at last.

That sounds like bad news for the ex-annalits, pop said. How long he been sending her bills? he said, and ma said, 5 years.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, can be found the cause of her inaction, and finding the cause effects the cure. That's the whole principle of syko annalism. All her a baby daughter, sister for David and Paul.

Maud has had an unreasoning fear of deep water, or even shallow water. That's why she has never been able to learn to swim, or even to step into a shower bath with any confidence. But the sykoanalist delved into her past life all the way back to her remote childhood, and at last it came out, ma said.

What did, for Peet sake? Pop said, and ma said, The cause. It seems that when Maud was only a year old, her nerve dropped her into a tub of water while she was giving her a bath and reading a book at the same time, ma said.

Nobody can remember that far back, pop said, and ma said, Of course they cant, Maud finally got the information from an old letter that her mother had written to a frend of the family.

Yee gods, I can cure your inhibition free of charge in one session, pop said. You've got an unreasoning horror of my cigars, and I'll tell you why. When you were 3 years old as ashtray strewed ashes over your first party dress while you were on your way to a dancing lesson. So your feeling is really agenst ashes not, cigars at all. So now you'll beg me to make morning, noon and nite, just to enjoy your new found freedom, he said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

400 Miners Escape, Trapped In Mine By Shaft Fire

Men Will be Raised To Surface in Small Cage

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—More than 400 miners, trapped underground when a surface fire destroyed the elevator in the main shaft of the Bradford colliery near here, today groped their way to an emergency exit where they waited patiently for rescue.

The only means of bringing them to the surface is a small cage into which they will be hoisted one at a time. Mine officials estimated the rescue operation would take five or six hours.

The fire destroyed the winding-house at the top of the main shaft which contains equipment for hauling the elevator to the surface. A coal-laden cage being drawn up at the time hurtled to the bottom of the shaft, but no one was hurt.

The miners made their way to the foot of the small second shaft, where they huddled awaiting their turn at escape. The first group to reach the surface joined the anxious watchers:

"Everything's okay now."

Dresser Released To Go to Oakland In Coast League

BROOKLYN (AP)—Charlie Dressen was given his official release as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers today in order to become manager of the Oakland club in the Pacific Coast League in 1954.

Dressen led Oakland to a Pacific Coast League pennant in 1950 prior to taking over the reins of the Dodgers in 1951. Oakland is now affiliated with the Dodger farm system.

The announcement was made jointly by Dressen and E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, vice-president of the Brooklyn club.

Last Wednesday Dressen and the Dodgers split over the length of a new contract.

Dressen demanded a three-year agreement as a reward for leading the Dodgers to two straight National League pennants.

Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, refused to give him more than a one-year contract.

Not Discussed

The length of Dressen's contract in Oakland wasn't disclosed immediately but it is learned he had bought into the club.

"I am very happy about it," Dressen said.

Bavasi said the Dodgers also were glad that the situation had been worked out.

"It probably will be a couple of weeks before we have anything concrete on a new manager," Bavasi said.

Pewee Reese, veteran shortstop and coach of the Dodgers, is reported one of the top candidates. Other candidates: Walter Alston, Other candidates: Walter Alston, Clay Bryant, manager of St. Paul, Rich ays Dodger farm club.

Dressen replaces Augie Galan at Oakland.

Steady Market For Coal Coming To Provide Power

By DAL WARRINGTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TRURO, N. S. (CP)—A union official thinks electric power development may soon be providing a steady market for millions of tons of Maritime coal.

Stephen Delahanty, vice-president of district 26, United Mine Workers (CIO) of America, predicted in a union convention Thursday.

He said there's no reason Canada now supply about 600,000 tons yearly to steam-electric generating plants. If the 3,000,000 kilowatts of the power it could use, 3,000,000 tons would be needed.

Experts forecast that in 15 to 20 years a shortage of hydro power would require steam generation sufficient to double present coal consumption.

"The only trouble is," Mr. Delahanty said, "it is a long way off. Dead and a lot of our mines deep too by that time. The government should get off its high-horse and use our coal to develop the power we need now for new industries."

Want Miner On Board

The convention again urged the federal government to appoint a miner to the Dominion coal board. Delegates said all three present members are mine operators or coal importers with no special interest in mine workers' welfare.

U.S. Should Buy More from Canada CMA Leader Says

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— The United States should buy from Canada something nearer the amount Canada buys from the United States, John S. Whitelaw, assistant general manager of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said today.

Mr. Whitelaw prepared for the Malleable Founders Society, an American organization of iron and steel producers, the statement that in 1953 Canadians bought from the United States goods worth $2,000,000,000, the equivalent of $186 worth of U.S. merchandise for every Canadian man, woman and child.

Sells Less To U.S.

In the same period the United States bought from Canada goods worth $1,000,000,000, the equivalent of $73 for every American citizen.

Mr. Whitelaw said he feels that such lowering of your tariff barriers as might make it possible to bring these per capital figures somewhat closer together would not be met with favor by Congress but in the long-term interest of both countries?"

The Canadian attitude towards Canada, Mr. Whitelaw said, seemed to be based on "a little as possible, unless it is something that can be grown or made in the United States."

"Solemn covenants made by American representatives at Geneva in 1947 with respect to simplification of American customs procedures have yet to be fully implemented.

"The American government has imposed import quotas, embargos, prohibitions, restrictions, not forbidden by the Geneva agreement to all countries except those in difficulties—and I don't think the U. S. is in that class.'

EXPECT RUSSIA WILL REJECT BID FOR PARLEY

Kremlin Is Not Anxious For Talks at Any Level

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

MOSCOW (AP) — Diplomatic sources said today that they expect the Russians would accept an anticipated renewal of the Western bid for a Big Four conference to discuss reunification of Germany and an Austrian independence treaty.

As far as they could make out, these diplomats said, there still is a "deep freeze" on East-West relations in the Soviet Union. They think the Soviet press has particularly anxious to talk now at any level, particularly at the top, as Britain's Prime Minister Churchill has been suggesting.

The attitude of the Soviet press lately seems to bear out this feeling. Important with the idea of a Big Four meeting on Germany and Austria has been the press has been all but saying outright that the Soviet Union wants the next talks to cover all world relations.

This would involve Western acceptance of Communist China at the conference table and the discussion of such topics as the Communist settlement and Japanese rearmament.

Two Russian Suggestions

In a Sept. 29 reply to a previous Western note, the Soviets suggested two things:

1. A five-nation meeting of the United States, Britain, France, Russia and Communist China to discuss the lessening of "tensions in international relations."

2. A Big Four parley of the three Western powers and the Soviet Union on the German problem. The Austrian question, this note said, could be discussed through "regular diplomatic channels."

Diplomatic sources here expect the Western answer to this suggestion, probably prepared in London—to tie the proposals for a conference on Germany and Austria to a Western offer of some form of guarantee of Russian security from aggression.

Reception Doubtful

Western diplomats here expressed some skepticism about the reception for any Western anti-Communist plan. The long-standing diplomat said recently, if the Soviet Union has rejected any such pledge, it would be as a gift without paying any price.

Smile, said, would be discussed about the Soviet Union would take any offer of security either from the proposed European Defence Community or the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations, both of which the Russians have been frequently attacking as aggressive groupings "preparing for war against the USSR."

Fatally Shot Unloading Rifle

ENGLEHART, Ont. (CP)—Robert Smith, 28, was killed with his own rifle Thursday when a friend tried to show him how to unload it safely, police said.

Smith and a friend, Lorne Lee, was sitting in the back seat of a car, Provincial Police Constable Angus Brackett, in the front seat, was showing Lee how to unload the rifle when it discharged.

Englehart is about 100 miles north of North Bay.

Screaming South Korean Widows Break Up Service for War Dead

SEOUL (Reuters)—South Korean war widows and bereaved families today broke up a memorial service for Koreans dead by screaming insults at President Syngman Rhee and his wife.

Among the angry shouts were: "Give us back our husbands and sons. What sacrifices for Rhee? We do not want charity. We want our husbands and sons."

Rhee called a cabinet meeting immediately upon his return to the presidential palace from the disrupted service.

Army intelligence authorities began an immediate investigation. A spokesman said the demonstration was "hysterical insulting" to the president and his Austrian-born wife.

The widows were representatives from all parts of South Korea, and were brought specially to Seoul by the government for the ceremony.

The second riot broke out later today outside the Seoul city hall when a crowd estimated at 10,000 distributing six yards of cotton cloth to each widow.

One shouted: "What is this for? It is not even enough to wipe away our tears."

It was the first time bereaved families have staged a demonstration against the Rhee government since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The government took the widows to theatres and restaurants today, but many refused to eat.

French Commando Units Lahd In Drive on Red-Held Plateau

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters)—French forces, pressing their big offensive against Vietminh Communist rebels in two years, today landed commando units behind enemy lines in the second phase of a nutcracker operation.

Thursday land forces jumped off near Ninh Binh 50 miles south of here in a drive against 35,000 to 50,000 Vietminh believed massed on the central Viet Nam plateau.

Today's landings, carried out in a misty drizzle, were at Cape Rond, 90 miles south of Thanhhoa at the extreme southern tip of the Red River delta.

The shock troops swarmed onto the—red sandy beaches from hundreds of fishing junks. French warships stood offshore, but their guns were silent. The troops were hastily collected their equipment and pushed through flooded rice paddies toward the tree-clad foothills of the plateau.

Other French and Viet Nam units landed Thursday farther up the coast at Do Son and pressed inland in a diversionary operation.

Little Operation

French Army spokesmen said that so far little resistance had developed. The main force pushing south in the Ninh Binh area has crossed the Day, natural obstacle, a limestone ridge, and now is pressing against another hill position.

The Vietminh so far have failed to launch any counter-attack," a spokesman said.

With the Vietminh holding back, the attackers' main enemies were steamy heat and rugged terrain.

Tanks, guns, trucks and ambulances choked the red roads running from the coast to the battle area as the French and their Viet Nam Allies broke out from the beachhead they established last year in the fertile delta.

Three Objectives

Military sources here said the offensive had three aims:

1. To disorganize Vietminh rebel preparations for an autumn offensive against the Hanoi area.

2. To stop supplies reaching the rebels by sea from Communist China.

3. To try to destroy the crack Communist 308th and 320th divisions concentrated in the area.

Maurice Dejean, French commissioner general in Indo - China, said Thursday night France is committed to a "fight not talk" policy.

Armistice Body Calls Israel Aggressor as 46 Arabs Slain

JERUSALEM (AP)—The U. N.-sponsored mixed armistice commission has accused Israel of aggression in connection with an attack on the Jordanian village of Qibya in which 46 Arabs were reported killed and 15 wounded.

The commission on Thursday night, the commission censured the Tel Aviv administration and declared Israeli authorities should "take immediately the most vigorous measures to prevent a recurrence."

There was no immediate comment from the Israeli government.

In representative on the commission voted against the resolution. Both Israeli and Jordanian delegates charged a build-up of Israeli troops attacked the village, which is about 15 miles northwest of Jerusalem, Wednesday night.

Three national guardsmen returned the Israeli fire and the commission agreed with it.

UN observers were quoted as saying that the attack was thought to be retaliation for the killing of a Jewish woman and her "two children."

Arrest Four More Strikers As Tempers High at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Four more strikers were arrested struggling from the picket line before the Wilson Tool and Die plant here today as a double phalanx of police provided protection for several carloads of workers who crossed the plant.

The tempers flared and tension increased, several hundred spectators lined the street opposite the side-walk, taunted police and shouted to the strikers to overturn workers' cars.

At one time the mass of strikers broke through and dashed down Sherman avenue to the nearby railroad crossing where a passing freight train had halted several cars. Police dashed after them as they attempted to form a picket line across the avenue.

The strikers, members of local 520, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, today concentrated their pickets at the main gate, leaving almost unguarded the side gate through which workers had fought their way into the plant Thursday, with police protection.

Cars Egged

Cars carrying workers had all windows closed and screened. A little trouble, between the lines of police backing hard against the picket line.

The arrests were made after strikers resorted to police baiting tactics. One striker swung widely with his feet at an officer as police tried to drive the crowd back. He rushed to a waiting patrol wagon after a struggle and was bundled bodily.

During a public address system Ross Russell, regional organizer for UE appealed to the police to allow the strikers to picket at their "legitimate rights to speak and persuade workers to join."

By 8 o'clock the excitement had died down, and pickets from other plants were ordered to stand back to work.

Union sources this morning said that fewer workers got through the picket Thursday. Six cars passed the picket line.

British PoW Took Own Life On Voyage Home

SOTHAMPTON, Eng. (Reuters) A repatriated British prisoner-of-war who died during the homebound voyage of the "troubled" troopship Dunera from Korea committed suicide, army authorities said today.

L. Cpl. Kenneth Newby, 32, of the Gloucestershire Regiment, who was captured in Korea in 1951, was one of 200 former prisoners in the Dunera. He was found dead days ago with deep neck wounds and razors were found in the cabin he close by.

His comrades said Newby had been "extremely bad time" as a prisoner and once tried to escape. They said he secretly shaved off the last part of the return voyage.

Pte. Terence Cooper of Galway, Ireland, told reporters on the dock that conditions aboard the Dunera were "pretty bad" and "rather disillusioned us."

"Some men certainly were beaten up," O'Conner said. "This wasn't because of their Communist sympathies if they had them, but because they were known in the prison camps to have acted as informers."

Tribunal Reserves Decision On New Trial Appeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New York state's highest tribunal reserved decision Thursday on an appeal for a new trial for two Canadians sentenced to die for the holdup-slaying of a Buffalo jeweler.

Maurice O'Dell, 27, and Walter F. Griffin, 30, both of Hamilton, were sentenced last May 1 on first-degree murder charges in the shooting of Donald F. Hird in Hurd's store Dec. 9, 1952.

In his argument before the court of appeals Thursday, district attorney John F. Dwyer contended that O'Dell and Griffen had been given a fair trial and had been convicted properly.

The defendants' rights, he said, "were sufficiently safeguarded by the court."

Samuel S. McGovern, Griffen's lawyer, argued Wednesday that the defendants did not get a fair trial and that the jury failed to give fair consideration to the possibility of recommending life imprisonment.

F. Bartlett Sumner of Buffalo, O'Dell's lawyer, argued that the men were convicted improperly and that improper evidence was admitted.

UNIDENTIFIED NUDE GIRL FOUND STABBED TO DEATH

Believe Body Tossed From Car

IROQUOIS, Ont. (CP)—Police today sought to identify a nude brunette found dead in a roadside ditch Thursday.

The girl, about 17 or 18, had been stabbed to death and is believed to have been tossed from a car. Police said this morning they have no idea who she was.

Dale Hutts, 12-year-old farm boy, found the body while cycling to a store on an errand for his mother.

He spotted the dead girl lying in the ditch below a road skirting his father's farm. The ditch was half a mile east of Dixon's Corners, a hamlet eight miles north of this St. Lawrence river town and about 40 miles southwest of Cornwall.

Shortly after young Hutts found the body, he was joined by farmer William Hall, Morrisburg district farmer who was passing in a buggy. Hall and Hutts went on to Dixon's Corners and phoned police.

Inspector J. Keary, head of the Ontario provincial Police detachment at Cornwall, described the victim as a "very attractive" girl of slim build.

Stabbed and Shot

The bruised body had numerous stab wounds and was pierced by a bullet wound, police said.

Provincial officials said the girl's body was thrown into the ditch within an hour of the time it was discovered.

Residents of Dixon's Corners said they did not recognize the girl.

Mrs. Johnston, postmaster and operator of the village's general store, said no one in the community was missing anyone since Wednesday afternoon.

Inspector Thomas Wright was sent from the provincial police criminal investigation branch in Toronto to take charge of the investigation. Arrangements were made for Dr. I. Ray, Queen's university pathologist, to conduct a post-mortem examination.

Eisenhower Says Farm Program Ready to Launch

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Eisenhower said Thursday night his administration is ready to launch the final phase of a solidly-based national agricultural program that will protect both farmer and consumer.

The chief have that program ready for the consideration of Congress early next year," he said, "is the result of months of hard, exhaustive committee hearings before the Congress.

"The end result will be as sound and workable a thought-out farm program as practical experience, expert knowledge and good judgment can develop."

The president spoke before the 47th annual convention of delegates of the Future Farmers of America, a U. S. national farm boy organization.

Favors Price Support

"All of us know that the price support program is not a substitute for any future farm program," he told them.

Eisenhower had a breakfast meeting with governors of 12 drought-blistered states before taking off for a home town visit to Abilene, Kansas, where Friday-speaking tour will take him to Nebraska, Missouri and the northern edge of Mexico.

Whether present price supports will be continued after the December, 1954, expiration date, or whether they will be replaced by a flexible sliding scale, as some propose, Eisenhower declined to predict.

British PoW Comes Home From Korea To Find His Wife Has Turned Red

GLOUCESTER, England (AP)—Sgt. Donald Lee of the British army, who fought off 11 months of Red brain-washing in a Korean prison camp, came home this week to find his young wife had turned Communist.

Lee told reporters Thursday:

"After a quiet all-night chat, I think I've talked her out of it."

"I don't admit he's talked me out of my views," retorted 26-year-old Maureen Lee. "I don't feel so strongly about them now, though."

Mrs. Lee said she received a number of Communist books and pamphlets by mail from Korea after her husband was captured. Included were "photographs of tortured women" and alleged proof of American "warmongering."

"I knew the Americans, I was with them," said Lee. "They hate war as much as we do."

Lee said he was forced to undergo hours of Communist lectures in prison camp and "I got into trouble for writing rude answers in a question book they gave me."

North Korean PoW Armed With Clubs Mass For Escape

Thousands of Angry Captives Threaten to Try Break-Out

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Thousands of impassioned North Korean prisoners threatened to break out of compounds in the Korean neutral zone today, forcing cancellation of the second day of Red attempts to woo them back to Communism.

The Indian custodian command said it withdrew a battalion prepared to force 50 PoWs to hear Red interviewers after 2,000 armed North Koreans armed with clubs got set to break out of nearby compounds at the first sign of violence.

"Korean prisoners in all compounds of enclosure 76 were drawn up in neat rows with the rear rank of men stripped to the waist and ready with clubs to scale or break through the barbed wire fencing on signal," the Indian command said.

Risk Of Casualties

In another compound, the fence poles were being loosened to crash through the wire fencing," the statement said.

The Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission called off the scheduled explanations to 1,000 Red PoWs after Maj.-Gen. S. P. P. Thorat, the Indian commander, reported that to use force in such a situation "would undoubtedly result in heavy casualties."

Meanwhile, some official UN observers indicated they would prefer to call the prisoners back to their forcibly before Red explainers.

Switch To Clubs

For the time being, the Indians gave up trying to badge the freedom-loving Koreans from their stockades. The NNRC announced that 1,000 Chinese would be interviewed Saturday.

Thursday, the Indian command congratulated its troops on winning a battle of wills after 300 angry Chinese were persuaded to attend Red explanations. But today the battle went to the Communist-North Koreans this time.

"We've done all the appealing we can," said Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya.

He said the neutral nations repatriation commission, of which he is chairman, would consider how to enforce its rule that the PoWs' right to refuse Red briefings be respected. Indian Custodian Force troops, armed with clubs and bayonets, drew a circle around the compound where the Reds asked that Chinese PoWs be sent to Saturday's explanations, and broke up the threat of meeting less resistance.

"I firmly believe that if we had the Chinese today, they would have come quite easily," Thimayya told reporters.

It took seven hours Thursday to get the 50 North Koreans selected from their compounds for the operation. Thimayya explained. Prisoners did most of the talking and all but 10 refused to rejoin communism in a stinging rebuke to the Reds.

Thimayya said Maj.-Gen. S.P.P. Thorat, the Indian troop commander, would try to meet with the Red PoWs Saturday.

Thimayya said the commission next briefed the armies, before they off a decision on how to force the North Koreans from their dens.

Swaps Horses In Mid-Race, Ends Up Last

SOUTHWELL, Eng. (AP) — Jockey Mick Morrissey swapped horses in mid-race here on Thursday without ever touching the ground.

He left the starting gate in the Upton novices steeplechase aboard Koother, a 20-1 shot. He crossed the finish line—last —on Royal Student, the even money favorite.

It happened like this:

Royal Student crashed at the fifth fence throwing his rider, Tim Molony. Koother crashed into Royal Student, tossing Morrissey high in the air.

Morrissey came down just as Royal Student struggled to his feet—and landed in the saddle.

Weary horse and challenging rider finished the two-mile course in a walk.

C. (Buck,) Wood Instantly Killed On C.P.R. Tracks

Struck by a Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive as he was walking on the tracks at the west end of the railway bridge over the Moira River, Carleton Wallace "Buck" Wood, 39, of this city, was instantly killed about midnight Thursday night.

The mangled body was found lying on the tracks shortly after midnight by Clare Dingman, Front Street, who happened to be walking over the bridge. An inquest has been ordered, the preliminary hearing being held this morning before Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott. Proceedings were adjourned until Tuesday evening, October 20.

Wood was formerly a moulder at the Corbin Lock factory.

Crew members of the train which struck Wood did not see the man on the track did not stop.

The Canadian Pacific Railway bridge over the Moira in the south part of the city is used quite frequently by residents in that section of the city as a shortcut. At least one other person has been killed by a train while crossing the structure and two have been drowned in the river as they missed their step and fell into the water.

The late Mr. Wood was born 39 years ago, the son of the late Walter and Bessie Wood, and had resided in this community all his life. At the time of his death he was a resident of Redmerville.

Surviving are his wife, the former Aileen Graham; one daughter, Sharon; three brothers, Marriott Wood, of this city; Pte. Ted Wood of the Princess Pats, in Korea; Gunner Gerald Wood of the Artillery School, Picton, and two sisters, Mrs. Arnold (Ted ma) Bartlett, and Mrs. Thomas (Marion) Watt, both of this city.

Mr. Bell is now showing a movie film taken of the Moira Valley with the aid of the Moira Valley will be in full color and will run about 30 minutes.

Foremen's Club Retiring Member Is Honored

The Foreman's Club of the Corbin Lock Company honored one of Smith, at the Club Committee on Thursday evening. There were Arnold Bartlett, Chairman; Howard Hanton, plant superintendent, as an honored guest.

Harold Smith, started employment with the old Springer Lock Company 52 years ago and when the plant was taken over by the Corbin Lock Company he continued with the new firm and rose to the position of foreman. He was well liked by the management and the employees and he always helped to foster good relations between the two groups. High compliment was paid to Harold by the several speakers called and Mr. Bartlett on behalf of the foremen of the plant presented him with a club bag, suitably engraved.

Taken, completely by surprise, Mr. Smith thanked his fellow members of the club for the fine gesture and hoped the fine period of comradeship that was exhibited in the plant would continue for many years to come.

The remainder of the evening was turned over to the social committee and an excellent program was provided.

Only Shotguns, Bows and Arrows Will Be Allowed

Department of Lands and Forests regulations for 1953 have established an open season for deer hunting south of No. 7 Highway on the following dates: November 4, 5, 6 and 7. Only shotguns and bows and arrows will be permitted in this area.

Hunters are again reminded that repeating shotguns must have a plug fitted permanently in the magazine to permit the insertion of two cartridges only. This adjustment is required while hunting any bird or animal, and during any time while the gun is being carried or held in the open for the purpose of hunting.

When a gun is being transported during a period hunting is prohibited, regulations require that the gun be unloaded or uncased and at no time must a loaded gun be carried in a vehicle.

Tests Show MiG Jet Fighter Slower Than U.S. Sabre Jet

TOKYO (AP)—The Far East Air forces said today test flights of the Russian-built MiG-15 jet fighter plane flown by South Korea top deserting North Korean pilot showed it slower than the American F-86 Sabre that outfought it throughout the Korean fighting.

Gen. O. P. Weyland said specific tests of the MiG on Okinawa by American test pilots furnished the air force with "a great deal of valuable information" which will enable our pilots to devise tactics to better exploit the F-86 against the MiG if they ever have to fight again."

Maj.-Gen. Albert Boyd, who test-flew it, called the MiG a "light airplane with a big engine."

Pilots said it lacked automatic equipment and controls. As a result, they said, the pilot was kept busy with the airplane and his attention was diverted from alert flying.

The MiG, delivered into Allied hands last month, was built late in 1951 and is the latest model as those flown by the Reds over North Korea.

An air force release said: "In comparison to the F-86, some of the deficiencies of the MiG included lower maximum speed, insufficient stall warning and poor directional control. Heavier and less vitalling systems were poor and the cockpit is so small that a large man would have difficulty flying it."

'On Stage Canada' Peppy Show With Plenty of Fine Talent

The Kinmen Club's two-hour musical variety show, "On Stage Canada" opened to an audience of approximately 600 people in the Collegiate auditorium Thursday night. It will be presented again tonight.

The show, directed by Mabel Twelves of the Empire Producing Company of Kansas City, Mo., featured the dancing of the old time misstrel setting.

Some of Belleville's better businessmen were completely disguised as negro and men and their heavyweight sweethearts. As heavyhers Rastus, Rufus, Amos, Andy, Sophine, Aunt Jemima, Kingfish et al, they provided hilarious interludes between specially numbers with the standard minstrel jokes and stories.

The large cast featured the singing of 20 evening-gowned soubrettes and the precision and dancing of 24 chocorines, and the negro comedy line as a background for the specialty numbers that filled the revue.

Peppy Show

On the whole the show was a peppy review. While the cast seemed slow in picking up their lines Thursday night, the chief fault to be found with the production was the lack of rehearsal by some of his material.

Carrie Adams, the cast lacked in polish they made up for in enthusiasm. At times they seemed to be having more fun than the audience. Colorful costumes added to the color and tempo of the show.

Members ranged from classical ballet, through tap and soft shoe dancing to an old time hoedown by the square dancers, directed by the negro comedy line.

The specialty numbers were good and some of them outstanding.

Among the best in the show were the acrobatic dancing of 16-year-old Barbara Dimeut and dancing on roller skates of Gary Tremblay and Barbara Dimeut. Both studied and the harmonizing of the Quintones, Betty Brettingham, Joan Calves, Dalton Kaye and Jack Todds.

Carrie Adams, the top was the military precision dance, "Marching Along Together Soldier," by students from the Dorothy Dickey Studio and the dancing of Dickey herself.

Featured Singers

Featured singers included Bill Fraser, doing an Al Jolson imitation of "April Showers"; Miss Suzanne Calvers, president of the Keyette Club, "Anniversary Song"; Miss Sylvia Motley in an unusual performances of "I Believe", and Miss Moca Devolin singing "Snowy".

Judy McKnight bounced her way through a lively tap dancing version of "Sweet and Sassy", while costumed as a slave girl. The production number "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Honky Tonky" and "Dark Town Strutters' Ball."

Miss Barbara Thrasher, dressed as a Chinese princess, danced and twirled two batons to the intense delight of the audience, and Carolyn Wyatt, Miss Trinidad, Ion, of the Esther-Lillian Studio, executed a novel tap dancing act that succeeded in holding the audience's attention despite the late supper hour.

The Southern Belles sang "Home Sweet Home" with Margaret Sakay as soloist.

Spirited Singing

The cast gave some highspirited renditions of several standard numbers tuned and invited the audience to participate in many of them.

Throughout the show Miss Dimeut accompanied her students and Mrs. Gladys Reynolds provided the piano accompaniment for the Dorothy Dickey students.

Test the incomparable piano magic of Jimmie Conrad buoyed up the whole show with his singing who did not have a solo part in the production and the applause of the show's outstanding music with his inimitable stylings of backing up the solo performers.

Community Chest Campaign Will Be Extended

The Community Chest campaign, originally slated to end on Saturday, will be extended.

The campaign to date has netted $4,540 of its $38,000 objective. Only one of 500 canvassers have completed their returns.

Several reasons have been advanced for the lag in the campaign including a slow start in the collection of bills during the first week, the Templeton Mission in Belleville Arena that occupied time of many canvassers and drew hundreds of people from their homes during the evenings when the canvassers were most likely to call, and the Thanksgiving holiday.

Campaign officials still anticipate a good campaign despite the slow start. The business and industrial canvass has been completed and the house to house canvass is only partly complete. The special names division of the business canvass and the professional men's group have not as yet made their returns.

It is hoped that the drive for funds for the construction of a new wing for the Belleville General Hospital will conflict with the Community Chest efforts.

Barbershop Quartet News

Something of a record number of members, plus thirteen visitors, were on hand at St. Margaret's Anglican Church Wednesday evening for the regular bi-monthly meeting of Belleville's Chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. It is always gratifying to have visitors, various, being what it is and also a visitor is a potential member they are always welcome. Welcomes. Come again, fellows! Incidentally the club was pleasantly surprised when Bill Hall welcomed Jack Snyder and Art Morrison from Oshawa. As vice-president of Eastern Ontario area, Jack brought greetings and up-to-date news from headquarters, a duty that didn't deter either of them from joining in the evening's activities with obvious enjoyment.

In his opening address, the president, Syd Sillitoe, referred to the executive meeting held earlier in the evening, reporting on the progress being made with arrangements for the forthcoming "Ladies Appreciation Night," on November 7th, following which the evening's activities of quartet, chorus and novelty singing got under way and all cares and worries of the day were forgotten. Did you notice that the Quintones are helping the Kinsmen with their "On Stage Canada"? First aid, what?

BILLIARD EXPERT DIES

LANCING, England (AP)—Tom Reece, 80, who compiled the world billiards record of 499,135 points in 1907, died today.

After five weeks of play in 1907 Reece was still shooting without a miss. He then declared 499,135 points enough although, under rules of the game in that day, he could have played longer.

Farm Equipment Dealers Hold Picton Meeting

The Ontario Retail Farm Equipment Dealers' Association held a banquet at the Royal Hotel, Picton, on Wednesday evening. Representatives of farm equipment dealers were in attendance from Belleville and the surrounding district.

Chairman, Ernie Anderson, of Belleville, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Thomas J. Boyle, General Sales Manager of the George-White Company, London, Ont. Mr. Boyle, born in Scotland of Irish parents, stressed the importance of farmer-dealer-manufacturer relationship. Manufacturers are dependent on the dealer now more than ever. One thing is obvious, he said, the manufacturer is only as strong as the dealer is in his own community. He spoke of the problems of national advertising and dealer follow-up. Vast amounts of money are spent on this campaign by manufacturers and it is up to the dealer to increase his business by following-up the prospect who replies to the advertisements.

A survey was made recently in one U.S. state as to the reason farmers patronize one certain dealer, said Mr. Boyle, almost without exception the answer was given as — "dealer and services". The dealer must feel that the dealer with adequate equipment deserved a reasonable profit, not the dealer with inadequate equipment.

Conditions on the American market apply to the Canadian market also, continued Mr. Boyle. He quoted the president of a large farm implement organization in a speech made in Chicago earlier this year, in the States, who said that the future of farming in 1954 is more difficult to forecast today than in years past, but that a very great change in the farmer debt in the States, the money was there to buy, but the farmer was not a product prices had effect on equipment purchases. The farmer can buy, but the machines he had in use were not the ones he made. To enjoy a satisfactory level of sales the farmer must be offered machines that are the product of constant research and development. Farm equipment business is down 18 per cent in 1953 and a good as the dealer makes it. We have a tougher job ahead than in the past eight years."

A vote of thanks was tendered the speaker by Mr. Harold Myers.

Fur Harvest In Tweed Area Shows Increase

Some ides of the annual harvest of fur taken from the Tweed district of the Department of Lands and Forests is strikingly shown by 1952-53 trappers' returns.

Some 3345 trappers held licenses last year and with all but 21 returns received, it is evident that the yield is much greater than the previous season. A total of 5521 beaver was taken by trappers licensed and resident trappers, up 36 per cent over 1951-52. Even at that, trappers harvested only 62 per cent of the quota set by the department which is based on production and capacity of the area to maintain itself.

Nearly 90,000 muskrat were taken as compared to 77,662 in 1951-52 and mink showed an increase of 118 per cent to 780. Slight increases were also noted in otter, raccoon, weasel and fox.

The close co-operation which has been encouraged between trappers and the department is showing results in harvesting fur on a sound management basis. Trappers have representation through councils elected by themselves in each township in the district, and in meetings held in Tweed, they have an opportunity to air their views and discuss problems with department officials.

Britain to Bar Outsiders From Next Atomic Test

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — The press and outside observers will be barred from Britain's next "major" atomic explosion at Emu field in the South Australian desert, it was announced today.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies said after the visit Thursday of Woomera range that the next test was due "shortly."

No one in Australia beyond the proving ground will know another explosion has occurred, Menzies announces it—or someone sees the huge mushroom cloud boil up out of the desert.

It is known that scientists now must spend a number of days gathering data on Thursdays explosion.

Menzies told the House of Representatives today that he had not yet received a report on the A-bomb Thursday, but "you can be quite satisfied on the question of the safety of the people of Australia, and that there has been no danger."

Australia Lauded

Menzies received a congratulatory message today from Britain's Prime Minister Churchill on Australia's part in Thursday's test.

The cable said: "I have learned with keen interest that the test of this year's atomic tests has been carried through successfully. The assistance of the Australian government has been invaluable and success could not have been achieved without the closest collaboration. Please convey to them Thank you so much for your help."

Meanwhile, in Canberra today, Australian government ministers and Commonwealth military leaders were holding the biggest defence conference ever held in the nation's capital as the nation was filled Marshal Sir John Harding, chief of the British Imperial General Staff.

WORTHING, England (AP)—The death of Edith Margaret Watson, private secretary to five British prime ministers, was announced Thursday. She was in her 70s. Miss Watson became private secretary to Bonar Law in 1916 and accompanied him to 10 Downing street when he was named prime minister in 1922. She held a similar post later with Prime Ministers Stanley Baldwin, Ramsay MacDonald, Neville Chamberlain and Sir Winston Churchill.

NEW LAURELS FOR CHURCHILL

Bravo!

That is what we feel like shouting as we read that Sir Winston Churchill has been awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

That one word will adequately describe the reactions of most Canadians. It is a short word and a reasonably old word and Churchill himself is the authority for the statement that "the short words are the best, and the old words the best of all."

But, of course, when a word is spoken the inflection of the voice can give it various meanings. There may be some who will wrap their "Bravo" in a coat of amazement. How did a statesman, no matter how gifted, manage to win such an honor from the professional men of letters?

This brings up the question of what constitutes professionalism. If it is the ability to make a living at an occupation, Churchill is in the front ranks of the world's professional authors. His Second World War memoirs are believed to have yielded him $3,000,000.

But perhaps you may argue that this is a dividend on his statesmanship, rather than a tribute to the appeal of his prose. Some may argue that to be a professional a man must have served a lengthy apprenticeship. Churchill's first book was published 55 years ago, in 1898, and we told then have been 27 works, not including eight volumes of his wartime speeches, some of which in majesty of phrase and nobility of thought certainly deserve to rank as literature.

In the face of these facts it was somewhat amusing to read criticism of the Nobel Prize committee's choice by two French left-wing newspapers. One called Churchill, "chill."a statesman whose hobby is historical literature." As noted above, Churchill has been a fairly successful hobbyist.

The criticism of "Combat" was on a different plane. It did not concern itself with Churchill's claim to professional status as an author, but rather with the manner in which he has fulfilled his task as a historian. The memoirs, "Combat" maintained, were not an unprejudiced outline of the momentous events of the Second World War, rather, the views of a fighter who has not forgotten his grudges."

Nobody can deny that Churchill is a fighter, but he has never seemed a man to carry a grudge beyond the grave. Nor would we expect a man of his strong convictions to smother them in order to produce a chronological compilation of events so free of personal opinions as to escape the charge of men of one political or political thought. That the memoirs may be opinionated can hardly be said to detract from their value; indeed for many the expression of Churchill's opinions will be a large part of the merit of his work, for when future historians deal with the events of our age from the perspective provided by the passing of the years, the opinions of Churchill are most certainly among the material which they will have to weigh.

There probably never was such a thing as an unbiased record of events, a history uncolored by personal opinions, of its author or some other person or persons.

Recently we noted a definition of history as a fable which men had agreed to accept as the accurate record of past events. Noting how widely eye-witnesses of even the most unsophisticated accident will differ in their description of the event, it is possible to hope that any historian will ever achieve a truly accurate record of complex happenings, let alone correctly judge the motives of the men who manipulated these events.

Enough for such carping critics. As for the value of Churchill's memoirs as literature, rather than as history, surely the unanimity of judgment of the men chosen to award the Nobel Prize deserves to be preferred to that of any individual.

Once more—Bravo!

THE TEMPLETON MISSION

The Templeton Mission, recently concluded, was an event of great significance for thousands of persons in Belleville and the surrounding district. It was conducted C. B. Templeton and his wife, Constance, in two weeks drew more than 30,000 persons to their nightly services.

This is a tribute to the Templetons and to the people of this area.

The Ontario Intelligencer gave considerable space to the reporting of the various messages preached by Mr. Templeton and in all of them it was noted that he stressed the need for a return to Christ and to the moral values of Christian life.

At no time did he resort to the "hell fire and brimstone" emotional harangue of a certain class of evangelist; while his tone more by than help the cause of Christianity. His well-reasoned and carefully presented sermons could have nothing but a good effect if the principles he espoused are taken to heart by his listeners.

Also a feature of the Templeton Mission of material possessions and financial advancement, it is well for people to be reminded that these things, while good themselves, are merely a means to an end, and that the most important aspect of living is living in harmony with God's teachings so that in the next world we may live happily with Him in His Kingdom.

The Biblical admonition, "What doth it profiteth a man to gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his soul,"is an eternal verity that cannot be neglected or misinterpreted to coincide with popular prejudice.

To have this message reaffirmed in such a sensible manner is indeed worthy of all praise. That 30,000 people heard this message in the course of two weeks is reassuring.

WHAT WE CAN DO

We can't please everyone all the while,
But we ought to try.
And a smile will frequently win a smile
From the 'passer-by.

A word of cheer will answered be
With a word of cheer.
Impatience, if only met patiently,
Will disappear.

We can't please all storms
Better than wrath.
A warm heart many a cold heart warms
Along life's path.

We can't please all, as is often clear
And none will deny,
But we could please more as we labor here
If to please we'd try.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

October 16, 1923

John Street United Church celebrated its anniversary. A history of the founding of the congregation was given. It was in 1841 that certain members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here withdrew from that congregation and formed the Congregational Church. As this movement was a result of the differences within the Church of Scotland which occurred in 1843—three years prior to the formal plan of the separation here. The first meeting place of the new congregation was in a room over a store at the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Streets, where the post office building now stands and the first minister was the Rev. William Gregg, who later became a professor at Knox College and after had three charges to serve in the district. The first church was built; it was of frame construction and some years later it was demolished and a stone church built. It was burned and replaced by the present stone building to which has been added recently a church hall and Sunday School rooms. The Rev. Dr. Richard Jennings, who ministered in 1857 by the Rev. William McGaren. He remained a minister for ten years and then like his predecessor became a professor of Knox College. Following him numerous ministers served. John Street Church; the present minister, the Rev. Robert Hall. With the union of certain Protestant bodies some years ago, John Street Church became one of the United Churches of Canada and one of the charges of the oldest Free Presbyterian congregations in this part of the province. John Street Church assists greatly in foreign missionary work and Mrs. Mabel Clazie of this city, is its personal missionary to India and her maintenance and work is supported by the congregation of John Street Church congregation. At the services on Sunday the congregation sang hymns and eloquent sermons were delivered by the Rev. T. F. Martin, M.A., of Hamilton, the father of Mrs. Robert Hall, wife of the minister of the church. The musical portions of the services were plentiful and were of a high order under the direction of Miss Leona Riggs, the director of Music, and Mr. Alec Gordon, organist. The choir numbered in solo, duet and trio arrangements among the voices of Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, Miss Evelyn Heddick, Miss Leona Riggs and Mr. Harold Heard, were much enjoyed.

Make Pupils Dress the Part

(Chicago News)

Such positive virtues as "clothes make the man" (and certainly the woman) are nicely offset by equally positive convictions that "a man's a man for all that." How much beating dress may have in teen-age behavior can be debated until the paychiatrists run out of words and vouches.

The director of Jones Commercial High School in Chicago encourages teen to act as they look. Appoint, dress, and behave as gentlemen and shirts, this, at least, would not be very feminine. At Jones, where Chicago gets its future secretarial careers, they are required to dress the part. They are not encouraged al costume of so many teen-agers is unique.

He may have something when he says that if a teen-ager dresses like a gentleman he or she will begin with dignity. Of course this jeans and shirt habit is strictly a fad, with the great majority of young girls. Youth, contrary to the opinion of many parents, is a period of great conformity. Bu sloppy dress could indicate carelessness of mind.

The more ardent feminist may assert at this point that if boys can wear jeans, so can girls. The effect is not the same, and if it is, it ought not to be.

We are quite sure who would win a popularity contest between Hugh Finn and Little Audrey Hepburn. Husband, we can't recall their feminine equivalents. But we venture an opinion that the vote would be reversed.

World Stability Is Aim

Our own particular interest in U.S. tariff and import policies, as Mr. St. Laurent admitted, is not the only reason for advocating a more liberal and, what is equally important, a more consistent attitude. World stability depends greatly on it.

Muskrats Ruin Farm Pond

(By John Gould in the Christian Science Monitor)

—It's a peaceful Boy World back there on the farm from which he drank in joy . . .

But a muskrat would, and has, and I'm glad and sad of muskrats. There was a time I didn't love more than these aquatic rodents, except that I could tell one from a woodrat, and didn't know a great deal more about them now, but I can tell you that I've got a lot to learn.

Right now I'm fairly fortunate in the matter of muskrats. I live in a city, and I am considering the various things I might do to cope with the situation.

As I have already mentioned, I made me a back-yard farm now a number of years back, and it has purged to be one of the great attractions of the career. Even muskrats came to live with me as a result of that, but they were only one of many diverting things that happened.

Building a pond, according to the conservation and recreation boys in the government, is matter of using a bulldozer and then letting the whole fill up with water. Actually, that's the least of it, the real story comes in developing your pond. The pond proceeds from a muddy hole in the ground to a living, breathing, active menagerie of nature's wonders.

The first year merely have a banking pushed up around the hole, and then a dam across the low along the bottom, and the hope that the source of supply will occur, or will fill it ere long. The next year you can see it is filling, and the year after or six years you have witnessed a development as if you had a time-lapse camera. Then, one interlude of which will be told later, you have a muskrat.

The first year I didn't see much happen except the sprouting of cattails around the edge. I was pleased, because the supply of water would be ample, but I didn't give the firemen a place to draw from for their engines if we had the misfortune of requiring their services —and out in the country that is a real problem.

But it also gave me a place to fish and swim, and I have been to the pond for one end of the poultry range, we did away with waterfowling and shooting, and have only mallard ducks adjacent, and they are ornamental rather than game. I liked it first-rate. We had hylas in the pond the next spring, and at last that all manner of things happened.

I set out a couple of willows, thinking they would be nice, and the willowy and enhance the vista. One morning as I walked past, a stake-bed truck was backed down to the edge of the weeds. One day I discovered wriggly tadpoles and minnows, and then I found new kinds of grasses coming in. Another time I discovered a frog heron, and found green frogs had come. Later we found a bittern, a heron, and found a pair of mallard ducks had made a nest and hatched their young. They were all manner of fish came to see them. I've seen deer drinking and by tracks in the mud know that I've had a moose by night. Pheasants come in the fall, and one year we've had red-winged blackbirds nesting.

So, I think the best part of building yourself a country estate is the fun of watching it develop. They are areas of the cattails and the duck in the wilderness were really started in bygone times by beavers. The first tiny dams were built bigger, and in long centuries the silt behind them has made the bog and the ponds as natural affairs. But from a mountaintop, or an airplane, one can see the patterns of his early beaver dams, and what happened was merely a large-scale version of what happened right here in my dooryard when I pushed back a few yards of dirt.

But one day I had a muskrat, or as we assumed from later developments, a pair of muskrats, had come overland by some innate urge and had moved in. They dug a hole in the bank, dredging a channel so they could swim to it, and then began to build a huge mash to the brothers we'd see one of them swimming, usually with a mouthful of grass in his mouth. I inquired if muskrats would bother chickens and ducklings, and was assured by old-timers that they are vegetarians and would not.

After several seasons the muskrats have built themselves up into a political force and outvote everybody else. We have three families of muskrat neighbors, minding their own business and adding to the general effect of the pond.

But a while back I kind of felt, that something good wasn't as high as it should be. Then one day it rained, and I noticed that it didn't rise any. Then I found that the muskrats had tunneled from their home and have to settle for you know what name-by-pansby flood (?-Ed.).

We are newcomers to America (writes Mrs. St. N.), and have learned much about the ways of healthy living from your column. There is one thing that we do not like in America, and that is the bread, the cereal too, which we find almost unsealable. We grind wheat ourselves and eat it fresh, uncooked or only slightly cooked every morning, with berries or other fruit. Although it may seem a lot, or heavy for a little family (5) I bake all our bread myself, of the finest granulated wheat flour. I use a little corous-milk . . . Most Americans do not like bread they have to chew. They seem to like only that fluffy, white, ready-slice, stuff they buy in a store, which seems to me to consist of water, air and salt.

There's a thought that keep recurring, and it bothers me. When I was a boy on Chapel Street in Canadaigua mother baked several loaves of bread each week. Yet, occasionally we ran out of bread between bake days and had to get a loaf of store bought bread. What I'd like to know now is this: Why were these indulgences in store bread necessary? Was it laziness, lack of time, the store bread in those days being of the best just half-baked, and the flour was not so attractive, or so white as flour is today.

THAT GOOD OLD KANSAS WHEAT

When I was a youngster in Kansas (writes Mrs. C.D.K.) we took our wheat to the neighborhood mill

'smith, who ground it. We called it Graham and it was the basis for a delicious cereal I ever tasted. We tried and tried to get that same thing here (Cleveland) but in vain. Only once while in southern Ohio for a search of their Graham but it was nearly too fine, like flour, to be palatable.

We enjoy your column very much, although we only recently discovered it hidden away . . . We eat plain wheat for breakfast, wheat grown on our own farm in Indiana, and how we miss it when away from home and have to settle for you know what name-by-pansby food (?-Ed.).

Can you tell me what is the matter with wheat? Is it because the soil is exhausted, or is it because the seed is changed, or is it because the climate is changed? Or is it because the people are changed? Or is it because the people are changed? Or is it because the people are

Col. F. J. Lyle, director of the Trade and Industry Branch of the Planning and Development Department of the Province of Ontario, has been invited to speak to the representatives of Trenton's growing industrial group.

Other invitations have gone out to the British Trade Commissioner H. Oldham, and the United states Consul general George Hazeing.

A civic reception at 5.00 p.m. at the Trenton Country Club will precede the dinner.

Two Hurried Trips

The Fire Department made two hurried trips late yesterday, one to investigate a report about heavy smoke in the North Trenton district and the other to a fire on George Street.

The first call concerned the burning of a pile of corn husks and needed no attention. The other alarm was put in time to prevent serious trouble.

Children playing with matches in a makeshift hut beside Harry Johnson's place caused a fire that burned the playhouse down and threatened the Johnson residence. The children lost their headquarters and possibly special privileges when fathers learned the news.

Economic Records Not Likely to Be Broken in '54

TORONTO (CP)—Not many economic records will be broken in 1954, but neither is there likely to be serious trouble, Morgan Reid, economist and assistant vice-president, retail, of Simpsons-Sears, Limited, said Thursday night.

In an address prepared for the Engineering Institute, Mr. Reid added:

"Next year may see some unused capacity and unemployment of a spotty character, as some capital projects are completed and other industries' experience difficulties in selling their export surplus."

The Canadian economy was more resilient than ever.

Foresees Pause

"The coming year may be a pause to let the tremendous expansion which has been under way for 13 years."

Mr. Reid said there likely will be some decline in the price of the Canadian dollar in terms of the United States dollar, because of an unfavorable trade balance.

Export industries, particularly gold mining, would benefit.

"Don't think we are going bankrupt because we chalk up some large red figures in our balance of payments.

"To a large extent the size of our deficit ($365,000,000 in the first half of this year) is due to heavy requirements for machinery and equipment for our resource projects. We are actually making down-payments on the acquisition of a better standard of living in the future."

Canada will likely have wheat marketing problems, said Mr. Reid, but "there is no reason to suggest that any major downturn in our wheat exports is imminent."

Jetliner Standing Idle With No Buyers in Sight

OTTAWA (CP)—A controversy developed Thursday over the history of Canada's multi-million-dollar Avro Jetliner which still awaits production orders.

A British aircraft authority said the plane was built for Trans-Canada Air Lines, but that the crown-owned TCA cancelled its orders.

However, G. R. McGregor, TCA president, said that though TCA may have expressed an interest in buying the plane, there had been no formal contract.

The reason TCA didn't buy it was that the plane's "complexion" was completely altered by the time it was built by A. V. Roe of Canada Ltd., at Malton, Mr. McGregor said.

Costing about $10,000,000, the jetliner was completed some years ago, getting spectacular advance billing. But things didn't pan out as anticipated. Steps were taken to try to sell it in the United States, but no buyer materialized.

The jetliner now is standing idle at Malton with no buyers in sight.

Floods Cause Deaths of 23

LONDON (Reuters)—Cloudbursts and floods Thursday caused the deaths of 23 persons and blocked roads and flooded towns in Spain, Italy and France.

Twenty-two persons were killed when a bus crashed into a road obstruction caused by floods near San Sebastian, Spain.

The driver and four other passengers escaped, while the wrecked bus was carried away by the torrent.

An Italian airman was crushed to death by a falling wall near La Spezia, as violent cloudbursts drenched the northwest Italian coast. The Via Aurelia, main highway from the French border to Rome, was closed by four landslides.

In southern France, heavy rain flooded main roads, some in a depth of three feet.

Seven Soldiers From Picton Hurt in Crash

TRENTON (Special) — Seven soldiers stationed at the Picton gunnery school are in the RCAF hospital at Trenton following injuries received when the driver of the station wagon in which they were riding swerved to miss a car loaded with school children. The station wagon went into the ditch, struck a stone pile and overturned into a farmer's field.

Police stated the westbound station wagon was following the car loaded with school children when both had turned out to pass a truck. The car ahead slowed down and to avoid running into the back of the car the driver of the station wagon swerved his vehicle into the ditch. The accident occurred near the Crews' sideroad, one and a half miles east of Trenton.

The seven injured men were taken to hospital in two ambulances but their names and extent of their injuries were not learned.

A Friendly Girl

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Mary Meredith, 18, usually rode her bicycle to a grocery store after here at about the time Orville Bishop, 21, started for work in his car.

Although they didn't know each other, the two always waved good-morning greetings.

On the way home Thursday Mary pulled out from behind a wagon and crashed into Bishop's oncoming car. She was killed.

Said Bishop: "I didn't know her but she was a friendly girl and we always used to wave at each other."

Dr. Grenfell's Work In Labrador Topic At W.M.S. Meeting

The Thanksgiving meeting of the W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon in St. Andrew's Sunday School. The room was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers.

Mrs. J. G. Hornby took charge of the devotional period which followed a special thanksgiving service with responses by the members.

Mrs. J. Craig read the lesson and Mrs. Jim Ridden sang a lovely and appropriate solo "Thanks Be To God," accompanied by Mrs. E. Boyce.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Branscombe, who gave a most informative talk on the work of Dr. Grenfell. Probably too little is known of this great man and his gigantic work in Labrador. His mission in life was to bring healing of mind and body to those neglected people of the far north.

Gigantic Task

His task was gigantic but his faith was strong. He opened seven nursing stations and four hospitals. Orphanages were opened, and craft rooms for the culture and interest of the people. He also taught them to grow many vegetables.

The government gave a grant and many, many interested friends helped with finances, all was given voluntarily. "His mission is a tribute and a monument to one great man," Mrs. Branscombe said.

Mrs. Shier tendered a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Mrs. F. Weir was then called on to give a report of her two weeks' tour of the Peterboro district, with the training school. Mrs. Weir went as a layworker, with a unit of three. Other units are working east, west and north. This is a special drive for extra training to helpers and officials of youth departments.

Mrs. Weir poured tea, the table being set with a lace cloth, autumn flowers and yellow candles. Those assisting were, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. W. McKay, Mrs. J. Darvell and Mrs. Shier.

St. John's Guild Sponsors Pretty Autumn Tea, Bazaar

St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill was the setting yesterday afternoon for an interesting and attractive bazaar and tea sponsored by St. John's Guild when many friends and neighbors gathered to enjoy a social camaraderie and to select special gifts for some special friend.

The assembly room was prettily decorated with autumn flowers, rosy-colored petunias, golden calendulas and mums of various shades.

The tea table, which extended across one end, was tastefully appointed, with white damask, and centred by a pleasing arrangement of asters and daffodil blooms in shades of orange, red, pink and wine, surrounded by a fernleaf frill of intricate cutout, white, crepe paper.

The little guest tables, assembled in groups, were covered with snowwhite cloths, centred by rose bowls containing roses also shaded in red, yellow, cream and American Beauty.

Presiding at Tea Table

Those who presided at the tea table were Mrs. F. R. Clarke and Mrs. D. Leeming, while those who served included: Mrs. N. Seymour, Mrs. D. Brown, Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. D. Kaye. They were assisted by Mrs. Alec Brimer, Mrs. G. Brower, Mrs. E. Bedford, Mrs. W. Messer, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. Depew, Mrs. S. Price and Mrs. McFee.

The home cooking table as usual was replete with fine confections of autumn cookies, fruit, wafers, delicious cherry and pumpkin pies, chocolate cakes with rich chocolate icing topped with whole walnut meats; mouthwatering white cocoanut cakes heaped with shredded cocoanut; angel cake; Graham muffins; lemon pies, pickled beets, spiced butter, yellow and blue cup cakes, raspberry jam and vegetable pickles. Convening these were, Mrs. C. Gerow, Miss J. Redner, Mrs. Yarker.

The miscellaneous table, in charge of Mrs. H. Putman and Mrs. G. Corby, contained about everything from the proverbial pin to a needle. There were squashes both green and yellow variety; large spanish onions; bunch carrots, freshly pulled; sage, remblems of Christmas turkey, gleaming, red snow apples; canning of several varieties, creams, nut-topped, fudge, taffy, and several others, all nicely boxed and most tempting.

Lovely Handicraft

The fancy work table was a bower of lovely handicraft, and included articles made from baby pink and yellow face cloths, with crocheted edges and having loop-opening. There were for nylon stockings; daisy pot-holders in red and white; cobbler's aprons in green with huge, voluminous pockets for dust cloths, or what-you-will; yellow crocheted doilies, crocheted cushion top; pretty aprons in red and white gingham; others in mauve and yellow with cute little pansy pockets, baby clothes, knitted booties, sacque, and bonnet in pink, and some in white; a doll ornament with frothy dress of pink crepe paper, and many work-a-day aprons in colorful prints, to half and full designs. Blanket bags were there also—bouquets of everlasting flowers in colors of yellow, cream, and deep rose. Mrs. W. Collyer and Mrs. W. Meens were in charge of these.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. A. Bell and Mrs. Exley, who most graciously and efficiently performed their financial duties, as did the smiling receptionists, Mrs. Arthur Fage, and Mrs. R. Babcock.

An interesting bazaar and an attractive tea, nicely convened and most successful.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Keep It Running: The Other—Are They The Right Two?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently I read in your column the letter of a girl I believe is the same correspondent. That most lonesome soul, she gave as a telephone number, but I could not write it down because of the tears.

In her letter to you, she spoke of meeting a boy to whom she gave her telephone number, but said he didn't write it down, and since she has never heard from him, she is afraid he might have forgotten the number.

I will give you my address so that you can send it to her if you will be so kind.

W.F.

This situation is what you might call "a comedy of errors," because since the girl did not give her letter or address, I have no way of getting in touch with her to ask if you received it. If the woman was not, I would have to be very sure this was the case before passing on your address, because I do not believe in bringing strangers together through my columns and never do so.

If the boy wrote the letter which you refer to reading this, and can identify you, I will make an exception and give her your address, but of course I do not know whether I shall ever hear from her again or not. I'm afraid that's the best I can do for you.

Two Wise Young People Have Their Reward

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This letter is in regard to your recent column about a letter from a 19-year-old girl, in which she told how her boy friend decided it would be best for them not to go steady while he was in the service. This letter made me think others might like to hear my story.

I met my husband when I was 15 and a senior in high school. He was 18. For six months before he was shipped overseas, we saw each other quite often. When it was time for him to go, he told me that he wanted me to go out with other fellows and enjoy my last year in high school. All he wanted for himself was for me to think of him and write to him. This I did. In fact, we wrote nearly every day I got to other while he was away.

The year he was returned we were married, and have been happy for six years now. It was his unselfish attitude about our friendship that made me realize he was the one with whom I wanted to spend the rest of my life.

I do hope that the girl who wrote you that she and her boy friend had done as we did, will be as happy and successful, when she marries, as I was.

J.H.H.

I am very glad indeed to pass your letter on to other readers as further evidence that modern teenagers can, and do, make wise decisions about their future—far more often than many adults believe.

Every such letter as yours will, am sure, help other teen-agers to see the wisdom of waiting—especially in these troubled times when boys must go into service—until the boys come home again and they are able to tell whether or not theirs is the right kind of feeling for marriage. You know, emotional excitement is mistaken for love, and the result is a hasty marriage just before the boy goes away. Then, after he has gone, it isn't long before the emotional excitement fades, and the teen-ager is bored by having her freedom restricted because she is a wife with an absent husband. And so, presently, another "Dear John" letter or its way to make some young man bitterly unhappy.

Thank you for contributing your bit to my campaign against that kind of hazard.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

I do wish I could see you in person. . . your column is so helpful. . . I'm a young mother of a 2 1-2-year-old daughter? We're building our own home. The home isn't finished yet but we've moved in and are enjoying it to good words. . . Breakfasts are standard: canned fruit juice, big bowl of rolled oats, coffee for father, small bowl rolled oats, boiled egg, and toast for daughter and me. . . Bill takes his lunch and also standard: he likes lots of cheese, and tomatoes, cookies and fruit. The boys buy milk at the office by Erin and I have great variety of things for lunch and I try to make it nutritious. . . For dinner we have anything from spaghetti to meat balls and roasts. . . anything goes because it is the only meal I can cook. . . I'm a failure at. . . we drink two quarts of milk per day. . . I'm using milk powder for cooking. Does that give you any sort of picture? How does canned orange juice compare to fresh squeezed for vitamins? We plan having a big garden next year and buying a canning machine. The garden this year is just letters. That's all. . . Carrots. . . vegetables never tasted so good. When should black currant jam also be planted? . . . I hope you enjoyed your holidays. . . we went camping for a week in Algonquin.—Mary H. W.

Answer:

I have left out parts of your letter, but don't think for a minute that I did not appreciate all the pleasant remarks.

It is impractical for me to outline what your food costs should be since I would have to shop in your district. I am mailing you pamphlets on budgeting, which will be a good guide, and lists of others you can write for. Your garden will be a great help, both from an economical and nutritional angle. The Vitamin C content of fresh orange and grapefruit vs. canned orange and grapefruit juices gives fresh orange and grapefruit the best consideration. It is used at once. However since you would use more of the canned juices and they are more convenient—and less expensive if you would be likelihood consume the same amount of vitamins.

On the whole your menu plans sound better-than-average from a nutritional standpoint. Be sure to use your fruits and vegetables as fresh as possible. Cook your vegetables quickly in as little water as possible and use vegetable liquids in soups, gravies and sauces. You didn't tell them. . . a grower tells me that black currant bushes should be planted this fall. Your garden is finished in the fall—about the last week in October. . . . Whether you take a chance on them being winter-killed, but if they do survive the bushes are good. If planted in the spring you do not take this chance. I planted mine in the spring, knowing nothing whatever about it. It is now ten years old and we picked 14 quarts from it this summer. Good luck on all your new ventures.

Question:

I am a newcomer . . . I just come up cooking hints and recipes . . . what makes pastry stick-pie plates . . . I do flour the pie plates a little . . . I know fruit pies might cause this trouble but I am. . . referring to pumpkin pies. . . Is there a dummy way and personal chat.—Irene.

Answer:

Don't flour your pie plate. Be sure to use 1-3 part shortening or lard to 1 part flour—that is if you use 1 cup flour you use into it 1 1 cup shortening or lard. . . use glass pie plates, and this prevents a crust of old dog. Fahr. for first ten minutes, and the pastry never sticks. Thanks for your friendly letter.

Question:

. . . you had an article on fresh fruit desserts. Do you freeze a can of pears or peaches as is, without opening it—that is juice and all. Also in canning fruits for freezing would it be advisable to combine bananas or pineapple. Would you have the recipe for whole wheat bread made from quick-rising yeast.—Mrs. Stanley R.

Answer:

When fruit is commercially canned there is supposed to be a 2-16 inch headspace which would allow fruit in cans to be frozen without breaking open the side seam. Yes, I do this, but you could spring the side seam if can was not filled exactly right. The advantage of freezing fruits in the tin is that vitamins are "contained." I will not do any harm to try it—if the seam breaks use the fruit up. Yes, you can combine pineapple with your frozen fruit mixtures, but not bananas. I am mailing whole wheat bread recipe.

Thank You Note For Flowers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Today is my sixth day home from the hospital, where I had a serious operation. I received many beautiful flowers, and while I thanked some of the senders when they came to see me in the hospital, there are still quit a few friends whom I have not thanked. I would like to write a few thank-you notes each day, and I would be so grateful if you would give me some idea —a "sample" perhaps—of what I should write.

Katherine

Perhaps something like this:

Dear Miss Katherine:

What a kind and thoughtful friend you are . . . always! The lovely little plant you sent me is so like me at the hospital were so beautiful. Everyone was full of expressions of friendliness and cheer. They made my heart glad and my heart full, and with their radiant color and their gay spirit. Thank you, Joan dear, for them and for your dear thought.

I'm at home now, and how I wish you'd come to see me some day when it's convenient for you!

Dearest love to you, deepest thanks,

Devotedly.

(If you don't recall what kind of flowers, call them "blossoms" or "posies.")

Serving Tomato Juice Or Fruit Juice

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister, who was married last year, now lives in a little formal New England community and entertains about her lately. She had her maid serve the chilled tomato juice, with fruit juice as an alternative, in the living room, before luncheon. When I said later that I had always seen these juices served at table, rather than in the living room, she assured me that her service is the custom where she now lives, and indeed it really was supposed to be the correct custom everywhere. Is this sister of mine right about this, or is she just "putting on airs"?

Julie M.

Your sister is right about this service. Many hostesses do abide by this dictum which really last too important) that tomato juice or other vegetable juice, or fruit juice, when served at luncheon or dinner, should be served in the living room before the meal—rather than as a first course at the dining table. Just as chilled tomato juice or a fruit juice would be served for non-drinkers when cocktails are served in the living room before luncheon or dinner.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

Blackheads And Pimples

When a teen-age daughter laments because her complexion shows black-lipped pores and tiny eruptions, let no mother be casual about it or tell the little girl that these blemishes will disappear as she gets older. That is no comfort to her and it may not be the truth. An unsightly complexion is a tremendous handicap for youth to have. It interferes with social activities, and makes for self-consciousness. Mothers who have a child's happiness in mind will also watch for symptoms of acne—no minor matter, since the mops deeply established infection. Acne is a serious problem that needs prolonged and difficult treatment.

Physicians who specialize in diseases of the skill and accept no knowledge that even mild cases of acne can prove stubborn. The very first step, of course, is to have professional attention as soon as the first pustules appear. It pays in the long run. A few visits to the doctor's office may be all that is necessary.

He will insist upon a restricted diet, which is an important part of the treatment. As fats stimulate the sebaceous glands, they must be fairly fat free—no butter, fried foods or pastries. Chocolate is absolutely forbidden.

If blackheads alone are present, home care may be effective. At bedtime there should be a thorough face washing. Instead of using soap, it is a wise idea to use shaving soap. Rub it into the flesh until it lathers, using circular motions of the finger tips. Work diligently on the cheeks and nose, the areas where atmospheric dust is apt to collect. Pick up the flesh and pinch it lightly to stimulate circulation.

Rinse away the lather with warm water. Lay on hot moist compresses, repeating several times. The purpose is to soften the wax plugs in the pores. After a gentle drying, apply a basic acid solution—one teaspoonful of powdered boric acid dissolved in a cup of warm water. Put it on with pledgets of cotton and let it dry.

Oily cosmetics should not be used while the condition exists unless the skin is chapped, and then they should remain on for only a short time.

Never press out the black points with the finger tips; there is a possibility of causing a scar to form. Get a comedone extractor at the drug store and use it gently.

Gambling Casino Special Officer Slain by Youth

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A gambling casino's special officer was fatally shot Thursday night, police reported, by a youth who first seriously wounded a casino waitress because she would-not sit down at a table with him.

Special officer Clarence Thomas, 47, died in a hospital an hour after receiving a .45 calibre pistol wound in the head.

Dale Lee Sollars, 21, whose address was not immediately determined, was booked at the city jail on suspicion of attempted murder.

Police said he asked Mrs. Jean McCall, 22, the attractive waitress, to sit down at the table with him. When she refused, he started firing. She was wounded in an arm and the back.

Officer Thomas fired once before being shot.

Randolph Has Britain's Press Barons on Hook

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Randolph's going to make a speech!

These are fighting words today in Fleet street. Cheeky kiddo of Churchill the British prime minister on the hook.

He's so nasty to the press they're calling him Randolph the rude-nosed rascal.

Randolph Frederick Edward Spencer Churchill, only son of Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill, is definitely front-page copy. A single speech did the trick.

At a luncheon last month to celebrate the launching of a book about a London newspaper, the stocky Randolph rose and smote the assembled guests.

He criticized the press in general and certain newspaper lords in particular. He blasted the fourth estate for "cataracts" of pornography. The papers puffed it, in whole or in part. One commentator said the prevalent sin had become a national figure overnight.

Reproaches The Times

Randolph rose again in Manchester Oct. 7, saying much the same things, only more so. He named names. He reproached Sir William Haley, editor of the Times, for not publishing a report of his London speech. (The Times didn't cover his second speech, either.)

Soon after this second attack, Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard announced that the 42-year-old Churchill had been hired as the paper's guest television critic. The Recorder, a weekly, signed him up to a regular stint writing his day-to-day performance of the national press.

There was irony in the situation since Churchill, a writer who depends largely on newspapers for his living, had talked himself into two newspaper jobs of criticizing—the newspapers.

Hannen Swaffer, one of Fleet street's most venerable figures, recalled in his column Thursday that Randolph used to criticize Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, the man who now has hired him. Swaffer said nearly a year ago the prime minister's son blasted Beaverbrook for being ready to employ "Socialists and cryptocommunists."

Man Acquitted Of Manslaughter

PEMBROKE (CP)—Kenneth Wilson, 31-year-old steamshovel operator, was acquitted Thursday of a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death last May 7 of his wife, Lila.

A jury returned a verdict of not guilty at the end of a two-day Supreme Court trial.

Wilson, whose home is at Sandy Hook near Arnprior, 35 miles west of Ottawa, had originally been charged with murder after his 26-year-old wife died from injuries suffered following a drinking party the night of May 2. A grand jury reduced the charge to manslaughter.

Wilson testified Thursday that he had found his wife lying on a couch with another man, Leo Piche, during the party. He fought with Piche and then picked up his wife. Wilson said he did not remember what happened after that. Other witnesses said they saw him beating her.

Defence counsel James A. Mahoney, in his address to the jury, asked it to bear in mind the testimony of pathologist Dr. W. D. Hay who had said that an operation within 24 hours might have saved Mrs. Wilson's life. She died of a ruptured bladder and other injuries.

Sunday School Lesson:

New Men For a New Age

By ROY L. SMITH

The world still stands, unconprehending, in the presence of the new atomic age which is rushing in upon us. The dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, and tests on the hydrogen bomb, have a moral and social significance the magnitude of which no one has yet begun to grasp.

Occasionally there comes from some laboratory a grim warning as to what may happen to old patterns of life, and old social relations when the full tide of atomic energy is released. For most of this news the average layman is utterly unprepared. He cannot imagine the upheaval of life that is to follow the introduction of vast power units so small that they can be carried in a man's vest pockets.

Giants In the Earth

We have been accustomed to talking about the giants and the dinosaurs which once peopled this earth. Now we must begin thinking about the managers of incredible powers who are going to be in control of this earth within the next 50 years.

The introduction of steam and then electricity made today's man the commander of at least a powerful of today will be dwarfed 100 times the power at the disposal of his grandfather. But when atomic energy has been released for commercial use, the old into insignificance. At least one competent authority has said that whereas our grandfathers had one horsepower at hand to lift his loads, and today's individual has 100 horsepower available, the citizen of 50 years from now will have 10,000 horsepower ready to do his bidding—perhaps even 100,000 horsepower.

Implies Responsibility

It is one of the basic laws of life that power implies responsibility. The head of a state, because of the power at his disposal, lives under a load of responsibility unknown to any private citizen. The individual with 10,000 horsepower at his beck and call will stagger under an obligation that his grandfather never knew.

Unless we are to make a terrible tragedy out of an amazing opportunity, the citizen of tomorrow must be a different man than the citizen of today.

We Need a Saviour

The question of the redemption of the race is no longer a matter of theology. It has become a problem of the utmost seriousness to the sociologist, the politician, the industrialist, and the plain citizen.

Are we to trust atomic engines in the hands of gangsters, corruptionists, bribe-givers and bribe-takers, monopolists, exploiters, debauchers, demagogues, and charlatans?

Hope Lies With Religion

While it is true that the problem is bigger than mere theology, it is also a fact that the hope of the world rests with religion, for it is only a religious faith and a religious conviction which can change the fundamental character of men and make them capable of handling those vast powers which will be thrust into their hands.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 18: "New Men" are: Matthew 5:13-16; John 14:12-14; I Corinthians 3:6-9; II Corinthians 5:14-20; Ephesians 4:32; Hebrews 13:1-2a; James 1:22; 3:13-18.

The Christians of this age must be salt, light and hope. If they cannot furnish it, then there will come, and humanity will commit racial suicide.

All that is still for the redemption of the church from its narrow and petty feuds, its complacency, and its detachment from the practical problems of life.

Being sail in a day like this is desperately serious business.

TORONTO (CP)—Claiming $100,000 damages for libel against the Globe Printing Co., mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto Thursday entered a writ of summons at Osgoode Hall through his solicitors. The libel complained of is said to have been published Sept. 18 in an editorial in the Globe and Mail.

Program Success Needs Proper Type of Guard

GUELPH (CP) — A newspaper man who used to work for the reform institutions department said Thursday no reform program can be a success without the proper type of prison guard.

Frank Turner, news editor of the Guelph Mercury, said "the backbone of the staff of the reformatory here is the kind of custodial officer who takes a sincere interest in trying to carry out a plan of reformation."

However, he said in a submission to the legislature's committee on reform institutions, wages are too low to attract men of this calibre. As a result, the efforts of conscientious officers were "continually hampered by inefficient fly-by-night guards."

SCHOONER SOLD

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — Another of Lunenberg's famed fishing schooners, the Marguerite R. Tanner, has been sold to Newfoundland interests to go into the prosaic freighting trade. The vessel took farm produce from here to Newfoundland and will carry coal from Nova Scotia to Newfoundland ports.

Nine Are Killed In Train Crash

LYON, France (Reuters) — Nine persons were killed and 14 seriously injured today when a speeding locomotive crashed into a crowded passenger train standing in a station near here.

A baby was found unharmed in the arms of his dead mother. The bodies of two men and four women were recovered from the debris and three other victims died in hospital.

The locomotive turned turtle after hurling three passenger cars off the track.

HYDRO MAN ELECTROCUTED

STRATFORD (CP) — Gorge R. Finley, 41, rural hydro commission worker, was electrocuted Thursday while working near Londesboro, 40 miles northwest of here.

BUILDING HIGHER

STILL GOING STRONG

ALTAMONT, Man. (CP) — Paul Bourrier brought the final load of grain to the new grain elevator here recently. Back in 1901, Paul had delivered the first grain load to the federal elevator which the new structure replaces.

Accused Guilty Of Detaining Child Under 14

WINNIPEG (CP)—George Prevost, who chose a five-year-old girl as a travelling companion on a trip ended by his arrest, was convicted Thursday in county court on a charge of detaining a child under 14.

Chief Justice E. K. Williams remanded the 55-year-old Churchill, Man., laborer for sentence at the end of the assizes.

The all-male jury acquitted Prevost of taking a child under 14 years from the possession of her parents and another charge of taking a child under the age of 16 from the possession of her parents. The jury recommended mercy.

The child, Linda Verfaille, who testified at Prevost's trial, was the object of a country-wide search last June after she and Prevost failed to return from a visit to a farm near Winnipeg. Police arrested Prevost in Vancouver.

The child's mother said Prevost had been living at the Verfaille home and was fond of children. He asked permission in May to take Linda for a holiday on a farm but outside the city. The couple eventually reported Linda missing June 12. The man and child were together for 21 days.

Mailing Deadlines For Christmas Mail Approaching

OTTAWA (CP)—Christmas is 70 days away but mailing deadlines for Christmas mail to Canadian troops abroad are approaching.

The defence department said Thursday the closing dates for Christmas mail addressed to the armed forces in the Far East are:

Parcel post and ordinary letters, in time to reach Vancouver not later than Nov. 15;

Prepaid airmail to the Far East, in time to reach Vancouver not later than Dec. 5.

Deadlines for Christmas mail for Canadian troops in the united Kingdom and continental Europe are:

Ordinary letters by surface ship, in time to reach Montreal not later than Nov. 27;

Parcel post by surface ship, in time to reach Montreal not later than Nov. 25.

Although airmailed letters and parcels sent to Europe from Montreal usually are delivered in about two or three days, postal authorities cannot guarantee that service during the Christmas season.

Therefore, all mail intended for delivery in accordance in the Europe by Christmas must be overseas by:

Dec. 16 for air mail and surface letters, and Dec. 8 for parcel post.

Weight limit on parcels to the Far East and Europe is 10 pounds.

Board Requests Delay in Teaching English Language

OTTAWA (CP) — The French-Language Education Association of Ontario decided Thursday to ask the Ontario education department to defer the teaching of English in predominantly French schools until a student has acquired a sufficient knowledge of his maternal tongue.

Gaston Vincent of Ottawa, who was elected president of the association, said the present practice of teaching English from grade 2 onward is premature.

Dr. R. C. Desormeaux, retiring president, said English should not be taught until grade 3 or 4.

The convention in its closing session also passed resolutions asking that emphasis on literature should be in both languages "where the proportion of French-speaking Canadians is sufficient to justify such a measure," and that all federal government cheques be printed in both languages.

The convention endorsed a resolution it has passed several times before asking the Ontario government to accord an equitable distribution of corporation taxes to

Douks Learn Form of Protest Makes Canadians Angry

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP)—By the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor parade naked in public places?

Because they've learned this form of protest against violence makes other Canadians uncomfortable and angry. It draws public attention.

That is a psychiatrist's answer for the back-to-nature religious services held by the radical Sons in British Columbia's Kootenay district. Gawking onlookers are a weekly Sunday sight here. The services usually involve disrobing, especially by older Doukhobor women.

Strip Often

Some are habitual strippers—even work naked in their gardens.

"Why is Mabel dressed today?" mused Ruth Walch, a reporter well acquainted with the Doukhobor women, at a recent Sunday service.

As if commenting on an unusual hat, Miss Walch thereby expressed surprise that Mabel Barinoff, one of the leaders at such services, was clothed while other women were taking off their dresses.

As to whether onlookers find it laughable or sordid, the Freedomites give little heed, believing that by going naked they shed every vice of worldly wealth and show themselves as true children of God.

Women take a commanding part at the services, as they do in most Freedomite affairs.

Nudism among the Doukhobors apparently began after they came to Canada just over 50 years ago, Old Canadians say.

One authority says it sprang from their custom of taking mixed steam baths, in the European manner. When radical Doukhobors saw their baths shocked Canadians they hit upon nudism as an ideal method of protest for pacifists.

"It has a varied significance—a protest, an emotional and religious gesture in which they see children of God," he said. "It is a sexless affair."

A psychiatrist, whose name cannot be published, said "hostile feelings characterize most Doukhobors to a marked degree.

"Removing one's clothes is a remarkably effective device for making others people uncomfortable and angry.

"They need have no fear of retaliation in kind. No one Doukhobor is going to take off his clothes to answer a Doukhobor, and even if he did the effect would be ludicrous.

"One has only to take off a few clothes and the enemy is demobilized, if not routed."

Full-Scale Attack Launched Against Indo-China Reds

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—French and Viet Namese land, sea and air forces jumped off at dawn today in a full-scale offensive aimed at destroying huge war-like nests and paralyzing Communist divisions threatening an attack on the Red river delta.

Breaking out of their Red river delta bridgehead for the first time in a year, the French-led troops quickly crossed the Day river to Nhu Trieu, 30 miles due south southeast of Hanoi.

They pushed outside the southern rim of the delta's defences and stabbed through muddy, rain-flooded ricefields and jagged limestone hills toward the big rebel supply bases before Phu Nho Quan and Thanh-Hoa.

French fighters from the aircraft carrier Arromanches and land-based fighters and bombers plastered rebel bases as the troops steadily moved southwestward.

Little Miss Segar, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Middleton, presented Mrs. Scott with a lovely bouquet of gladioli and was rewarded with a kiss from the kind lady.

Mrs. Middleton and the president, Mrs. Curtis, welcomed the ladies.

Many articles were sold, including fancy aprons, dresses, dolls, spool and needle cases, jams, pickles, tarts, cookies, pies, flower plants and parcel post gifts.

College Students Continue Drive For Federal Aid

MONTREAL (CP)—The 38,500-member National Federation of Canadian University students today voted to continue their campaign for federal scholarships.

Some 35 delegates attending the final day of the federation's annual meeting voted to "continue and if possible increase" their campaign for the grants to university students, recommended by the Massey commission.

McGill, Laval and Bishop's universities and Sir George Williams College abstained from the vote on the grounds that the campaign might prejudice reception to a brief they intend to present to the provincial government.

The Quebec government has forbidden universities in this province to accept federal grants and several of the universities have protested that they are losing subsidies that would make unnecessary recent increases in university fees.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Police said Thursday a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Betty Dannon, 27, of Niagara Falls, Ont., told them she was raped by three youths early Thursday after she entered the wrong automobile by mistake in Niagara Falls, N.Y. Viet Namese Demand Full Independence

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—A national congress summoned by Bao Dai, head of the Viet Nam state, today called for complete independence from France, with no strings attached.

Bao Dai, ex-emperor of Viet Nam, one of the three associated states of Indo-China, called the congress to determine what degree of independence it should seek in future negotiations with France.

The congress, made up of religious and political representatives of Viet Nam's three provinces, unanimously favored the principle of "total independence." France has already indicated willingness to negotiate on these lines not only with Viet Nam, but with the states of Laos and Cambodia.

The congress called for a mutual aid alliance with France, but said that all treaties signed by the Viet Nam government should be ratified by a freely elected national assembly on a basis of universal suffrage.

Court Rules Will Referred To First Wife

TORONTO (CP)—The woman the late Henry Rupert Bain referred to in his will as his first wife and not the woman he married after switching wives with a friend, a court decided Thursday.

Chief Justice C. C. McRuer handed down the ruling at Osgoode Hall and said the Idaho divorce of Bain and his first wife, Mary Eileen, was not legal "as far as Ontario laws are concerned."

The chief justice said "there was not the slightest evidence to indicate Bain changed his domicile to Idaho." He was asked only to rule on who the late stock broker referred to in his will when he said "my wife." Bain died in Cuernavaca, Mexico, March 25, 1953, and left an estate of $2,306,330.

Mrs. Bain obtained her divorce in Idaho June 30, 1951. On June 1, Mrs. Reginald Watkins, who later married Bain, had obtained a divorce from her husband, a business and social acquaintance of Bain, in Mexico. Mrs. Bain married Mr. Watkins July 7 and Bain married Mrs. Watkins July 20.

German Refugee's Testimony To Show Russians Had Access To Radar Data Says McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) says he expects "complete testimony" to arrive today from the mysterious German scientist who is reported to have said the Russians told him they had access to secret radar data at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

The scientist, not identified, was said to have fled from East Germany into the western zone of Berlin more than a year ago and to have talked to U.S. Air Force intelligence officers.

In Germany Thursday, an air force spokesman said they were "baffled" by McCarthy's statement and had no information about the case.

To Call Scientist

But McCarthy concluded his permanent Senate investigations subcommittee session Thursday night with the assertion that the refugee scientist's full testimony would get here today. The Senator said the scientist ultimately will be called as a witness before his committee.

Among witnesses scheduled to testify today in closed hearings are Maj.-Gen. George I. Back, commandant at Ft. Monmouth, and Maj.-Gen. George H. Decker, head of the army Signal Corps.

The sub-committee has been probing into possible Communist subversion by civilian employees at the vital radar defence centre at Ft. Monmouth.

Among names introduced during Thursday's day and evening hearings were those of Morton Sobell, serving 30 years in prison for his part in the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg atom spy plot, and David Greenglass, Ethel's brother, whose testimony helped send the Rosenbergs to the electric chair.

Tell Of Sobell

McCarthy said several witnesses brought up by the name of Sobell, an electrical engineer who once worked at Ft. Monmouth. Rosenberg worked for the Signal Corps in New York but fired for being a Communist.

The senator said one witness pictured Rosenberg and Sobell as asking him repeatedly to become part of a Ft. Monmouth espionage ring. He refused, but did join the Communist party.

McCarthy said further testimony disclosed that Sobell, fired from the radar centre, frequently was a visitor to Ft. Monmouth and had "friends" in the laboratory there.

McCarthy said the name of Greenglass, serving 15 years in prison, "has come into the picture at least a dozen times during taking of testimony here."

McCarthy said he expected to visit Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary "as soon as possible" and talk with Greenglass.

Sisters Silent

Another witness questioned Thursday was the husband of one of two sisters subpoenaed earlier in the day. The sisters, civilian employees of the Signal Corps during the Second World War, allegedly had refused to answer all questions on the ground that it would tend to incriminate them.

After his testimony the husband was accused of perjury by McCarthy for testimony he gave about his sister-in-law's activities.

The senator identified the man only as a teacher at a high school in the Bronx, borough of New York.

McCarthy gave no names of witnesses.

72-Year-Old Woman Lands 40-Pound Trout

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Mrs. Mary Legault, a 72-year-old grandmother, Wednesday landed a 40-pound lake trout, the largest ever taken this year in district waters.

Mrs. Legault was trolling in Lake Superior off Rossport, 115 miles east of here, when she hooked the trout.

The fish was the third largest lake trout caught off Rossport by trolling. The largest trout registered—41½ pounds—was caught by the late M. J. MacDonald on July 17, 1938.

In 1950, Victor Cucci of Montevideo, Minn., caught the second largest trout, 40 pounds, 13 ounces.

SAVES EIGHT

TORONTO (CP) — A 13-year-old girl carried infant twins and led six other children down a blazing stairway when fire broke out in a home in west Toronto Wednesday night.

Patricia Cunningham of Toronto had the children safely outside when firemen arrived. Damage to the house was light.

Foreign Ministers Resume Search for Approach Toward Solution of Cold War Problems

By REYNOLDS TOPPING

LONDON (AP)—The Big Three foreign ministers resumed their collective search here today for a step-by-step approach toward a solution of cold war problems. Their major task was how to keep a hot war from starting over Trieste.

U.S. State Secretary Dulles, Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault planned three days of conferences in Britain's grey and dripping foreign office.

Dulles, arriving in London Thursday night, warned they would not produce any "magic formula for peace," but said he was "confident this exchange of views among three friends will advance the cause of world-wide peace and justice."

Many Problems

In addition to Trieste, they were to take up their new exercise to be known as the Geneva spirit of dousing brush fires around the world than upon making any dramatic new gesture to the Kremlin.

There were numerous suggestions of what might keep peace in Trieste, where the British-French decision last week to turn their occupation zone A over to Italy brought a threat from Yugoslavia's President Tito to move in his own troops from zone B which they already occupy. Some of the ideas reported under consideration:

1. Delay withdrawal of the Anglo-American forces from zone A;

2. Try to persuade Italy to send only police, not troops, into zone A, and then try to get Tito's agreement;

3. Agree to Tito's proposal for a conference of Italy, Yugoslavia, Britain and the United States, with France a possible fifth attendant.

Take Second Debut

Presumably such a conference would require considerable arranging. In Rome Thursday Premier Giuseppe Pella told the Big Three's ambassadors Italy would take part in the get-together when she and Yugoslavia were on "equal terms"—with Italy in zone A, or with Yugoslav troops out of zone B.

And at the United Nations Thursday night chief Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky presented a Russian resolution for an internationalized, independent Trieste, warned that the Soviet Union would not tolerate any Trieste arrangement in which Russia didn't have a hand.

Before taking up Trieste, the ministers were expected to approve the draft of their newest note to Russia. It is reported to propose that Molotov meet them in Lugano, Switzerland, about Nov. 9 to discuss Germany and Austria.

From Moscow, however, it was reported that diplomatic sources there expressed grave doubt the Kremlin would accept the bid.

Dulles dined Thursday night with Churchill at No. 10 Downing street and Bidault was invited there for lunch today. Friendly talks with Russia's Premier Malenkov.

Will Raise Freighter

SARNIA (CP)—Tenders for the salvaging of the German motorship Wallachia, sunk in a St. Clair river collision two weeks ago, will be received Saturday, it was announced Thursday by Klaus Friesen, representative of the ship's North American agents.

While four Canadian salvage firms and two from the United States have indicated they intend to submit tenders, it was understood they were unwilling to make a firm bid until they could study the Wallachia's building plans.

The 82-ton Wallachia sank in 32 feet of water Oct. 2 after she collided with the United States bulk-carrier Pioneer.

DELICATE PROJECT

CANTERBURY, England (CP)—Samuel Caldwell, 92, is three-quarters finished replacing and restoring the war-blasted stained glass windows in Canterbury Cathedral. He supervised the same job after the 12th-century windows were stored away during the First World War.

Minister Thinks East Ont. Should Get 3rd of Power

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Thursday night that eastern Ontario should be given specific assurance that it will receive a "reasonable share of the new power" to be developed under the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

He told a church group he felt the area should receive one-third of Ontario's share of the 2,200,000 horsepower to be developed.

"This area has lagged in development up to now for lack of power reserves . . . In all equity therefore, it seems to me that eastern Ontario has a right to ask for priority in the distribution of power from the St. Lawrence."

Mr. Chevrier said that "everything necessary in Canada has been done to allow Ontario hydro to start work tomorrow." The only delay was caused by legal disputes in the United States.

Operations Prove Successful In Preventing Crime

TORONTO (CP)—Operations of sexual psychopaths in Denmark have proved successful in preventing patients repeating sex crimes, Dr. George K. Stürup, head of Denmark's institution of criminal psychopaths, said Thursday.

Here to attend the 53rd Congress of Correction, Dr. Stürup said that those who have undergone the operation (not practised in North America) only three per cent committed another sex crime after release.

Antoine Rivard, solicitor-general of Quebec, told the Canadian Penal Association that special places of detention ought to be provided for the habitual criminal and the mentally deficient.

Mr. Rivard said the special institutions should be provided so that society would have permanent protection. The solicitor-general said he thought amendments to the Criminal Code should be made to take the habitual criminal out of circulation.

SWITCH GUELPH POWER

Prime Minister Announces New Senate Posts

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today announced Hon. W. Ross Macdonald has been named government leader in the Senate and Senator W. McL. Robertson, his predecessor, has been made Speaker of that House.

Senator Macdonald, 62, of Brantford, was Speaker of the Commons in the last Parliament and was appointed to the upper chamber early this summer.

His new post carries with it a ministry without portfolio in the cabinet.

Senator Robertson, 62, of Halifax was government leader in the red chamber from 1945 up to now. He is a former national president of the Liberal association.

No Surprise

The two appointments had been forecast freely here for some months. For reasons of health, Senator Robertson was understood to prefer the speakership to the more onerous job of Liberal leader.

He will succeed Hon. Elie Beauregard, 69, of Quebec, in the traditional switch between English-speaking and French-speaking presiding officers for each Parliament.

The Senate appointments round out a new lineup of presiding officers for Parliament. The prime minister announced Wednesday the government will recommend the selection of L. Rene Beaudoin, 41, as Speaker and William Robinson, 46, as deputy.

The Commons officers are chosen officially by the members, but cabinet's recommendation is tantamount to the final selection. Senate officers are appointed.

Mr. Robinson, from Simcoe East, was chairman of committees in the last Commons.

St. Paul's United, Stirling, Holds Centennial Thanksgiving Service

RAWDON — St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was resplendent with autumn blooms, memorial flowers and golden and white chrysanthemums for the national Thanksgiving, Sunday, October 11th, 1953.

The centennial guest speaker was the Rev. George Murray, B.A., of Newburgh, who challenged each and all to be truly thankful for all the blessings God has bestowed upon Canada and her people everywhere.

A large number of visitors were in attendance as many were home on holiday.

Greetings From Scotland

Mr. Murray read the following greetings from Rev. J. M. S. McNaught, and the congregation of St. Columbus Church of Scotland, Stirling, Scotland:

"We are deeply interested in St. Paul's Centennial celebration and please convey our heartfelt congratulations for us, the Church of Scotland, to the church folks at St. Paul's, Stirling, Ontario, Canada, and very best wishes for the second century."

In the editorial of the Stirling Journal, Stirling, Scotland, to edition, Donald Cameron, asked that he be forwarded a copy of the account of the service on October 11th at St. Paul's, Stirling, Ont. He said: "we trust you will see your way to oblige as we would like to bring about a close association between the village of Stirling in Canada, and this Royal and ancient burgh."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

FINE RECORD

They had a big celebration down Listowel way the other night. The good people of that town were shouting the praises of two baseball teams that a few hours before were driven hard through home two provincial championship eight of beaten.

And in Centerville, a few miles north of Napanee, the good burghers of the village are walking around these days with shirt buttons strained to the bursting point.

One of the centres of attraction, and is the majority of the whoopie-making fans the hero of the affair was young Centreville-born Keith Wesee. For the modest youngster had, almost single-handed lifted the Listowel Legionnaires by their spike-straps, and in a sensational all-round effort hurled them to the intermediate "B" title.

Wesee climaxed the season with a Mortlevillian effect. He sat down the Newmarville Kozes, runners-up, with a neat 10-4 effort, sending down 17 via the whiff route. In the second and deciding game, the score was 5-7 for the Kozes going into the seventh. Bob Childs, Listowel starting pitcher, was taken out and Wesee rushed into the breach. He put on a dazzling display of hurling, accounting for five of the following nine batters with strikeouts, while his mates scored three runs to win the game and the title.

And the two proudest people in the stands were Wesee's two grandparents, each eighty years of age, who had made the long safari from Centreville to Listowel to watch the young hurler win the championship with his sensational performance.

Wesee has compiled an enviable mound record since he left his native Centreville four years ago. And the mark he set in Jayvees and midget circles in Belleville is nothing to be sneered at. He is one of the most consistently good young hurlers in Ontario, and if his record to date is a criterion, the twenty-one-year-old should go places.

If memory serves us correctly, Wesee made a sensation before he was in the farmers' glasses. He pitched in and around Centreville and Napanee for minor teams. On one occasion he pitched for a midget team, beating an Ottawa squad with 21 strikeouts. The next day he hurled against a Belleville Juvenile team in the Exhibition Grounds and shut them out with a tidy seventeen whiffing job.

The Shallow Lake Ranchers (population 296) heard of the young phenom and quickly grabbed his services. The youngster, a tried and true baseball player, landed in his first appearance with a strange team in a strange town, couldn't get started. The opposing batters took to his offerings with gusto and batted them all over the lot. The Shallow Lakers were definitely disappointed for the "new pitcher" was in no way living up to his advance reputation.

Then it happened. Wesee regained his composure and with it his pitching prowess. He settled down and as the amazed Shallow Lakers looked on he mowed down the opposition in order. When the game ended, Wesee had 17 strikeouts on the scoreboard.

The game was the beginning of a junior pitching career that is still one of the main topics of the Shallow Lake crackerbarrel fraternity. Wesee went on to win the first junior title the village ever possessed. The next year he repeated. And the next. That was 1952.

In the playoffs and playdowns, Wesee pitched 66 consecutive scoreless innings, besides helping his own cause with a more than average batting mark. He was the toast of Shallow Lake and had not Father Time hoisted him over the junior barrier, he would still be in the Grey County community.

Keith, apparently is away to a record in intermediate circles. In his first year in this company, he not only was one of the main reasons for the Listowel championship, but he established a mark seldom equalled by junior hurlers in their first step to the upper brackets.

His overall strikeout record was approximately 230. In league competition he was ten and lost four. He walked 118. and had thirty runs scored against him, sixteen of which were unearned. He pitched ninety and two-thirds innings. He issued forty-walks.

Shallow Lake will bring back memories to Picton and Napanee ballsters of twenty years ago. For the boss baseball man there is Percy Noble, the catcher, who held "Lefty" Goldsmith's sizzling slants when the big Southampton Fisherman southpaw stifled the Picton and Napanee cudgels.

Noble is a Shallow Lake native who decided that his old net was to carry on the family tradition, building wagons and sleighs. Casting around for a more lucrative occupation, he was attracted by the possibilities of fur ranching. His experiments with mutations which led him to several enviable experiences, such as having the honor of presenting a mink coat to Sonya Henie, seeing his bank account fatten and becoming the mentor of Mr. Wesee.

Mr. Noble's feelings about baseball being what they are, it would probably be accurate to state that the last-named experience has been the biggest thrill of all. But while Noble can thanks his lucky stars for Wesee, Wesee can probably credit Noble with some of his success, for the man who caught Goldsmith knows a little about what is needed to be successful batters. Shallow Lake's rise in the baseball world was aided by the fact that Owen Sound has been without a ball-team of any account since before the war and this has enabled the Ranchers to draw from this large "suburb."

Habs Stars Each Score Pair In Wild Goal-Getting Spree Leafs Shake Beantown Jinx

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

They can hoist the storm warnings any time for the Montreal Hockey League's goal-tending fraternity. Montreal Canadiens are blowing up a big squall.

The elusive dream that has haunted general manager Frank Selke for years—a line featuring Maurice Richard and Jean-Marc Beliveau and another teaming Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion with the crafty Dickie Lech—became a reality Thursday night.

Rangers Swamped

Canadiens won 6-1 over New York Rangers. Beliveau and Geoffrion fired two goals apiece and Richard added a fifth. Lech and Geoffrion set up Eddie Mazur for the sixth. Wally Hergesheimer's early goal was Rangers' only reply.

Bentenhart overshadowed by the slaughter in Montreal was Toronto Maple Leafs' 4-1 victory over Boston Bruins. The second on Beantown ice in two seasons and the first of the year for Lynn Patrick's club.

That left the Canadiens in first place with the Bruins one point in arrears. Leafs moved into a second-place tie with the idle Detroit Red Wings. Both have 2-1 records. Boston, breaking even in its first two starts, is tied for fourth place with the Rangers, who have yet to win a game. Chicago Black Hawks are winless in three tries.

The Hawks entertain Detroit in tonight's only NHL activity.

Beliveau Gets First

Beliveau, the big rookie centre from Quebec, was the key to the Montreal victory. Wooed assiduously by Selke for years before he finally signed a Canadien contract, he started slowly this season and failed to score a goal in his three previous outings.

Geoffrion and Richard received no assists on each other's scoring efforts, but their teamwork was improved over previous efforts. Geoffrion, also scoreless in previous efforts, was the most dangerous of Johnny Bower's tormentors as the rookie netminder turned aside 32 Montreal drives.

The Leafs wrapped up their victory with three first-period goals by Ron Stewart, Rudy Migay and Eric Nesterenko. Harry Watson fired the clincher in the final frame after Johnny Peirson had counted a second-period tally for the losers, his third of the year.

Toronto May Get Marciano-Walls Title Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Max Waxman, business manager for Jack Dempsey, said Thursday the former heavyweight champion and his associates are considering a Rocky Marciano-Earl Walls heavyweight title fight at Toronto next summer.

"The thing that lures me," Waxman told a reporter, "is that Toronto has one of the largest outdoor places for its annual world's fair, a 10-day event which draws people from all over Canada.

"Besides, the Canadians are terrifically sports minded—hockey, baseball and horse racing. And Dempsey himself is very popular in Toronto, where he conducts the Jack Dempsey international heavyweight tournaments."

Few Contenders

Waxman said Dempsey would like to be associated with James D. Norris of the International Boxing Commission in promoting a Marciano-Walls bout if Walls is still a contender next summer. There were few contenders in the United States.

"The Marciano people may go to Montreal if they get enough money," Waxman commented. "A title fight in Toronto would do a tremendous business."

Waxman said he has been in touch with promoters Eddie Quinn of Montreal and Frank Tunney and Jack Allen of Toronto.

At Toronto, Tunney said he had talked with Waxman about the possibility of a Marciano-Walls fight next summer.

"After all, Toronto is the logical place for the bout because Walls is from Toronto," Tunney said.

Taylor Asks Permit to Play With Dutchies

TORONTO (CP)—Blake Taylor, fullback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats last season, has appealed to the Canadian Rugby Union for permission to play in the Ontario Rugby Football Union with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Harry McArthur, CRU secretary, said the five-man CRU executive will vote by mail on the matter and the result won't be known for several days.

McArthur said the CRU received a letter from the former University of Western Ontario star asking that they allow him to play football in the ORFU. The Tiger-Cats don't release players but sometimes would have to put him on the waiver list and neither Toronto nor will waive him out of the Big Four.

Taylor, who refused to play with Hamilton this season, is working in Galt.

Yvon Durelle Whips Wallace In Bruising Bout

MONCTON (CP)—His Canadian middleweight championship safely tucked away, Yvon Durelle, Big Ste. Anne, N.B., today was seriously considering reverting to the middleweight rank.

Durelle scored a unanimous decision over Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., in a bruising 15-round lightheavyweight title bout here Thursday night. It was the second meeting of the pair. Durelle won the title in an elimination match with Wallace at Glace Bay, N.S., in March.

"There aren't enough lightheavyweight challengers in Canada to make it worthwhile holding the title," Durelle said. He plans to move to western Canada, and will relinquish his light - heavy title if necessary in order to act as a middleweight.

Durelle weighed 176 pounds for Thursday's fight, compared with Wallace's 180.

The champ was at his best in Thursday's title defence. Wallace had a slight edge in the first round. But Durelle came on strong in the second to turn the tide when Wallace stood toe to toe with the champ and slugged it out.

Durelle gained set over Wallace's left eye in the second and it gave the challenger trouble for the remaining 10 rounds. Durelle set up his leadin the early rounds and had to call upon all his fighting lore to stave off the challenger in the late rounds when Wallace scored with telling left hooks and looping baleywinging lights.

Two judges gave five rounds to Durelle and three to Wallace. The third judge saw it Durelle five and Wallace four.

Montreal, Ottawa Focal Points Of Gridiron Interest

Rough Riders Meet Ti-Cats, Argonauts Clash With Larks; In Important Grid Battles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Football fans in the senior league cities of Canada are in for another fantasy week-end, but interest is centered mainly on two points—Montreal and Ottawa. That's where the tough ones are down for decisions.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union has "reached the stage where the game is practically cut-and-dried, Calgary Stampeders being just about ready to call it a year. The Ontario Rugby Football Union ran in a developing into a tight fight and the Intercollegiate Union is just hitting its stride.

Just Don't Know

That leaves only the Big Four and, based on past performances of Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton clubs, it isn't safe to make predictions. Only two points separate the four teams and there aren't many weeks left in the East who would guess on the outcome of games from here in.

The Western Conference straightened out in a three-team circuit last week-end, Edmonton Eskimos clipped the Stampeders in their home-and-home doubleheader to clinch first place and Saskatchewan Roughriders twice defeated Blue Bombers twice to draw into a second-place tie, each of the pairs up on Calgary by only three scheduled games remaining.

Now it is almost certain that Bombers and Roughriders will meet in the two-game total-point semi-final series for the right to meet Eskimos in the best-two-of-three finals.

The Alberta clubs have home dates for the three remaining games in the schedule. Saturday Saskatchewan is at Calgary and Winnipeg at Edmonton. Monday, Winnipeg plays at Calgary and Saskatchewan at Edmonton.

WIFU Ends Oct. 24

The 16-game schedule winds up Oct. 24 with Regina at Calgary and Winnipeg at Edmonton.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Montreal Alouettes share the Big Four lead with 10 points each, two up on Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts in the closest race in years. Montreal Alouettes and Tiger-Cats at Ottawa Saturday and Toronto plays the Alouettes at Montreal Sunday.

For the record, here's how these clubs did in previous meetings:

Toronto opened at home Aug. 26 with an 11-9 victory over the Alouettes and a week later the Alouettes evened accounts with a 15-7 decision at Montreal. Tiger-Cats squeaked out a 14-13 decision at Hamilton over Rough Riders Aug. 28 and Riders squared it with a resounding 31-6 victory at Ottawa Oct. 3.

Three OIFU games are scheduled Saturday in the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are boots to Toronto Balmy Beach and Western Ontario Mustangs meet the Imperials at Sarnia.

Beaches and the Dutchmen finish the week-end activity at Toronto Sunday.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs, Intercollegiate leaders with two victories and six games, meet McGill Redmen at Montreal and McMaster Marauders play Varsity Blues at Toronto. Both games are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Eight Teams Push Off Tonight On Long Senior Hockey Trail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series gets its 1953-54 season tonight with new companies and new stars along with the veteran bumpers.

Windsor Bulldogs, newcomers to the eight-team league, open the long schedule at Chatham against St. Clair Maroons. Stratford Indians clash with the Tigers at Hamilton.

Before the week-end is out the fledgling Niagara Falls Cataracts will have made their debut.

The regulars—Allan Cup champion Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Sarnia Sailors (Imperial Oil-Canadian Oil Companies Group) and Barrie Flyers—are known quantities in the land that sets the pattern within the next three days.

Hope To Repeat

The Dutchmen, who gave the Twin Cities their first Allan Cup in 25 years last season, are out to do it again. Defender Keith Woods is ill, who turned down a regular berth with Kitchener this season will act as the substitute defender. Regular choice will probably be handled by Ted Harrington, who came up from the junior league where he performed with Barrie Flyers and Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts.

On the forward line are holdovers Bobby Schnurr, Don Bauer, Maurice Lavergne, Charlie Brooker, Clare Martin, Harry Pavika, Howie Lee and Art Rurak. Veterans Jack McKenzie and Doug Verity, the team's 34-year-old grand-daddy, are back.

Newcomers on the forward line are Ken Laidman, with Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League last year, and Johnny Mauriloa of Smiths Falls Rideaus. New faces on defence are Mike Delich from northern Ontario and Joe Schertzl of Brampton.

Bob Rafferty, who took over coaching duties in mid-season last year, will again handle the bench.

New Faces At Sarnia

Sarnia Sailors also went shopping during the summer, Dave Broadbelt, a standout with Montreal Royals in the Quebec junior circuit last year, will be in the Sailor-Art White, with Guelph Biltmores and Galt Black Hawks of the OHA Junior A series for the last two winters, will strengthen the defence.

Joe Douglas, American League scoring champion with Cleveland Barons in 1949-50, will coach the Sailors.

Stratford Indians are stressing a youth movement. Howie Meeker, whose sailing back is preventing him from performing with Toronto Maple Leafs, is allowed to take up coaching duties.

Meeker is holding on to enough veterans to steady his squad. Five candidates are in the race for outstanding berths — last season's Bruce Dale, Gerry Hesse, Boot Merrier and Don Newell, all Toronto and Bob Shropshire of Hamilton Englehearts. Head coach George Nicholson, Don Heibuch, Tommy Watkins, as well as Keith Wood, Stratford ace trying for defence.

Tigers Have Scorers Back

Mickey Roth, Billy Flick and Dinny Flanagan, inseparable for the last two years, will again head the attacking unit. The trio has been a scoring parade for three seasons. George Aitken, Herve Bordy, Larry Summerhill, Ken Dunlop and Bruce Sundett will all return as forwards.

Hamilton Tiger coach George Redding has a couple of problems. Walter Atanas, whom Redding liberated from Toronto, was sold to Montreal for San Francisco. The other is what would Kitchener's Ray Jacklin.

But Redding's consolation is his defence corps. Despite the poor showing of the Tigers last season, Redding's pair, Harvey Fraser of Brantford, Steve Berklich from Charlottetown, George Gosselin from Montreal and Bill Dinning will attempt to supply defensive support.

Doug McKay, with Brantford last year, Eddie Bunch and Jack Taylor, fourth in the Senior A scoring parade last year, will make up the forward unit. Orville Anslow, Murray Comfort, Billy Hammond and Bill Ward will add to the forward strength.

Six New Players

Over-all Sound Mercurys, who provided the opposition for Kitchener in the OHA Senior A finals last year, have signed six new players.

Elwyn (Moe) Morris and Elmer Skov, a junior with Windsor Spitfires last year, are on defence. New forwards include centre Herbie Aces of the QSHL, Jerry Horton, up from St. Catharines Teepees and Bill Hagan, formerly with Barrie Flyers.

Holdovers are all-star goaltender Bob Gillson; defencemen Art Hayward, Fred Kennedy, Ralph Hocking and Bill Allum; and forwards Bert Farnham, Tommy Burting-ton, Jaydee McArthur, Bill McComb, Ray McCallum, Roy Leckie, Harris-Dressen Baltimore Move 'Rank Speculation'

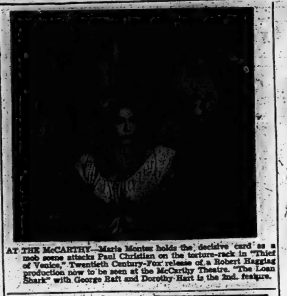
BALTIMORE (AP)—A guess that Bucky Harris will be general manager and Chuck Dressen field manager of Baltimore Orioles in the rankest kind, of speculation," the secretary - treasurer of the new American League team said Thursday.

Gayle Talbot, Associated Press sports columnist, wrote Thursday "we have it on exceptionally good authority that this is the intended setup." Harris now is field manager of Washington Senators and Dressen is balking about returning as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers for only a one-year contract.

"That statement about Harris is not true," said Clyde Y. Morris, secretary-treasurer.



"No decision has been made with respect to a general manager and no one may be said to have the inside trick. We have not talked to Mr. Harris or Mr. Dressen."

GHOSTS ADD 3 PLAYERS

COBOURG (CP)—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts mysteriously obtained three new players Thursday whom they will use in their two-game, total-points series for the Ontario Rugby Football Union central group intermediate championship against Peterborough Orofuss.

Two of the players' names were given as Sullivan and Polanski. They are said to be lineman. The third player was unnamed. All were reported "former big-timers."

First game of the series will be in Peterborough Saturday with the return engagement scheduled for Cobourg a week later.

♣A 10 2

The opening lead from west was the club king and declarer in south saw at once that he was carrying a load. His holdings could lose a spade and a trump and a couple of clubs.

With six trumps against him the declarer resorted to finesse in opponent hands are four and two. If opponent with four has Jack among them three straight leads of his tops will not capture it.

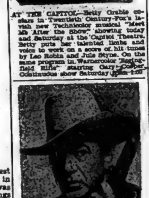
If east has the jack in four, a trump finesse would pick it up. This did save a trick at the end of the wreck. So, he plucked the opening trick with his club ace and entered dummy with a trump to the king.

The return trump from dummy was finessed with south ten. This held and he felt better. But he was now ready to give up three black tricks and cashed his spade ace as a matter of form.

Surprise hit him when the king dropped from the east hand. This pierced him up to take a different course on life at the bridge table. If west had the expected doubleton queen, grand slam might make now.

Two more top trumps were cashed. On these west chucked two of his three diamonds and dummy had two clubs. Three diamonds were cashed, landing in the south hand after the third diamond.

Two of these diamonds west had some shedding to do. He let go a spade and the club Jack. This left him with a top club and three spades. Now the stage was set for a squeeze on him.



The last south trump was led. If west cast a spade, all dummy spades set up with a finesse. If west gave up club queen, south club ten and dummy spades take the rest. Now it looks easy.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 17, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mixed conditions, especially in early hours. Most competition will be disappointed by 3 p.m. Emphasize your best traits. Re-study your plans before acting.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — With unflagging courage, respect for God and lack of fear you can surmount obstacles where others fail. Avoid sweeping generalities; be cautioned about little flaws to insure bigger gains.

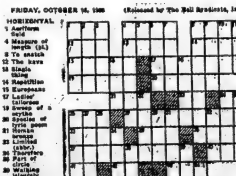
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Promote the best ideas you have but concentrate on accuracy and a knowledge of details. Influences mixed; more favorable to those who deserve.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Vibrations excellent for constructive ideas and efforts. Financial and business affairs rate high today and can bring through intelligent effort, better returns. Be philosophical.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Careful execution needed to signing important documents; releasing valuable news, promoting ideas. No ifs or buts: Protect your income, interests and, above all, reputation.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Detach yourself from any questionable or unscrupulous people or propositions. There is an inclination to trust without knowing. It is foolish and can react seriously. Study things well.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Opportunity to make up for some recent lean days. Analyze problems and take the sure way of solving them rather than rely on hit or miss methods. Shipping, property matters, conferences important.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Many attractive influences. Confounded logic, shrewdness and your innate dignity will further your interests. Give a little, but never give up. Do not let environs trouble you.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — You may be called on to make important decisions or to give advice. Be direct, sincere and do it in the name of God. Careful thinking will carry you forward to marked success, so try hard.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — There are hindrances and restrictions that could upset the best laid plans. Take lead; prepare for eventualities. Capable men are open to suggestions, advice.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Encouraging influences. Use your keen sense of proportion to insure a successful day. Tenacity and alertness of manner will win results now.

YOU BORN TODAY have appreciation for the nicer and finer things in life. If you are fond of pleasure, comfort; any dislike routine chores, but will work hard; are fair and just with others. You are happiest in harmonious surroundings; sensitive to environment and associations; feel keenly hurts you consider unjust. Liberals have great pride and ambition; may accomplish skillfully in industry. You are mainly guided by your own conclusions, which are usually logical. Follow your intuition but heed wise counsel, too. Avoid extremes, pray often. Birthdate of: Robert Lansing, American statesman; Rita Hayworth, screen actress.

MARMORA

Sacred Heart Parish Holds Three-Day Bazaar

MARMORA—The annual bazaar of the Sacred Heart parish, which lasts for three evenings, opened at the Sacred Heart parish hall on Tuesday evening.

That evening and the following evening a sumptuous chicken supper was served by the ladies of the congregation under supervision of Mrs. Charles Crawford to the many who patronized it. This gives way to a general supper on Thursday evening.

The usual stall constituting the bazaar were attractively arranged and also well patronized. In addition there were games to serve all classes.

Visiting priests included Dean H. J. Purcell, former priest of the parish, now of Perth; Dean J. Shannon, Trenton; Rev. C. R. Hope Stoco, on Tuesday and on the following evening, Rev. F. D. Hyland, Madoc; Rev. G. J. LaMarche, Stirling, and Rev. Father Way, of the Church of the Holy Cross, Thistle Portsmouth. The event concluded with a dance on Thursday evening, 18 Proud Lane

Accompanied by Clifford McCaw on the accordion, Mrs. C. B. Reeves Creek near Shanick, Gordon Knox secured a nice mastiecong about 4 p.m. on Tuesday. Using minnows as bait he hooked a fish forty-three inches in length which tipped the scales at eighteen pounds.

George Cassidy and Stephen Hawkins of Sulphide, called on Mr. and Mrs. Philip Flynn on Tuesday.

Marmora Council No. 707 Reliable Life Insurance Society held its October meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of friends Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sopha.

At the conclusion of business, there was a short program after which the hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. John Davidson has been confined to her home through illness. The brothers Patrick and Joseph Jordan, of Robbin, visited their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Flynn on Sunday.

'There Ain't No Gents Left' Say London Shoeshine Boys

By DEREK JAMESON

LONDON (Reuters) — Life has never looked so black to London's shoeshine boys, a dwindling band of gnarled old stalwart philosophers who have been part of the city scene for 100 years. "There ain't no gents left," they moorn.

To the London cockney, a gentleman is not the man who stands up for, a lady so much as the Englishman with knife - edged creases in his pin-striped trousers, a sober necktie, derby hat—and shiny black shoes.

He began to disappear at the turn of the century, which the historians will tell you marked the start of the decline of the British Empire. Today he is a comparative rarity. So is the shoeshine boy. Once there were about 20 in the capital.

Now the old days—"when the pound sterling stood for something, old"—are recalled with pride in London's west end had its shoeshine boy, then there were more than one.

Shoeshining in London is different from what it is in the United States. There are no "parlors" or high, brass-bound chairs.

Here the shoeshine boy is mostly white-headed oldsters. They operate either on a busy corner, on the sidewalk. You stand up with your foot on a little wooden rest while the shoeshiner squats on the sidewalk surrounded by polish and brushes.

Before the First World War a shilling was the penny. Between the wars it was three pence. Nowadays it is nine pence. Unless you happen to be a U.S. tourist—then it's a shilling.

Today, in that case, anything less than a shilling is likely to produce a black look.

The bootblacks of yesterday were boys from a chain of orphanages known as the Ragged School. They were forced on Bootblacks' Day, March 3, 1851, to march in a ceremonial exhibition. Organized in bands, they operated as the Central Reds, Marylebone Whites, East London Blues and West London Browns.

The 30 shoeshine left, most of whom started the "lark" as boys, have been at it so long that for them by a shoe polish company. In return, they use the company's polish and brushes in its products.

They accept the inevitability of their profession stoically, dwelling lovingly on the good old days.

Dick Johnson, weather - beaten gnome and doyen of the brigade who operates on a corner on busy Shaftesbury Avenue, talks nostalgically of the relief of Mafeking in the Boer war and the Coronation of King Edward VII a year later—1901.

"That was when people took a pride in their appearance and a gent didn't feel properly dressed unless his boots had a shined three times a day," he gravely tells anyone interested enough to listen.

Bootblack Prince

Prince of the bootblacks is Brian de Carr St. George, a colorful character at 60. Fairly new to the profession, he opened his stand in Piccadilly Circus in 1957, but is the aristocrat of the trade.

St. George, son of an army officer and stepson of a former keeper of the crown jewels, speaks several languages and often acts as interpreter. He will also discuss 18th - century German philosophy with his clients, if they know anything about it, or recommend his pitch in Piccadilly Circus in 1957, but is the aristocrat of the trade.

He will also discuss 18th - century German philosophy with his clients, if they know anything about it, or recommend his pitch in Piccadilly Circus in 1957, but is the aristocrat of the trade.

He also has the distinction of being the only bootblack in London to apply the polish with the naked hand—"to make the skin respond like a living creature."

The Piccadilly - Piccadilly - to Charing Cross railroad station and you will find Jim Pearce and Harry Harvey, veterans who have worked together since they left an orphanage.

They, too, mourn the past. The First World War was the best time they say, when the Canadians and the Australian Light Horse Cavalry were in town. "They were the ones for a shoeshine."

Dr. Robertson New Assistant To Health Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent yesterday announced appointment of five new parliamentary assistants and that two others have switched departments. This brings to 13 the number of assistants appointed since the Liberals were returned to power on Aug. 10.

George Capt. Colin E. Bennett, 45, member for Grey North in Ontario, will be assistant to Veterans Affairs Minister Lapointe. Mr. Bennett, a retired RCAF officer, succeeds Leslie Mutch, earlier appointed deputy chairman of the Canadian pensions commission.

Appointed to aid Works Minister Winters is Maurice Bourget, 45, member for Levis in Quebec.

T. A. M. Kirk, 47, member for Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare in Nova Scotia, will be assistant to Postmaster General Cote.

Roch Pinard, 43, member for Chambly-Rouville, will assist External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Will Assist Martin

Dr. F. G. Robertson, 44, member for Northumberland in Ontario, will be Health Minister Martin's assistant. The Ontario doctor has been a member since 1949. Dr. A. McCuaig, Mr. Martin's former assistant, was defeated in August.

Shifted from Transport Minister Chevrier's assistant to Finance Minister Abbott's is W. M. Benedickson, 42-year-old member for Kenora-Rainy River, Ont. A lawyer, he first was elected to the Commons in 1945.

Shifted from assistant to Postmaster General Cote to assistant to Transport Minister Chevrier is Leopold Langlois, 40, member for Gaspe, Que.

but in June, 1948, the company's first experimental radio-telephone circuit was installed between Kenora and Ball Lake Lodge, 42 miles away. It was a success.

Operated by a compact staff of about 27, the company serves 23 commercial fish camps and trading posts, seven timber camps and five private camps.

Distant customers—for instance, those on Hudson Bay—send messages in morse code over radio telegraph to Norwesto terminals. Customers closer in use two-way voice radio.

Messages are relayed through telegraph company teletypes to many parts of the world. Through agreements with major telephone companies, long-distance calls can be made even from remote hunting lodges.

The company's first capital was provided by E. Hamilton Leigh, St. Paul, Minn., livestock dealer and a long-time friend of Mr. Johnson. Today, there are about 300 shareholders.

Quick Response

Mr. Johnson tells how his company started installing a radio-telephone at a tourist camp one Saturday night. Next morning an American visitor suffered a heart attack. A call brought an airplane and, because of fast treatment, the man survived.

On another occasion from 42 miles out it took a doctor using an airplane only 40 minutes to reach a patient's bedside.

Mr. Johnson, whose wife is a former nursing sister he met while in the army, says he now can look at the war as a blessing in disguise."

He has two children, and a business he likes in the hometown he has no intention of leaving.

"I can't say I couldn't be happier," he says.

FOR YOUNG AND OLD

TORONTO (CP)—Prizes of $1,100 in cash and two trophies are offered for senior dancing contests Nov. 18 to 21 during the Royal Winter Fair here. The junior division takes boys and girls from 10 to 17 years old, and older contestants are in the senior sets.

$6,000 Catch of Whale Meat Not Up to Par of Other Years

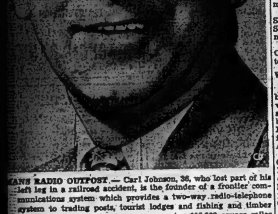
CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—A comparative handful of Indians and Eskimos plunged their harpoons into about 6,000 worth of whale meat this summer, but the catch was not up to par.

Since 1949, when a Churchill company started paying $1 a lineal foot for white beluga whales, a few natives have spent from late June to mid-September each year on the hunt. The men, all holding government licences, earned about $7,000 last season.

The big white mammals, 13 to 14 feet long and weighing from 600 to 700 pounds when mature, enter the Churchill river in search of fish. They are harpooned from heavy freight canoes and/shot with a rifle or harpooned again when they thrash to the surface. The flashing harpoons accounted for 239 this season.

Nothing Wasted

Low temperatures and high wind however suspended activities earlier than usual. Because the whales are one of the north's few natural sources of food, the government clapped a 700 quota on the catch.



Every part of the whale is marketable in some form. Last season, whale steaks were offered for sale on the Winnipeg market but the venture failed. A similar effort in British Columbia failed several years ago.

The meat now is ground, frozen and used for pet or mink food. The adult whale carries about 500 pounds of blubber which is turned into 400 pounds of variously graded oil, used for margarine, soap or paint, depending on its quality.

A fine oil from the jaw of the whale is used for lubricating precision instruments in cold weather. The Canadian Army will use it for automatic weapons during Arctic exercises this winter.

Vitamin A is extracted from the whale and the hide makes usable leather. Some bones are ground into fine meal and used for fertilizer.

The catch this season produced 160,000 pounds of blubber oil and more than 100,000 pounds of animal feed.

ANS RADIO OUTPOST — Carl Johnson, 36, who lost part of his left leg in a railroad accident, is the founder of a frontier communications system which provides a two-way radio-telephone system to trading posts, tourist lodges and fishing and timber operations in an isolated area converging 115,000 square miles from Hudson Bay to the International boundary. — A one-time trainman for the Canadian Pacific Railway, Johnson says he is "determined to bring main street to the door of every isolated community."—(CP Photo).

Trainman Founds Unique Radio-Telephone Business In North After Losing Leg

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Until Carl Johnson traded part of his left leg for a career in communications, the telephone was a stranger to much of remote northwestern Ontario.

The one-time CPR trainman might have spent his life on the railroad but for a yard accident in the subsequent amputation of his leg below the knee.

Instead, he founded a business that is ending isolation in a 115,000 square-mile area from Hudson Bay to the international boundary.

Through Mr. Johnson's company, Norwesto Communications Ltd., two-way radio-telephone is bringing telephone and telegraph to trading posts, tourist lodges and fishing and timber operations in this land of bears, fish, lakes and lonely spaces.

The Informal

His interest in radio didn't take much past tuning in to stations and he had never thought of communications as a career.

It was getting along well as a railwayman and had pretty fair seniority" he says. "Most people, I think, would hesitate to throw all that security."

But today, as founder and president of Norwesto, he says he is determined to bring main street to the door of every isolated community."

He's making progress. A trader in Hudson bay can send a telegram to, say, his aunt in Victoria. A cook at a remote lodge can telephone his grub list to the nearest store.

Norwesto was incorporated in May, 1948. Besides going out to prosper and trade, it gives telephone service to such communities as Red Lake and Madsen. The system will eventually extend as far east as Sudbury.

Because of the prohibitive cost of building land lines over the rugged country, experiments in radio-telephone were conducted in Ontario as early as 1936, but there were too many kinks to be worked out and the idea was dropped.

The accident which changed Mr. Johnson's life was in May, 1948, at Kenora, where he now heads a travel agency with offices in the Norwesto offices: radio station CJRL, and other businesses.

The 36-year-old man of many enterprises—who finds time to be president of the Kenora Hockey Club and gave a group of talented youngsters a trip to New York's Carnegie Hall to hear a concert of Canadian music could have stayed with the CPR if he wished. But he left, dabbling for a while in real estate.

"Then two friends in the taxi business ran into grief, and asked me whether I could spare them some time."

In trying to improve the taxi service they ended with a half interest—Mr. Johnson talked to a Kenora radio man over two-way dispatching by radio. Mr. Johnson soon was wondering whether the frequency modulation radio service was the answer to the northland's isolation.

He met Weston C. Fisher, who had made explosives tests in the Ontario bush country and had the same dream, and later C. H. Beverton, who had 20 years' experience in the scientific side of communications. Mr. Fisher became vice-president in charge of Norwesto operations and Mr. Beverton chief engineer.

Obstacles included lack of equipment suited to the north (that's why Norwesto still builds some of its equipment in its modern shop).

Britain Wants UN Action In Israel's Attack On Villages

Syria Protests Diversion Of River Is Threat to Peace

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The UN Security Council, already confronted with an Israeli-Syrian dispute over the waters of the Jordan river, was told today that a cooling-off and a hot border issue between Israel and Jordan.

British Friday night asked the Big Three foreign ministers' meeting in Paris to refer to the UN Security the council on charges of endangering peace in the Middle East.

The move came shortly after the British government accused Israel of an apparently calculated attack on three border Jordan villages.

Take Grave View

A foreign office spokesman said the U. S., British and French foreign ministers took a grave view of the incident, but delayed a decision on what steps to take.

Earlier Friday, Israel fired off a protest to the Security Council that Israel's diversion of the River Jordan constituted a real threat to the East peace.

The alleged Israeli assault Wednesday night reportedly cost 56 Arab lives.

In Baghdad, Iraq Premier Fadhil Jamali asked the United States and British, French and Turkish ambassadors to take serious measures against Israel for the attack.

Jordan has no official comment from Israel.

Observers at the United Nations said anger over the Jordan village incident probably would be added to Syria's protest over the Jordan river. Jordan is not a UN member, but Syria is looked on as her spokesman here.

Get Arab Support

Although Syria is the sole plaintiff, her stand will have support of other members of the Arab League who belong to the United Nations.

Security Council President William Borberg of Denmark has scheduled a new protest for next Thursday and UN observers expressed confidence it would be approved for discussion.

Israel government said the Tel Aviv government was ready to have the Security Council adjudicate the water dispute. But it also indicated to Danish Maj. -. Gen. Vagn Ramsing, chairman of the UN mixed armistice commission.

In view of the Israeli and American reaction to the border attack, diplomats here said both nations probably would be loath to see placing the Syrian protest on the agenda.

In its protest, Syria denounced Israel's diversion of the Jordan's flagrant violation of the Syrian-Israeli armistice.

Syria claimed the mixed armistice commission called on Israel to halt the work but she refused.

Paper Criticizes Sweden's Award Of Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The Socialist Morgon-Tidningen, generally known here as the government organ, today criticized yesterday's Swedish Academy's award of the Nobel literature prize to Sir Winston Churchill.

"Alfred Nobel must look down from heaven with his head in his hand over the Swedish Academy," said the paper's literary critic.

"The paper's cultural editor adds in another article that the prize may just as well have been awarded to Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung.

Morgon-Tidningen attacks Churchill as a man who represents "class distinctions, imperial conflicts, the party system, royalty and fawning at every side of the rich and the misery of slums as a stamping-ground for the power."

Other Swedish newspapers showed mixed feelings about the $33,840 award.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: There is a large cyclonic storm over weather may persist until Sunday night in southern Ontario. Showers are occurring west of Lake Michigan this morning are spreading eastward, but this morning's weather charts indicate they are slowing down somewhat and will move mainly into northern regions tonight and again on Sunday evening.

Reds Again Rebuffed Converting Only 9 PoW

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Bitter squabbles flared between Allied and Communist officers today on all but nine of 430 Chinese war prisoners defiantly turned their backs on Red attempts to woo them back to communism.

It was a second stinging blow to the Reds, who persuaded only 10 of 200 to return in the first day of the explanations Thursday.

There will be no explanations Sunday, Communist Pow boss Major Pak Chong Kwan announced.

The dramatic Allied-Communist tug of war reached fevered pitch today, not only in the clashes between officers and their fiery Red explainers—but between UN combat and Red observers.

A bitter flareup, punctuated by kicks and curses, burned over calls for Communist Pow boss to be forced to listen to Communist explainers for almost three hours.

Observers Scream, Kick

Before the PoW was led away, there followed a flare of a sensitive kicked a Chinese-American observer in the shin during the shouting. Another Chinese - American observer kicked a Polish representative of the repatriation commission and screamed curses at him.

The PoWs reacted with the same fervor to the Red explainers at the interviews. Only this time they offered no resistance as they were moved in the explainers' direction.

But once in the area and face to face with the Red explainers they gave way to pent-up anger. They overturned chairs, hurled chairs, kicked and screamed at the Communist officers.

Many were physically restrained by Indian guards who sat in on the interviews being conducted simultaneously in 32 separate tents.

Most of the interviews lasted only a few minutes, but one, the cause of the bitter argument between the Red and Red officers, lasted three hours.

Injured Player's Mother Flies To His Bedside

PRESTWICK (CP)—The mother of Angus (Gus) Galbraith, injured Toronto Argonauts' halfback, arrived by air today from Canada and went to her son's bedside by automobile.

Mrs. J. W. Galbraith of Duncanpulse, Ont., was met at the airport by her husband and daughter-in-law, Lorraine. They went to the Prestwick Hospital where Mrs. Galbraith was taken after suffering a freak fracture Oct. 2.

Galbraith, former Toronto star for Paisley Pirates in the Scottish Hockey League, injured his leg in mid-ice collision. His right leg was fractured in what doctors called a freak fall in the dressing room.

No decision has been taken on when he will undergo surgery, if necessary.

Members of the Paisley team started a fund to pay for Mrs. Galbraith's air passage from Canada and to help her stay at the hotel near Scotland as long as necessary.

Shotguns Halt Michigan Convict Abducting Guard

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Brandishing an 18-inch butcher knife, a convict abducted a guard from a southern Michigan prison farm guard tower Friday morning. But blazing state police shotguns finally halted his cross-state flight by car.

The guard suffered a heart attack and was taken to a Muskegon hospital upon his rescue. He also was suffering pneumonia.

Neither the convict, a young Indian, nor the guard was wounded when the three-car, 10 - mile - an-hour chase three miles north of Muskegon, Mich., ended in Muskegon.

The convict took the guard's car for his escape. Several patrol bullets were pumped into it before police blew out the left-side tires with shotguns.

The convict is Dorn (Chief) Fatcheshing, 24, an Indian serving two to four years for felonious assault with intent.

The guard, Frank Pfau, 54, was on his charge of 21 navy prisoners on the west farm, a mile and a half southwest of the Jackson city limits.

HAMILTON (CP) — Strikers at the Wallace Barnes plant here put into immediate effect an order limiting picketing activities to four at the gate.

Although they declared they were "incensed" over the possible effects of the injunction, the strikers said they had received instruction from union officers that it must be observed.

This morning officers of Local 520 UEW sent out a rallying call to the local's more than 200 members asking them to attend a special meeting Sunday "when the full effects of the latest development will be considered."

Officers said they had no means of knowing what the membership meeting would decide.

Back From Britain Calgary Family Visits at Tweed

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and Jane Ann of Calgary, Alberta, passed in Tweed the other day on their return from an extended visit to Great Britain and the continent. They were guests of Mrs. Robinson's Brother, Mr. W. J. Ketcheson.

Mrs. Robinson is the former Ester Ketcheson, who resided in this city and who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ketcheson, who lived at one time in Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson spent five months sight-seeing overseas and will have been away from their home for almost some four months.

In an interview with the Tweed News, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson gave a colorful description of their experiences while overseas.

Leaving Montreal by boat in May, they had a rough passage with ice, Mrs. Robinson's brother, Mr. George Ketcheson, and family in London. Mr. Ketcheson then turned himself and his car over to his relatives while at the latter's disposal through England and Scotland attending the Royal in Edinburgh. A conducted tour took them through Wales and other parts of England. The Coronation was another highlight of stop-over in London.

The trio then continued to Paris, the Riviera, Italy, Switzerland, bus tour of France, Switzerland and Italy. This at the height of the best hotel facilities en route, and an opportunity of seeing everything. They were in Rome for any food shortage, or inadequate accommodations. "We found we didn't see it", said Mrs. Robinson. They enjoyed the trip to Rome, to Venice, the beautiful resorts at Geneva and Lucerne in Switzerland, with its many quaint old cathedrals of Italy.

The Swiss people took another bus tour of Belgium and Holland. Though badly disrupted by war damages in Holland, and a partial crop was expected in parts of the Netherlands, even this year. Near hotels, office buildings, stores, etc., were signs to the effect "Beware areas of the Low Countries. Thieves Dwell", people standing idly and wringing their hands; they're real workers," Mrs. Robinson noted.

The Robinsons returned to Canada, sailing from the Clyde and Scotland, which had a capacity passenger list of 1,000 persons, 600 sailors. They left on Monday of this week for Toronto to spend a few days visiting relatives on the final leg of their extended trip.

ALLIED AND RED

Only fast action by Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the NNRC, averted another serious violence.

Thimayya whisked the prisoner away from angry crowds of officers of both sides, put him in his own car and drove off.

U.S. Capt. Donald Stettler, the U.N. Allied officer who flew itself at least 17 times to leave the marathon interview and return to his command post, was stopped by the Indian guards at the insistence of the Red spokesman.

"They kept hammering and hammering at me," said Stettler. "They were out four explainers."

A spokesman said the UN command would protest to the NNRC on the grounds of cruel and unusual punishment. It asks him all and listen to that brain washing for three hours."

Stettler said the Reds apparently concentrated on that one Chinese because he had walked right into the explanation tent and sat down, unlike most of the other Chinese.

PoW Preferred Formosa

He said the PoW told the interviewers at least four times "I want to go to Formosa."

Stettler said he asked seven times that the interview be halted, but that the Indian chairman overruled him.

Indian guards, meanwhile, pushed a milling crowd of almost 100 Allied and Red officers away from the tent.

Finally, noting the disturbance went into the tent, grabbed the PoW by the shoulder and strode out over the heads of the Chinese explainers and Polish and Czech members of the neutral committee.

The Indian spokesman said the prisoner's fate would be referred to the repatriation commission.

Trust Red Radio

Meanwhile, the Allied repatriation group commander, Brig.-Gen. A. L. Randlam, wrote Thimayya protesting that 356 Communists Friday entered the south explanation camp where the Communists conducted their explanations.

Randlam said the Indians had told the UN command that 240 Communists would enter the camp.

In all, 22,400 former Red soldiers —14,000 Chinese and 7,800 North Koreans are being held by the commission for interviews.

There was still no indication when the UN command would start meeting with the 25 Americans, one Briton and 35 South Koreans who refuse to return home.

'Prisoners Don't Have to Listen'

Explaining his stand on forcing anti-Communist prisoners of the Korean war to attend Communist talks, Lieut.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, chairman of the Neutral Nations repatriation commission, said that though the prisoners may be forced to attend, no one could force them to listen to what the Communist lecturers had to say. He was proved correct by the first 500 who were subjected to the Red speeches. The prisoners sang anti-Communist songs, made such a racket in the tent where the speeches were made that no one could hear what was said. Only one of the prisoners asked for repatriation. — Central Press Canadian.

Stories of Famous Hymns

WORK, FOR THE NIGHT IS COMING

Work, for the night is coming,
Work thru' the morning hours;
Work, while the dew is sparkling,
Work, 'mid springing flowers.
Work when the day grows brighter,
Work in the glowing sun;
Work for the night is coming,
When man's work is done.

Work, for the night is coming,
Under the sunset skies;
While their bright fruits and glowing
Work, for daylight flies;
Work till the last beam fadeth,
Fadeth to shine no more;
Work while the night is darkening
When man's work is o'er.

Work, for the night is coming —
Soon must thy work be done,
Or 'twill be left unfinished,
All thou hast begun.
Work ere thy strength shall fail thee;
And thou canst work no more;
Work, for life's day is ending,
And will soon be o'er.

By HORACE B. POWELL

"Work, For The Night Is Coming"

Bible verses have supplied inspiration and themes for some of Christendom's most popular hymns.

Annie Louisa Walker (Mrs. Harry Coghill in later life) built her song, "Work, For The Night Is Coming, on a favorite passage of scripture, John 9:4, in which Jesus said:

"I must work the works of Him that sent Me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work".

Written in 1854 while Miss Walker was living in Canada, the hymn made its first appearance in the poetry corner of a newspaper. It was not used as a song until 1870 when it was included in Ira D. Sankey's collection of "Sacred Songs and Solos". In the years that followed it became a favorite in the evangelistic campaigns conducted by Dr. Dwight L. Moody and Mr. Sankey.

Lowell Mason, who gave Miss Walker's hymn its music, is known for the number of religious tunes which he composed, and for the excellence of his composition. He began to climb to musical fame in a century of use.

Little Girl Thawed Them

(A. C. FORENT
In Montreal Star Sunday)

In a little English church recently, a minister was working away at his sermon, using all the eloquence he could muster to drive home his point. The congregation sat there, stiffly dignified, leaning back at him, without a twitch of the face or a nod of the head to show whether they understood or appreciated the Gospel he was proclaiming.

Suddenly, in the midst of a dramatic pause which he inserted for effect, a little girl, obviously carried away by the minister's message, piped to her mother, "Mommy, when do we clap?"

The congregation held for a moment, then a ripple of laughter grew into a swell, and even the embarrassed mother was engulfed in the waves of mirth which swept away the cold formality of that frigid group of worshippers. The minister moved on to his conclusion with a new light-heartedness, for, after all, even though the grownups seemed usually to be unruffled by the glory of the old story, hadn't a little child thought it worth clapping for?

When they sang the closing hymn there was a new lilt and a new joy in the refrain, and the preacher that day went home with a bounce in his step and a new song in his heart. A little girl had thawed them out.

A Lift for Living
What Is Success?

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We all want to succeed. The urge to amount to something is born in us. But what is it to succeed?

Certainly we can say first of all that success must be inspired by a good motive. Ambition, with its essential to useful living, can be devilish as well as Godly. And when the desire to succeed is only the urge to self-advancement, it often play the devil. Healthy self-assertiveness loses itself in the welfare of larger groups.

The normal child merges its interests first with those of the family. The baby is born a bundle of egoistic desires. It wants what it wants it, and if unchecked may try to get its way at the expense of the other members in the household. But the well-trained child ceases trying to win over the family and learns to win with the family.

Brother George is pleased when Helen makes A's in school, and Helen cheers when George makes the team. Of course, there may be occasional exceptions. But when a boy wants to win for the sake of the family rather than merely for himself, his ambition takes on a nobler cast.

The child enters into the life and interests of the school. If he trains for the football team, it makes a great difference whether he is out to be a star performer seeking glory for himself or whether he is a team player. The fellow that plays to the grandstand, however brilliant, does not become popular with those who know. The chief value of school and college athletics, in fact, of all school loyalties, is to expand the success patterns of youth to include interests beyond themselves.

Then, when George finishes his formal schooling, he sets out to get a job. In this he desires to succeed. He says, "I want to make something of myself." Surely that seems a worthy motive, but is it quite an adequate one?

Some years ago a middle aged Boston surgeon said to Dean Speers of Harvard: "It has taken me half my life to find out that my task in life is not to make something of myself but to find a job that is worth doing and then lose myself in it."

Do we wish to succeed for the sake of ourselves? That is bad. Or do we wish to succeed for the sake of our family, our friends, our work?

Another mark of success is to survive defeats. A few years ago two men, Primo Carnera and Max Baer, were fighting for the heavyweight championship of the world. I don't go to prize fights, but this was told by a bishop, and bishops are supposed to be authorities on everything, including prize fights! In the midst of the bout, each fighter swung at the other and missed. Both fell to the canvas, and the crowd witnessed the rather ridiculous spectacle of two fighters lying in the ring, down each other. Before they could rise, Max Baer, who was given to bright remarks, grinned at Carnera and said, "The last one up is a sissy." The setting of that remark should not blind us to the truth of it.

How to pick oneself up from defeat when "one is too old to cry and when it hurts too much to laugh"—that is a very real test of success.

But to survive victories is even harder. We have a common saying in the ring, "Nothing succeeds like success."

That seems true in the short view. But in the long perspective of history, we see that nothing fails like success. Worldly men cannot stand success. Only Godly men can stand success.

Why is this? Because victors so often become self-confident. We need God to show us the true goals of success and to keep us humble in pursuing them. That is why the Master said, "The meek shall inherit the earth."

WORDS FOR THE WORLD

A new life is, in this age, striving within all the regions of the earth, and yet none hath discovered the cause of its being and motive. The time here ordained unto the peoples and kindreds of the earth is now come. In the days to come a new consciousness will be born and a new life breathed into the body of humanity. This is the day of Baha'u'llah; the age of the Kingdom; the century of the revelation of Bahaullah.

A person becomes informed of the reality of Jesus Christ, he will become in it. For Christ is the spirit of this age.

DIE GEFAHREN DER ZIVILISATION . . .

Es ist an der Zeit, daß jeder Bewußtsein, materielle Fortschritte zu machen. Wenn aber der Mensch nicht den viel wichtigeren geistigen Fortschritt vernachlässigt, dann werden Augen nicht vor dem gottlichen Licht, welches nun in neuer Weise auf die Menschheit scheint.

Horch! O Du, die Du tot sagt! Die Hand der Gute Gottes reicht euch das Wasser des Lebens! Hört und trinket, denn vor wiederkommt wird an diesem Tag, der nichts niemals mehr! Wer das tut Hatten, wird nicht mehr dürsten! (Selections from the Geschriften der Baha'i World Faith).

THE HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

The Belleville General Hospital has announced the opening of a campaign to raise $1,250,000 for purposes of expansion.

The city of Belleville and the County of Hastings have already given their assurance of $200,000, while an additional quarter of a million dollars is expected from provincial and federal grants. That leaves $600,000 to be raised by public subscription.

It probably seems like a lot of money and it is. On the basis that Belleville has 30,000 people this sum works out to about thirty dollars each, or two dollars and fifty cents a month for one year.

However, Belleville General Hospital serves an area in which it is estimated there are 60,000 people. In this area the hospital is a vital institution offering a multitude of essential and complex services. These services cost money.

The expansion and growth of Belleville and Hastings County has been rapid and steady since the end of World War II. Industrial development in the county and the growth of established industry indicates that this growth will continue. This expansion has placed an intolerable burden on the present hospital facilities which are hopelessly designed to accommodate well the number currently using it.

Overcrowding at the Belleville General Hospital has reached the point where it is difficult to accommodate even emergency cases. Everyone will recognize that such a situation, if allowed to continue, will undermine the standard of security which the hospital establishes in any community. It is not expected that anyone will quarrel with the decision of the Board of Governors of the hospital when it states that it considers imperative that necessary expansion begin as soon as possible.

The hospital stands as a bulwark of service and security. In times of great crisis the responsible individual recognizes that he has a responsibility to the maintenance of his community hospital whether or not he has been served in the past by the hospital. The simple fact that such an institution must be available places an individual responsibility for its welfare on the people it serves.

We feel that the people of Belleville and the County will have served so faithfully in the past by the Belleville General Hospital will recognize their duty in this behalf and respond to its call for assistance with the same prompt generosity that characterizes the hospital's response to their emergencies.

NOT A SATISFACTORY SOLUTION

Volumes have been written on the merits of homeowning. The rewards, financial and psychological, have probably been over-stressed. Nevertheless, it has its advantages, for the individual and the community.

The most enthusiastic supporter of the policy of young couples purchasing a house, rather than renting one, may have believed that the Federal Government's plan to further assist home-buyers would be beneficial. We suggest a realistic survey of the provision of this plan will reveal such a conclusion is in error.

The legislation making the scheme is still being drafted, but a report from Ottawa, quite evidently based on official news sources, says that the new act will result in higher interest rates and also in longer mortgage indebtedness. This will increase the annual finance charges to approximately seven per cent of the loan. It is true that the home-buyer will be required to pay less than 20 per cent of the mortgage, but it also true that this very fact will increase the total amount he will eventually have to pay for his house.

In other words, home-owning will be made easier, but the cost will be higher.

The question thus arises as to whether the increased costs of purchasing a house will not rob such purchases of much of their attractiveness.

It may be replied that, under present conditions, many families have been effectively prevented from home, since construction of single-family units for rental purposes is hardly a profitable investment. This is true.

The Federal Government's plan promises to be the best possible solution to the nation's housing problem. But that does not mean that tomorrow's home-owner will enjoy all the security which once was thought to be the principle virtue of home-ownership. The dividends from home-owning will be smaller in future is, we suggest, that many homes will not be really owned. Many will find a thirty-year mortgage an effective bar to "peaceful possession."

THE GAME IS THE THING

This is the hunting season. Many Belleville residents enjoy trips to marsh or bush. Often these excursions are unproductive. The hunters complain. Hunting is not as good as it once was.

But if the hunting is poor, it is better than if it were 100 years ago. Some of the species are rarer today, but to make the sport better. That is the conclusion we reached upon reading that, on England's greatest private bird shooting ground on a November day in 1912, the late King George V and Lord Iveagh set up a record bag of 2,247 pheasant and partridge.

Five partridges to the limit in Ontario. The hunter who gets it has reason to be proud. He has had five big thrills. Shoot 3,247 partridges and he does not multiply the number of his thrills 649 times, but reduces each thrill to an infinitesimal fraction of its former size.

THE BANQUET SEASON

Once more we start the banquet circuit
Once more: "We have with us tonight."
Again the lengthy speech profound,
The chicken fried—dark meat and light,
And why, I wonder, always these:
The cut up carrots mixed with peas?

Once more the old black coat and tie,
(Make sure that mine is cleaned and pressed.)
At night when on display am I
I must appear correctly dressed.
And surely it would be as well
To dust the jokes toastmasters tell.

The restful summer days have fled,
The time has come for evenings long.
Once more the banquet boards are spread.
Once more I'll have to join the throng
At midnight and be last in line
To get that coat and hat of mine.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

Despite the great numbers of people, many of them influential, who have protested more or less loosely together all over North America in their naturalist associations such as bird watchers, wild life conservationists, nature lovers and the like, against what a growing sentimental streak instead of a practical instinct stimulates, this generation is likely to be the witness to the extermination of more species that are doomed to join the great auk, Labrador duck and passenger pigeon. I refer to mention the bison. They are the ivory billed woodpecker and the whooping crane. As with their predecessors, there is only the one villain in the piece and we know who he is.

The ivory billed woodpecker is larger than our pileated woodpecker, and much more spectacularly colored and marked. Florida and Louisiana cane are the last areas where it has been seen. Some naturalists believe it is already too late for good, within the past couple of years.

The whooping crane is now enumerated. The census shows 31 at the sanctuary established for them in Texas. They fly north each spring to Saskatchewan. Great white birds, with loud calls, they little realize what a misfortune it is to them as they fly the thousands of miles across states and provinces filled with a manner of men. Thirty-one of them, the last?

In 1913 there were 88 of them, by the best count. Since the Texas winter sanctuary was set up there have been increases and declines in their numbers. But it is very doubtful if all the influence, political and educational, of all the hundreds of thousands or even millions of interested people in the United States and Canada could do more than stave off the fate almost surely awaits them, not guns alone but the invasion of their breeding range by hungry man in search of meat, feathers, oil or what not.

Of course, we have the starling in exchange. Possibly the only way man can ultimately control the starling is to conceive that he is good for something even as a lumpy Eskimo could hardly say of of woodpecker or a crane.

Edible Shirt Not in Demand

(Christian Science Monitor)

A Canadian who had bet on the losing side in an election, acted a shirt now could make a shirt good to eat. From a profession that is always looking for publicity, converts soybeans into plastics, and extracts magnesium from sea water, the chemist's response was a little unencouraging. He recommended the clothing as a last resort and spreading the ashes over a steak smothered in onions.

It is doubtful if the chemical industry would find a wide market for a shirt made of vegetable fibres that would literally melt in the mouth or even for a hat for eating purposes made of "cotton" candy.

But if the Ottawa man had asked a psychologist for an answer to his problem, possibly he would have been told that the best way to make a shirt palatable is to imagine that you're a goat.

And that shouldn't be to difficult for the loser of an election bet.

Law of Salvage

(New York Times)

The ecrasis of maritime law are held left to the learned members of the admiralty bar. However, in recent years dramatic and well-publicized salvage cases like the Greenville, the Flying Enterprise and the Andrea Doria have aroused the curiosity of the general public in the branch of maritime law dealing with salvage. Thus, one could read in this newspaper a few days ago that the subject of salvage must be of a maritime nature, that a derelict, cargo afloat or lossed overboards and to some extent "life and life boat." It is not without significance that "life" appears last on this list of salvage subjects. The problem of whether to reward legally the saving of life on the seas has long perplexed the law. From this commercial the law of salvage has given the property saved as an inducement to act, but this encouragement is obsurd when applied to the saving of human life. Nevertheless the courts have shown liberality in awarding the salvery of property imperiled in the act of saving persistently ruled that the salvor of life must assume no risk.

The general maritime law rule that a salvage award may be made only from property saved is a practical consequence dating prior to the Emancipation Proclamation. Since the slave was property he could and had a market value, one could receive a salvage fee for saving him from the seas but none for rescuing the free man. The law thus encouraged the salvor to assist the slaves rather than the slave owner — probably a fact that the abolitionists! In an 1803 case of sailor who had been driven overboard to sea in a canoe. They were picked up by a passing ship which claimed a salvage award. The court awarded one-tenth of the value of the cargo in settlement to salvors in general." In 1806, Justice Washington declared and held down the amount of the salvage award "in proportion to the nature of the cargo" the salvors must have had less trouble in saving life than silver goods lying in the hold.

Should a man be rewarded by pecuniary payment for doing what law and life? The status of the Good Samaritan has always posed a problem for the philosophy of law, and the life salvor—the Good Samaritan of the sea—would appear to be no exception, since the emotions motivating both forms of salvage is based upon the proposition that there is no legal duty to aid a fellow in time of distress. The question of when to embody in a statute a legislative compliment to a private citizen is continually coming up before the legislatures. Any efforts to legislate values into compliments would be futile in the spirit and soul must surround such gestures. Thus, while Congress has ordered "that the master of any vessel of the United States of  render assistance to every person found at sea in danger of being lost, or face fine or imprisonment. But Congress has never seen fit to provide for compensating payment to such life saving.

The British—so often wiser than we in matters maritime—have gone further. They have statutorily as far back as 1854 by making legislative provisions for payment to the life salvor even if no property survives the disaster. Today the salvor of life from a British vessel in British waters, has an irrefutable statutory right to claim an award which may be said "out of the consolidated fund of Parliament."

The British example, however, was largely laid upon American legislators, for when Congress finally acted in 1912 it provided more than reaffirm the general maritime law requirement that no one may claim an award for saving life only if property too was saved "on the occasion" of the accident. Congress failed to see that only by severing the life salvage award from the property salvage requirement would the saving of life become as financially attractive as the saving of property. While it is to be expected that the traditions of the sea will always motivate the American seaman to rescue people rather than cargo on the seas, there is no reason why the financial penalty for such compassionate deeds. Some day Congress may wish to investigate and to remedy a situation which makes it materially preferable to save the law book rather than the "sea lawyer" in American admiralty law. Someone may be tempted!

Great Pavlov Would Approve

(Montreal Gazette)

Ivan Petrovitch Pavlov, the great Russian physiologist to whom the Soviet state has credited most of the world's inventions, was actually a remarkable man. He was the first to be rewarded for his work by the great scientific groups of Europe. He left three achieved scientific fame for his papers on digestion. Later, experimenting on conditioned dogs, he produced some remarkable discoveries in conditioned reflexes.

Combining signal bells with food rewards, Pavlov conditioned became remarkable examples of conditioned reflexes. He established stimuli. By compiling the order of the call controls, Pavlov was even produced nervous disorders — neuroses — in his animals.

The lessons of the great Pavlov are largely forgotten in Russia's Communist — as it were, whose attitude toward their subjects is not unlike rewarding the lover's reward his dogs. The Communist system himself is helpless to react in a given manner when a given stimulant is administered. Instead of the Pavlovian bell ringing bells, the Communist system's reaction is like "Imperialist warmonger," "reactionary," "fascist," "Titoist," or "people's democracy" in the manner in which he has been carefully trained.

By a reversal of proper psychology Communism has established, can also be induced to suffer neuroses, particularly the guilt complex. It is well established fact that the "confessions" which are featured in all Communist trials are gained more by the use of such methods than by physical torture in the usual sense of the word.

By keeping the victim awake for days, by the use of drugs and him food, his resistance is drained away. But the destruction of will has been carefully studied in his mental processes to an automatic reaction. Pavlov discovered that his "interrogators" decades in true, to some in hours and weeks in others. It is well established fact that his "interrogators" decades ago in true, to some in hours and weeks in others. Pavlov-like repetition of key phrases, carefully conditioned responses, and experiment.

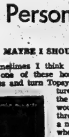
It is this mental ordeal which not more 22,500 prisoners of war in Korea who declared months ago they preferred death to return to their Communist homelands.

The Communists call the procedure, in this case, an "explanatory period. The explanations are to go on, in relays of "explainers" aided by radio and loud speakers, for 90 days, eight hours a day.

One of the strange facts of the Korean War is that the U.N. agreed to this grisly formula in negotiating the truce.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TRY SOMETHING NEW



"A young girl has written me of her ing of me of her inmost feelings. She puts in in these words: "I am very dissatisfied in every phase of my life. I am not happy in my work, my living of others, not yourself. One of the happiest things we can do is to forget ourselves.

It is amazing how life lights up the moment that we start being kind, doing generous things, or thinking out some act that will bring to another an unexpected happiness. If we concentrate upon our own affairs we make them the more objective. Like the instrument out of tune in an orchestra.

Look at the interests of some sort that will return personal joy. Get out of yourself and into that belong to you. Then divide them with others. None of us live happily unto ourselves. When the sunshine spreads out all life is benefited within every warm ray. Spread your life out. You will be surprised at the contraction. Your personal troubles and questionings will disappear. It is normal to be happy.

MAYBE I SHOULD TURN IN MY HORSE AND BUGGY

Dr. Brady

Sometimes I think I ought to go in search of these breeding carriages and turn Topsy out to pasture. Not that I could enough mud and snow where a doctor with these carts has to go, as Topsy does, but just to remind folks that the old doc keeps up with the progress of medical science.

Some five years ago—probably I could find the piece and the correspondence is entailed in the files, but the very thought of such a task makes me almost as much as reading clippings from this column, so you will please excuse me I'll just say I remember pieces of the danger, particularly to children, of phosphorus poisoning from match heads.

This would have been right as rain had it been printed in 1900 or even as late as 1920. But in 1928 it was almost as much as be—and it seems that when I'm wrong I'm so dogmatic about it never mind everything else—and that when the error is discovered all I can do is blush and hang my head in shame.

The president or one of the larger match companies didn't demand my scalp or even a full confession of my unfounded misrepresentation. Instead he informed me with devastating courtesy that for the past thirty or forty years the phosphorus compounded used by all match manufacturers had been non-poisonous even the match heads were eaten, and if took only casual investigation of the matter on my part to find that the man in the street was by right. In fact it was an officer of his own company that first made the discovery or invented the non-poisonous phosphorus compound that revolutionized safety matches.

As though that were not enough, while I was trying to find a hole to crawl into, I got a letter from a man who writes with my personal monogram on the covers—and what you think that monogram should be is beside the point.

Says he: I lit my No. 1 smoker, a pipeful of Walnut and Middleton 5 (my own blend) upon arising, by the bowling alley for the afternoon game with the last match from the last book on Saturday, August 8, the following item appeared in this column:

A—Cheating husband.
Q—Granddaughter, 1½ years old, has a three-room doll's house crib until it is almost bare of paint . . . (Mrs. S. A.)
A—Grandma, the unpainted wood will do the baby no harm, but the painted wood may give her lead poisoning. Cribs and toys should not be painted.

Well, here we go again. The president of a paint, varnish and lacquer manufacturers' association informs me with that same disarming courtesy on they don't give a fellow even a chance to call you "one another" that the industry has had its effect for many years a regulation that no lead or other poisonous materials shall be used in finishing children's toys or playthings. Further, the paint man avers, finishes for interior use are nearly all lead-free —the few paints, varnishes or lacquers for interior use that do contain any lead carry on the label a statement of the presence of lead.

Paints for exterior use commonly contain lead, for instance, paints used on bridges. Although only a dozen States require a statement of the ingredients on the label, the industry's general policy is to give such information on the label.

Thank you, Mr. Paint Man. Come to think of it, only rarely have I seen a child with a bicycle and pop shanks' mare. But I'll be looking for you and Tory when I arrive. If you have one in the cabin to welcome me I won't come in.

Weighing Sunbeam

(Windsor Star)

Philosophers once sought to weigh the sunbeam.

Not only does light fly from the sun with a velocity a million times greater than the speed of the fastest cannon ball but, it darts from every reflecting surface with similar velocity. Hence every ray imparts a minute impact do its rays reach the eye!

When the ancient philosophers, trying to solve the mysteries of Old Sol, strayed into the sunbeam, they constructed a most delicate balance and suddenly let in on it a ray of light. The lever of the balance was long, so delicately that the fluttering of the tiniest winged insect would have disturbed it.

The sunbeam that was to decide the fate of mankind hit the sun eight minutes prior. It had flown through 92,000,000 miles of space in that short time and it shot upon the delicately balance with unabated velocity.

Result? The lever moved not a bit — leaving the philosophers mute.

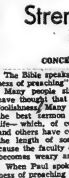
CONCERNING PREACHING AND PREACHERS

The Bible speaks of "the foolishness of preaching" (I Cor. 1:21).

Many people since Paul's day have thought that preaching was foolishness. Many have said that preaching is a useless and lifeless—which, of course, is true—and others have complained that preaching is of some sermons because the faculty of listening soon becomes weary and satiated.



When Paul spoke of the foolishness of preaching he was speaking relatively to the wisdom that fills with the philosophies and "isms" of his day. None of these had wrought, so God was going to save by preaching that man can called foolishness, namely by preaching.

The passing centuries have vindicted Paul's estimate of the value of preaching. Many people regard preaching as of little consequence. Sometimes it is miserably done. Sometimes it is misheard. But it is because the preacher has tried to speak in the power of his own head instead of out of the word of God or because he has tried to please the hearers rather than to please the Lord whom he represents.

But the preachers are the most valuable helpers our communities have. Support them with your prayers, your means, your encouragement and your attendance. The world avails healing by the simple message of God and from God.

Social Credit Regime in B.C. Finishes Session

VICTORIA (CP) — The opening session of the first British Columbia government to pass legislation under a majority Social Credit rule was scheduled to wind up today.

The last major government business was cleaned up in the house late Friday and members hailed it a day an hour after midnight.

They planned to return to the chambers a few hours later during normal business hours to give third and final reading to a few bills and hear discussion of private members bills and amendments.

Gives Royal Assent

Then, if all went well, Lieutenant - Governor Clarence Wallace was scheduled to give royal assent to legislation that has been introduced and approved during the five week session of the 34th legislature.

The minority Social Credit government in the last legislature was defeated before any of its proposed legislation could become law.

After that the legislature is expected to prorogue until spring.

Included in the legislation approved will be a new liquor act increasing outlets, a new act levying an additional 40 per cent sales tax on a glass of liquor and exemption of meals up to $1, from three per cent sales tax. The basic minimum was 50 cents.

The last bit of legislation to gain final reading in the "wee hours" was the sales tax act.

Earlier in the evening the members debated almost 2½ hours before passing a new Election Act giving the vote to 22,000 19- and 20-year-olds and enfranchising the provinces' 10,000 Doukhobors.

Change Ballots

The act also returns B. C. to the single-choice ballot, scrapping the multiple-choice or alternative ballot used in the two elections which put Social Credit into power.

If the legislature prorogues today it will have been in session five weeks and four days.

In that time, it introduced some legislation that was expected—the new liquor law increasing outlets for by-the-glass sales of liquor—and some that was not—the new 10 per cent tax on that glass of liquor.

Other new taxes include a 10 per cent tax on net profits of mining and logging companies over $25,000 and a one per cent tax on timber leases and licenses.

The government of Premier W. A. C. Bennett was elected in June in a vote made necessary by the defeat of a Social Credit minority government on the floor of the house in March. It fell on an education financing issue.

Instead of a 18-member minority government, Premier Bennett was returned in the following election with 27 members.

The opposition were 14 CCF members, four Liberals, one Progressive-Conservative and one Independent Labor member.

Student Exchange With Russian Schools Out

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Federation of Canadian University Students Friday voted in its first full-time salaried president, and voted out a proposed exchange of students with Russian universities.

Tony Enriquez, 22, a Mexican student in business administration at Ottawa University, was elected to the $1,800 post of president at the closing session of the federation's 17th annual conference.

Mr. Enriquez, last year's vice-president of the NFCUS' Ontario section, succeeds Rajbhir Singh Sant of the University of British Columbia. He will be the first president to take a year off from his studies to represent the 28,000 students, members of the organization.

Reject Exchange

Earlier delegates from 20 universities, for the second year in succession, threw out a resolution proposing that 12 to 15 Russian students make a three-week coast-to-coast tour of Canadian campuses. An equal number of Canadian students were to visit Russia.

Last year the proposal was defeated when delegates of two universities threatened to walk out of the NFCUS if it were passed. There was little debate this year before the renewed Russian offer was rejected. The students also decided not to seek associate membership in the International Union of Students described by some speakers as "Communist-dominated."

The convention also voted to send an observer to the next IUS conference and to exchange Chaucer's University Press news with the international union.

With the election of the new full-time president, University of Montreal, which resigned from the federation last year, decided to return.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop shaving this fore, and I said. Could you cut yourself even with a safety razor, pop?

There's nuthing a man cant accomplish, if he really applies himself, pop said, and I said, Well do you ever cut yourself with yours, pop?

No, touch wood, pop said.

Meaning he hopes he never will, and I said, Well, if an old witch put a spell on your razor and told it to cut you, what do you think would happen?

The old witch would be very embarrassed at her failure, that's all, pop said, and I said, Well I just thought of it, and I could see it was a witch, Shall I go ahead and get your razor for ju, pop? I said.

By all means, amuse yourself, pop said.

Which I did, saying, Ibbitty bip, razor slip, and give pop a cut between his nose and his lip.

Now I hope you feel better, pop said. If you're all washed, go over to your barstuffs, he said, and I said, I want to wait here a while longer and watch, just in case.

Which I did, watching every move he took especially the ones around his mouth, and pop said, For Peet sake you're giving me the willies, get out of here.

Well why, pop? You dont bleeve in witches, I said, and pop said, I bleeve a man is entitled to commune with his inner thoughts while he's shaving, and for that he needs a moderate amount of privacy. Now get! he said.

Which I did, and pop came down to breakfast with no cuts on his lip, proving the spell didn't work but not proving nuthing would of happened if I had of stayed there making him nervsis..

FROM MY WINDOW

The lawn has a brand-new carpet,
A carpet of fallen leaves,
A bright and beautiful pattern
That nature alone can weave;
And beyond the narrow street-way
The autumn colors glow
On a wide and stately maple
To match the scene below.

And a sunset in crimson velvet
Like a beautiful lesson stands,
And promises in magic brightness
Over all the autumn land;
And the strangers of the roadway,
Pondering, admire
As fulfilling, God unfolds
Where birds of the wild find shelter
When days are damp and cold

And on the grassy carpet
The robins still come for bread,
And seek my face at the window
As their southern flight they
And joined by the wrens and finches
And a mut-hatch on a nearby tree
They say good-bye to the summer,
To their summer home and me

In the genuine days of autumn
What memories stir the soul!
And memories for neglected
Relentlessly pass away.

First Major Concert of Canadian Music Scores Success in N.Y.

MRS. SUTHERN
Canadian Pianist and Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Carnegie Hall was the setting Friday night for the first major concert of Canadian music ever held in the United States.

A distinguished 1,a-t-national audience representing most of the countries of the world heard Leopold Stokowski conduct his orchestra in the instrumental and vocal works of six leading Canadian composers.

In the New York Herald Tribune, Virgil Thomson says the coming of age musically was "clearly demonstrated here last night."

Hear With Approval

Olin Downes says in The Times that the concert was "heard with manifest approval by a brilliant audience." But only a few "secondary importance where this review is concerned."

The concert was of exceptional interest and artistic significance," Downes says. "Not one . . . score was of a merely conventional character" and each "revealed an individuality of more or less strength on the part of the composer . . . to show an impressive degree of technical mastery."

The six composers are Pierre Mercure, Alexander Brott and Francois Morel of Montreal, and Healey Willan, Colin McPhee and Godfrey Ridout of Toronto—were present to hear their compositions performed and to take bows from an audience which was heavily laden with Canadians, many of them prominent in music, radio and politics.

They heard Mercure's Pantomime," an orchestral composition for wind instruments and percussion; Brott's concerto for Violin, an exacting work in three movements with Noel Brunet of Montreal, long-time friend of the composer, as soloist; McPhee's "Tabuh-Tabuhan," a composition in three movements based on balinese gamelan and rhythms; Morel's "Antiphonie," a short orchestral work; "Two Mystical Songs of John Donne," by Ridout, sung by soprano Lois Marshall of Toronto, and Willan's "Coronation Suite," a choral and orchestral composition in five movements.

Praises McPhee

The Tribune's Thomson writes: "The evening's most brilliant and original work was Colin McPhee's Tabuh-Tabuhan, composed in 1936. A 'Homeric piece in three movements that evokes by direct imitation the music of Bali . . . for the ending-piece that all may be the endings-piece that all conductors are looking for . . . for it is completely brilliant, busy, sweet and fun."

"Francois Morel's Antiphonie is another lovely piece . . . (It) has poetry and style. I should like to hear it right over again."

Thomson finds the other works "professional enough but lacking in reflected ideas."

Dr. Hans Lucke, hospital pathologist, must conduct many microscopic examinations of specimens during the year in the pathology department. Each test must be duly noted and careful records maintained of findings. In the above picture, the doctor is seen checking his records following an examination of a diseased tissue specimen. Pathology work is increasing on an average of 10 per cent annually.

Pathology Department of Belleville Hospital Big Help in Diagnosing Disease

Long ago, a man by the name of Harvey made the surprising announcement to the world that, "blood circulated." His astounding statement was met with a great amount of ridicule by the medical profession as a whole. Nevertheless; William Harvey's theory stuck and there grew out of his discovery the study of blood or hematology.

Today in modern hospitals hematology is under the direction of the pathology department and most institutions have a department of this kind. Pathology, according to Dr. Hans Lucke, chief pathologist at the Belleville General Hospital, is the research into the nature of disease through the aid of post-mortems followed up by a microscopic examination of tissues or cells to determine the nature of the disease.

Two Major Divisions

With the advance of medical science through the years, pathology has become divided into two major fields: Disease and investigation into the causes of death by the study of diseased tissue. The other main division is the law-enforcing branch, or assisting the police in determining certain factors concerning the manner in which a person may have been killed or have died.

In 1931 the hospital brought in a full-time pathologist in the person of Dr. Lucke. He arrived in May and began organizing his department. The pathologist graduated from medical school in Germany, his native land, in 1932. He took post graduate study in pathology from there until 1936. That was the time when Adolph Hitler was strengthening his forces and building up his armies in preparation for a world conflict. Those in Germany at that period, saw trouble looming on the horizon, and many tried to leave the country.

Dr. Lucke was one of these men. When he left Germany, he gave up his career that was to turn into probably one of the most interesting of any of his colleagues.

He became the pathologist for the International Settlement, Municipal Council Health Department in Shanghai, China. He remained with the municipal council until it surrendered in 1941 after the Pacific war had begun. Following this he taught medicine in a Chinese academy of medicine until the end of the war.

Joined Ambulance Unit

After the war, the doctor joined an organization known as the Friends' Ambulance Unit. Run by the Quakers, the unit travelled into the interior of China, treating a disease of the tropics known as Kala-azar, a disease first carried by an insect which causes death to the patient if not treated. However, Dr. Lucke said that under treatment they had almost 100 per cent cures. The Friends' Ambulance Unit paid employees no salary. They worked for their clothes on their backs and their food.

The doctor remained with this organization for one year and then entered into private practice in Shanghai. Eventually the Communists invaded the city and he managed to get out of China and come to Canada and finally to this city. Dr. Lucke, who speaks two dialects of Chinese fluently, says he plans to remain in Belleville.

Other members of the staff in the pathology department include, Clifford Sloss, chief technician, who has been here for 14 months; Mrs. Shirley Hinchey, who is in charge of hematology and Glenna Haines, in charge of the chemistry department; Miss Cecile Kobiela, a registered technician a;i Miss Amann, in charge of the blood bank and the taking of blood samples from hospital patients.

Mosa Report Week

Since there is a great amount of report work, the department also has two clerks on the staff to handle this business. Dr. Lucke said that there always seems to be either an call or on duty every 24 hours in pathology.

Similar to other departments of the hospital, the main problem in the pathology department is the lack of space. It has been suggested, the electrical equipment used in the pathology changes almost as fast as medical science advances. Dr. Lucke has ordered his present equipment as being up-to-date.

New equipment is arriving all the time and Dr. Lucke is hopeful of being able to wonder where the next piece will be placed. Nevertheless, pathology is one of the smoothest running sections in the hospital. However, to maintain the good services dispensed by this department, the pathologist requires more help. He declares. He estimates the work of his department has increased on an average of 10 per cent each year.
